Mr. FONG. I thank the distinguished Senator from Ohio. If we adopt the amendment, I believe that we shall come to that point. When we come to that point, we shall go a little further. Every time the Government has anything to do with an activity, we shall say that, since certain regulations have been established relating to the price, the Government can set the price of the activity or article. We will then have regimented prices all over America.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, I am advised by the committee staff that the amendment does not mean what I understand the senior Senator from California to state that it means. I have read it; other Senators have read it. It is a long, 2-page, technical amendment. I would like to understand what it means before I vote on it, because it is important. Therefore I move that further consideration of the amendment be postponed until tomorrow.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. CASE. Mr. President, is such a motion debatable?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion is debatable.

Mr. CASE. I do not wish to presume to interfere between the Senator from California and the Senator from Tennessee on the question of postponement. Therefore, I shall not direct my discussion to that point.

Even if the most liberal interpretation of the amendment of the Senator from California be the correct one, and the amendment would apply not only to every building, whether it be a one-family house or a multiple-family dwelling, but also anything else the financing of which is guaranteed by FHA, and even if the areawide basis is the correct one, as far as the prevailing wage question is concerned, it seems to me most desirable that the amendment be adopted. I think it is as simple as that. Shall we have the credit of the Federal Government used to help drive down wages? That is the question. Or will we have a national policy which is appropriate to establish when we render national financial assistance, even for a single-dwelling home owner, that can be carried into effect by establishing the prevailing wage rates?

We have done that all along on public construction. We have done it on private construction, for commercial ventures, and that sort of thing. I see no reason why a person building a 1-family dwelling should be treated differently from a person building a 10-family house, a 20-family dwelling, or a 100-family dwelling. If the person constructing such a building desires the assistance of the Federal Government, he should be able to get it only on the condition that he not violate a national wage policy. If that is not a national wage policy which was established, I may say with some pride, under Republican auspices many years ago, and supported by both parties alike over the years, and expanded in its coverage—although not expanded as quickly as I would like to have seen it expanded—then I am mistaken.

When the question comes to a vote—and I do not argue as to whether action should be had today or another day—I hope that the amendment will be carried overwhelmingly.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CASE. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. GORE. Can the Senator tell us whether the amendment would apply only to multiple units or would it apply to the individual home to be covered by an FHA-insured home mortgage?

Mr. CASE. As I said at the outset of my remarks, and I repeat, I am not attempting to interpret the scope of the amendment, because I believe even if it should apply, it should apply only to one-family houses.

Mr. GORE. Does not the Senator believe that we should understand the scope of the amendment before we vote on it?

Mr. CASE. I am not attempting to say that we should not understand the scope of it. All I am saying is that whatever its scope, whether the amendment applies only to multiple-family houses or whether it applies to single-family houses as well, the Davis-Bacon Act principle should be applicable.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. CASE. I yield.

Mr. GORE. I would be prepared to support the application of Davis-Bacon as a standard for commercial enterprises and high-rise apartments, but I am not prepared to have it apply to every individual homeowner application in the United States, and I would like to know definitely the scope of the amendment.

I wish the senior Senator from California would ask unanimous consent that action on his amendment be postponed until tomorrow.

Mr. KUCHEL. Will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey has the floor.

Mr. KUCHEL. I am sorry.

Mr. CASE. The Senator from New Jersey does not wish to define the amendment, because he is for it, whether it applies across the board or to one-family housing.

I do not wish to interfere with the two Senators on the question as to whether the issue should be decided today or tomorrow, but when it is acted upon, I want every Senator to know that I shall support it on the broadest possible basis.

I yield the floor.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I strongly support the Senator's motion for postponement until such time as we can have the amendment printed and available, and Senators have made a study of it.

I consulted with counsel for the committee and the chairman of the subcommittee, and no one I have been able to find is completely clear on what it means.

Apparently it applies to different parts of the Federal Housing Act which are not included in the bill before us today, and someone must have available the whole Federal Housing Act to find out what it affected.

The question is not what one Senator might think about the merits of the proposal and whether he agrees with it. The question is what the amendment means; and I do not believe that can be determined without examining the amendment.

Mr. GORE. Rather than vote this afternoon before Senators can examine it.

Mr. HOLLAND. That is the way I feel. I believe the Senator made an extremely wise proposal, because I think the amendment would apply to different parts of the law and we ought to know what it means before we vote on it. That seems to me to be commonsense, because this amendment was not available to any of us until it was offered on the floor.

Being as complex as it is, and changing the law in many different parts, as it does, I think we are entitled to know what it means.

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, I should like to say to the Senator from New Jersey that I can see quite a difference between a 1-family house and a 10-family house. A 1-family house is used as a home; a 10-family house usually represents an investment.

If the amendment offered by the Senator from Utah had applied to not more than two families, I would have voted for it; however, I could not see my way clear to vote for an exemption of 12 units or more.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. AIKEN. I yield.

Mr. BENNETT. In my State, many so-called duplex houses are built. The owner or builder lives in one half of the house and gets a little money out of the other half to pay his costs. I would dislike to have the number reduced to two, because that would result in taking money from a man.

Mr. AIKEN. I might go as high as four units.

Cases have arisen in which the Davis-Bacon Act has been applied to construction in my own State. Last year, as I recall, there were three cases, one applying to a hospital, one applying to utility line construction, and I cannot remember what the other one was. However, they were instances in which very high wage rates were imposed at the insistence of unions located in higher wage areas. I believe their purpose was to discourage construction in the low-wage areas and to have it concentrated in their own districts. However, when that situation was called to the attention of the Department of Labor, it was corrected, and the prevailing wage of the community was applied. There was considerable inconvenience and some delay in having the situation straightened out.

The result of the Davis-Bacon Act, as I have observed it, has been to equalize more nearly wages in the various areas. That has not been too satisfactory to contractors in what used to be the old low-wage areas, but on the whole, the economic condition of the area has been improved. Certainly it has been satisfactory to those who receive the wages.

I expect to vote for the amendment of the Senator from California [Mr. KUCHEL]. On the other hand, there are two sides to the question. In my mind, it is a question of degree. Under the circumstances, I shall vote for the amendment as is and shall probably have more trouble with some of the unions from the high-wage areas trying to impose their rates on districts where wages are traditionally somewhat lower. I do not know what will happen.

Mr. BENNETT. If the FHA had a monopoly on the insurance of mortgages or on the furnishing of mortgage money or of making mortgage money available, that would be one thing. Then everyone would be required to pay the same wage rates. However, in my opinion, this proposal would drive the man who wanted to build his own home away from the FHA to where he could obtain conventional mortgage money, for which he might be willing to pay 1 or 2 percent in order to save the difference in the cost of building the home at the rates in his own community.

We have now reached a point where the FHA is guaranteeing less than one-third of the single-family construction. The last figure, which was for February, was about 15 percent. So we shall leave ourselves with a program that nobody will use because of the burden that this law would put on them.

In some communities the FHA is doing little business now because the local banks are not interested in taking mortgages at the interest rates which they are permitted to charge. The banks are able to get much more for their resources by lending the money elsewhere. I could name communities in Vermont in which the bankers have not been openhanded, but two or three in the State are doing quite well.

This proposal would add another burden, which I think would reduce the use of FHA for financing single-family units.

Mr. AIKEN. There are communities where that would not be fair.

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may temporarily withdraw my amendment, but protect my right to offer it again tomorrow, perhaps under a time-limitation agreement, or otherwise. The amendment was adopted by the House of Representatives. I shall be prepared to discuss it tomorrow. Merely to accommodate not only the able Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE] but other Senators, as well, I renew my request that I be permitted to withdraw the amendment and to reoffer it tomorrow.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the request is granted.

Mrs. NEUBERGER. Mr. President, in the committee during the consideration of the House bill, which is the pending bill, I vigorously supported the insertion of section 211, which I felt was important in order to simplify the procedures for the acceptability of new material or products for use in FHA-financed housing.

However, I am somewhat alarmed since I have read the committee report. It seems to go beyond what I thought the amendment contained, particularly as it concerns lumber standards. I am concerned about the vague language in the report which would require the FHA Commissioner "to accept the findings of various recognized technical experts and private and governmental testing laboratories in making his determination" for approval of new materials or products.

This definitely would affect recent efforts of the American Lumber Standards Committee which has the responsibility and obligation to define standards for dimension lumber.

I outline my feelings on the report in a letter to the chairman of the subcommittee [Mr. SPARKMAN].

I ask unanimous consent that my letter to the Senator from Alabama under date of July 13, 1965, may be printed at this point in the RECORD in explanation of my position.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON BANKING AND CURRENCY,
July 13, 1965.

HON. JOHN SPARKMAN,
Chairman, Housing Subcommittee, Banking and Currency Committee, U.S. Senate,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Insertion of section 211 in S. 2213, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, was based on the need for simplification of procedures for acceptability of new materials and products for use in FHA-financed housing. I have grave fears, however, that the language in the bill and report may negate results of a nationwide plebiscite on softwood lumber standards, and efforts of the newly constituted National Lumber Standards Committee to prevent chaos in the forest products industry.

You will recall that a year ago a new proposed standard for dimension lumber was submitted to a referendum of approximately 40,000 producers and users in various categories. This referendum showed a disinclination to adopt the new sizes. As a result, the Secretary of Commerce enlarged and reconstituted the American Lumber Standards Committee to seek a solution in the public interest and acceptable to the industry in general. This group met just last week to work on this matter.

I am concerned about the vague language in the report which would require the FHA Commissioner "to accept the findings of various recognized technical experts and private and governmental testing laboratories in making his determination" for approval of new materials or products. The Secretary of Commerce has delegated to the American Lumber Standards Committee the responsibility and obligation to define these standards for dimension lumber. Patently, the language in the report on section 211 would make virtually meaningless the decisions of the Committee since the Commissioner, under Section 211, would make his determination on the basis of "the findings of various recognized technical experts," which may or may not include the Lumber Standards Committee.

In my opinion, the legislative history on S. 2213 should make quite clear that the FHA Commissioner's authority for acceptance of materials does not extend to softwood dimension lumber.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

MAURINE B. NEUBERGER.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will my colleague yield?

Mrs. NEUBERGER. I yield to my colleague, the senior Senator from Oregon.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, if I may have the attention of the chairman for a moment, I rise to join my colleague in the concern she expressed in regard to lumber standards.

She is a member of the committee. As I have told her, I will follow her leadership in the matter. However, we are of one mind as to the importance of the matter being clarified.

If I may have the attention of the chairman of the subcommittee, I believe that my colleague, the junior Senator from Oregon, has presented a very important point which has been called to our attention by representatives of the lumber organizations in the State of Oregon. In that connection, I wish to bring to the attention of my colleagues a telegram dated June 29, addressed to me by Mr. Ted Hallock, executive vice president of one of the major lumber associations of Oregon.

The text of Mr. Hallock's telegram is as follows:

We are informed that the omnibus housing bill will be reported out of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee on Tuesday, June 29, and that the Senate version contains an amendment which, if adopted, could completely undermine and negate the work of the American Lumber Standards Committee.

In trying to research what if any changes should be made in standard lumber size, title V, section 521 contains this sentence:

"Under such procedures, any material or product which is technically suitable for the use proposed shall be accepted."

This means, as we interpret it, that the Federal Housing Administration Commissioner, if convinced by even one major manufacturer that 1½-inch lumber was technically suitable, is directed to accept that size, and in so doing is directed to make any size uniform.

Already there has been pressure on the FHA to accept an inch and a half substandard lumber regardless of the ALS conclusions. Congressman ROOSEVELT can confirm this.

The ALS subcommittee and full committee are meeting in Chicago July 7 and 9 to entertain further proposals. Additionally, various lumber trade associations are going to pair together to finance privately at Stanford Research Institute a study of the acute impact of any size change. Yet, there is another impetus addressed in stampeding the lumber industry into a size change without adequate study and with no regard for impact in the marketplace.

We hope that you will question Senator SPARKMAN on the floor in a colloquy to establish the seriousness of our allegations that an industry committee is being deliberately circumvented by the major operators who have sought an inch and a half on their own terms for so long.

I say to the chairman of the subcommittee that that subcommittee and the full committee gave thorough consideration to the arguments for and against inclusion of the language of section 211 of the bill now under consideration.

I would appreciate it very much if the Senator from Alabama would give me the benefit of his comments concerning the protest registered by Mr. Hallock. However, before he replies to my request for comments, I want to say in all fairness, for the Senator's information, that I should point out that others in the State of Oregon have expressed views that are exactly opposite to those outlined by Mr. Hallock. For example, I am in receipt of a wire dated June 29, from Mr. L. Desdero, president of L. Desdero Lumber Co., of Oregon, in which it is stated:

We of this company urgently request your support of section 211 of the Housing Act of 1965, S. 1354.

I assume that Mr. Desdero actually has reference to section 211 of S. 2213. I have received a number of telegrams comparable to those addressed to me by Mr. Desdero. I shall not include those in the RECORD, but I should mention to the chairman that they are of the same tenor as those supplied by Mr. Desdero.

However, I also should make very clear to the chairman of the subcommittee that there is a great deal of concern expressed by a good many lumbermen in my State that this section of the bill, and particularly the language carried into the committee report, may have the effect of laying a foundation for the undermining of the work of the American Lumber Standards Subcommittee and that this may be nothing but a concealed attempt to authorize the FHA to exercise a very arbitrary discretion in accepting lumber if some manufacturer satisfies them it would be acceptable when in fact it would be substandard and would undermine the movement to try to reach some standard policy with regard to lumber standards.

I would appreciate it if the Senator from Alabama would comment for the RECORD on this matter.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, let me say, very briefly, and then I will ask the Senator from Utah to comment on this matter, that I am somewhat puzzled by the attitudes taken by some of our lumber people. By the way, the letter from the Senator from Oregon [Mrs. NEUBERGER] was received today. I have only had time to read it; but less than a year ago the very lumber people who were objecting to the inclusion of this provision in the bill were asking us to get FHA to meet the requests; and even as early as a few months ago there were requests from many lumber interests for this kind of legislation.

There has been a change, apparently, in sentiment on the part of some people that came faster than I could change. So I am puzzled by requests coming to us, since they are contrary to requests made in the very recent past.

I shall not comment further, but ask the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], who has given a great deal of thought and study to this subject, to comment.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, if the Senator from Oregon will permit, I was the author of the amendment. I was not thinking entirely of the lumber industry. The Senator from Utah has been aware that for some years we have been appropriating funds for experimental work on building materials, and FHA was clinging to its old standard pattern of approved materials, and the new materials that were being developed could not be used because they were not on the list.

So the purpose of the amendment is to put pressure on FHA to work on the problem of developing new materials and adding them, as fast as they can be proved to be suitable, to their approved list.

I do not have the complete text of the telegram that the Senator has read, but I have some excerpts from it.

Mr. MORSE. Let me see if I can furnish it to the Senator. Someone has taken it from my desk, but I will get it for the Senator.

Mr. BENNETT. I think this is a correct excerpt:

That Federal Housing Administration's Commission, if convinced by even one major manufacturer that 1½-inch lumber was "technically suitable" is directed to accept that size, and by so doing is in effect further directed to make that size uniform.

The first half of that statement is correct; namely, that if it found it was technically suitable, it is directed to permit its use. But the second half is completely incorrect. It is not the purpose of FHA to require complete uniformity, and to tell all lumbermen, "We will use this and nothing else." If the amendment were adopted, it would permit the use of larger size lumber in markets where it is available so long as it has the proper strength. I am thinking of my own State, which has much green lumber. Or, if it were determined that lumber of a slightly smaller size would be usable in construction of residences, the FHA could permit the contractor to make his choice as between the two types of lumber.

It was not the purpose of the committee under this amendment to say to the FHA, "We ask you to step in and settle the dispute going in the lumber industry and plump for one side or the other."

We are only saying that if both will work under certain circumstances, let the contractor make the choice, and approve both types.

There is another impetuous attempt to stampede the lumber industry into a size change without adequate study.

It is not any such thing. It is only an attempt to make available alternate sizes if the FHA decides that, under certain circumstances, they are suitable. The legislation is not intended to have any effect on the ultimate decision of the industry or to stampede it into any point of view.

I am trying to find the reference to the study to be made. Apparently that is not in the telegram.

Let me read from the telegram:

Additionally, various lumber trade associations are going to band together to finance privately a Stanford Research Institute study of the economic impact of any size change—

This is where it comes in—yet there is another impetuous attempt to stampede the lumber industry into a size change without adequate study and with no regard for impact in the marketplace.

That is the statement in the telegram.

Battelle Memorial Institute, a reliable private research and testing institution, has already made a complete study for the National Bureau of Standards of the U.S. Department of Commerce on the economic impact that can be expected to follow the adoption of "A proposed revision of simplified practice recommendation 16-53 American lumber standards for softwood lumber."

This report was furnished to the Department of Commerce a year ago.

Incidentally, the Battelle study indicated that a change in the standards would not disrupt the industry. The U.S. Forest Products Laboratory, the Government's own wood-testing agency, told the FHA, in a letter dated December 1962, that the new standards for dry lumber would equal or slightly exceed in strength and stiffness the presently accepted dressed green sizes.

It seems to me the people in Oregon have misunderstood the purpose of the amendment. They have assumed it would do things none of us in the committee intended it should do.

All we were trying to do was to open up choices. We are not trying to set up a rigid set of rules which would outlaw materials that are now being used and require the FHA to use materials which they do not now use.

Mr. MORSE. I thank the Senator from Utah for helping me to make the legislative record on this matter. I ask him, for purposes of information, whether there is any basis for any feeling that the result of the amendment would be to weaken or scuttle the program, so-called, of the American Lumber Standards Advisory Committee which, it is my understanding, functions under the Department of Commerce and supposedly has, under its terms of reference, the responsibility of making a study of the matter of lumber standards, on which I am certainly not a competent witness at this time. But is there any reason for feeling that the amendment we would place in the bill would in effect negate or put out of effective operation American Lumber Standards?

Mr. BENNETT. There is no thought that it would do that. If the amendment were still in the bill, it might hasten the day when the problem would be resolved by American Lumber Standards. In no sense were we trying to say to them, "Drop your study and forget it. We have already decided it for you."

The amendment is not limited to lumber, because it covers all types of construction material. In the course of the hearings before the committee, these industries indicated that they were being deprived of the opportunity to present new products. The concrete industry, the paint and varnish industry, the plastics industry, the plywood industry, the insulation industry, the Carpenters and Joiners Union, all came in asking that the amendment be included.

The steel industry also came in to assert that they had new products which they would like to have considered for use beyond the present accepted list. The committee adopted the amendment 11 to 2.

With these explanations, I hope that I have been able to put the fears of my friends from Oregon at rest.

Mr. MORSE. It is not a question of setting anyone's fears at rest. It is a question of carrying out our responsibility in making the legislative record, bearing upon the fears of our constituents.

Mr. BENNETT. I hope that once this record is made, their fears, also, will be set at rest.

Mr. MORSE. I have tried to give both sides of the question. I pointed out that Oregon has some lumbermen who share the views, apparently, of the Senator from Utah. I put one of their telegrams in the RECORD and made note of the fact that there are others who hold that point of view. I believe that we have heard—and I believe my colleague [Mrs. NEUBERGER] will agree with me—from customers and dealers and lumbermen who developed these fears to which the Senator has referred.

In some of their communications the lumbermen have stated—I do not know what the facts are—but they have stated that behind the scenes a battle is going on between two great lumbermen's associations, of which I know not.

That is not going to concern me. The only thing which will concern me is whether we have adopted an amendment which will result in giving an unfair preference to one group, in this instance, the suppliers of lumber, over another group.

Mr. BENNETT. So far as I am concerned, I hope the amendment will be adopted which will give both groups access to the FHA market.

Mrs. NEUBERGER. Mr. President, will the Senator from Utah yield?

Mr. BENNETT. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Oregon.

Mrs. NEUBERGER. I very much appreciate the help of our fellow member of the committee. I was one of those who supported the amendment, as I stated before, and took the line in the report which said that the present practice often resulted in discrimination against some newly developed product.

Then up rose our old conflict between the lumber groups, and after much effort to establish some standards in the lumber business, we feared that perhaps it would upset the harmony. We in Oregon are in a great lumber-producing State. The FHA program is of great benefit to our State because of the use of lumber. I feel as my colleague [Mr. MORSE] has said—and he has received a very good explanation from the Senator from Utah—that the legislative history will be here for us to refer to.

I thank the Senator from Utah.

Mr. BENNETT. I thank my friends from Oregon.

Mr. TOWER, Mr. THURMOND, and Mr. AIKEN addressed the chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont is recognized.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me for a few seconds to discuss the same subject?

Mr. AIKEN. I intend to take only 2 or 3 minutes.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President—

Mr. AIKEN. I have only a couple of minutes, but I am glad to yield to the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I have received considerable correspondence from some of the lumbermen in my State who oppose the amendment which was inserted by the committee proposing to add a new section 521 to the National Housing Act—as have the two Senators from Oregon.

There is concern on the part of some of the lumbermen in the South, as I am sure there must be on the part of some of those in the West, on this particular subject.

Beginning on page 102 of the Banking and Currency Committee report, I have set out my individual views on this proposal, and incorporated therein is a letter from Robert C. Weaver, the Administrator of HHFA. Mr. Weaver very strongly opposes the incorporation of this new section 521 for the reasons set out in his letter.

I do not know whether the Senator from Oregon has had occasion to read that letter.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator from South Carolina yield?

Mr. THURMOND. I yield.

Mr. MORSE. I had intended, but I overlooked it, to place in the RECORD the views of the Senator from South Carolina following my remarks.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the material on pages 102, 103, and 104 of the report.

There being no objection, the individual views ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

INDIVIDUAL VIEWS OF SENATOR STROM
THURMOND

In addition to the objections to this bill contained in the minority views which I signed, I have serious reservations concerning one section which was not contained in the administration bill as introduced, but was added in the Housing Subcommittee. This is section 211 of the bill which adds a new section, section 521, to title V of the National Housing Act. This section would require the Administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency to adopt a uniform procedure for the acceptance of materials and products which are found to be technically suitable for the use proposed in structures approved for mortgages and loans under the Housing Act.

I share the concern that has been expressed by members of the committee concerning the seeming reluctance of the FHA, and certain commodity standards groups, to approve new materials which are the result of technological advances in the industry. This is a matter which deserves a searching study by the appropriate congressional committees to assure that new materials can be taken advantage of to reduce the costs of housing to the American public where these materials are as good as, or better than, those presently in use.

Nevertheless, I am disturbed about the words "technically suitable," because the fear has been expressed to me that this amendment could open the door to the FHA accepting substandard items that might be classified as "technically suitable." It is not clear in the wording of the amendment who is to determine if any material is "technically suitable," but it seems apparent that the Administrator of the HHFA would be required to make an independent judgment as to each and every product concerned. This would place an onerous burden upon the Administrator, one that he is not capable of adequately performing at the present time. The cost to the HHFA of testing the materials could greatly increase the administrative expenses of the Agency.

These objections have been well expressed by the Administrator of the HHFA in his letter addressed to the chairman of the subcommittee, as follows:

JUNE 21, 1965.

Hon. JOHN SPARKMAN,
Chairman, Subcommittee on Housing.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This letter concerns the proposal to insert in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 the following provision:

"SEC. 521. The Commissioner shall adopt a uniform procedure for the acceptance of materials and products to be used in structures approved for mortgages or loans insured under this act. Under such procedure any material or product which is technically suitable for the use proposed shall be accepted."

The HHFA would not favor such legislation because it is neither necessary nor desirable. Now, and since the beginning of FHA, an effective "procedure for the acceptance of materials and products" has been in use. Minimum property standards have been established for different types of structures built under varying programs as a means of encouraging improvement in housing standards and conditions and as a guide for judging the soundness for insurance of a mortgage transaction. These standards are derived or patterned after, wherever suitable, industry promulgated standards which have been nationally recognized by architects, engineers, builders, or other interested groups.

The proposal would require the enlarging of present FHA procedure to a point which could duplicate or interfere with the aims and the work of the Office of Commodity Standards of the Department of Commerce and the work of industrywide trade groups.

The Office of Commodity Standards, through industry conferences, assists industries in the voluntary adopting of standards. The objective of the industries is the elimination of avoidable waste through voluntary adherence to standards of practice for sizes, dimensions, varieties, or other characteristics of specific products. If the FHA were to accept any "technically suitable" product, it would lead to acceptance of a far wider and confusing variety of product characteristics and sizes. This could nullify the efforts of the industry groups and the Department of Commerce to eliminate waste through standardization with eventual extra cost to be paid for by consumers.

The FHA establishes minimum property standards as a guide to mortgage insurance risk. The exercise of the usual administrative judgment function would be removed from the FHA if the provision were interpreted as giving a legally enforceable right to a proponent of a "technically suitable" product to demand its acceptance. Formalized adversary hearings would be required to determine whether a product is "technically suitable" if the FHA administratively decided not to list it as meeting minimum standards. The ultimate test of whether a product is "technically suitable" would be dependent upon a decision by the courts.

Under present procedures, the FHA adopts a minimum standard and decides only whether a material or product meets that standard. The mandatory acceptance of a "technically suitable" product might be misleading in that it would suggest endorsement of a product by the FHA, whereas, the use of a similar product would be more desirable when all factors are considered.

A requirement that FHA accept any product which is "technically suitable" could work to the detriment of nationally recognized industry standards. For example, there is a nationally recognized standard of sizes and grades for softwood framing lumber used in housing. These various sizes and grades are used by the FHA as references in describing minimum acceptable grades and sizes for particular uses. If FHA accepted all of the infinite variations in size and grade which might be proposed as "technically suitable," it would render the present industry standards meaningless. Each variant would have to be considered separately. Competition between manufacturers could lead to a proliferation of sizes and company standards with little or no control over the quality of the product other than that provided by the producer. Any trend away from standardization of sizes would lead to extra costs in architectural design.

Where industry groups have established grade marking or other labeling devices the FHA is able to determine readily whether particular products meet its minimum standards. Inspections by FHA on a construction site are greatly simplified. Without grade marking or labeling adhering to present industry standards FHA inspection procedures would necessarily become more complicated and burdensome to the homebuilder. Building materials without generally accepted industry labels or grade markings would have to be examined closely on the job site to determine whether these materials meet FHA's minimum property standards.

Adopting this amendment would increase demands upon the FHA to accept materials produced here and abroad without benefit of established standards of sizes and quality. If samples of such products meet a test of "technically suitable," the FHA would then have to rely on its own continuous close inspections, rather than voluntary policing within an industry, to protect the home buyers' interest. The benefits of standardization and resultant cost savings would be lost. Homeowners are benefited much more by standardization than they would be by this amendment.

I am told that the purpose of this amendment is to require the FHA to make its own decisions with respect to the acceptability of a material or product. This it does now. But, if it could not rely on the work of other agencies and organizations it could result in the FHA being required to establish elaborate research facilities. This duplication of effort would add to FHA's administrative costs. The amendment could produce an unnecessary expense for the Federal Government and add to the costs borne by the home buyer.

In my opinion, adoption of the amendment could seriously impede efforts to house low- and moderate-income families and jeopardize the success of FHA programs in a most drastic way. I am opposed to this amendment and urge that your committee recommend against its adoption.

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT C. WEAVER,
Administrator.

It is my belief that the committee should conduct full and open hearings on this proposal before including it in any bill. Until such hearings are held, I cannot support this provision.

STROM THURMOND.

MR. THURMOND. I thank the Senator from Oregon. As I understand the able Senator from Utah feels that this new section would not jeopardize any particular segment of the lumber industry, that the existing standards would be upheld, and there would be no prejudice toward any particular section of the country on any particular type of lumber.

MR. BENNETT. So far as I can see, there need be no problems, because we have made it possible for the various kinds to be used, under the circumstances, where they are suitable for the purposes for which they are being used. The FHA standards were established many years ago. They have not been updated. Many new products have been developed since that time. I believe that we should try to open the door so that they can be used. For instance, I am in the paint business. The FHA has rejected paints because the films produced were one millimeter thinner than their standards. Actually, the new paint films are thinner but they are probably more durable.

MR. THURMOND. Mr. President, I hold in my hand a letter addressed to me from Mr. Oswald Lightsey, a prominent lumberman of the firm of Lightsey Bros. in Miley, S.C., an excerpt from which reads as follows:

We are very much disturbed about the words "technically suitable" because we are afraid this amendment would force the FHA to accept substandard items that might be classified as technically suitable. The FHA has insisted, although they have been under enormous pressure to accept nonstandard size lumber, on all items of framing lumber conforming to American lumber standard sizes.

This appeared, apparently, as an innocent amendment without advance notice of the proposal, but we are afraid that it might be a "back door" approach to building pressure for accepting substandard items which might defraud the consuming public who has long relied on FHA standards for its protection. We believe that consistent application of FHA standards to all areas and species is important and would be preserved by continuing recognition of American lumber standard sizes.

Mr. BENNETT. It still leaves the FHA in a position to accept or reject a particular product. The FHA will decide whether a product is substandard. A product can be different without being inferior. There is nothing in the provision that requires the Administrator to accept a product which he considers to be substandard. He will determine the standard. The only thing the provision will do is to make sure that after the minimum performance standard has been set up any product that meets or exceeds that standard will not be discriminated against. I am sure my friend the Senator from South Carolina feels the same way, that they should all have access to the market place if they meet the standards that are set up.

Mr. THURMOND. I have the highest admiration for the Senator from Utah. He is one of the ablest and one of the finest men in the Senate. I know that he has only the best intentions in advocating this provision. However, this is a matter of great importance and it is apparent from the discussion that there is a difference of opinion concerning it. It is my belief that full and open hearing should have been held on the proposal before including it in the bill. For that reason I cannot support this proposal until a hearing on it has been held.

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, I should like to ask the Senator from Alabama two or three questions for the purpose of making clear the intent of title 6 of the bill. I note that title VI of the housing bill provides grants for community water systems. Is this provision limited to urban areas only?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Not entirely. Title VI would be administered by the Housing and Home Finance Agency and would more or less give priority to urban areas but it could also be used in small communities that can economically afford to supply 50 percent matching funds with which to construct water or sewer systems.

Mr. AIKEN. I note that the full title of the proposed legislation is the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and I assumed that the legislation was intended to serve nonfarm areas only.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Not entirely. The bill does contain a title that deals with housing in rural areas. However, I thought your inquiry was directed to the provision for community water system grants.

Mr. AIKEN. My concern was with the water system title. I am anxious to establish for the record the fact that legislation I have introduced with some 92 cosponsors S. 1766 in no way duplicates the provision in the housing bill. S. 1766 would provide grants for water systems in rural areas through the existing facilities of the Farmers Home Administration.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes, I am aware of that and recognize that the rural housing program has been handled very well by the Farmers Home Administration. I feel that that agency can do an excellent job in providing aids for water systems or similar developments in rural areas. As the Senator knows, I am a cosponsor of his bill.

Mr. AIKEN. The Farmers Home Administration has some 1,600 offices serving rural areas throughout the country. I believe the Housing and Home Finance Agency does not have that type of field service.

Mr. SPARKMAN. That is correct. The HHFA cannot supply the same type of field service in rural areas as can the Department of Agriculture and certainly we would not want any duplication of field offices to be set up.

Mr. AIKEN. What the Senator is saying is that S. 2213 is not intended to conflict with S. 1766, both of which are supported by the Senator from Alabama, but that there might be an occasional borderline case to which the provisions of each bill might apply. Is that correct?

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator is correct.

Mr. AIKEN. I am happy to hear that no duplication is intended. The Farmers Home Administration has an excellent program going in the development of rural water systems. In fact they have developed more than 800 rural water systems in the past 4 years at a total cost of $110 million and have established their expertise in this field. But an estimated 30,000 rural areas are still without modern adequate and sanitary water systems. At the present time the Farmers Home Administration assistance is limited to loans. Rural areas need grants in many instances to develop the required facilities, just as certain urban areas do. The grant provision for rural areas is contained in S. 1766. Hearings have been completed on this legislation and we look forward to seeing it on the floor of the Senate in the near future. It will be a proper companion piece of title VI of the Housing Act.

Mr. HARTKE. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask that it be not read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 54, between lines 9 and 10, insert the following:

"(f) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 112(a) of the Housing Act of 1949, expenditures in the amount of $600,000 made by the Memorial Hospital of Michigan City Foundation, Incorporated, for the purchase of certain land and buildings on or about July 24, 1963, from Doctors Hospital Realty Corporation shall, if otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid to the community center numbered 1 urban renewal project (Indiana R-46) in Michigan City, Indiana, in accordance with the remaining provisions of title I of that Act."

Mr. HARTKE. The amendment is a modification of a House bill numbered H.R. 8300, introduced by Congressman JOHN BRADEMAs on May 19. There was some effort to have the matter considered in the House committee and in the Senate committee, but I believe it is fair to say that two things mitigated against a thorough consideration. One was the pressure of need to consider major portions of the bill rather than what might be called by contrast minor amendments. The other was the lack of a full and adequate presentation of the matter before the committee.

But I bring this amendment to the floor because, for Michigan City, it is not in any sense a minor amendment. It is one which makes a vital difference in the prospects for hospital service in one of the neediest areas of the State of Indiana. I believe that if the Senate will listen carefully to the explanation I shall make, on the basis of an understanding not available to the committee, Members will vote approval for the amendment.

This amendment, briefly, provides for an additional paragraph to be added to section 306, "Eligibility of Certain Local Grants-in-Aid." Presently this section contains paragraphs dealing with specific areas, allowing for exceptional treatment of particular projects. This amendment would add one more to the five listed there, allowing for a credit of $600,000 as a noncash grant-in-aid for expenditures made by the Memorial Hospital of Michigan City Foundation, a nonprofit corporation, for the purchase of certain land and buildings more than 2 years ago, and before the urban renewal application, from a private organization.

At the beginning of 1963 the hospital in question was owned by Doctors Hospital Realty Corp. In other words, it was a private hospital. It was rundown, it needed improvement which the private group could not make, and yet it was highly necessary for the good of the community that it should be continued and enlarged. Consequently, the nonprofit organization was formed and purchased it for a price of $1,125,484. The purchase price included some accounts receivable, some removable equipment, and certain items which might be questionable as to allowability toward a non-cash grant-in-aid.

In order for the community to achieve expansion of its new community-service facility, when the city a few months later made its urban renewal application, it included in the project area a block adjoining the hospital, specifically in order that the expansion might be carried out and that the noncash grant-in-aid expected could assist. Since that time, the hospital expansion has been planned and approved for Hill-Burton funds. Its priority on the Hill-Burton list is the second highest in the State of Indiana, exceeded only by that of La Porte, in the same county. The need for hospital expansion is tremendous in this area, as this would indicate. There is presently planned a new building which will cost $1,500,000. The community has rallied in a most remarkable way to a fundraising drive just completed and described in a letter addressed to Congressman BRADEMAs under date of July 8 by the fund drive chairman, Philip A. Sprague. As an indication of the unprecedented community support, which without the passage of this amendment will require the raising of an additional $600,000 in cash should this noncash grant-in-aid fail, I wish to quote excerpts from this letter. Mr. Sprague says:

As chairman of Hospitals United Fulfillment Fund, Inc.—better known in our city as HUFF—I should like to (1) testify as to the demonstrated willingness of Michigan City's corporations and citizens to support financially the capital needs of our two not-for-profit hospitals (St. Anthony's and Memorial) and (2) tell you of our vital interest in seeing that the relationship between Memorial Hospital and our local urban renewal program is defined and resolved in order that Memorial can proceed with its expansion.

Mr. Sprague goes on to speak of the way in which the entire community has involved itself in the drive, with nearly half of the sum contributed by corporations, personal gifts of $115,000, gifts by employees of $166,000, and the total reaching $1,312,598 at the time of the letter only a week ago today. I quote further:

Some of us feel that the success of HUFF is the most exciting development in our city's postwar history. In this effort literally hundreds of individuals from every segment of the community have discarded the tiresome traditions of prejudice and bigotry and united to achieve what anyone in or out of the city thought impossible a year ago—specifically the raising of $1,312,598 to date. Nothing in Michigan City's fundraising history even approximates the type of giving listed here.

Such a community effort, Mr. President, I submit is most remarkable in a city whose 1960 population was less than 37,000. If the city now should have to raise more than a half-million dollars in addition—and they would have to do so by a special bond issue—because of lack of approval of the noncash grant-in-aid which this amendment would give, the great need for improved hospital service in the area may be hampered in its fulfillment.

The letter from Mr. Sprague continues:

And we're not through yet; in the next few months we know that the total (of funds raised) will exceed $1,400,000 and we are already making plans to raise an additional $100,000 in 1966. In short, Michigan City isn't asking for a free ride from anyone—our citizens have never refused to support with their time and treasure any legitimate program which would improve our city.

Mr. President, I pause to note the need for the urban renewal project which this noncash grant-in-aid would assist. The blight in the north end of the city must be cured if this area is to achieve its very real potential. This is along the gateway to the Dunes National Lakeshore which we hope to see become at last a reality in this Congress. It is in the area of industrial expansion which the Burns Ditch project will hasten, an expansion already surging forward. But without the urban renewal project, the downtown area of Michigan City may be to a large extent doomed. The threat to the downtown area is evident in the recent announcement of the plans for a shopping center away from the blight which is expected to draw away some 60 stores, including that of Sears, Roebuck.

In the effort to rejuvenate the urban renewal area, the city has established a new police facility within the bounds of the project, for which it is receiving non-cash grant-in-aid credit. The total project involves some $5 million. Mr. Sprague's letter makes clear in this final portion how imperative it is that this amendment should be passed:

However, I can think of nothing that could retard Michigan City's growth and, more important, the city's newly discovered sense of unity and adventure, than the failure of Memorial Hospital to expand due, in turn, to inability to solve our urban renewal problems. I need not remind you * * * what a perishable commodity civic esprit is—and I would hate to see us lose the positive momentum we have achieved because we could not solve the complicated, yet resolvable problems in the renewal area.

We need the support and understanding of our Federal Government—but we stand ready to tackle aggressively our local responsibilities. Let's agree on our separate roles in this endeavor and get on with the job.

That, Mr. President, is the conclusion of Mr. Sprague's letter to Congressman BRADENAS, and that is a reflection of the new attitude in a community whose civic pride has been stimulated by the urban renewal project in a manner it has never experienced before.

I have said that the purchase price of the private hospital in 1963 to the new nonprofit corporation was $1,125,484, and that "not more than" this amount is specified in the Brademas bill. The counsel for the local urban renewal project is convinced that the full amount should be a legitimate figure which is fully justifiable. But I have talked with local authorities and with Congressman BRADENAS, and I have secured their consent, in order that the Senate may see this amendment in the most favorable light, to reduce that figure by half. My amendment does not ask for $1,125,000 but for only $600,000 to be counted as noncash grant-in-aid because of the Memorial Hospital project. This is in my estimation a legitimate and fully justified request. The nonprofit foundation has a long-term mortgage to pay off; its purchase of the private hospital took place before the urban renewal application was made. The request is based on expenditures by the nonprofit hospital for the acquisition of land, buildings, and structures to be redeveloped or rehabilitated, land which is adjacent to the property now in use and within the urban renewal project. Full documentation has been submitted to the Urban Renewal Administration outlining in detail that the rehabilitation being undertaken in the structures located on the land being claimed for section 112 credit includes the correction of serious deficiencies in a deteriorated or deteriorating structure, as required by the Urban Renewal Manual. This involves physical alterations and improvements which fall within the prescribed categories.

After this substantiation was furnished to the Urban Renewal Administration, a request was received in March of this year for a resolution of nondiscrimination assurance by the hospital as a donor of noncash local grant-in-aid. This was furnished on March 15 when the resolution was adopted by the hospital's board of trustees.

The Urban Renewal Administration has now approved the application for loan and grant, subject to a revised financial plan which would require the local public agency and the city to provide in cash the amount of the section 112 credits which it has disallowed. The Redevelopment Commission of the City of Michigan City has made this statement concerning the situation:

The local public agency and the city feel strongly that they have met all of the requirements set forth by Congress in connection with the section 112 credits and that the expansion of a nonprofit hospital which would materially be aided by the execution of the urban renewal program is in compliance with the intent of Congress in enacting section 112. Failure of the Congress to clarify this matter in connection with the community center project No. 1 will clearly jeopardize the successful carrying forward of the urban renewal project as well as the Hill-Burton grant—to Memorial Hospital to enable their orderly expansion, and, in fact, clearly thwart the intent of Congress in enacting section 112.

Which is in the neighborhood of $500,000—

Mr. President, it is my understanding that the only way in which this can be done under present circumstances is by congressional action.

It is my understanding that the manager of the bill, the Senator from Alabama, has indicated that there is no objection to the amendment and that he is willing to take it to conference, to have it considered there.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am not sure that I can say there is no objection to the amendment, but I am willing to take the amendment to conference. This amendment, in different form, was referred to our committee and discussed. The committee declined to accept it. The Senator since that time has modified the amendment.

Mr. HARTKE. Yes. It is a modified version, and it should also be noted that additional facts and materials have come to light which were not available at that time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I have not had an opportunity to study the new situation. I am willing to take the amendment to conference, to study it between now and the time of the conference.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. McGovern in the chair). The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Indiana.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I offer an amendment which I send to the desk and ask to have stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 55, after line 5, it is proposed to add a new section 309 as follows:

LOCAL GRANT-IN-AID CREDIT FOR CERTAIN COAL ROYALTIES

SEC. 309. (a) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Where a project in any municipality includes an area affected by an underground mine fire or by a coal mine subsidence and where it is necessary in such project to remove any underlying coal deposits in order to stabilize the soil or to control the underground mine fire, then any royalties received by the project from the removal and sale of such coal deposits shall be credited to the project as a local grant-in-aid made by such municipality."

(b) Any contract under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act shall, at the request of the municipality involved, be amended to reflect the amendment made by subsection (a).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, the amendment which I have offered appears in the House bill, having been proposed by Representative McDADE of the Scranton area in Pennsylvania.

I have cleared the amendment with the acting minority leader and with my colleague [Mr. SCOTT] of Pennsylvania. I have also discussed the amendment with the Senator in charge of the bill, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN]. I hope he will be willing to agree to it.

The purpose of the amendment is to make it possible for the city of Carbondale, Pa., which is located on top of a coal region where the coal is on fire and has been on fire for a great many years, to utilize the royalties which come from the coal which is being removed from under the city in order to help put out the fire, and for the purpose of enabling the city to make the local contribution under the urban renewal project.

I very much hope that my friend the Senator from Alabama will be prepared to accept the amendment.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, earlier in the day I discussed the amendment with the Senator from Pennsylvania. The case which is presented is unusual, but, as best I can understand, it ought to be entitled to the protection or the coverage of the act.

For my part, I am willing to accept the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I thank my friend from Alabama and my friend the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] very much for their courtesy in this regard.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I have met with a number of Senators on both sides of the aisle who have a great interest in the pending proposed legislation and in the procedures of the Senate. I am about to propound a unanimous-consent request.

ORDER FOR RECESS UNTIL 11 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate recesses tonight, that it stand in recess until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2213) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban developments, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that on the Tower amendment No. 319, which will be the pending business when the Senate recesses tonight, there be a time limitation of 4 hours, 2 hours to be under the control of the distinguished Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER], the author of the amendment, and 2 hours to be under the control of the distinguished Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], the Senator in charge of the bill; that on the two amendments to be offered by the distinguished Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS], there be 2 hours, the time to be equally divided between the Senator from New York and the Senator in charge of the bill, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], and that on all other amendments there be a time limitation of 1 hour, the time to be equally divided between the Senator in charge of the bill and the author of the amendment, and that on the bill itself there be a total of 6 hours.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Can the Senator from Montana identify the amendments of the Senator from New York?

Mr. MANSFIELD. I cannot. I understand he has only the two printed amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. At what time does the Senator wish the agreement to become effective?

Mr. MANSFIELD. At the conclusion of the prayer tomorrow morning.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Montana? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

The unanimous-consent agreement, subsequently reduced to writing, is as follows:

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Ordered, That, effective on Thursday, July 15, 1965, after the prayer, during the further consideration of the bill (S. 2213), to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities, debate on any amendment (except an amendment by the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER], number 319, which shall be debated not to exceed 4 hours and, two amendments by the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS] numbers 347 and 348, which shall be debated not to exceed 2 hours each), motion, or appeal, except a motion to lay on the table, shall be limited to 1 hour, to be equally divided and controlled by the mover of any such amendment or motion and the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN]: Provided, That in the event Mr. SPARKMAN is in favor of any such amendment or motion, the time in opposition thereto shall be controlled by the minority leader or some Senator designated by him.

Ordered further, That on the question of the final passage of the said bill debate shall be limited to 6 hours, to be equally divided and controlled, respectively, by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER]: Provided, That the said Senators, or either of them, may, from the time under their control on the passage of the said bill, allot additional time to any Senator during the consideration of any amendment, motion, or appeal.

COMMITTEE MEETING DURING SENATE SESSION

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, because of a previous commitment made—and this will be the only exception that I know of—I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate tomorrow.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MANSFIELD. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. The Subcommittee on Education is meeting tomorrow morning. It is quite important that the subcommittee should continue to mark up the education bill.

Mr. McNAMARA. Mr. President, I believe that meeting has been canceled.

Mr. CLARK. It was my understanding, having talked with the Senator from Oregon a short time ago, that he was planning to have a meeting. I hope that we might continue to meet.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I should like to check with the minority leader.

Mr. MANSFIELD. We shall attend to that request tomorrow.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, on behalf of the distinguished Senators from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN and Mr. FULBRIGHT], I offer an amendment which I send to the desk and ask to have stated. I might point out that they had intended to offer the amendment themselves, but were prevented from doing so by reason of a commitment that they had.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment of the Senators from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN and Mr. FULBRIGHT] will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 54, after line 9, it is proposed to add to section 307 a new subsection "(f)" as follows:

(f) The provisions of section 113(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 shall be applicable to the Hobo Jungle Urban Renewal Project in Texarkana, Arkansas (Arkansas R-3-).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senators from Arkansas.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. TOWER. I should like to add my support for the amendment, and I should like to note that the Hobo Jungle is located on the Arkansas side of Texarkana and not on the Texas side.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed at this point in the RECORD a statement by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], including two letters.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR J. W. FULBRIGHT,
JULY 14, 1965

My amendment was prepared and forwarded to me by the Urban Renewal Administration and is designed to resolve a legal technicality which is delaying an urban renewal project in Texarkana, Ark. The problem arises because of imperfections in legislation intended to permit joint action by the Urban Renewal Administration and the Area Redevelopment Administration.

The Hobo Jungle urban renewal project in Texarkana has been planned for industrial redevelopment. In March of this year the Commissioner of the Urban Renewal Administration requested the Area Redevelopment Administration to include the Hobo Jungle project within the Miller County, Ark., redevelopment area in order that certain provisions of existing law would apply to the project. This action was taken by the ARA in April. I ask unanimous consent that correspondence between the Commissioner and the Administrator be inserted at this point in my remarks.

It was thought that this administrative action would solve the problem. It now develops, however, that a technical amendment is needed to enable the land use contemplated by the redevelopment plan. Without this amendment it would be necessary for the Area Redevelopment Administration to designate the entire municipality of Texarkana, and such action is not desirable.

The responsible agency has requested the amendment, and I have been assured that there is nothing controversial in the amendment.

HOUSING AND HOME
FINANCE AGENCY,
URBAN RENEWAL ADMINISTRATION,
Washington, D.C.

HON. WILLIAM L. BATT, JR.,
Administrator, Area Redevelopment Administration, Department of Commerce,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. BATT: This is to request your favorable action on a slight amendment to the delineation of the Bowie County, Tex., redevelopment area in order to include all of the Hobo Jungle urban renewal project area of Texarkana, Ark., in the newly designated redevelopment area. Presently, 85 percent of the urban renewal project area is located within the boundaries of the Bowie County, Tex., and part of Miller County, Ark., redevelopment area. The proposed action would incorporate into the newly designated redevelopment area an additional strip of land one-half block wide and four blocks long.

The suggested action is extremely important. Without such action, the urban renewal project area cannot be certified by you under section 118 of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, which would permit the sales of this industrial urban renewal project land to the city for its subsequent redevelopment for industrial purposes.

We believe the requested action is in the public interest as continued Federal costs are accumulating to the project area as a result of the LPA's inability to effectuate a sale to the city of Texarkana, Ark. From our viewpoint, the suggested action of enlarging the redevelopment area for this purpose is de minimis. I believe your staff has been supplied with all essential information necessary to make a decision in this matter. If I can be of further assistance to you in reaching a decision, I am, of course, available.

Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM L. SLAYTON,
Urban Renewal Commissioner.

Copies to Hon. J. W. FULBRIGHT.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE,
AREA REDEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION,
Washington, D.C.

HON. J. W. FULBRIGHT,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR FULBRIGHT: We wish to advise you that the proposed extension of the Bowie County, Tex., redevelopment area to include a three-block area in Miller County, Ark., has been considered and approved.

The redevelopment area now includes all of the Hobo Jungle urban renewal project area of Texarkana, Tex., as we understand it.

Sincerely,

W. L. BATT, JR.,
Administrator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senators from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN and Mr. FULBRIGHT].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 324

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 324. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be waived and that the amendment be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 56, line 8, after "403," insert "(a)".
On page 56, between lines 14 and 15, insert a new subsection as follows:

"(b) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator shall undertake a study of the existing low-rent public housing program with a view to making recommendations for strengthening such program, or for establishing a new or alternative program to assist the States and their localities in providing housing for low-income families. Such study shall give special consideration to ways in which the resources of private enterprise may be utilized more effectively in meeting the needs for housing of such families. Findings and recommendations resulting from such study shall be reported to the President for submission to the Congress not later than two years after the appropriation of funds for such study. Such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection are hereby authorized to be appropriated."

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, the housing bill now being considered calls for authorizations covering 140,000 additional public housing units and for the purchase or lease of 100,000 existing units for use as low rent housing.

We have seen in the past a continuing appeal from the Housing and Home Finance Agency for increased authorization for public housing units. It is most ironic that agency figures show that in light of the 15 months for which Congress last authorized 37,500 additional units, only 18,000 new public housing starts have been reported. As a matter of fact, the total number of units for which authorization is requested in this bill, 240,000, is not too far under half of all public housing units in operation throughout the country, 581,000.

The Agency advised the committee that 170,000 units are in the so-called pipeline, and many have been there for years with little or no activity at the local level toward activating the units committed under original application. Testimony showed that a so-called stepped up program of purging the pipeline of units saw the release of only 6,000 in the last 2 years.

The committee wisely recommended that construction be started within 5 years of the original commitment or the units removed from the pipeline. It may well be that this 5-year limitation will result in the availability of unused commitments, however, I feel that a detailed study of the public housing program by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, similar to that provided for in the bill for the urban renewal program, would be a wise undertaking.

I understand that the distinguished Senator from Alabama is prepared to accept the amendment.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, the Senator's understanding is correct. I am willing to accept the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Texas.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. SMATHERS. Mr. President, I call up my amendment which is at the desk and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

On page 32, line 1, after "loans," insert "(1)".

On page 32, line 4, after "insurance," insert "or (2) guaranteed by the President under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended: Provided, That no single institution may invest more than 1 percent of its assets in loans guaranteed under the Act."

Mr. SMATHERS. Mr. President, the only purpose of the amendment is to permit Federal savings and loan associations subject to rules and regulations promulgated by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to make housing loans guaranteed under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

Under existing law, national and State banks, as well as other financial institutions can participate under this provision of the Foreign Assistance Act. It is only fair that we should also permit participation by Federal savings and loan associations in this program. It is in keeping with various proposals that I and others have advocated here in the past to assist in developing FHA type housing in Latin America.

As Senators know, the overall authority of the Agency for International Development to guarantee loans under section 224 is limited to $350 million.

At present, approximately $250 million of this total has been committed or is being contracted for.

This means that only approximately $100 million is available for the coming year to be used to guarantee loans by all corporations or individuals. Therefore, only a portion of it could be used to guarantee loans made by savings and loan associations, but it would permit such associations to participate in the same manner as other financial institutions.

I believe this is a desirable amendment.

I have discussed it with the distinguished Senator from Alabama. He himself has offered amendments of this type in the past. It is my understanding that he is willing to accept the amendment and take it to conference.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, the Senator is correct. This is in line with legislation that both the Senator from Florida and I have sponsored in the past and have been working on for several years.

Mr. SMATHERS. I thank the Senator from Alabama.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Florida.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Florida for submitting the amendment. It is a highly constructive and worthwhile addition to the bill. I offer my support of it.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk and ask to have stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

On page 48, after line 23, insert the following:

"ELIGIBILITY OF CERTAIN EXPENSES TO PROJECTS FINANCED ON THREE-FOURTHS GRANT BASIS

"SEC. 304. (a) Clause (1) of the third sentence of section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by: (1) inserting 'staff services in connection with programs of code enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation and repair (including community organization),' after 'disposition of land,'; and (2) inserting '(5),' after '(4)'.

"(b) Section 110(e) of such Act is amended by striking the comma and all that follows within the parentheses in the fourth sentence thereof.

"(c) Any contract for a capital grant under Title I of the Housing Act of 1949, executed prior to the effective date of this Act, may be amended to incorporate the provisions of subsection (a) and (b) as to costs incurred after the effective date of this Act."

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, this amendment is sponsored by my distinguished colleague from Maryland [Mr. BREWSTER] and me. It is of limited applicability. Its purpose is to modernize the grant formula in the urban renewal program to take account of new developments in the field of urban renewal.

The urban renewal law provides alternate financing formulas. A city may elect to receive two-thirds of the total cost of urban renewal projects including indirect and overhead expenses, or it may elect to receive three-fourths of the direct project expenses, excluding planning, salary, administrative relocation, and other overhead expense.

This alternate formula produces roughly equivalent results with respect to the original type of urban renewal project in which sites are acquired, cleared, and redeveloped. It does not, however, produce equivalent results when applied to the newer type of renewal program that involves rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods.

Rehabilitation requires far lower expenditures of funds for direct project costs, such as land acquisition and demolition, and a far higher percentage of salary and overhead expense.

The city of Baltimore is one of the few cities in the country which has elected to proceed under the three-fourths financing formula. It is also one of the few large cities which has undertaken an extensive rehabilitation program. These factors have combined to put the city of Baltimore at a disadvantage with respect to urban renewal financing.

The purpose of this amendment is to permit cities which elect the three-fourths grant formula and which engage in rehabilitation projects to include in their reimbursable expenses staff services of housing renewal estimators, renewal investment advisers, code enforcement staff, and community organization advisers. These project costs in a rehabilitation project which are every bit as "directly related" to the cost of the project as land acquisition is in a typical renewal project. The amendment would not change the basic concept that survey and planning, legal, administrative and overhead, and relocation and site management expenses are not eligible for reimbursement under the alternate financing formula.

The amendment would also put cities which elect the alternative financing formula on a parity with cities which operate on a two-thirds grant formula with respect to credit for lost taxes during a period of renewal.

The language of this amendment has been reviewed and approved by the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

I ask unanimous consent to include in the RECORD a letter which I received from the Honorable Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, mayor of the city of Baltimore, calling my attention to the need for this amendment.

There being no objection, the letter was order to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CITY OF BALTIMORE,
July 6, 1965.

Hon. JOSEPH TYDINGS,
Senate Office Building,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR TYDINGS: Enclosed are three proposed amendments to title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, through 1964. It is our hope that you will sponsor legislation to enact these amendments into law.

These amendments, if adopted, will assure equitable treatment for Baltimore's urban renewal program under Federal laws and regulations, and will bring Federal financial assistance for Baltimore, and a few other cities, into line with that received by most other cities.

Section 103(a)(2) and section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, provides for an alternate financing formula for urban renewal projects which may be elected for use by cities with the approval of the Urban Renewal Commissioner. Briefly, under the regular financing formula, a city receives Federal reimbursement for two-thirds of all costs related to the project, including any indirect and overhead expenses. Under the alternate financing formula, planning, salary, administrative, relocation, and other costs are not eligible for reimbursement, and the city receives reimbursement for three-fourths of the remaining project expenses (which are primarily land acquisition, demolition, and project improvements). The alternate three-fourths financing formula eliminates Federal review and control over staffing, salary rates, contracts, and other administrative matters, thus resulting in substantial savings in time in carrying out a project. Bookkeeping is simplified, and there are fewer audit problems.

This alternate financing formula was developed before the present emphasis on rehabilitation projects. In the total clearance projects that were more common at that time, 75 percent of the reduced project cost approximately equaled two-thirds of the more inclusive project cost. On this basis, Baltimore elected to use the alternate financing formula, and feels that it was a wise decision insofar as clearance projects are concerned.

However, in recent years Baltimore has been carrying out more and more rehabilitation projects where land acquisition is minimal. Taking the place of land acquisition as the primary expenses are the direct staff costs of rehabilitation. These fall primarily into the following categories:

1. Housing renewal estimators who advise property owners concerning rehabilitation requirements and attempt to assist them in getting the job done well and economically.

2. Renewal investment advisers who advise property owners concerning rehabilitation financing and assist them in obtaining it.

3. Code enforcement staff which enforces the codes and ordinances of the city as well as the requirements of the urban renewal plan.

4. Community organization advisers who work in a neighborhood and attempt to develop a feeling of neighborhood spirit and pride which will be conducive to rehabilitation.

These expenses in a rehabilitation project are as important as acquisition costs in a clearance project because these are the expenses which must be met to accomplish rehabilitation and thus make acquisition and clearance unnecessary. These expenses can be quite heavy: in 1965, Baltimore budgeted $405,380 for these purposes. However, none of these costs are eligible for Federal reimbursement under the alternate financing formula now used by Baltimore. On the other hand, if we were to let the property deteriorate, the cost of its clearance would be eligible.

We believe that the above categories of expenses should be eligible under the three-fourths capital grant formula, and our amendments are intended to accomplish this. It is not our purpose to change the basic concept that survey and planning, legal, administrative and overhead, and relocation and site management expenses are not eligible for reimbursement under the alternate financing formula.

Our second amendment has to do with inclusion in project cost of credit for the taxes lost in clearance projects or portions of projects from the time of acquisition of property until it is sold as cleared land. Such loss is eligible as a local cash grant-in-aid under the regular financing formula, but not under the alternative formula used by Baltimore.

As you know, Baltimore, like other cities, is heavily dependent on real estate taxes. Any loss in assessable basis hurts, even though it is temporary. We are working to shorten the time period between acquisition and resale, and thereby reduce the tax loss, but we cannot entirely eliminate it. Because of the importance of real estate taxes as a revenue source to the city, credit for the amount of the temporary loss of such taxes in carrying out renewal projects will be of substantial benefit to Baltimore.

I hope that it will be possible for you to sponsor these changes to the Housing Act, which will be most beneficial to Baltimore's renewal program. If you would like any further information, we stand ready to provide it for you.

Sincerely,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT MCKELDIN,
Mayor.

CITY OF BALTIMORE PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE HOUSING ACT OF 1949, AS AMENDED
THROUGH 1964

ELIGIBILITY OF EXPENSES TO ACCOMPLISH RE-HABILITATION

1. (a) Section 110(e) of Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting in clause (1) of the third sentence immediately after "disposition of land," the following, "staff services to property owners in connection with programs of voluntary rehabilitation and repair (including community organization staff services), staff services required by programs of code enforcement."

(b) Clause (1) in the third sentence of section 110 (e) of such act is amended by inserting immediately after "(4)," the following: "(5)."

REIMBURSEMENT FOR REAL ESTATE TAX LOSS

Section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out in the fourth sentence "other than" and inserting in lieu thereof "including."

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, the problem is that when we have a rehabilitation project, as opposed to a clearance project, the sum spent by the individual counsellors and men in trying to build up the neighborhood is analogous to the direct land acquisition cost in a clearance-type program.

The city of Baltimore has moved into the rehabilitation area, which is a fine area into which more cities will hopefully move. However, under the old three-quarter formula, they do not receive the reimbursement for the services of the counsellors which they would have received in a downtown clearance project.

I have discussed the matter with the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee, the Senator from Alabama. I understand that he is willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I have discussed this amendment with the distinguished Senator from Maryland. We are perfectly willing to take the amendment to conference.

Mr. TYDINGS. I thank the Senator very much.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Maryland.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. President, I call up my amendment and ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment may be dispensed with, but that the amendment be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment ordered to be printed in the RECORD is as follows:

On page 55, line 5, insert the following: A new section 309 to read as follows:

"PRESERVATION OF HISTORIC STRUCTURES

"Sec. 309. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by—

"(1) striking the word 'and' at the end of numbered paragraph (7);

"(2) striking the period at the end of numbered paragraph (8) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and";

"(3) inserting a new numbered paragraph (9) to read as follows:

"(9) relocating within the project area a structure which the local public agency determines to be of historic value and which will be disposed of to a public body or a private nonprofit organization which will renovate and maintain such structure for historic purposes."; and

"(4) striking 'paragraphs (7) and (8)' in the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof 'paragraphs (7), (8), and (9)'.

"(b) Section 110(e) of such Act is amended by striking 'and (8)' in clause (1) and inserting in lieu thereof '(8), and (9).'"

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. President, this is an amendment to title III of the 1965 Housing and Urban Development Act. It simply provides for financial assistance, on the basis of an urban renewal project formula, to assure the preservation of an historical structure through relocation within the project area.

I offer this amendment because of my concern that in our desire to beautify and modernize our cities, we may be failing to retain certain structures which originally formed the historic base of the area or established sound architectural trends. I do not think the preservation of such structures is important simply for preservation's sake, but is important for the educational value of these buildings and their potential in maintaining a continuity in the community's traditions and character.

This amendment would permit a local public agency undertaking an urban renewal program to use Federal Urban Renewal project funds to relocate a major building of historical significance, and to prepare the site and foundation to receive the structure.

To be eligible for such assistance the structure in question must be certified as having genuine historical significance. This would be accomplished by the Commissioner's reliance upon the accreditation procedures of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Historical American Building Survey of the Department of the Interior, or the many fine State historical commissions. The building would have to meet the professional tests of these organizations, before the Commissioner would be able to approve relocation.

Finally, once the building has been moved from a demolition area, it would be conveyed to a public body or nonprofit corporation that had agreed to undertake the actual restoration and subsequent maintenance of the structure.

The question of historical preservation within urban renewal areas is not limited to any one area of the country. The problem of preservation generally exists in all portions of the Nation. Projects involving historical preservations within urban renewal areas can be found in Portsmouth, N.H.; Mobile, Ala.; Bethlehem, Pa.; New Haven, Conn.; Little Rock, Ark.; and San Francisco, Calif., to mention but a few examples.

In fact, Mr. President, more than 100 of the nearly 800 localities participating in the urban renewal program are attempting to preserve historic buildings as part of their urban renewal activities. In more than half of these cases the building in question can be incorporated into the renewal project on its present site. Where relocation is needed, however, we anticipate the average cost to be approximately $10,000. So we are considering an important matter which over the near future would amount to only about $500,000.

The urban renewal program already provides means to acquire structures for resale to persons or groups interested in historic preservation and many projects can provide sites on which historic structures may be relocated. A major problem, however, has been that few organizations or groups interested in historic preservation have sufficient funds to pay for the cost of relocating such structures, which are often in delicate condition, to the new sites so that these structures can be retained for a useful purpose and preserved to commemorate historic events or significant periods in American architecture. Thus, while the urban renewal project may provide an appropriate setting for the preservation of the old historic building, the cost of moving such buildings to new sites is usually prohibitive with the result that the buildings must be demolished in order to achieve the objectives of the project.

At the present time, there is no authority under the existing urban renewal statute to use Federal funds in whole or in part to actually restore historical structures. My amendment would make no change in the existing laws in this respect. Such work must be undertaken through some State, or local public agency, or through some private group. The amendment I propose would relieve such agencies or groups of the often large costs of moving historic buildings and permit them to concentrate their limited funds on the actual task of restoration and preservation.

I believe my amendment, therefore, will provide the catalyst needed whereby non-Federal moneys can and will be provided and utilized for what many consider to be a very worthwhile purpose. Otherwise, once one of these historical structures is demolished we have lost for all time its beauty, historical significance, or benefits to the overall context of the community.

I would certainly assume that this authority provided for in my amendment would be used prudently by the Urban Renewal Administration, but it would be available in those instances where funds from other quarters are simply not available.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I commend the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts for offering this amendment. I have always been interested in the preservation of historic buildings. I think it is a shame for us to stand by and watch landmarks of culture being bulldozed down and lost to generations yet unborn.

We have some rather horrible examples of architecture in some of the old buildings. They were constructed in a dynamic age, an age in which people had imagination. I hope that we can preserve them for future generations to see.

In our efforts to modernize a building, we very often fail to take into consideration that we are destroying the landmarks of history.

I think the amendment is very worthwhile. I would like to join with the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts in urging the chairman of the subcommittee to accept the amendment.

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. President, I appreciate the comments of the Senator from Texas very much. I would like to note that in a report from the National Trust for Historic Preservation it was stated that more than 10,000 structures have been recorded in the Historic American Buildings Survey since the program began 10 years ago. It was estimated in 1963 that 40 to 45 percent of these structures had already been demolished by various programs and private action.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed at this point in the RECORD a sample listing of some historic structures demolished in urban renewal programs.

There being no objection, the list was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

California:

Sacramento, post office, Seventh and K, built in 1892. Will A. Ferret, architect, Richardsonian. Destroyed in 1964.

San Jose, Benjamin and Martha Morse House, 1767 Franklin Street, Victorian mansion built in 1870. Destroyed in 1963.

Illinois: Chicago, O'Leary House, site of start of 1871 fire, townhouse built in 1880 to replace O'Leary cottage which survived the fire. Destroyed in 1953.

Missouri: St. Louis, Mill Creek Valley, Daniel Garrison residence, 3415 Cook Avenue, 110 years old; Delaney House, built in 1845; Sherrick House, 2618 South Seventh, built in 1850; St. Malachy's House, 105 years old. Destroyed in 1961.

New Jersey: Newark, 80 square blocks containing many fine examples of 18th century Newark architecture. Destroyed in 1961.

Pennsylvania:

Philadelphia, Society Hill, approximately 100 houses destroyed, including entire 400 block of Addison Street, six 150-year-old townhouses certified by historical commission, part of Dolly Madison house at 429 Spruce Street and 200-year-old kitchen wing of Samuel Neave House on Second Street. All destroyed in 1961-62.

Pittsburgh, Diamond Market House, constructed in 1914. Destroyed in 1961.

We have the assurance of Mr. Slayton, Commissioner of the Urban Renewal Administration, who has had an opportunity to review this matter, that he would look favorably on the amendment. I am hopeful that the Senator from Alabama will accept the amendment.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, there is much merit in the proposal. As I have explained to the Senator from Massachusetts, I have not had an opportunity to study the amendment as much as I should like to.

I told the Senator that I would be willing to take the amendment to conference. I hope that in the meantime all of us will get as much information as we can on the matter.

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. President, I appreciate the response of the Senator from Alabama. That would be certainly acceptable to me. I regret that we did not have an opportunity to bring this matter before his committee, which is always the most appropriate way to legislate.

I appreciate the continuing interest and study of the Senator, and his assurance that he will take this amendment to conference.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Massachusetts.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I send to the desk an amendment on behalf of the Senator from Texas and myself and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

On page 46, between lines 6 and 7, insert the following:

"(c) The first sentence of section 8 of the Federal Credit Union Act is amended by inserting after 'except that' the following: '(1) any such loan with respect to which insurance is granted under section 2 of the National Housing Act may have a maturity not in excess of the maximum allowed by the Federal Housing Commissioner pursuant to subsection (b) (2) of such section, and (2)'. "

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, the amendment is essentially a technical amendment. When we set up the home improvement program, we permitted commercial banks and savings and loans associations and credit unions to help finance the projects.

This year, we propose to make some changes in that program. We have included the banks and the savings and loan associations, but due to an oversight, we failed to include the credit unions. This amendment would include the credit unions.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I am happy to associate myself with the amendment of the Senator from Alabama in an effort to rectify this situation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Alabama.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. RANDOLPH. Mr. President, I speak in support of the pending measure, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965. This legislation would authorize several major advances in housing and in improving the urban environment of America. It is a complex bill, and I shall not duplicate or expand on the very capable exposition presented by the distinguished manager of the bill [Mr. SPARKMAN].

I address my remarks only to section 211 of the bill, a provision written in committee with bipartisan support. This section would require the Federal Housing Commissioner to formulate and adopt a uniform procedure for the determination of technical suitability and subsequent acceptance of materials and products to be used in houses which are financed by FHA-insured loans.

In view of the importance of the FHA in the private homebuilding industry, this provision is necessary. It will help remove one of the major obstacles blocking the application of new technology and new product developments in this industry. The resistance of some elements of the housing industry to the application of new methods and new products has brought it into conflict with the technological advances which characterize most of the American industrial scene. As a result, the time lag between laboratory and pilot plant developments of new products and their acceptance in the housing industry has cost the American home buyer a high premium.

Though this provision has drawn wide support from most of the building materials industries, it would seem likely that some producers and manufacturers of building supplies now accepted by the FHA oppose this section as a threat to their position. Consequently it is not surprising that the argument is advanced that this will impose new cost burdens on presently accepted suppliers. This is, of course, the pattern in any free market situation in which producers must meet the competition of technological advances.

I speak also on this subject—and quite candidly—from a regional point of view. I have a particular interest because the State of West Virginia is in the great Appalachian region which embraces over a hundred million acres, of which approximately 60 percent is in commercial hardwood forests.

A significant aspect of the recently enacted Appalachian regional development program is concerned with increasing the productivity of Appalachian forestland and finding new markets for our timber products. I cite one example of product development which might be affected favorably by the pending provision. Information comes to me that some highly promising development work has been done on laminated 1- by 1-inch hardwood studs which have the strength and stress capacity of much larger dimensioned softwood lumber. Section 211, Mr. President, will encourage such efforts to expand our share of the homebuilding materials markets, and I believe this provision in S. 2213 is most necessary.

Mr. MONDALE. Mr. President this week the Senate will add one more major achievement to its record by passing S. 2213, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

I am a strong supporter of this bill, and I will be proud to vote for its passage. It is a major landmark in America's continuing progress toward the goal of a decent home for every American. I have been honored to sit on the committee which considered this legislation, and to take part in its deliberations.

To list all that this bill will do would take far longer than I intend to speak this afternoon. Its most publicized feature is the rent supplement program, a bold new experiment in providing new housing for poor families. Critics have charged that this would permit persons of relatively high income to live in plush apartments at Government expense. But the bill before the Senate would provide rent supplements only to individuals and families in the low-income group which is eligible for public housing.

In addition, these rent supplements would be restricted to persons who are: First, elderly; second, handicapped; third, occupants of substandard housing; fourth, displaced by public action; or fifth, displaced by natural disasters such as floods and tornadoes. And those who benefit from this program will occupy low-cost rental housing constructed under strict cost limitations imposed by the Federal Housing Administration.

This program can open up a new way of supplying adequate housing for those in need, and I believe it should be given a fair chance to prove itself.

We need more low-income housing, especially because local public housing authorities have been unable to build the number of units called for in previous legislation. They have met the opposition of obstructionists who have fought against the selection of sites for construction of needed public housing in communities throughout the country. And now we find that many of these same people are opposing rent supplements. I say that we need rent supplements, that we need new public housing, in order to help poor families find decent places to live.

Another vital feature of this bill is much less well-known. This is a new insured loan program for rural housing to be administered by the Farmers Home Administration. This will enable thousands of rural families to borrow money on reasonable terms for the construction, repair, or rehabilitation of their homes. Up to $300 million in loans could be insured under this program every year. This can go a long way in improving the housing situation in our rural areas.

This bill also authorizes expansion of our urban renewal program, a larger and more flexible public housing program, new grants to communities for construction of water and sewer facilities and neighborhood centers, a new FHA insurance program for land development, increased loans for college housing, extension of all major Government housing programs, and many other provisions to aid our urban and rural communities.

I have been particularly interested in what this bill does for our elderly citizens. Last week the Senate provided them with greater security against the costs of illness; this week it will help the aged to spend the last years of their lives in decent homes.

And their need is great. Despite the considerable efforts of existing programs, our senior citizens remain one of our most ill-housed groups. Of those over 65 who rent houses or apartments, no less than 40 percent live in substandard units. And this is despite the fact that three-fourths of the aged in the poorest group—those with incomes below $2,000—spend more than one-third of these incomes for rent.

One of our best programs for serving the needs of these people has been direct, low-interest loans for housing for the elderly or handicapped inaugurated in the Housing Act of 1959.

Under this section 202 program, our churches, consumer cooperatives, labor unions, and other nonprofit organizations can build and maintain rental apartments specifically designed to meet the needs of lower income elderly persons. Economically they have been a complete success—not a single project in the United States has suffered financial failure. And the committee has expressed its confidence in this program by amending the bill to increase its authorization.

Direct loans for senior citizen housing have been an economic success. But more than this, I believe that they can be a major human success. When a church builds housing for the elderly, it does not stop with putting up a building—it is dedicated to making it possible for those who live there to live full and rewarding lives. This continuing concern is to me the most impressive and satisfying thing about this program.

I was pleased, Mr. President, that the Senate Banking and Currency Committee accepted my proposal to include housing for the elderly in a limited, experimental rent supplement program. Rents in this housing have always been moderate, but now we will be able to serve senior citizens from the poorest group, for whom even these rents are too high.

I am also gratified that the committee voted to reduce the interest rate on this program to 3 percent. This should lower rents on new projects by an average of $10 a month.

I am confident that the Senate will soon express its overwhelming approval of this program, and of the many other fine programs in this bill, by voting to enact the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

AMENDMENT NO. 319

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 319.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendments offered by the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] will be stated.

The legislative clerk read the amendment, as follows:

On page 2, beginning with line 3, strike out all through line 19 on page 9.

Renumber succeeding sections in title I and cross-references thereto accordingly.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent, pursuant to the previous agreement, that this amendment be made the pending business when the Senate convenes tomorrow.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is the pending business.

DUKE POWER PROJECT, SOUTH CAROLINA

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, on June 30 and again on July 7 I presented to the Senate various editorials, articles, resolutions, and other materials showing the sharp and overwhelming public reaction to a recent action by Interior Secretary Stewart Udall. South Carolinians are very disturbed—and rightfully so—over Mr. Udall's attempt to block Duke Power Co. from constructing a proposed $700 million power generating complex on the Keowee and Toxaway Rivers in Pickens and Oconee Counties in South Carolina. There is no competing Federal power project proposed for this site. This power complex is proposed for an area designated by the Johnson administration as being poverty stricken and in need of development impetus under private investment and the administration's Appalachia regional development program.

This action by Mr. Udall in intervening before the Federal Power Commission represents bureaucratic arrogance at its worse and constitutes a typical Socialist grab for economic and political power.

Mr. President, I now present the third installment of printed reaction. These are group reactions and do not represent all the individual letters I have received. I invite particular attention to an article published in the Greenville News of July 9. This article, written by Mr. Lee Bandy, reports that the Army Corps of Engineers has filed with the Federal Power Commission a favorable report on the Duke project.

These materials are as follows: The Greenville News article of July 9 entitled "Report of Army Engineers Favorable to Duke Project"; an editorial by Radio Station WDLX entitled "Stranglehold on Private Enterprise" and dated July 8; an editorial from the Greenville News entitled "Monopoly, Not 'Competition'"; an editorial from the Lynchburg, Va., News as reprinted in the Greenville News of July 10 and entitled "Socialists Strike Again"; a column from the Columbia Record of July 7 entitled "Federal Power versus Electric Power"; an editorial from the Ridge Citizen of Johnston, S.C., entitled "Empire Building" and dated July 8; an article from the Greenville Piedmont entitled "Duke Chief Pleased With Dam Report" and dated July 9; two editorials from the Spartanburg Herald entitled "Udall the Determiner of South Carolina Competition?" dated July 7 and "Vehement Agreement Aroused by Udall" dated July 12; an editorial from the Greenville Piedmont entitled "Udall Compounds Folly in Duke Power Project" and dated July 7; a column by James J. Kilpatrick entitled "Secretary Udall Engaged in Brazen Grab for Socialized Power in Blocking Duke" and printed in the State of July 11 and the Greenville News of July 12; an editorial by station WBT entitled "Public Power Priority" and dated July 9; a resolution by the Greater Columbia Chamber of Commerce dated July 8; an editorial from the State entitled "Smash the Opposition" and dated July 13; and an editorial from the Gastonia Gazette of July entitled "Mr. Udall's 'Beliefs'."

I ask unanimous consent, Mr. President, that these materials be printed in the Record at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. McGOVERN in the chair). Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. THURMOND. In closing, Mr. President, I wish to make the point that I have not received one communication nor have I seen a single editorial or resolution supporting Mr. Udall's stand.

HIGHLIGHTS: House committee voted to report farm bill. Senate passed housing bill, including title on rural housing. Senate committee reported disaster relief bill. Sen. Bass favored enactment of new cotton legislation. Rep. Curtis urged thorough examination of "processing tax on wheat." House Rules Committee deferred action on ASC committee employees' fringe benefits bill.

HOUSE

1. FARM PROGRAM. The Agriculture Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) H. R. 9811, the farm bill. p. D656
Rep. Curtis asked that "the processing tax on wheat be thoroughly examined and openly debated" and inserted newsletter of the First National City Bank of N. Y. and Secretary Freeman's reply. pp. 16460-63
2. PERSONNEL. The "Daily Digest" states that the Rules Committee deferred action on H. R. 2452, to extend the benefits of the Annual and Sick Leave Act of 1951, the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944, and the Classification Act of 1949 with respect to employees of county ASC committees. p. D657
3. RESEARCH ANIMALS. Rep. Resnick spoke in support of his bill to regulate the transportation, sale, and handling of dogs and cats intended to be used for research purposes or experimentation. pp. 16428-9

4. WATER. Rep. McCarthy discussed the Nation's water problems and said that the time has come to act and plan. pp. 16464-5
5. LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM. Rep. Albert announced that on Mon. the emergency highway relief bill would be brought up and that on Tues. and the balance of the week the House would consider H. R. 8283, the proposed Economic Opportunity Amendments of 1965, and H. R. 8856, to amend the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. p. 16423
6. ADJOURNED until Mon., July 19. p. 16477

SENATE

7. HOUSING LOANS. Passed, 54 to 30, with amendments H. R. 7984, the housing and urban development bill, after substituting the text of a similar bill, S. 2213 (pp. 16289, 16295-304, 16308-23, 16325-50). Title IX of the bill would provide a new $300,000,000-per-year program of insured housing loans under the Farmers Home Administration in rural areas.
8. DISASTER RELIEF. The Public Works Committee reported with amendments S. 1861, the proposed Disaster Relief Act of 1965 (S. Rept. 459). p. 16357
Sen. Javits commended the announcement that the President has "asked a panel headed by the Secretary of the Interior to submit to him within a week a report on how the Federal Government could help alleviate the drought crisis in New England and Middle Atlantic States," and inserted an article on the situation. p. 16385
9. SILK; FOREIGN TRADE. Passed as reported H. R. 5768, to extend for an additional 3-year period (until Nov. 7, 1968) the existing suspension of duties on certain classifications of yarn of silk. pp. 16290-1
10. TRANSPORTATION. Conferees were appointed on H. R. 5401, to strengthen and improve the national transportation system (pp. 16313-4). House conferees have already been appointed.
11. VETERANS' BENEFITS. Began consideration of S. 9, to give cold war veterans educational and home-loan benefits similar to those for World War II veterans. pp. 16350-6
12. COTTON. Sen. Bass expressed hope that new legislation could be enacted to alleviate problems of the cotton industry and inserted an editorial, "Poor Cotton Farmers?". pp. 16375-6
13. ELECTRIFICATION. Sen. Proxmire commended and urged the reappointment of Joseph C. Swindler to the Federal Power Commission, stated that he had done a remarkable job with regard "to the regulation of the electric power industry," and inserted several items on the matter. pp. 16292-5
14. FARM PROGRAM. The "Daily Digest" states that the Agriculture and Forestry Committee "concluded its hearings on S. 1702, proposed Food and Agriculture Act of 1965, and other pending farm legislation, after receiving further testimony from Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman." p. D654
15. MARKETING. Sen. Hruska expressed his opposition to enactment of S. 985, the proposed packaging and labeling bill. pp. 16385-7

WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1965

No. 128

Senate

(Legislative day of Wednesday, July 14, 1965)

The Senate met at 11 o'clock a.m., on the expiration of the recess, and was called to order by the President pro tempore.

The Chaplain, Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Eternal Spirit, whom we seek in vain without, unless we first find Thee within, in the midst of a world which so largely lieth in the darkness of disruption and despair, may the hush of Thy presence fall upon our souls as we hallow Thy name.

For an honored interpreter of the American dream, who in the United Nations has ably and in felicitous words defended the precious things which, as freemen, we hold nearest our hearts, we are grateful this sad day—as the flags from sea to sea flutter at half-mast—for the life and work of thy servant, and the Nation's, Adlai Stevenson, as we bow with a poignant sense of loss at his sudden passing from our side and sight.

In such perilous and decisive times, in the burdened hearts of all who serve in public office may there be a sense of awe so solemnly expressed by the statesman who but yesterday, 3,000 miles from home, finished his course, as long ago he declared that the potentialities of good and evil in those chosen to exercise the stewardship of the Republic's life are enough to smother exultation and convert vanity to prayer.

In this Chamber of governance may the grave questions faced here smother exultation and convert vanity to prayer.

We ask it in the spirit of the Master of all good workmen. Amen.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the unanimous-consent agreement, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2213) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment (No. 319) of the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER].

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes under the amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Montana is recognized for 2 minutes.

THE JOURNAL

On request by Mr. MANSFIELD, and by unanimous consent, the reading of the Journal of the proceedings of Wednesday, July 14, 1965, was dispensed with.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages in writing from the President of the United States, submitting nominations, were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Gelsler, one of his secretaries.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Hackney, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 2080) to provide for the coinage of the United States, with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate; that the House insisted upon its amendment to the bill and asked a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. PATMAN, Mr. MULTER, Mr. BARRITT, Mrs. SULLIVAN, Mr. ASHLEY, Mr. REUSS, Mr. WIDNALL, Mr. FINO, and Mrs. DWYER were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

The message notified the Senate that Mr. HARDY, of Virginia, had been appointed a manager on the part of the House at the conference of the two Houses on the bill (H.R. 8439) to authorize certain construction at military installations, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bills, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 2678. An act for the relief of Joo Yul Kim;

H.R. 2691. An act for the relief of Irene N. Halkias; and

H.R. 7438. An act for the relief of Chief M. Sgt. Samuel W. Smith, U.S. Air Force.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

The message further announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills:

H.R. 4526. An act to extend the provisions of title XII of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, relating to war risk insurance, for an additional 5 years, ending September 7, 1970;

H.R. 5041. An act to provide for safety regulation of common carriers by pipeline under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and for other purposes; and

H.R. 6463. An act making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of said District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1966, and for other purposes.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

H.R. 2678. An act for the relief of Joo Yul Kim;

H.R. 2691. An act for the relief of Irene N. Halkias; and

H.R. 7438. An act for the relief of Chief M. Sgt. Samuel W. Smith, U.S. Air Force.

PRESIDENTIAL MEMORIAL CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 416, H.R. 225.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be stated by title.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. A bill (H.R. 223) to amend chapter 1 of title 38, United States Code, and incorporate therein specific statutory authority for the Presidential memorial certificate program.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Montana?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an excerpt from the report (No. 431), explaining the purposes of the bill.

There being no objection, the excerpt was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

GENERAL STATEMENT

Since 1962 the Veterans' Administration, at the request of the President, has been furnishing the next of kin of deceased veterans a memorial certificate expressing the appreciation of a grateful Nation for the devoted service to the country in the armed services. Many letters of approval of, and appreciation for, this program have been received at the White House.

The General Accounting Office, in 1964, questioned the authority of the Veterans' Administration to provide this sort of service. Although money was made available to continue the program, this legislation was introduced to overcome any doubt as to the authority for the action which has been taking place. The bill would provide express statutory authority for the Veterans' Administration to mail to the next of kin a memorial certificate signed by the President, expressing appreciation for the service of the deceased in the armed services.

The Veterans' Administration estimates that the maximum cost in any one year would not exceed $35,000.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill is open to amendment. If there be no amendment to be proposed, the question is on the third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

AMENDMENT OF CHAPTER I, TITLE 38, UNITED STATES CODE

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 417, H.R. 5242.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be stated by title.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. A bill (H.R. 5242) to amend paragraph (10) of section 5 of the Interstate Commerce Act so as to change the basis for determining whether a proposed unification or acquisition of control comes within the exemption provided for by such paragraph.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Montana?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an excerpt from the report (No. 432), explaining the purposes of the bill.

There being no objection, the excerpt was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SUMMARY OF PROPOSED LEGISLATION

This bill, H.R. 5242, would amend section 5(10) of the Interstate Commerce Act so as to make gross operating revenues, instead of the number of vehicles owned or operated, the basis for determining whether proposed unification or acquisition of control is exempt from the provisions of section 5.

NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The unification of small trucking companies is exempted by paragraph (10) of section 5 from the formalized hearing procedures under section 5, and subjected instead to the simpler procedures of section 212(b) of the Interstate Commerce Act. The purpose of the legislation is to provide a more reliable criterion for determining whether the trucking operations seeking to merge come within the exemption of section 5(10).

The present test is whether or not the aggregate number of vehicles owned, leased, controlled, or operated by the combined trucking companies, for purposes of transportation subject to part II of the act, exceed 20. The Commission has advised the committee that in applying this test, numerous questions have arisen as to whether certain vehicles should or should not be included. Under the proposed legislation, the test would be changed to whether or not the gross operating revenues of the combined trucking companies exceed $300,000. The Commission indicated that the proposed $300,000 restriction of the exemption corresponds roughly to the present scope of the 20-vehicle limit, and would be a simpler and more definite test to apply.

Hearings on this measure were conducted by the Surface Transportation Subcommittee starting on May 10, 1965. The Interstate Commerce Commission and the Department of Commerce testified in favor of the measure. The measure was also supported by the American Trucking Associations. No one appeared in opposition to the proposed legislation.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to articles entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption after the ninetieth day after the date of the enactment of this Act. For purposes of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, the rate of duty in rate column numbered 1 of title I of the Tariff Act of 1930 provided by such amendment shall be treated as the rate of duty existing on July 1, 1962.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an excerpt from the report—No. 433—explaining the purposes of the bill.

There being no objection, the excerpt was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

PURPOSE

The purpose of H.R. 5768 as passed by the House is to continue for 3 years, until the close of November 7, 1968, the existing suspension of duties on certain classifications of spun silk yarn. The Committee on Finance approves of this continued temporary suspension of duty.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENT

The committee amendment creates a specific tariff category for certain textured yarn composed of continuous manmade fibers and provides a rate of duty for this product of 25 cents per pound plus 30 percent ad valorem.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill is open to amendment. If there be no amendment to be proposed, the question is on the third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which the bill was passed be reconsidered.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

TEMPORARY EXTENSION OF SUSPENSION OF DUTIES ON CERTAIN CLASSIFICATIONS OF YARN OF SILK

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 418, H.R. 5768.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be stated by title.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. A bill (H.R. 5768) to extend for an additional temporary period the existing suspension of duties on certain classifications of yarn of silk.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Montana?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Finance, with an amendment on page 1, after line 9, to insert:

SEC. 2. (a) Subpart E of part 1 of schedule 3 of title I of the Tariff Act of 1930 (Tariff Schedules of the United States, 28 F.R., part II, Aug. 17, 1963; 19 U.S.C. 1202) is amended by inserting after item 310.60 the following new item:

GENERAL EXPLANATION OF HOUSE BILL

Public Law 86-235, approved September 8, 1959, suspended for 3 years (until the close of November 7, 1962) the import duties imposed under paragraph 1202 of the old tariff schedules of the Tariff Act of 1930 on spun silk or schappe silk yarn (not dyed or colored, singles of more than 58,800 yards per pound, or plied of more than 29,400 yards per pound). The period of suspension was continued for an additional 3 years by Public Law 87-602, approved August 24, 1962. The committee bill, like the House bill, would continue the suspension of these duties (now provided for in items 905.30 and 905.31 of the new tariff schedules) for an additional 3 year period, until the close of November 7, 1968.

Spun silk yarns are of two principal types: Standard spun silk (schappe) yarn and silk-noil (bourrette) yarn. Standard or schappe spun silk yarns for general textile use are manufactured from long parallelized silk fiber stock recovered from waste cocoons and silk filature waste and are used for making sewing thread, decorative stripings for fine worsteds, lacing cord for cartridge bags and, in combination with other fibers, certain types of necktie fabrics, shirtings, dress and suiting fabrics, upholstery and drapery materials.

The silk-noil type of yarn is made from shorter length, and hence cheaper, silk fiber stock than schappe and must be spun on wool-spinning machinery. The material used consists of silk noils discarded as by-products in preparing silk waste for spin-

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2213) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, the amendment I now offer would simply delete from the bill the provision for rent supplements.

My fears and reservations regarding this proposal are many, but most of all, of course, I fear a stifling of the incentive for homeownership, a continuing unrelenting trend toward giving to renters the status of Government wards.

I note that some have referred to the rent supplement proposal as an anti-homeownership program. To provide for supplements may indeed have an adverse effect upon those many families presently purchasing, or planning to purchase, their own homes without the benefit of Federal subsidization.

Further, not only do I fear that this rent supplement proposal would kill incentive for homeownership, I also fear that the proposal may well serve as a powerful incentive for a family to discontinue its homeownership and become a renter with Federal subsidy.

Truly one of the great developments in this country of the last 25 years has been the tremendous increase in homeownership. The dream of homeownership has without doubt motivated millions of Americans to purchase and pay for homes of their own, and we are now to say to those who have been diligent and conscientious in purchasing their own home that they are to pay a share of an $8 billion subsidization program.

Actually, what we have is a system whereby the rent dollar of the beneficiary is worth substantially more than the rent dollar of the unassisted taxpayer.

Mr. President, I have supported, in general, our public housing program, though I feel it is in need of much improvement. I have had incorporated into the housing bill, a proposal whereby certain public housing tenants who so desire may contract for the accumulation of their rent over a 3-year period to count as downpayment on their unit thus allowing them to become homeowners.

It is this general type of approach which I favor following in assisting those needy who do not now have adequate housing.

Rent subsidies are to be financed by the ambitious and the industrious.

The program may well be interpreted by some as false hope that they too—that is, those presently living in adequate shelter, are entitled to have a portion of their rent paid by the American taxpayer.

I urge the deletion of this rent supplement proposal from the bill. I hope that a majority of the Senate will understand and appreciate some of the reservations that the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT] and I, and many other Senators, have on this subject.

I dislike to use the term "socialism," because it has become an emotionally charged word. It has become a word that is used irresponsibly by some persons who are perhaps somewhat extreme in their thinking. Nevertheless, the program does smack of socialism. It would virtually open a Pandora's box of probabilities for the future. Ultimately, there might be a program of subsidizing payments for groceries or subsidizing payments for clothing. Indeed, food is more necessary to the sustenance of human life than is housing. So it seems logical that the subsidizing of food and clothing might be the next step.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator from Texas yield?

Mr. TOWER. I yield to the Senator from Utah.

Mr. BENNETT. Payments for groceries are already being subsidized under the food stamp plan.

Mr. TOWER. Yes; payments for groceries are being subsidized under the food stamp plan. I am thinking in terms of a direct cash subsidy on the monthly grocery bill of persons having a certain income. The Government would make up the difference. This would go beyond the food stamp plan. I am aware of that.

From the subsidizing of, say, grocery and clothing purchases, the next step might be a guaranteed annual income. To me, that would seem to be the next logical step. A guaranteed annual income would be provided, regardless of whether a person worked or did not work. Someone has suggested, and seriously, that everybody should be given a $3,600 guaranteed annual income, regardless of whether he works or not.

If that day should come to pass, then I predict the decline of the United States as a great world power.

The subsidizing of rent creates a precedent that will lead to the opening of a Pandora's box of possibilities. We should know that this provision is vulnerable to vast abuse. I hope during the course of the debate to set forth some of what we may call loopholes in this provision. The views of the minority members of the Committee on Banking and Currency of the House of Representatives sum up the argument very well:

The administration's rent supplement proposal is foreign to American concepts. The proposal kills the incentive of the American family to improve its living accommodations by its own efforts.

It kills the incentive for homeownership; it makes renters wards of the Government. It is a system of economic integration of housing through Government subsidy. It is the way of the socialistic state.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. TOWER. I yield as much time to the Senator from Utah as he desires.

Mr. BENNETT. I support the amendment to delete the rent supplement section from the bill. The rent supplement program as proposed in the original administration bill would provide rent assistance for individuals with an income of as high as $9,000 to $10,000 all over the United States.

Even this supplement, even the language in the committee bill, which was greatly changed from the original proposed language, could, in New York City, supply rent supplements for people whose incomes are above $10,000 a year.

It is a credit to both the House and Senate committees that the planned administration proposal was roundly defeated and some amendments were made. However, I am sorry that the committee did not eliminate the entire rent subsidy concept. Rather than resist the rent subsidy idea, as it became obvious would be the case if the administration proposal were left in, the committee settled for a compromise which could easily be expanded, once the concept became a part of our housing legislation, to take in many more people than would now be the case.

This measure came very close to defeat, as evidenced from the House vote of 202 to 208 on the recommittal motion which was intended to delete the section from the bill.

As the Senator from Texas has pointed out, this program would have the effect of diminishing or destroying the incentive for homeownership or responsible budgeting. A family with an income of $200 a month, or a family with an income of $50 a month, could demand the same kind of living accommodations under this program as could a family with an income of $300 a month.

The incentive to increase one's income in order to improve one's living accommodations would be taken away under the program. The incentive then would be for a person to place himself in a position to qualify for subsidies.

The program would be discriminatory against those who sacrifice to provide decent housing for themselves. I do not believe that there are many people in the country who would deny assistance to a family whose income is insufficient to provide standard housing. All of us deplore the conditions in which some individuals live. However, the underlying fallacy in the rent subsidy program, as in most Federal handout programs, is that those who expend the greatest effort are penalized, and those who expend the least effort are assisted.

A family which now occupies standard housing at some sacrifice, and with an expenditure of more than 25 percent of their income for rent, would not be entitled to assistance, while a family with an equal amount of income which has decided to spend its resources in some other manner would be allowed to take advantage of the program.

Any program which utilizes tax money should not encourage its recipients to do less for themselves than if the money were not available. All assistance should be based on a measure of individual effort.

The rent subsidy program has been sold on the basis that it would make it possible for private enterprise to supply the needs of those in the low-income brackets.

This is a strange twist of the definition of private enterprise. Those who would be eligible to operate structures qualified to receive rent subsidy tenants must operate nonprofit corporations, cooperative, or limited dividend corporations.

Private enterprise is not built on the basis that it will not receive profits, but rather on the prospect of profitability.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. BENNETT. I yield.

Mr. TOWER. Is any provision contained in the bill which might be construed as a limitation on salaries that might be paid officers or managerial personnel in nonprofit corporations?

Mr. BENNETT. No. There is only a limit on the theoretical, organizational pattern on the basis of which the corporation would be set up. Once it had qualified as a nonprofit corporation, it could then absorb any potential profits by paying them out as salary or other benefits to employees or officers of the organization.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, is there any proscription on the character of such nonprofit organizations? What kind of organization, for example, would qualify, or does it seem to be pretty much an open end proposition to the extent that any kind of nonprofit organization, either recently formed or not so recently formed, could qualify?

Mr. BENNETT. That would be up to the Administrator. However, I assume that the Administrator can be very liberal in his definition.

As the Senator from Texas knows, we have seen lately the development of a pattern which could continue in the rent subsidy housing projects. It is a pattern under which a sponsor qualifies as a nonprofit corporation. He then makes a contract with a contractor to build a house. There are no profit limitations on the contractor. The contractor may be related to the sponsor, as we have found to be true in many cases. Therefore, the profits can be provided by the contractor while the theoretical nonprofit corporation which would receive the project after it had been erected, would provide the facade behind which the profits were made.

Mr. TOWER. Indeed, it has already happened in existing programs.

Mr. BENNETT. The Senator is correct. There are many cases.

It is also disturbing to me that the local governing body or housing authority is not able to make any decision with respect to the selection of the sites for such buildings, or the eligibility of tenants, or, in fact, it is not able to make any decisions regarding the construction and authorization of buildings under the program.

This means that the Federal Government, the Administrator of the Federal Housing Administration, would be the sole authority. This differs greatly from the situation that now exists under the public housing program. A public housing program cannot be authorized or operated until after local authorities have been set up. The local authorities have a great deal to say concerning the basis on which people become eligible to live in public housing. This obviously would create an interesting situation.

The Administrator has furnished us some estimates as to possible income limits. The city of Atlanta, Ga., heads two lists, both of which have already been printed in the RECORD.

Under the public housing program, persons whose incomes are over $3,500 a year would not be eligible for public housing occupancy. The local authorities have determined that figure. In arriving at it, they have stated that certain items of income would not be considered in computing the $3,500. This is a local decision.

The Administrator estimates that, under this program, individuals with incomes up to $5,500 would be eligible for the program. The decision is his entirely, and the local people will have nothing to say about it. In fact, they would have nothing to do with the authorization or operation of the program. It is entirely a Federal program. To me, this is a significant breakthrough in our housing pattern. It would be the first time that no local individual or authority would have any opportunity to pass judgment on the program.

Mr. TOWER. That would mean that the Federal Government could go over the heads of the State and local government and directly to the private corporation, or, rather, to the nonprofit corporation.

Mr. BENNETT. The Senator is correct.

Mr. TOWER. They could be ignored without any recognition of what local policy may be on such matters or without any real concern for any zoning practices, whether they be formalized in the form of an ordinance or not. Is that a correct statement?

Mr. BENNETT. I am not sure that the Federal Government can authorize the construction of such projects in defiance of local building codes or local building and zoning ordinances.

Mr. TOWER. Aside from formalized ordinances or practices, very often cities have a zoning policy which is not formalized under law, which could be breached under a situation like this.

Mr. BENNETT. That is correct. The Federal Government will have sole control over the program. It will not consult with any local authority under any type of harmony.

We are told that this is an experimental program, and indeed it is. Nobody knows the problems that may be encountered or what flaws may make it unworkable. Yet in this bill we provide authorization for the Housing Administration to enter into 40-year contracts with approved housing unit owners to pay them rent subsidies for specified tenants in the amount of $50 million the first year, $100 million the second year, $150 million the third year, and $200 million the next year. These contracts will be spread over a period of 40 years and will represent an obligation of the Federal Government of $8 billion. This is a pretty expensive experimental program.

There are all kinds of questions which can be raised about this program for which there are no definite answers. For example, the Federal Government is foreclosing in various parts of the country on large apartment houses that have been built under other FHA programs. It is my opinion that the Federal Government can take one of the foreclosed properties, transfer it to a nonprofit corporation, and use it in this program immediately, without having to construct any new properties under the program. I do not believe there is a requirement that the buildings be constructed for this program, but it could be given the appearance of a nonprofit corporation.

Another question is raised. Suppose a contract is made with a nonprofit corporation, and the contract requires that 30 percent of the apartments in the building be reserved for subsidized tenants. Suppose the nonprofit corporation is unable to rent the remaining 70 percent at rents higher than rents being paid by the subsidized tenants. As I read the bill, it would be possible for the Administrator to change his contract so that in the end he could have that building entirely full of subsidized tenants. This is one of the unknowns.

It seems to me that if a nonprofit corporation that has signed a contract under this program finds it cannot carry out its obligation and repay its loan, rather than foreclose, the Government might encourage it to get some subsidized tenants. So, in effect, the program could develop into a guaranteed income to the sponsoring organization, because the Government is always in a position to make more units available to subsidized tenants and in a position to go out and find tenants and encourage them to move into the apartments, because it does not need to worry about whether or not the tenant can pay the rent. All it has to ascertain is that 25 percent of his current income is less than the level of rent which the Administrator has specified.

There are all kinds of problems involved in this program. I would have preferred an amendment which would have made this an experimental program, limited to a small number of units in various parts of the country.

If the Senator from Texas intends to offer such an amendment, in the event the pending amendment fails, I certainly will support it.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, one thing I may point out is that we are establishing an $8 billion program that will cover a period of 40 years. We are really saddling ourselves with a gigantic program, when we have had no experimentation, no pilot project. We are firing in the dark. We do not know how the program will go. We are saddling ourselves with a big commitment. We are actually guaranteeing full occupancy to the sponsors of these housing projects for 40 years.

Underwriters in FHA insuring offices will not make commitments for any more units than can be sustained in the market over the specified period of time. This is the policy. I hope it will be the policy to be followed by the administration. But we have no guidelines or projections as to what may be needed or may not be needed 40 years from now, or even 10 years from now.

Some of us feel that this is an attempt to achieve economic integration by use of Federal dollars and programs. The money is not ostensibly for that purpose, but in effect it would accomplish that purpose. I am not talking about breaking up ghettos and ethnic blocs in various cities. They should be broken up. I do not believe there should be slums inhabited by one ethnic group.

But this is an effort to achieve in effect economic integration. This has nothing to do with race, but involves taking people in various income levels and attempting to mix them in one neighborhood under the auspices of Federal programs. That to me is undemocratic and unacceptable.

This has been called the federalization of "residential patterns." That is a very good description. We are making use of a program for the purpose of bringing together families that make $8,000 a year, families that make $15,000 a year, and so forth. In other words, we are trying to range over the socioeconomic spectrum and bring them into one economic pattern. I do not believe people are going to take to it too well, regardless of what particular scale a particular family may be in. I do not believe it is the function of the Federal Government to force an economic pattern through a subsidy rent program and the use of Federal dollars and Federal programs.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may need. There are a few statements I made in my general statement yesterday in regard to rent supplements. In discussing the bill, I discussed rent supplements and had an exchange with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER].

I wish to mention a few of the things which have been brought up in the discussion today by the two able Senators who have participated. First, I wish to mention the point the Senator from Texas brought up a moment ago, with reference to need. It is true that the pending bill provides for a 40-year undertaking. But, so does public housing; so does FHA section 213, cooperative housing and FHA section 220; and so do many of the other FHA programs, just as is proposed here. The Senator from Texas supports public housing, and said so a few moments ago. He does not particularly like it. I have said many critical things about the present public housing program. One thing we are trying to do is to develop an FHA program which it is hoped may be able to replace public housing.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield for a question?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am glad to yield.
Mr. BENNETT. Under the bill, would it be possible for a family to move out of a public housing unit into a rent subsidized unit?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I cannot tell the Senator that. I suppose that would be governed by the authority handling the program.

Mr. TOWER. That would be at the discretion of the Administrator; is that not correct?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I do not know. I cannot answer that question. There is nothing in the law that ties down a family to a public housing unit once it is in there. There is also nothing in the law to prevent a person who comes within the definition of the act from moving into one of these projects. In other words, whoever moves in must be a qualified tenant. There is a difference which I believe we should keep in mind between this system and the present public housing system. Under the public housing system, a person is required to contribute only 20 percent of his income. I believe it was on the motion of the Senator from Utah that it was raised to 25 percent of the rent supplement, so that the tenant in the program pays more than the tenant in the public housing program.

Mr. BENNETT. On the other hand, under the program, might not the tenant get a more desirable accommodation and worth much more?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I seriously doubt whether that could be reasonably expected, because this is supposed to be economy-built housing. I do not presume that the accommodations would be better than in public housing. I do not know this, but I would guess that probably the best accommodations to be obtained would be in the first public housing units, because they were built at a much cheaper rate than any housing can be built for at the present time. I believe that they would be better off.

However, I started to talk about the need over a 40-year period, or whatever it may be. Of course, we cannot predict the need, but in all the programs which we have provided in housing, there has been a time limitation. Most of them run up to 40 years. I believe that on some, there may be a limit of as much as 50 years. I am told by my staff that that would be for college housing, even though I dare say we could assume that there is some speculation as to what the need would be. But I believe that everyone of us has the assumption that the need will continue to be great.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield for a question?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. TOWER. Is it not true that the $8 billion to be spent over a period of 40 years would be contracted for within the next 4 years?

Mr. SPARKMAN. That is true, but that is the same kind of arrangement as exists in public housing. When the Public Housing Act was first enacted in 1949, it was provided that a sufficient number of units could be contracted for, not to exceed $336 million a year. That was the public housing program as originally prepared. We have just reached that authorization.

Mr. TOWER. Is that the reason why there are 170,000 units in the pipeline now?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Some of those units may be in there because of being tied up in the finalizing of that $336 million. The Senator from Texas knows that I agree with him, and with the Senator from Utah, because we all participated in questioning the housing officials when they came before our committee about the great pipeline, whatever we may wish to call it. The Senator also knows that we have put into the report the request that the administration supply us with full information and try to get the pipeline behind us.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Is it not true that the inflated figure of the ultimate cost of $8 billion over a 40-year period is based on the assumption that there will be no increase in incomes of those in the rent supplement program? But, as the incomes rise, the amount of the rent supplement diminishes; that is, for each rise of $10 in income, there would be a decrease of $2.50 in the rent supplement. We know that over a period of time there is an increase, roughly, of 2 to 3 percent in real income each year, so that there is a built-in margin of reduction in payments which our friends across the aisle do not take into consideration at all; is that not true?

Mr. SPARKMAN. That is true—

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. The request was made of our staff committee in the committee session that it be directed to obtain information as best it could as to what the agency estimates of the cost would be. We have received a letter in reply to that request, and the agency estimates that the total cost over a 40-year period will be $5.8 billion. They say there is even a possibility of a decrease in that amount, to account for those units which will be built under section 221(d)(3) of the program below market interest rates.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield for a question?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. BENNETT. The point has been made that it is expected that incomes will rise and, therefore, it is assumed that eventually nearly everyone in the housing units will get out from under the subsidy.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Would that not be a fine thing?

Mr. BENNETT. But, as soon as they would get out from under the subsidy, they would release their apartment, which would then be rented to someone else, because the contract will require the 30 percent—if that is the correct figure—and the apartment will be leased to subsidized persons. Therefore, it would go out of the top and come in from the bottom.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Only if we have millions of people, 40 years from now, who still live in poverty. If the Senator from

Utah would only join us, we could diminish that number now.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Let me add that, of course, many assumptions must be made.

Mr. BENNETT. The Senator is correct.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator from Utah is making an assumption. We could just as easily—

Mr. BENNETT. The Senator from Illinois is also making an assumption. I am suggesting that there is another assumption which counterbalances his.

Mr. SPARKMAN. We can easily assume that after the incomes rise, the tenants could purchase their units, as they are given the right to do. They are given the right to do this under the program. Under the amendment offered by the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER], they would also be given the right to purchase their units in public housing for the first time.

Mr. BENNETT. I suggest that there is another assumption, that the Administrator has the right to set the level under which subsidies will be paid. We have already seen that he expects to set that level higher than what the public housing level will be. Can we not assume that as incomes rise, the Administrator will raise the level below which subsidies can be paid. That is just as logical an assumption as the assumption that people will work themselves out of the top.

Mr. SPARKMAN. May I ask the Senator from Utah where he gets the assumption that the Administrator will set the price higher than for public housing?

Mr. BENNETT. I get it from the statement supplied to the committee by the Administrator, the tables for which were put in the RECORD by the Senator from Illinois. I have already quoted one figure for Atlanta, Ga., for four-bedroom housing under this program. The Administrator makes it clear that until he has made a survey these figures are not firm figures. He estimates a figure of $5,500 income for Atlanta, Ga., for four bedrooms. Under public housing the figure is $3,500.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Those are the figures for Atlanta?

Mr. BENNETT. For public housing the figure is $3,500, and the other is $5,500.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Did the Atlanta authorities fix that figure?

Mr. BENNETT. Yes. I am making the point that we start with a higher set of assumptions than is true for public housing.

Mr. SPARKMAN. In my discussion yesterday I gave the figures that were supplied by the housing agency. As in the case of public housing the figure varies from one area of the country to another.

Mr. BENNETT. Yes.

Mr. SPARKMAN. It is estimated that the overall national average for rent supplement payments is $40 a month per unit, whereas the level of subsidy for public housing units runs to about $58 per month. The overall figure is lower than the public housing figure.

Mr. BENNETT. The answer may be that most public housing units are built in large cities, where the rates are high and where salaries are high. It is estimated that these subsidy units will be built across the country, where the average would be lower.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I have no way of knowing that.

Mr. BENNETT. Neither have I.

Mr. SPARKMAN. On the question of classes, they are about the same as for public housing today. It is true that there will be low-income people in these units. That is one of the primary purposes for which this housing will be built. Certain classes are eligible for this type of housing. First of all there would be the elderly; second, the physically handicapped; third, those who are displaced by reason of governmental action, such as urban renewal, building of highways, parks, and undertakings of that kind. In addition the families must be of low income. I remind the Senator from Utah that again it was a part of his amendment—I believe it was his proposal in the subcommittee which was endorsed unanimously—that sought to remove the lower floor.

Mr. BENNETT. I believe that amendment was offered by the Senator from Illinois on the day when the Senator from Utah was not present.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I remember that the Senator from Utah offered his 25 percent amendment. It was discussed then, and it was agreed that there would be no floor, and that higher participation by the tenant would be required.

The Senator will recall that the big complaint about this program had been that it did not go down low enough; in other words, I am referring to the income level in its original form.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. TOWER. I believe that the amendment by the Senator from Maine [Mr. MUSKIE] was the amendment that made this a low income program.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes; by taking it away from the lower middle income, we cut off the lower middle income and require it to be in the lower level.

I am talking about the income "floor." In public housing, rather strange to say, there are people who get incomes that are so low that they are not allowed in public housing. The Senator may recall our discussion in the subcommittee. It was felt that it was not right to build low income housing and then say people had such low income that they were not eligible for it. We use about the same classes.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. MUSKIE. I should like to have that point clarified for my benefit. As the Senator knows, I was not a crusader for rent supplements. It was only when the committee agreed to reduce it to its present dimensions that it made sense to me—and good sense, I believe—and I supported it.

As I understand, the group eligible for rent supplement payments under the Senate bill as it is now written, is a narrower group than the group that is eligible for public housing.

I notice on page 4 of the bill the list of those who are eligible for rent supplements, to which the Senator has referred. They are those who are displaced by governmental action; the elderly; the physically handicapped; those occupying substandard housing; and those who come under the Proxmire amendment because their dwelling had been affected by natural disaster. Those are the five groups. Those eligible for public housing are those who fall under the income ceilings, whether they are members of any of these five groups. Is that correct?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes; except that both conditions must exist.

Mr. MUSKIE. Under the rent supplement provision.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes.

Mr. MUSKIE. But only one for public housing.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes. It is no broader in this program than in public housing; as the Senator points out, it is narrower.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I believe this matter can be cleared up because of the preliminary estimates of income limits for families of different sizes which the Administrator said he would follow. The table to which I am referring is printed at page 16065 of the RECORD of Tuesday. If we look at the column showing 3 or 4 persons, we see the limit that he has fixed, and we can compare it with the rates under public housing. I will give this table to the Senator from Utah, so that he may check the figures. In Atlanta, Ga., for example, for continued occupancy the income limit for public housing is $4,000. Under the rent supplement program it is proposed to be only $3,800. In Boston, Mass., the continued occupancy figure under public housing is $5,225; the rent supplement program calls for a $4,800 ceiling. In Bridgeport, Conn., for continued occupancy it is $6,125, whereas for rent supplements it is $4,600. In Columbia, S.C., the continued occupancy calls for $4,250; the rent supplement calls for $3,700. It will be noted that I did not include my city of Chicago. For continued occupancy in public housing, $5,750; for rent supplements, $5,000. Jefferson City, Mo.: Continued occupancy $5,000; rent supplement $4,100. That is true of almost the entire list. The Senator from Maine is completely correct. The income limits under the rent supplement program generally are much more restrictive than under public housing. I will take these figures to the Senator from Utah, so that he may check them.

Mr. BENNETT. I did not have a record of the limits on continued occupancy. I was supplied the limits for admission. Both of these are limits for admission. We do not have the limits for continued occupancy.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Under continued occupancy in rent supplement units as the income rises, the subsidy goes down. So it is very different from public housing.

Mr. BENNETT. The Senate moved over from a 3- to 4-bedroom limit to a 3- to 4-person limit. Let us consider Atlanta, Ga. The Senator does not have those figures. The figure I was quoting was for four bedrooms for seven to eight persons.

Mr. DOUGLAS. What I am trying to say is that at almost every point we find the income limit for the subsidized rent supplement program lower than the continued occupancy figures under public housing.

Mr. BENNETT. The Senator from Utah would like to have a schedule which is comparable at every point, because the table I hold refers to one class only, and this schedule refers to four classes.

Mr. DOUGLAS. There are proportionate additions.

Mr. BENNETT. If the Senator could have printed in the RECORD a list of continued occupancy limits in relation to the other classes for which we have in the RECORD preliminary estimates, I think it would be helpful.

Mr. DOUGLAS. We shall do so. I ask unanimous consent to insert in the RECORD the table on public housing and rent supplement income ceilings.

There being no objection, the table was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Public housing maximum income limits for 4-person families as of July 1, 1965, for selected localities¹

¹ Public housing income limits are stated in terms of total family income less deductions and exemptions permitted by the local housing authorities. They include such items as payroll deductions for social security, unusual medical expenses, expenses of a serviceman living away from home, etc. They may also include exemptions such as $100 per minor or dependent adult, some income exemptions for certain family members (in some cases, all income), and VA service-connected disability and death benefits.

Finally, the actual income limits for admission should not be confused with legally possible income limits which can, in the case of the elderly, go all the way up to private unsubsidized rents and which can, in the case of the nonelderly and nondisplaced, go much higher than actual in many areas because they are so far below the 20-percent gap requirement.

² Approved but not utilized.

³ No displaced limit approved. Regular limits apply to displaced families.

Mr. BENNETT. I thank the Senator.

Mr. DOUGLAS. In general, there is about a 25-percent increase in the income ceiling for continued occupancy over the admission rates for public housing.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I believe the Senator from Illinois already has placed that information in the RECORD.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I believe I put it in for four-person families. I withdraw that statement. I did not submit the figures for continued occupancy for the RECORD, but in general it can be said that the rate for continued occupancy is 25 percent above the admission figure. Families are permitted to increase their income by about 25 percent before they are evicted from public housing.

Mr. SPARKMAN. It seems to me that the simple answer is the item which I stated a little while ago to the effect that the estimate of the cost—and that is one of the big items with which we are concerned—will be an average of $40 a unit for the rent supplement program as against $58 per unit the country over for future public housing.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield at that point?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. MUSKIE. I have been getting educated on the question of cost because of my real concern with the new program. But, as I understand, in addition to the $58 monthly per unit cost of public housing to get the full cost, we ought to have the cost represented by tax exemptions from Federal taxes and tax exemptions from local taxes. I understand that those two figures add up to another $17 per month, making the total cost of public housing something like $75 a month.

Those are the figures given to me by the agency. I believe that they are reasonable and ought to be taken into account.

There is another question. I should like to confirm what I have been told.

Mr. SPARKMAN. First, when the Senator refers to the $17 additional, he is referring to the fact that public housing is tax free in two respects—income taxes on the bonds and real estate taxes on the property.

Mr. MUSKIE. Yes, public housing is exempt from Federal income taxes.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes.

Mr. MUSKIE. I understand that that is the cost that is contributed at $7 per month per unit. The projects are also exempt from local taxation, and I understand that represents a figure equivalent to $10 a month per unit, resulting in $17 a month per unit for tax exemption, which represents the public cost. That would not be a public cost in rent supplemental housing, because that would be privately owned and subject to local taxation.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator is correct. I am glad the Senator brought out that point. I brought that out in my statement yesterday. The figure I have is that $48 million of taxes would be lost to the Federal Government. I believe that it is highly important for us to remember a fact about the program which we are proposing today. As I said yesterday, it is nothing new. In 1947, or 1946—in the early days of debate on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill—the real estate boards recommended a program almost the same as the one now proposed.

Time after time since then they have recommended a similar program, which they describe as a rent certificate program. The only difference would be the manner in which payment would be made.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Let me continue with this point if I may. This program has been recommended through the years by private enterprise as a substitute for public housing. Furthermore, these projects would be built by private enterprise under FHA supervision and under the FHA insurance plan—not Government loans, not Government money—but money loaned by private enterprise to private enterprisers and insured by the FHA. The buildings would be owned by private enterprise; taxes would be paid to the Federal Government on the income that is derived from the program. Taxes would be paid to the local governments, and the project would be operated as private enterprise.

I should like to go one step further. The organizations that have recommended the program are remarkable. As I have said, through the years the real estate boards have recommended a program similar to the one proposed. They do not recommend the present program. They still stick to their rent certificate plan. This year they proposed another program which would have lowered the interest rate on these loans, even to zero percent, subsidizing it in that way. I submit that every one of us would prefer the kind of program which operates as provided under the bill rather than one which would be subsidized by lowering the interest charge to zero. The American Bankers Association did not come out and say that they particularly supported the program, but they said they preferred it over the plan of reducing interest rates as we do in one of the programs that we have already, or even as we do in a program such as the section 221d(3) below-market rate program, because there is a low interest rate there.

Some builders' organization endorsed it. As I have said, the American Bankers Association had many kind words to say about it and expressed preference for it over a change in the interest rate. The National Housing Conference approved it. The General Improvement Contractors approved it. The National Council Agency, the AFL-CIO, the American Institute of Planners, the National Conference of Catholic Charities, the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, the American Association of Homes for the Aging, the U.S. Cooperative League, the National Association of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers, the National Farmers Union, the National League of Municipalities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors approved the plan. I have read a short list of the organizations throughout this country that are supporting the program.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I ask the Senator from Alabama if the National Association of Homebuilders has become a socialist organization?

Mr. SPARKMAN. No. I believe that the National Association of Homebuilders is one of the strongest of our private enterprises.

Mr. DOUGLAS. How about the American Bankers Association?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Of course not. Over the past several years the American Bankers Association has been quite active, helpful, and strong in advocacy of good private enterprise housing programs.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The American Institute of Planners?

Mr. SPARKMAN. No; certainly they are not.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Or the National Conference of Catholic Charities?

Mr. SPARKMAN. No, nor the Conference of Mayors, the League of Municipalities, or any of the others.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield on that point?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. PROXMIRE. The Senator is making a very important argument, because those who are opposed to rent supplemental subsidies have said that they are socialistic and have implied that they are not supported by solid American institutions.

I invite the Senator's attention to two statements in the hearings. I noticed that when the mutual savings banks supported rent supplements, they did so for a very interesting reason. I call the Senator's attention to page 584 of the hearings reporting the testimony of the mutual savings banks, and I read one paragraph:

We recognize the importance of providing standard housing for such persons, particularly since this group will doubtless be enlarged by increasing code enforcement in urban areas. And we endorse the principle of providing a direct rent subsidy, since this will permit financing by private capital with market interest rate mortgages, insured under section 221(d)(3), rather than with public funds under submarket interest rate loans. Indeed, we welcome the prospect set forth in the President's recent "Message on the Cities" that, with a successful rent subsidy program, "it should be possible to phase out most of our existing programs of low-interest loans."

I invite the attention of the Senator from Texas to a statement made by the American Bankers Association, which as the Senator from Illinois has mentioned, is anything but a socialistic organization. I ask the Senator's indulgence while I read their interesting statement, which appears on page 373 of the hearings:

Section 101 conforms with our statement of principles. We prefer the rent supplementation approach which is based upon marketable interest rates over the subsidized interest rate approach of 222(d)(3) under which loans are originated at below market interest rates.

Since the real criteria for need is the ability of people to obtain minimum decent housing at rentals which are consistent with their level of income, the rent supplementation should become available to people who are eligible under section 101 but who cannot obtain decent housing at rentals not exceeding 25 percent of their gross income.

I recognize that we have before us both 221(d)(3) and rent supplement. What is important is that this conservative organization came out foursquare on the side of the rent supplement principle, its purpose and effect, which is to make people more self-reliant and to get them gradually but eventually out from under the subsidized program.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I appreciate the comments of the Senator from Wisconsin. He has read from the statements of two of the approving organizations, the first being the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks; the second being the American Bankers Association.

I will modify a statement I made a while ago. I said that the American Bankers Association did not positively approve the program. It did. I recall now that it approved that very part of the bill. It started with the statement that section 101 conformed with their statement of principles. In other words, the representatives of the American Bankers Association and the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks submitted resolutions that apparently had been passed in their association meetings. In everything they approved, they began with the statement that "It conforms with our statement of principles." If they disapproved it, they said it did not conform with their statements of principles, or something to that effect.

As the Senator from Wisconsin has said, two of the most conservative, strong, and good private enterprises systems of our country advocate the rent supplement program.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. TOWER. We conservatives would never concede that we have a monopoly on truth. We are capable of being wrong on occasion. The most conservative organization can be led down the garden path from time to time.

However, the statements read by the Senator from Wisconsin were not in support of this measure, but of the President's bill. This measure is not the President's bill; this is a bill that was modified by the amendment of the Senator from Maine [Mr. MUSKIE].

Mr. PROXMIRE. Yes, indeed.

Mr. TOWER. There was no testimony on that.

Mr. PROXMIRE. The language was modified by the distinguished Senator from Maine and by me. My modification increased the level of income which tenants would have to pay in rent before receiving rent supplement to 25 percent. The Senator from Maine provided that the total incomes of recipients must be so low that they qualified for public housing. He took a more conservative approach than the administration. I am sure these great organizations would be more enthusiastically in favor of this proposal than the administration's.

Mr. TOWER. They were testifying with respect to the other program.

Mr. PROXMIRE. They were.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Does the Senator from Texas mean to say that the American Bankers Association would favor a subsidy for well-to-do families and oppose a subsidy for poor families? I cannot believe that.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I have enjoyed the discussion, but I realize that time is passing.

I believe it would be well to establish the fact that this proposal is supported by some of the greatest private enterprise groups and organizations in the country. I do not believe that the Senator from Texas, even though he thinks they might sometimes be led down the primrose path, would ever suggest that the American Bankers Association of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks is a socialist organization or that it would support what it believed to be socialist legislation.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. MUSKIE. I suspect, having been rather conservative on this issue myself, that one of the reasons why those organizations support the program, perhaps support it even more enthusiastically in its present form, is that they understand that the Government is already committed to the principle of rent subsidy, because the public housing program is a rent subsidy program.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes.

Mr. MUSKIE. They understand that. So the question is which form to use. Shall we use the form that uses public money or use the form that uses private money? These organizations like the rent supplement program because it is a form of rent subsidy which uses private enterprise and private money to do the same job.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes. In that connection, public housing as we have had it in the past and as we now have it is not considered socialistic. Bob Taft, who originated the program, did not consider it to be socialistic.

I wish to say for the benefit of the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER], who supports public housing—he said so a few minutes ago—that public housing as we have it certainly smacks more of socialism than does the program we are proposing today under private enterprise, a program which the Senator from Texas says he opposes. I doubt whether, deep in his heart, he opposes it as strongly as he indicated. But I wanted to draw that distinction. I join with Bob Taft in the belief that public housing is not socialistic; but it does enjoy a Federal subsidy.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Is it not true that public housing is publicly financed?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The supplementary rent program will be privately financed.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Is it not true that the direction of public housing is by a public body, whereas the rent supplement program will be managed by a private body?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I wish to correct one statement that might be misunderstood. Rent supplements of money that is paid are paid by the Government.

Mr. DOUGLAS. To the manager of the building?

Mr. SPARKMAN. For management, ownership, payment of income taxes to the Federal Government, payment of taxes to the State, county, or city government; and payments to school districts are provided for in this program, as against none in the public housing program, which the Senator from Texas supports.

Mr. DOUGLAS. In reality, the Senator from Texas is expressing a preference for a much more socialistic program than the rent supplement program, and a much more costly program.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Government participates much more in the public housing program and at much greater expense to the taxpayers.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator from Texas has asked me to yield to him.

Mr. BENNETT. Will the Senator from Texas allow me to make one comment?

Mr. TOWER. I yield.

Mr. BENNETT. Nonprofit corporations pay no Federal income taxes.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I thought of that; yes.

Mr. BENNETT. Nonprofit corporations pay no Federal income taxes.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Because they have no profits. But limited dividend organizations do. So do cooperatives on undistributed portions.

Mr. BENNETT. Yes, theoretically.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I accept the correction by the Senator from Utah.

Mr. TOWER. It seems that I am being made a big liberal today.

Mr. SPARKMAN. And by conservatives.

Mr. TOWER. After the stirring remarks by the distinguished Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS], I may get the endorsement of the trade unions in my State for reelection. That is entirely unlikely.

I believe that we must remember that a great deal of testimony and comments which have been read were addressed to the bill prior to the modifications of the Muskie amendment. No hearings have been held since the adoption of the Muskie amendment.

A very interesting item appeared in a newsletter published by Representative PAUL A. FINO, of New York, who can hardly claim to be very conservative. He states, as reported by the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, that Mr. Weaver went on to say that under the proposed program, only those with hearts of gold and heads of lead would construct a rent housing program unit for lower-income families.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I believe that was an unfortunate expression on the part of Dr. Weaver, or one of his speechwriters. I believe that on reconsideration he would modify that statement.

I should say that those who oppose the rent subsidy program have hearts of lead. I do not believe that they have heads of gold, either.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, how much time have I remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama has 69 minutes remaining to his side. There are 92 minutes remaining on the other side.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I do not wish to prolong this debate. I yield to the Senator from Utah.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, the

Senator from Utah was about to rise to a point of personal privilege. It is against the rules of the Senate to make derogatory statements on the floor about other Senators. To describe the Senator from Texas and myself as having hearts of lead and heads of gold, I believe, would come within the rule.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I did not say the Senators had heads of gold.

Mr. BENNETT. I shall not press the matter further. However, I point out that this is skirting pretty close to a violation.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I do not care to prolong the discussion much more.

I believe that the people of the country will be concerned as to the cost of the program. We must remember that we are trying to find some measure to take the place of the public housing program, as we have known it through the years. I believe that the best way to arrive at the cost of the program is by a comparison with the existing public housing program.

Yesterday I included in my presentation a statement from the Housing Agency that gave some comparison of the cost. I have a very brief summary of it here.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed at this point in the RECORD a statement on the subsidy involved under the rent supplement program compared to public housing.

There being no objection, the summary was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SUBSIDY INVOLVED UNDER RENT SUPPLEMENT PROGRAM COMPARED TO PUBLIC HOUSING

The amount of the rent supplement payment that may be made on behalf of a particular family will never be greater than the amount of the subsidy that would be paid for that same family in a public housing unit. As to average costs, it is estimated that the average subsidy cost under rent supplements would run about $40 a month per unit—the level of the subsidy for public housing units currently being built runs about $58 a month per unit.

There are several reasons for the lower subsidy cost in the rent supplement program. Land and construction costs in the rent supplement program would be less than in the public housing program. There will be available to sponsors of rent supplement projects a much wider range of selections of sites, including suburban and outlying land, and generally no clearance would be involved. In addition, certain special construction requirements that add to the cost of public housing would not apply to housing constructed under the rent supplement program.

Under the rent supplement program, the occupant would be required to pay 25 percent of his income for rent compared to the general 20 percent requirement under the public housing program.

These factors alone—lower land and construction costs and greater payments by occupants—will offset the advantages of low-interest rate loans through tax exemptions in the public housing program. In addition, of course, the tax exemption accorded income on bonds issued in the public housing program involves a very substantial loss of revenue to the Treasury and this represents a cost that must be borne by other tax sources. It is estimated that the tax exemption of the income on public housing bonds now costs the Treasury $48 million a year in revenues.

Finally, the local property tax exemption accorded public housing represents a very substantial local contribution and is also a part of the economic cost of public housing.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, with reference to the statement that the Senator from Texas made to the effect that bankers from the mutual savings banks did not testify with relation to the bill after the Muskie amendment had been agreed to, I believe that their testimony would be much more favorable since we have agreed to the Muskie amendment. The Muskie amendment removed the requirement for rent supplements for higher income living.

I believe that requirement would have been subject to strong opposition. I did not like it myself. I fully believe that those banking associations would have been much more favorably impressed with the bill with that item removed.

There are two principal things for us to remember in supporting this measure in contrast to the present public housing program. First, the new program would be a private enterprise program built under the proved insurance program of the Federal Housing Administration, built by private enterprise, owned by private enterprise. Private enterprise pays taxes, as do individuals.

I cite those reasons as opposed to public housing which would cost more, which would be built under a governmental financial support program. I do not mean insurance, but I do mean that that program would be carried on under the written faith and credit of the U.S. Government, which is behind the bonds issued by the city public housing authorities throughout the country.

Rent subsidies would be paid by the Federal Government. At the same time, according to the statement that I have just submitted for the RECORD, there is an estimated loss of $48 million income to the United States each year resulting from the nontax payment status of the public housing program.

Mr. President, another contrast is the cost. I believe that is all important. The Senator from Ohio [Mr. LAUSCHE] is interested in the average per-unit cost for public housing in the United States today. That figure is $58 a month for new housing constructed at the present time. The average cost per unit of these houses built now would be $40 a month. It would involve $18 a month less in subsidy. In addition, those people would pay taxes, as proposed in the bill. Under the public housing program, no taxes are paid. The buildings would be owned and operated by private enterprise. Public housing is a governmental operation.

I believe that those are the principal things to remember in considering the bill.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I believe that it might be of interest for Senators to know what motivation was behind my amendment.

I was prepared to oppose the supplement. Then I directed my attention to the supplement proposal with a view to determine to my satisfaction whether any part of the proposal was meritorious.

I recall the hearing which we held in 1959 when President Eisenhower vetoed the housing bill. It will be recalled that the first witness was a recorded speech by the late Senator Taft. In that recorded speech, Senator Taft described to a housing body the difficulty that he had had in supporting public housing, and that when he did so, he did it only because no one had offered a constructive alternative. He stated that although he supported it because he felt there was a very great need for it, he intended to continue to search for an alternative.

Mr. SPARKMAN. And we have done that throughout the years.

Mr. MUSKIE. We have done that ever since.

That was my first year in the Senate. It was my first year on the Committee on Banking and Currency. It was the first housing bill in which I participated. I was so impressed by it that it has lurked in my mind ever since. I have, as have others, been looking for ways with which to deal with the problem in a more effective and more economical way.

It seemed to me that the rent subsidy program, if tailored to the public housing program, would be a sensible and reasonable supplemental program by which to deal with the problem.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator has correctly stated the situation.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Has the Senator discussed what the income qualification will be?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes. It has been placed in the RECORD. I believe I can show the Senator the figures, which he can read privately. It varies from section to section, but it follows rather closely what is provided under public housing. I believe a reading of that will show that it generally is close to what is provided under public housing.

Mr. President, may I ask how much time I have left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 59 minutes remaining under the control of the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield to the Senator from Texas [Mr. Tower].

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as may be necessary.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas is recognized.

Mr. TOWER. Let me point out that the proposed subsidy goes, not to the renter, but to the landlord. Although private enterprise may be involved in the construction, this is not in reality the sort of thing taken on by an entrepreneur. It is the kind of thing taken on by a nonprofit corporation established for the purpose, or to be established for the purpose of wanting to get in on this program.

One of the possible abuses is that we may have new sponsors getting into the act and putting their heads together with contractors and deciding that it would be a good idea to use the subsidy to make profits.

Let me further note that, although a family may have a considerable amount of subsidized rent under this program, as I understand, according to the ruling of the Internal Revenue Service, this is nontaxable income. It should be considered as income, because it is. If one person is paying $62.50 rent a month and the Government is paying the other $37.50, he is receiving $37.50 monthly in income. The person who makes sufficient income so that he pays the $100 a month is paying a tax on that income. This is an inequity in the program.

I do not believe we should try to imply that the late and great Bob Taft would have favored this as an alternative to the existing housing program. The Senator from Alabama has said that the idea of a rent supplement has been around for years—since 1936, he said. I am sure that Bob Taft, with his interest in public housing, was aware that this alternative had been considered, but he never advocated it. He would have gasped at sight of this program. He understood rent subsidy, and felt that it should not be a part of public housing. I hope this amendment will be approved.

I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Curtis].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Texas.

I am opposed to the Great Society's program of rent subsidies. I shall support the motion to strike out the rent subsidies provision of the pending housing bill.

There are many reasons why this should be done. I hope that a majority of the Senators will take a similar view. Rent subsidies should be defeated because: First, it is a new program of spending that will be most difficult to ever stop; second, it will make more of our citizens dependent upon the Government; third, it will delay the day when the Federal budget can be balanced; fourth, it is an unnecessary subsidy program promoted in Washington in a grasp for more power and control over our economy and over the lives of individuals; and, fifth, it will discourage home ownership.

I yield back my time.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield me time on the bill?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield time on the bill.

Mr. MAGNUSON. In the bill is section 211, which provides for approval of technically suitable materials and adds a new section which, under the procedure, provides that any material or product which is technically suitable shall be accepted.

Naturally, all the people in my State of Washington, as well as in Oregon, who are in the lumber industry are interested in the interpretation of this section. I understand that yesterday the two distinguished Senators from Oregon [Mrs. NEUBERGER and Mr. MORSE] queried the distinguished Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] on the interpretation of this section. It is of great concern to all of us who come from lumber-producing States, which includes my own State of Washington.

I associate myself with the remarks of the Senator from Alabama in the interpretation of this provision. It will go a long way toward making uniform materials and products to be used in structures under FHA.

Responsible builders are for this provision. For example, if a green piece of lumber were used in a house, after a period of time it would spring and the house would be adversely affected.

I rose to associate myself with the recommendation of the committee and the remarks of the Senators from Oregon on section 211. I hope the section will remain in the bill.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I thank the Senator.

Mr. THURMOND and Mr. CLARK rose.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield time on the bill to the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK].

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I ask if the Senator would be willing to yield 20 minutes to me on the bill to make a speech. The Senator from South Carolina also has a matter to present.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, the Senator from South Carolina has been trying to obtain the floor for some time. I would like to yield him 15 minutes.

Mr. CLARK. If the Senator from South Carolina wishes to proceed at this time very well. How long will he take?

Mr. THURMOND. I have been waiting for a long time to be recognized.

Mr. CLARK. Very well.

Mr. TOWER. I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. THURMOND].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Texas [Mr. Tower]. First, I should like to offer my congratulations to the Senator from Texas for the excellent work he has done in connection with the pending bill. As the ranking minority member on the Housing Subcommittee, the Senator from Texas has labored hard and long to correct the numerous inequities in this measure, and all the people in the country have benefited from his efforts.

The rent subsidy scheme contained in the pending bill authorizes contract authority up to $50 million for fiscal year 1966, up to $100 million for fiscal year 1967, up to $150 million for fiscal year 1968, and $200 million for fiscal year 1969. Over the 40-year life of the contracts involved, this provision calls for a total outlay of the astronomical figure of $8 billion. The plan is to pay that portion of a family's rent which exceeds 25 percent of its income.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee has changed the plan somewhat from that which was originally visualized in the administration request. The original request was designed to subsidize the rent of families in the income range above that required for eligibility for public housing and yet too low to obtain standard housing. The income range would have been largely left to administrative determination and in some cases it could have gone as high as $9,000 or $10,000 per year. The committee bill limits eligibility for the rent subsidy program to those families which qualify as low-income families for the purpose of public housing. This is an improvement, but there are many other defects left.

Mr. President, I submit that there is absolutely no justification for going into a program of this magnitude which has so little chance of succeeding. The rent subsidy program is no more than a duplicate of the public housing program now on the books and even with the committee amendment the cost involved has not been reduced.

The families for whom the rent subsidy would be paid would live in either a cooperative, private, nonprofit, or limited dividend project, which itself would be financed under section 221(d)(3) of the Federal Housing Act. The housing units involved would be new or rehabilitated projects. They differ substantially from the ordinary public housing project in that they would not be localized in a particular area. They would be scattered throughout the community or city. In addition, it is anticipated that a portion of the residents of each individual unit will be full-paying occupants, not receiving any rent subsidy from the Government.

The owners of the project, called sponsors, will have a difficult time finding a sufficient number of full-paying tenants to assure the economic stability of the unit. If Congress approves this proposal, it is almost certain that the entire unit will eventually have to be filled by families receiving rent subsidies. This will seriously jeopardize the Government's investment.

It is obvious that many individuals who are normally supporters of housing projects have some very serious reservations about this proposal. The other body adopted an amendment to the housing bill on the floor of the House of Representatives limiting it to low-income families, the same as has been done by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

The New York Times published a very interesting article written by Tom Wicker, entitled "Washington: Johnson's Housing Victory," which discussed the battle over the housing bill in the other body. I ask unanimous consent to have this article printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks. Also, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have a copy of my newsletter dated June 23, 1965, entitled "Stranger in the House" printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HARRIS in the chair). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, in my judgment, it would be the height of folly for Congress to authorize an $8 billion program of rent subsidies which is so likely to fail. Once this is started, there will be no backing away from it, for years to come. Any contract entered into will have to be honored over its entire lifetime, and all of the contracts will be long term. Most of them will be for 40 years.

I urge the Senate to adopt the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] and delete the rent subsidy provisions from the pending bill.

WASHINGTON: JOHNSON'S HOUSING VICTORY (By Tom Wicker)

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Congress is approaching the 4th of July in the usual mid-summer mood and that spells trouble for any President. In the case of President Johnson, it spells a good deal less trouble than it has for others and there now is an undercurrent of confidence at the White House that there will be no major setbacks at this session.

RUMBLINGS OF REVOLT

So many things happened that smacked ominously of revolt. The Senate sought openly to remove one of Sargent Shriver's two hats and almost refused to suspend the law to permit Mr. Johnson to name a retired general as Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration. Representative MENDEL RIVERS, South Carolina's reply to Secretary McNamara, got his back up on military pay and military base closings. The veterans' lobby and some outraged Members of Congress forced the President to compromise on closing outmoded veterans' hospitals. Mr. Johnson was forced to veto a minor flood-control bill as a gesture against what he considered congressional incursions on Executive territory.

Some other things might have happened, but didn't. There could have been full-scale Senate debate on Vietnam and the Dominican Republic, or a major setback in either crisis, unsettling the President's grip on his Democratic majorities. The old religious and racial prejudices might have deadlocked the House on the aid to education bill. And the Republicans, finding their first really open target, might have shot down the controversial housing rental subsidy that squeaked through the House yesterday.

CRUCIAL BATTLE

That well may have been the crucial battle of 1965—and it was viewed with so much concern in the White House that Mr. Johnson himself got on the phone to an estimated 30 Members of Congress yesterday. It was his most determined personal effort of the year.

There were three reasons. The rental subsidy was one of the most important, though least publicized items, in the President's entire program. It was one of the most difficult to pass. And it came to the floor of Congress at a time when a major setback might have sharply interrupted Mr. Johnson's legislative momentum.

The subsidy was particularly important to the White House because it was the one genuinely new idea in the entire legislative program and the first major development in years in the housing field.

It was also viewed as the least expensive way, in terms of the Federal budget, to lift low-income families into adequate housing. But it was difficult to get through the House because conservatives in both parties can be mobilized most easily against what appears to be a straight Federal "dole," because even the public housing lobby saw the plan as an invasion of its interests, and—most importantly—because it was a new idea, not long debated, long advocated, or well understood in the press or in Congress.

Moreover, there was a troublesome racial aspect. The rental subsidy should work to break down the "ghetto idea." Thus, lower income, all-white neighborhoods, from which Negroes have been excluded because of their economic inability, now may be opened to them through Federal rental subsidy.

Mr. Johnson compromised on details of the plan, but he could not afford a defeat—any more than Representative JOHN LINDSAY, the Republican-Liberal candidate for mayor of New York, could afford to vote against a program with such an impact on urban areas. Not only was it a major White House legislative goal—victory on such controversial issue, coming at this stage of the session—but also was a tactical necessity.

Coming up soon, after all, will be the controversial repeal of section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act; an immigration bill eliminating national origins restrictions; the always difficult farm bill; a doubled authorization for a poverty program riven with political and administrative disputes; and a proposal for regional centers to treat heart, cancer, and stroke that will be far more open to charges of "socialized medicine" than was the medicare bill.

THE DOG DAYS

Members of Congress already have accomplished a great deal this year, enough for most sessions to quit on. Washington is getting hot and muggy, and somewhere the fish are biting and hometown fences await mending. Controversial issues are more unwelcome in the dog days than in the brave early weeks of a session. Mr. Johnson burned up the phone yesterday not just to save a major item of his program but to keep necessary pressure on Congress for the hard work ahead.

STRANGER IN THE HOUSE

(By Hon. STROM THURMOND, U.S. Senator from South Carolina)

Should the administration's housing proposals be approved by the Congress, the specter of big government's authority will be haunting far more American homes in the years to come. The bill would expand all the old housing programs, good and bad, and authorize most of the schemes which the Congress has rejected in past sessions.

The polyglot nature of the housing bill would take a book-length dissertation to describe, but it can be illustrated by examination of a few of the programs.

The public housing program, begun more than a quarter-century ago, has resulted in 581,000 public housing units now in operation across the country. Disillusionment with this program at the local level is illustrated by the fact that 170,000 units are tied up in the "pipeline." The commitment by the National Government has been made, but local authorities have not started these projects. Despite the overwhelming evidence that public housing is no longer attractive at local levels, it is proposed that 140,000 additional units be authorized over the next 4 years.

In addition to the old public housing program, an approach often rejected by Congress is intertwined. On top of the authorization for an annual average of 35,000 newly constructed units, the bill would authorize purchase of an average of 15,000 units annually of existing housing and the leasing of 10,000 units of existing housing. This would permit the "scattering" of public housing throughout existing and new residential areas in addition to the familiar institutional-type projects. This would give the green light to "integration by scattering," a scheme I twice successfully stopped in the Senate before Lyndon Johnson went all the way with Martin Luther King. The total of the units authorized for the next 4 years would, therefore, be 240,000 units of public housing, almost half the number put in operation over the last quarter-century.

Grafted atop the public housing program would be a "new" program of "rent subsidies." This is designed to promote more "integration by scattering" than any feature of the bill. Subsidized rental units could be built in individual or multiple units without any location veto by local governments. As proposed, the "rent subsidy" would be available to the elderly, handicapped, and displaced who occupy substandard housing. It would also be available to those whose incomes are below the amount required to obtain standard housing. The Government would pay that part of the family's rent which exceeds 25 percent of the family's income. The person for whom the rent subsidy is paid would live in cooperative, private nonprofit, and limited-dividend projects.

Apparently, this program is designed to benefit the 8 percent of families with incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 who live in "substandard" housing. It is evidently of no concern that this might be considered unfair to the 92 percent of families in this income bracket and the 72 percent of the families in $4,000-and-less income bracket who, according to the last census, manage to secure their own "standard" housing without Federal help.

The cost of such a "rent subsidy" program over the next 40 years would be $8 billion.

The rent subsidy program may be too much for even this submissive Congress to swallow whole. The Senate Banking Committee voted to "limit" the rent subsidy program to those who are eligible for public housing. This, of course, makes it duplicate the public housing program, with little assurance that, in the final analysis, it would lower the ultimate costs.

The housing bill would authorize 3 new grant programs. The Administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency would have $400 million to give for financing 50 percent of the cost of water and sewage facilities in areas where he foresees "significant population growth." He would also have $100 million to give for financing the purchase by communities of land for future sites for public works. To make these grants, the Administrator would have to predict the direction of the future growth of the community. The Administrator would also have $200 million to provide "neighborhood facilities."

These examples demonstrate the only consistency in the bill, which is the purpose of the Government to take over the responsibilities of local governments and the individuals in the field of housing.

With borrowed money, the National Government would like to buy a place of authority in more and more American homes. Once in, the "stranger in the house," or neighborhood, will be there forever.

Sincerely,

STROM THURMOND.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum, and I ask unanimous consent that the time be not charged to either side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered; and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the distinguished Senator from Virginia may be permitted to speak out of order and that the time be not charged to either side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COINAGE OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate

a message from the House of Representatives on the bill, S. 2080, to provide for the coinage of the United States, with the amendment of the House thereto.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2080) to provide for the coinage of the United States, which was, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That this Act may be cited as the "Coinage Act of 1965".

TITLE I—AUTHORIZATION OF ADDITIONAL COINAGE

SEC. 101. (a) The Secretary may coin and issue pursuant to this section half dollars or 50-cent pieces, quarter dollars or 25-cent pieces, and dimes or 10-cent pieces in such quantities as he may determine to be necessary to meet the needs of the public. Any coin minted under authority of this section shall be a clad coin the weight of whose cladding is not less than 30 per centum of the weight of the entire coin, and which meets the following additional specifications:

- (1) The half dollar shall have—
 - (A) a diameter of 1.205 inches;
 - (B) a cladding of an alloy of 800 parts of silver and 200 parts of copper; and
 - (C) a core of an alloy of silver and copper such that the whole coin weighs 11.5 grams and contains 4.6 grams of silver and 6.9 grams of copper.
- (2) The quarter dollar shall have—
 - (A) a diameter of 0.955 inch;
 - (B) a cladding of an alloy of 75 per centum copper and 25 per centum nickel; and
 - (C) a core of copper such that the weight of the whole coin is 5.67 grams.
- (3) The dime shall have—
 - (A) a diameter of 0.705 inch;
 - (B) a cladding of an alloy of 75 per centum copper and 25 per centum nickel; and

(C) a core of copper such that the weight of the whole coin is 2.268 grams.

(b) Half dollars, quarter dollars, and dimes may be minted from 900 fine coin silver only until such date as the Secretary of the Treasury determines that adequate supplies of the coins authorized by this Act are available, and in no event later than 5 years after the date of enactment of this Act.

(c) No standard silver dollars may be minted during the 5-year period which begins on the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 102. All coins and currencies of the United States (including Federal Reserve notes and circulating notes of Federal Reserve banks and national banking associations), regardless of when coined or issued, shall be legal tender for all debts, public and private, public charges, taxes, duties, and dues.

SEC. 103. (a) In order to acquire equipment, manufacturing facilities, patents, patent rights, technical knowledge and assistance, metallic strip, and other materials necessary to produce rapidly an adequate supply of the coins authorized by section 101 of this Act, the Secretary may enter into contracts upon such terms and conditions as he may deem appropriate and in the public interest.

(b) During such period as he may deem necessary, but in no event later than five years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary may exercise the authority conferred by subsection (a) of this section without regard to any other provisions of law governing procurement or public contracts.

SEC. 104. The Secretary shall purchase at a price of $1.25 per fine troy ounce any silver mined after the date of enactment of this Act from natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof and tendered to a United States mint or assay office within one year after the month in which the ore from which it is derived was mined.

SEC. 105. (a) Whenever in the judgment of the Secretary such action is necessary to protect the coinage of the United States, he is authorized under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe to prohibit, curtail, or regulate the exportation, melting, or treating of any coin of the United States.

(b) Whoever knowingly violates any order, rule, regulation, or license issued pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall be fined not more than $10,000, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

SEC. 106. (a) There shall be forfeited to the United States any coins exported, melted, or treated in violation of any order, rule, regulation, or license issued under section 105 (a), and any metal resulting from such melting or treating.

(b) The powers of the Secretary and his delegates, and the judicial and other remedies available to the United States, for the enforcement of forfeitures of property subject to forfeiture pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall be the same as those provided in part II of subchapter C of chapter 75 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 for the enforcement of forfeitures of property subject to forfeiture under any provision of such Code.

SEC. 107. The Secretary may issue such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act.

SEC. 108. For the purposes of this title—

- (1) The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Treasury.
- (2) The term "clad coin" means a coin composed of three layers of metal, the two outer layers being of identical composition and metallurgically bonded to an inner layer.
- (3) The term "cladding" means the outer layers of a clad coin.
- (4) The term "core" means the inner layer of a clad coin.

(5) A specification given otherwise than as a limit shall be maintained within such reasonable manufacturing tolerances as the Secretary may specify.

(6) Specifications given for an alloy are by weight.

TITLE II—AMENDMENTS TO EXISTING LAW

SEC. 201. The first sentence of section 3558 of the Revised Statutes (31 U.S.C. 283) is amended to read: "The business of the United States assay office in San Francisco shall be in all respects similar to that of the assay office of New York except that until the Secretary of the Treasury determines that the mints of the United States are adequate for the production of ample supplies of coins, its facilities may be used for the production of coins."

SEC. 202. Section 4 of the Act of August 20, 1963 (Public Law 88-102; 31 U.S.C. 294), is amended by changing "$30,000,000" to read "$45,000,000."

SEC. 203. (a) Section 3 of the Act of December 18, 1942 (56 Stat. 1065; 31 U.S.C. 317c), is amended by striking "minor" each place it appears.

(b) Section 9 of the Act of March 14, 1900, (31 Stat. 48; 31 U.S.C. 320), is repealed.

SEC. 204. (a) Section 3517 of the Revised Statutes (31 U.S.C. 324) is amended to read:

"SEC. 3517. Upon one side of all coins of the United States there shall be an impression emblematic of liberty, with an inscription of the word 'Liberty', and upon the reverse side shall be the figure or representation of an eagle, with the inscriptions 'United States of America' and 'E Pluribus Unum' and a designation of the value of the coin; but on the dime, 5-, and 1-cent piece, the figure of the eagle shall be omitted. The motto 'In God we trust' shall be inscribed on all coins. Any coins minted after the enactment of the Coinage Act of 1965 matter of detail—the House said not for 5 years shall we do it, but in the meantime we might find new sources of silver. We use more in each year than the world production of silver, and we would fix it so that our friends in New England, the silversmiths, would not have any. The photographers might be limited, and even the military, that would have priority, might not get it.

My friend the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. PASTORE] is concerned about the moving picture industry. They were getting a great deal of silver out there.

Mr. MURPHY. They use a great deal. They take silver worth $50,000 a year out of the bottom of tanks.

Mr. ROBERTSON. I do not think that will cause the Senator any trouble. One Congress cannot bind another.

Mr. MURPHY. If there is a new supply it is possible for the Congress to go back and have another look at it.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Absolutely. In any event I want to go along with the recommendations of this commission, to see if we can find out how we can take care of the moving pictures, photographers, the silversmiths, and everybody else.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Including the producers.

Mr. MURPHY. I am concerned about the miners, too.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Miners and producers.

Mr. ROBERTSON. They are all paying taxes on whatever they earn out of producing silver.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield.

Mr. PASTORE. I want to compliment the distinguished Senator from Virginia together with the members of his committee for accepting the House amendments.

It was known in the beginning that no one on either side would be fully and completely satisfied.

Mr. ROBERTSON. That is correct.

Mr. PASTORE. Somehow we had to approach a middle-of-the-road conciliation and understanding in order to be fair and to do justice. I think the bill, under all the circumstances, does do justice.

It does not satisfy, I repeat, everyone concerned, but I think it is in the public interest and we ought to try it out as it is.

Mr. ROBERTSON. I thank the Senators. I am happy we do not have to wait a number of days during which people would not know what the coins are going to be.

We can settle the question right now. No one is fully pleased, but the compromise is fair. Next year we can take another look at it and in any event, we are creating a special Joint Commission to review the coinage program and make recommendations to us.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ROBERTSON. Before yielding to the Senator from Utah, I want to say that I am sure that we could not have had such a successful handling of the bill on the floor of the Senate but for the warm support of the Senator from Utah, who put the national welfare perhaps a little above what seemed on the surface to be the interest of his own silver producers. The Senator went along with me in support of the administration bill. I thought that was very fine of him, and I appreciated his fine support.

I yield to the Senator from Utah.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I should like to express my appreciation for those comments. Again I say that I shall go along with my chairman in accepting the House language.

There are some differences between our bill and the House bill. The chairman has discussed them. I do not believe that any of them are so important as to justify further delay in the passage of the proposed legislation. I am pleased that the House saw fit to agree with our bill in retaining silver in the half dollar instead of going along with the House Banking Committee which recommended no silver in any of our subsidiary coins. Because any delay in action on this measure which is so vital to our Nation's coinage system can only complicate the problem, I believe we should accept the House language.

During the last few minutes a comment was made in the discussion to which I should like to direct the attention of the Senator from California. He has said to me privately a number of times and on the floor of the Senate that he believes that as many as a billion ounces of silver could come into the market if the price were stabilized. The present price of $1.29 an ounce has existed since September 1963. The price is stabilized. It has been stabilized for nearly 2 years. Under the bill it will remain at the present level for from 2 to 3 years until the coinage transition is completed. If there is as much as a billion ounces of silver in hoarding apparently the $1.29 price will not bring it out.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield.

Mr. MURPHY. My point was that if there is a billion ounces in the free market, obviously it is being held in the hope that there will be a price increase. If it is established that the price will remain where it is, it may be that some speculators who are holding silver will release the silver and thereby make it possible for us to get the use of it, and they may go on in their speculations into some other field.

Mr. BENNETT. I would agree that there are some holdings of silver for speculation. I think there is no question about that. If passage of the bill will bring some of that silver out, I shall be very happy, because it will help the silver processors, who need silver for film, silverware, electronic devices and other uses.

Passage of the bill will not hurt the western silver producers.

When they assess the situation, they will realize that the proposal is not an elimination of the prospect of a substantial rise in the price of silver, but rather lays the groundwork which is necessary before the present ceiling can be removed and the price can rise.

Mr. ROBERTSON. I should like to comment on that suggestion. I believe that all the silver producers should write to the distinguished Senator from Utah and say, "We are grateful that you succeeded in keeping some silver in our currency, in the 50-cent piece." The House Committee on Banking and Currency voted to take all silver out of the subsidiary coins. But thanks to the very fine effort made in our committee by the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], our committee voted that we should keep silver in the 50-cent piece, and therefore those producers should write to the Senator from Utah a letter thanking him for that.

Mr. BENNETT. I received some letters of that kind and I received some letters telling me that I am a traitor and that I have destroyed the silver mining industry of my State.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. From the point of view of the silver users, I hope that the Senator's statement is a correct one, and an increase in the price of silver will be postponed for many years.

Mr. BENNETT. I do not know how long it will be before the price rises. A price increase will be postponed at least until the time when the new coinage system is in operation.

All of the discussion reminds me of a story which I have always enjoyed. In Salt Lake City we have a daily newspaper, the Deseret News, owned by the L.D.S. or Mormon Church. We once had in the Senate a Republican, the Honorable Reed Smoot, and a Democrat, the Honorable William H. King. When each of these men came home, they went to the head of the church to complain about the editorials that were being printed in the church newspaper. The Democrat did not like some; the Republican did not like some. The president of the church said:

I know I have the right editor on the newspaper. He is plowing a line between the two.

In the silver bill we have tried to draw a line as fairly as we could between the processors and the producers, neither of whose desires could be completely satisfied under the present circumstances.

I am very happy to join my chairman in recommending to the Senate that it accept the recommendation of the Treasury, approve the language of the House bill, and eliminate the need for a conference. Let us get on with the task of developing our new coinage system toward the day when the price of silver may be free to seek its own market level.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I join with the Senator from Virginia in suggesting that the Senator from Utah takes a very judicial view of the whole question. Although there may be some disagreement on the question as to whether we would not have had a bill if it had not been for the Senator, we are taking a look at it, and I hope that the measure will turn out in the way the Senator has suggested.

I shall not come back and say I told you so. I shall keep quiet. But starting today, when the bill is enacted, there will be a hoarding of quarters and dimes.

Mr. BENNETT. Only time will tell. In my opinion, the situation would be the same anyway, because people would begin to realize that the Treasury's stock of silver was running out. If there is any hoarding, it will follow the same pattern that would have existed otherwise.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Virginia that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. BENNETT. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, let the RECORD show that I voted "No."

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HARRIS in the chair). The RECORD will so indicate.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2213) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum. I ask unanimous consent that the time for the quorum call be charged equally to both sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself as much time as I may need to engage in a colloquy with the Senator from Alaska.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, earlier in the day, it was stated that families having incomes of more than $10,000 a year would be eligible for rent supplements, as proposed in the bill. Can the Senator from Maine inform me as to that?

Mr. MUSKIE. That figure is not based upon the experience under the public housing program, to my knowledge. If I am in error, I feel certain that I shall be corrected.

Mr. BARTLETT. Perhaps it was the Senator from Utah who made the statement.

Mr. BENNETT. It is my understanding that in New York City the public housing limit is above $10,000.

Mr. BARTLETT. I ask the Senator from Utah if it would be correct to say that this situation already exists and that rent supplements would not alter it.

Mr. BENNETT. Under the bill, the limits for rent supplements for incomes under which persons can qualify for such supplements are exactly the same as the official limits for public housing. As to public housing, local authorities have the right to set limits below the top; and in the case of rent supplements, the Administrator, I suppose, would have the right to set rates below that figure. But under the bill, the rates for the two systems would be the same. The limits on the rates of the two would be the same.

Mr. BARTLETT. Then, this would be no new venture, no great new experiment seeking to reach a level not called for under the public housing law?

Mr. MUSKIE. The Senator is correct. Income ceilings vary from community to community, depending wholly upon the amount of private housing that is available in the private market.

Mr. BARTLETT. Surveys are to be made by the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Mr. MUSKIE. Yes. In setting income ceilings, surveys are to be made of the availability of substantial housing, housing which is decent, safe, and sanitary. When the low limits are ascertained by such surveys, they will form the basis for the income ceilings which will then be fixed.

With the exception of special groups, which I shall identify in a moment, the ceilings will be set at a point 20 percent below the lowest figure at which rental is available in the private housing market for the family involved.

Mr. BARTLETT. Why is that proposed to be done?

Mr. MUSKIE. The 20-percent gap, so called, which now obtains in public housing is established to insure that there will be no competition between public housing and private housing in the private market. The 20-percent gap represents a leaning over backward to avoid competition with private housing. There have been exceptions to the 20-percent gap for the elderly, the physically handicapped, and the victims of disaster. Other than that, the 20-percent gap applies.

So really, when we are talking about income levels, we are talking about income levels which are lower than they ought to be to take care of groups who cannot find decent, safe, sanitary housing in the private market. This is true with respect to public housing under the present law and the rent proposal in the bill.

Mr. BARTLETT. We ought not to judge this program entirely or perhaps not too importantly upon the basis of income, but upon the basis of the situation the Senator has described.

Mr. MUSKIE. The income ceilings are important. It was for that reason that I offered in committee the amendment that is now a part of the bill. It limits the program to those who are eligible for public housing. But on the question of rent subsidy, as I said earlier this morning, public housing is a rent subsidy. The bill relates to private housing which is decent, safe, and sanitary for persons in the groups I have described who cannot obtain housing in the private market which meets the best standards, and this will be done in the form of a subsidy. So when we are tempted to raise the question of subsidy, we ought to understand that the debate concerns the forms of subsidy that ought to be used and the forms that will be most effective and most economical.

Mr. BARTLETT. Is public housing now available for all those who desire it and presumably would be entitled to it?

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, unfortunately, public housing has not met the problem. For example, on page 7 of the committee report there is a table which identifies the number of people in various cities who live in substandard housing now.

In spite of the fact that public housing has been available since 1937, for example, in Chicago, there are 51,780 families with incomes of less than $2,000 a year.

Mr. BARTLETT. Families or individuals?

Mr. MUSKIE. Families. There are 51,780 families in Chicago with incomes of less than $2,000 a year who live in substandard housing in that city.

Mr. BARTLETT. I should think that they would be living in substandard housing with that kind of income.

Mr. MUSKIE. Those people cannot purchase on the present market housing that is decent and sanitary.

In Chicago, there are 17,942 families with incomes of between $3,000 and $4,000 who live in substandard housing. There are 19,174 families in Chicago with incomes of between $2,000 and $3,000 a year who live in substandard housing, despite the fact that there are 28,371 public housing units in the city of Chicago today.

Public housing, although it has solved the problem for 28,000 families in the city of Chicago, it has left unsolved the problem for 88,000 other families.

The existence of this need drove the late Senator Taft to support public housing against his will. It was not because he thought it was a perfect answer. It was because he saw that there was a problem that needed to be met, and that public housing was the most immediate and feasible answer available.

The rent subsidy program contained in the pending measure would be another answer. It would certainly be one of smaller magnitude in terms of cost to deal with the same problem than public housing.

In New York, there are 156,250 families with incomes of less than $4,000 who live in substandard housing today. That is in spite of the fact that New York has not only a Federal program, but a State program of Federal housing. Therefore, the need still exists.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, is it the feeling of the downtown experts in housing, in the Housing and Home Finance Agency, that public housing, together with the proposal which is now made, would take care of the situation, or substantially so?

Mr. MUSKIE. I do not believe that anyone has any assurance that the problem be solved by public housing, or by public housing plus the rent subsidy. However, the officials downtown believe that rent subsidies can help and are worth trying.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, I believe that the Senator stated that people who are victims of a natural disaster would be eligible for the program. Would that be because of the amendment offered by the Senator from Wisconsin?

Mr. MUSKIE. Yes. The Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. PROXMIRE] offered an amendment to make eligible those who meet the income requirement in the bill and who have been victims of natural disaster.

I should think that would be to the interest of the Senators from Alaska and Senators from Midwestern States, since such States have suffered disasters.

Mr. BARTLETT. It would be highly desirable. I commend the Senator from Wisconsin for offering the amendment. This would apply not only to people from the Midwestern States, but also to almost every other section of the country. Many parts of the Nation have been hit in the past 2 or 3 years by natural disasters such as earthquakes, tornadoes, floods, and other sorts of disasters. I believe that those victims should be included.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I believe that it should be clearly understood that the rent subsidy program is directed not only to people in the low-income group, but also to special groups of people. Not all people who qualify under the public housing income ceiling would be eligible under the rent supplement program.

The following special groups would qualify for this assistance. They must be members of one of five special groups, each of whom, for one reason or another, is unable to provide decent housing for himself and his family out of his income. There would be those who, by governmental action, are forced out of their existing housing and who fall under the income ceiling. There would be the elderly who are unable to provide decent housing. I have statistics to show that many of this group live in substandard housing. They are unable to buy decent housing out of their resources. There would be the physically handicapped, those who occupy slums, and disaster victims.

These are the very special groups whose private resources are inadequate and would benefit from the rent subsidy program. I repeat that even those would be restricted by the income ceiling.

Mr. BARTLETT. I was rather astonished to hear that the program would cost $8 billion over a 40-year period, although in the debate this morning, I believe that the Housing and Home Finance Administration suggested a figure of $5.8 billion. It would seem a rather large sum, indeed.

Mr. MUSKIE. On a figure of that kind, for example, if we project the current national gross product and view it as the accumulated national gross product at the current level over a 40-year period, it would be $28,000 billion. That is an interesting figure. However, what relevancy would it have in the year 1965 in dealing with the current problem?

Mr. BARTLETT. I believe that is an important point. The $8 billion for a 40-year period, if $8 billion should be the correct figure, would mean $200 million a year. Certainly that would not be beyond the capacity of the people to take care of a special group in such circumstances.

I heard the figure of $8 billion mentioned. It occurred to me that a young couple might start married life and be required to pay $150 a month for groceries. I do not know the exact figure, it might be more than that. However, instead of relating it in that way, if someone were to tell them that over a 40-year period they would have paid a grocery bill of $72,000, they would be inclined to give up. The problem cannot be approached in that way. We cannot relate it to what we pay out month after month and year after year.

Mr. MUSKIE. If you were to go outside and ask a taxi driver how much it would cost to retain his services for a year, you would not retain those services. However, if you were to hire that cab driver to go downtown for 60 cents, or for the prevailing rate for taxicabs, you could afford it. However, you could not afford it for a year.

Mr. BARTLETT. Precisely. I believe that point is important.

I thank the Senator from Maine for educating me on this subject. I badly needed the education.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I have listened to the debate, which I think has been conducted in a very restrained way. Not once this morning have I heard the opponents of the measure argue that the housing needs of the people who would be covered by the rent subsidy program are not the responsibility of the Government. I have not heard that argued once as a reason for opposing rent subsidy.

So far as I know, many of those who oppose rent subsidies support public housing because they recognize that this is a need that tugs at the conscience of the Nation. They recognize that this is a need which must be met and cannot be ignored. Whatever answer we use to deal with the problem will be costly.

For example, the 40-year figure for the equivalent of our public housing would range from $15 to $20 billion, as compared with the figures that have been used to make a 40-year comparison on rent subsidies.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MUSKIE. I yield.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, this bill would provide an additional $7.5 billion for additional public housing for 40 years.

Mr. MUSKIE. I understand. I assume that program may be subject to some debate. However, we are not now talking about what a total answer ought to be, but whether this answer is as good an answer, a better answer, or a worse answer than public housing to the problem of the needs of the people.

I believe that this measure is worth testing. The Senator from Utah does not believe that it is worth testing.

I believe that the action we ought to use, if any, to deal with the problems of disadvantaged groups is not merely public housing. I believe that we ought to try something new, especially something that would undertake to utilize and monopolize the resources of the private sector of the economy to deal with the problem.

Mr. BENNETT. The Senator from Utah believes that the project is worth testing. However, the Senator from Utah believes that we are trying to start in on a full scale rather than on a pilot scale.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, do I understand that the Senator supports the amendment of the Senator from Texas?

Mr. BENNETT. The Senator from Utah will support the pending amendment of the Senator from Texas.

Mr. MUSKIE. That would undertake to wipe out the program completely.

Mr. BENNETT. If that amendment is rejected, another amendment will probably be offered to set up the program on an experimental basis.

Mr. MUSKIE. The Senator from Utah clearly prefers to eliminate the program rather than to reduce the program.

Mr. BENNETT. I would prefer to reduce it. However, I am not at the present time in control of the manner in which the amendments will be offered.

Mr. MUSKIE. It would be possible to offer an amendment to reduce the program rather than to eliminate it. I invite the Senator from Utah to follow that course of action.

Mr. BARTLETT. Let me ask one further question. If this program turns out to be such that admittedly it is a dismal failure, or that it does not work at all, or that it is not working well enough to warrant continuing it, surely Congress would not continue to spend the $8 billion provided in the program because in 1965 it had decided to do so?

Mr. MUSKIE. The Senator is correct. I believe the figure of $8 billion, irrelevant as that is, is also inaccurate, for reasons which have been pointed out. In the first place, it is based on the assumption that every contract will be a 40-year contract. The agency does not think it will. It does not have any idea as to what the proportion will be, but it knows that many contracts will be for 20 years rather than for 40 years.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield on the point raised by the Senator from Alaska, the Senator from Alaska and I are members of the Appropriations Committee, and if it turns out that this program is not working properly, the Appropriations Committee as well as the Banking and Currency Committee will have jurisdiction. The Appropriations Committee will have an opportunity to look at it and review it, and the Senator from Alaska as a member of the committee will have a ringside seat at that review.

Mr. BARTLETT. The Senator is correct. We know, as members of the Appropriations Committee, that that committee looks at all these items with care.

Mr. MUSKIE. The Senator from Wisconsin and I are also members of the Banking and Currency Committee, and we know that the committee looks at these programs very closely. We do not give any blank checks for as long as 2 years, even though authorizations cover longer periods. We always retain control and are free to act or control such programs as experience dictates.

Mr. BARTLETT. The Senator is correct when he states that the figure of $8 billion should not be used. Since they will not all be 40-year contracts, perhaps the figure may be closer to $5 billion.

Also, perhaps we should emphasize what was said earlier by the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS], that we hope and believe the economy of the country will improve year by year and that there are many people who require help now who will not require it later.

Mr. MUSKIE. That is one of the advantages of the rent supplement program, because it requires that these contracts must be renegotiated on a periodic basis to take into account income standards which affect those who are benefiting from such subsidy program. As the income goes up, the subsidy comes down. If income rises to the point where a subsidy is no longer justified, those people can continue to reside in the buildings. This is a desirable feature.

Mr. BARTLETT. A person could stay in that residence for 40 years, or as long as he wanted to.

Mr. MUSKIE. Yes. One of the alleged abuses is that when people in public housing no longer come under the income ceiling, certain undesirable results take place, and there are people who should not be in there who continue to stay there, wholly because they have become established there as residents. To remain there would be in violation of the law. Even though their circumstances have improved, they still find it difficult to find rental in the public market, and they would prefer to linger on there.

Under this program the right of the tenant to remain is established, because it is private housing. In other words, the tenants will include some who receive supplement rents and others who do not.

Mr. BARTLETT. I thank the Senator.

Mr. BENNETT. Will the Senator yield on my time, before the Senator from Alaska departs? The reason for the 40-year contract, or 20-years, or whatever the length of the mortgage is, is that the organization which constructs the building must have assurance of what it is going to get and it must contract that a certain percentage of its apartments will be filled with rent supplement tenants. It must contract to rent a certain percentage of the apartments to people who are going to receive rent supplements. The Government has to be prepared to supply both the type of tenants and the money required; otherwise the man who accepts the responsibility and executes the mortgage will not have any assurance of mortgage repayment.

I am reading from a letter written by Milton P. Semer, for Robert C. Weaver, Administrator:

It will be necessary to have such 40-year contracts to lend assurance of that mortgage repayment capability and because the approval of projects containing units under such rent supplement contracts will be contingent upon serving an unmet need among low and moderate income persons and families.

This obligation, once it is accepted by the sponsoring organization, includes an obligation of the United States to continue to provide rent supplement tenants for whatever percentage of the units of the apartment are reserved for rent subsidized tenants.

Mr. BARTLETT. I am no expert in this field, but let us assume that one of these units was built in a fairly small community, and only one, because there was no need for any more, and the 40-year contract was entered into, but at the end of 10 years there was no one in that community who any longer needed the supplement program. Would it be possible, under the bill we are now considering, for the owner of that unit to rent the entire structure to renters who would not be aided by the Government?

Mr. BENNETT. It would be possible, but, at the same time, the owner is under an obligation to maintain a certain percentage of his apartments to serve such people as long as any such people existed.

Mr. BARTLETT. Yes, but not when there are no such people left to occupy it. Is that correct?

Mr. BENNETT. I believe that follows logically. When there is no demand for a service, the service ends, of course.

Mr. BARTLETT. And the organization that has put up the building actually will not care, under the bill, whether there are rent supplements, so long as his building is occupied?

Mr. BENNETT. Does the Senator know of any apartment where there is 100-percent occupancy?

Mr. BARTLETT. No; but I know of some where it is pretty close to it.

Mr. BENNETT. In my own State of Utah there have been so many apartments built in Salt Lake City, for example, under the liberal terms that have been available, that some of the newer apartments are in serious trouble.

This is one of the great unknowns of the situation. If the man about whom we are talking has a vacancy in the apartment, he has a right to go to the Government and say, "I have contracted to reserve a part of my apartment for rent supplement tenants. I need some. I have vacancies because you are responsible for it. I have reserved a certain percentage of my apartment units for such people."

Mr. MUSKIE. There is nothing in the bill that assures a project owner that all units will be occupied.

The $8 billion figure is based on three assumptions that are erroneous:

First, all contracts will be for 40 years. I agree that whatever terms are made will have to be honored, but we are assured by the agency that the contracts will range from 20 to 40 years.

The second assumption which is erroneous is that all these units will be filled for 40 years. The Senator from Utah himself has admitted that will not be so, because there are vacancies.

The third basis of the erroneous assumption is that all tenants will be occupying the percentage set aside from them for all 40 years. That also has been found to be erroneous.

These three basic assumptions which underlie the $8 billion figure are erroneous.

However, let us take a look at the relevancy of the $8 billion figure.

I obtained the following figures for my own use:

The Nation's 40-year bill for tobacco and tobacco products will be $292 billion.

The Nation's 40-year bill for cosmetics and hair care will be $125 billion.

The Nation's 40-year bill for alcoholic beverages will be $250 billion.

The Nation's 40-year bill for automobiles will be $2,228 billion.

The Nation's 40-year bill for clothing will be $1,665 billion.

If that $8 billion figure has any relevancy, let us compare it with these figures I have just cited. Let us also take the 40-year gross national product of $30,000 billion and compare it with the $8 billion figure.

What we are talking about is our ability from year to year to deal with pressing national problems.

I repeat, not once have I heard an opponent of the bill argue that the needs of the elderly, the displaced, and the handicapped are not a Government responsibility.

If, then, that responsibility is conceded, what we are concerned with is the means for dealing with it. The only means we have at present is through public housing. Over a 40-year period, it will cost $19 billion. I will accept even the $8 billion figure as a basis for comparison with that one. Therefore, if we accept the responsibility and recognize the need, let us get to the heart of the issue.

Is it not reasonable to try rent supplements as another way—and perhaps a more economical and effective way—to deal with the problems of exactly the same people who are dealt with in public housing?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, will the Senator from Maine yield?

Mr. MUSKIE. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The Senator from Maine has made an excellent statement about the 40-year cost of many items in the social and national budget.

I should like to speak about the $80 billion subsidy over 40 years we now give to homeowners, which I believe our friends on the other side of the aisle do not wish to remove.

THE $80 BILLION HIDDEN HOUSING SUBSIDY

Mr. President, the opponents of the rent supplement program cry that any subsidy will corrupt the poor—that it will destroy their incentive and sap their moral fiber. This tender solicitude for the welfare of the poor is indeed touching. In fact, such concern has long been part of our history.

The moral fiber of the poor has long been protected by self-appointed guardians who profess to see an ominous danger in any major piece of legislation which might somehow benefit the poor. But these warnings sound a little hollow; especially when they are made from the comforts of an FHA insured and tax subsidized home.

Let us examine these tax subsidies for middle class homeowners.

It is conservatively estimated that American homeowners pay approximately $10 billion a year in interest on their home mortgages. This only includes interest payments on 1 to 4 family nonfarm dwellings. If farm homes were added in the figure would be larger. It does not cover interest payments on apartment buildings which are normally rented to occupants.

As we all know, the interest and the taxes on most home mortgages can be deducted from current income and therefore are not taxable income and diminishes the amount of taxes which will be paid by the rate of tax on the $10 billion deductible.

Assuming an average tax bracket of 20 percent, this means that homeowners can deduct $2 billion a year in interest payments from their income tax. In other words, the Federal Government is indirectly subsidizing middle-class homeowners to the tune of $2 billion a year. Moreover, since the opponents of rent supplements seem to prefer a statement of cost computed over 40 years, let me oblige them with a simple computation. Two billion dollars per year times 40 years equals $80 billion. Think of it—$80 billion for the well-to-do middle class. Not $80 million, but $80 billion.

Compare this gigantic subsidy for relatively prosperous homeowners with the modest amount of subsidies proposed for impoverished slum dwellers. The $80-billion hidden housing subsidy for the middle-income families and the rich is 10 times the maximum cost of the rent supplement program and 20 times its probable cost. Let me also point out that this comparison does not take into account the other tax benefits accorded homeowners, such as the ability to deduct local property taxes from Federal income tax payments. The $80 billion estimate also does not project any increase in the number of middle-class homeowners or the probable increase in the value of their property. Thus, if anything, the estimate of an $80 billion hidden housing subsidy for the middle class is conservative. It could be much higher.

Let me emphasize that I have nothing against homeowners. I am one myself. I am delighted that the Federal Government has helped millions of Americans to own their own homes.

All I am suggesting is that some Federal benefits also be extended to the poor. Tax subsidies for homeowners are of no benefit to the poor who are forced to rent a slum apartment in or near the core of the city.

Why is the cry of socialism or regimentation always raised whenever we propose to extend middle class benefits to low-income groups? Can it be that the rich cannot bear to see the poor given an equal opportunity? Can it be that only the middle class have moral fibers sufficiently strong to avoid being corrupted by subsidies? Can it be that only the rich know how to avoid regimentation?

Like matches for children, are subsidies too dangerous for the poor? Are we saying $80 billion for the rich but not 1 cent for the poor?

Why is it that when we tax the poor to pay the rich it is called by some free enterprise, but when we propose to tax the rich to help provide for the poor it is called by some socialism? Perhaps these terms are merely self-serving pronouncements intended to justify our existing policies. As the Russians seem to say at every International Conference, "What is mine is mine; what is yours is negotiable."

But we are deciding much more than who gets what subsidy. We are not attempting to re-slice a static economic pie. We are talking about the future of America. We are talking about providing every family in America with a decent home, so that it can go on to make its full contribution to American life. The poor have a contribution to make as well as the rich. The requirements of our modern and complex society are such that we can no longer afford to maintain a permanent generation of ill-housed, ill-educated, and undermotivated slum dwellers. In fact, so long as we are comparing subsidies, the poor are a much better investment than the rich. In economic language, the marginal returns are greater.

One thousand dollars made available to the poor will be of more benefit than $1,000 made available to the well to do.

For every poor family we assist to a better way of life, we are creating a productive, taxpaying individual who will more than return the original investment.

Accordingly, Mr. President, I believe that the Government must extend a helping hand to every American—rich and poor alike—to attain a decent, living environment. If we can afford $80 billion over a 40-year period to invest in homes for the well to do, surely we can afford to invest $4 to $8 billion over a 40-year period for the poor.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Illinois yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I am glad to yield.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Along the lines of the remarks just made by the Senator from Illinois, the point concerning productive investment, is it not true that a rent supplement of $50 million a year, aggregating $200 million for a period of 4 years, would result in a remarkable stimulus to the economy, because the amount of construction would not be a matter of a few hundred million dollars, but would be a matter literally of billions of dollars? Is it not also true that in terms of a stimulus to the economy, the particular investment of rent supplements would probably also be more stimulating than almost anything the Government can do?

I ask the Senator from Illinois that question as a past president of the American Economic Association and as the vice chairman—soon to be the chairman, next session—of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Yes. The Senator from Wisconsin is entirely correct. Under section 221(D)(3) of the bill, this will be in a sense an ingredient. The average cost per family housing unit is $12,500. This would amount to a total construction cost of $6 billion to $8 billion spread over 4 years, and will be a very fine stimulus. However, I do not believe we should make our case exclusively or even primarily on this basis, because this tends to regard the poor and the children only as people to be taken care of because they will stimulate industry.

I prefer also to think of this program as an investment in human life. It is the best investment we can make. The Senator is correct.

Mr. PROXMIRE. I agree with the Senator's statement wholeheartedly. However, at the same time, if we consider the cost of $10,000 for each job, the $6.25 billion construction will result in possibly as many as 625,000 jobs. In view of the fact that several million people are still out of work, we have the serious and nagging problem of unemployment. Would not this particular program provide a most welcome and desirable improvement?

Mr. DOUGLAS. The Senator is absolutely correct. If there is an excess of savings over the amount now invested, and an accumulation of idle funds in savings institutions, which for one reason or another is not flowing out into actual investments, this program offers an opportunity to tap the idle funds.

Mr. PROXMIRE. For every dollar invested in the program, with the $200 million resulting in $6.25 billion construction, there would be a multiplier factor of twenty-five fold, which is a most remarkable multiplier.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Of course there is the modification that the $200 million represents the annual charge. The $6.25 billion will be the initial cost. It is not certain that the $6.25 billion will be self-perpetuating.

Mr. PROXMIRE. A family which has $75 or $80 now available for the payment of rent each month, without using an excessive proportion of their income, would, with rent supplements, be in a position to pay $100 a month in rent; and the little marginal addition would enable them to live in a home which otherwise would not be constructed. In this way a relatively modest investment by the Federal Government can result in great impetus for the construction industry.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The Senator has made a very subtle and profound point when he points out that a slight addition to income produces a great difference in the quality of housing.

This is precisely what we are trying to effect. The Senator has put his finger on one of the vital economic facts which are often neglected.

When we were dealing with school lunches—and this is an ironic observation—we never could get the school lunch program through with the argument that it was good for hungry and starving children. However, when we made the point that this would furnish a program for milk and butter from cows, bread from wheatfields, and meat from hogs and cattle, Congress and the country were in favor of it. This in a sense gave moral justification for taking care of hungry children. I believe this argument may convince some doubting Thomases, who may be impervious to the idea of decent housing, because it will be a fine thing for the building industry and the contractors. It will be a fine thing for them and for investors, but it will also be a fine thing for 500,000 American families who are now living in squalor, and who will have a chance to live a decent life.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield time to the Senator from Utah.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I have thoroughly enjoyed the peroration of my friend from Illinois about the $80 billion subsidy. What he did not tell us is that the interest costs of individuals who invest in rental housing are also deductible from their income tax base. In general, these individuals have higher incomes and with our progressive income tax structure are in higher brackets. This means that the interest costs reduce the tax payments by a greater amount per dollar of interest than for those purchasing homes.

The lowering of taxes lowers the rent that must be charged tenants in order to make a profit. Rental tenants thus actually gain an equal or greater benefit from the tax deductibility used as the basis of the $2 billion figure fabricated by the Senator from Illinois.

The $2 billion a year figure or blown-up figure of $80 billion in 40 years that the Senator from Illinois claims is a subsidy to home buyers is merely a phantom figure that fades into nothing when brought into the light.

Mr. President, I believe the Senate should understand this and not act on the basis of incorrect subsidy claims.

If the Senator were to propose to the Committee on Finance that no one who occupies a home or has residential property for rent may deduct interest costs in computing his income tax, we would still be on the same basis.

This discussion is particularly interesting also because the conditions under which the rent subsidy program will operate are those of being essentially income tax free.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Earlier I made the point that we ought not to forget that we are dealing, in public housing and in the rent supplement program, with exactly the same problem and exactly the same people, with one exception; namely, that the group we are dealing with in the rent supplement program is a smaller group than the group we are dealing with in the public housing program.

It would be helpful and useful to identify the nature of these groups and to tell something of their problems, so that they will not be overlooked as we become involved in rhetoric in this debate. What we are dealing with is a very difficult and human problem, to which the great Senator Taft was able to find no other answer but a public housing program, which he accepted reluctantly, but which he ardently supported because it was, not the perfect answer, but the best answer for a problem which in his judgment the Nation could use. That is the same group we are talking about. Who are they? They are the elderly.

There are 2.8 million households, living in deficient housing, in which the head is 65 years of age or older.

This is housing that is not safe, decent, and sanitary. Of these, 81 percent have incomes of less than $3,000 a year.

There are 2 million families in which persons 65 years of age and older have to live with younger relatives, imposing a burden on them—which I am sure they willingly accept—because of low income or poor health.

In addition, there are 6½ million elderly householders living in housing that is considered standard but is unsuitable because it is too large, too difficult to manage, or unsafe. Of these, 54 percent have incomes of less than $3,000 a year.

Of the approximately 70,000 families displaced from their homes each year by some kind of public action, Federal, State, or local, it is estimated that more than 20 percent are elderly. This is one of the groups which prompted Senator Taft, reluctantly, and at the same time willingly, to support public housing, because he was moved by the human needs. This is one of the groups that we who sponsor the rent supplement program in its present form in the bill, have included.

There is a second group with which we are involved—displaced families. Between 70,000 and 80,000 families are displaced each year by some type of public action—highway construction, urban renewal, public buildings, and so on.

Through December 31, 1964, the total displacements resulting from urban renewal action were 185,000 families. Of those, approximately 80 percent, or roughly 150,000, came from substandard housing.

Put in another way, 80 percent of those who have been displaced from their housing deserve a general public interest, whether it is the result of highway construction, schools, or any other purpose; 80 percent of them are people who are least able to bear the burden of dislocation. Most of those who do not come from substandard housing come from units which, while not substandard, are overcrowded, or located in severely blighted neighborhoods. Among families displaced by urban renewal alone, 40 percent had incomes of less than $3,000.

That is another group whose problems troubled Senator Taft. That is another group whose problems trouble those of us who support the rent supplement program in the form in which it is found in the present bill.

Then there are the handicapped. There are about 4.8 million people with disabling handicaps. That includes those suffering from some degree of paralysis, loss of limbs, the blind, and others severely afflicted. There is a heavy concentration of disabled persons among the low-income groups. Roughly two-thirds of the disabled had incomes of less than $4,000 a year.

An additional percentage, not immediately ascertainable, would fall within the income group that would be served by the rent supplement program, which would undertake to provide housing to meet the needs of those people. And it should be noted that handicap and poverty frequently go hand in hand.

For example, more than half of the disabled are 65 years of age or older, and of those older disabled persons, 72 percent have incomes of less than $4,000 a year. Those are the groups whose problems, since 1937, have been an accepted responsibility of government, at least in part. Those are the groups whose problems tugged at the conscience and the heart of Senator Taft, so that he was able to support a program of whose merits he was not entirely convinced, because it was designed to deal with the problems of these people.

These are the people whose problems tug at the hearts and consciences of those who are willing to try another route, one which conceivably might prove successful, without some of the difficulties which we have experienced in the public housing program. A program of rent supplements would bring into the handling of the problems of those people the resources of the private sector of our economy, including the ideas, the imagination, the stimulus, the efforts, and the hands and hearts of many people working outside of governmental circles. They would apply themselves to the problems of certain groups which have been an accepted responsibility recognized in the laws of our country since 1937.

In terms of those who are interested not only in humanitarian considerations, but considerations of dollars and cents: there, too, the program of rent supplements should have an appeal, because we are dealing with a program which, by the worst estimates thus far advanced by the opposition, would be still cheaper and more economical than the alternative of public housing. The figures that have been given to me by the Agency are as follows:

The per unit cost per month of rent supplements would be $40;

The per unit cost per month of public housing is $58 in direct subsidy;

The per unit cost in terms of tax advantages, legal, and Federal, of public housing are $17 a month, making a total of $75 a month, which public housing is now costing the public sector to supply.

The difference is $35 a month by those figures. Projected over the 40-year period, which seems to be so popular with the opposition to the program, we are talking about a 40-year figure, representing the cost of public housing, which approaches $15 to $20 billion, compared with the $8 billion figure used by the opposition and the $5.8 billion figure which the agency assures us is a more realistic evaluation of the 40-year cost, irrelevant as that figure might be, of the program of rent supplements.

Mr. President, I come to the position that I am occupying at the present moment not as a supporter of the President's supplement program as originally advanced. I opposed it at that time. If it were before us now, I would oppose it now. If it were before us in the form which it took after the first amendment in the committee was added, which included both low- and middle-income groups, I would be opposed to that now, because it would bring into the program groups which I do not believe the Nation is prepared to put on the public rolls of assistance in that way.

But in its present form, as an alternative to public housing, for exactly the same people whose problems have been troubling us since 1937, I say it is time for us to come forward with another answer which brings into the fray the private sector of our economy, which promises to be effective, which may very well be more economical, and which may indeed be more humanitarian.

For those reasons I support the present plan as it exists in the bill. It makes sense. I believe it is conservative. I believe it is sound. It is humanitarian. It is controllable and, by all reasonable standards and experiment, worth keeping.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How much times does the Senator from Texas yield to himself?

Mr. TOWER. As much time as I may require.

I believe the key word is "experiment." This is indeed an experiment. That is why I wish the administration and the committee could have curbed their enthusiasm for the program until we had an opportunity to see how it might conceivably work, and not initiate a program of such proportions.

Regardless, the threat still exists to the furtherance of home ownership. I should like to read a section from the minority views of the House committee:

THREAT TO HOMEOWNERSHIP

To own one's own home, no matter how modest, is the goal of the typical American family. The rent supplement kills the incentive of a family to achieve that goal. Under FHA underwriting standards a family with \$3,000-a-year income can afford to purchase a home costing $2\frac{1}{2}$ times that amount or a \$7,500 home. The housing cost of such a home would approximate \$60 a month. But as noted in the illustration above, the \$3,000-a-year family by paying \$62.50 a month as rent could live in a partially federally subsidized \$100-a-month rental unit. The cost of such a dwelling unit would approximate \$12,500. Or, as above noted, that same family could also live in a \$200-a-month rental unit and pay only \$62.50 of its income a month as rent with the balance of \$137.50 paid by the Government under the rent supplement formula. The cost of the \$200-a-month rental unit would approximate \$25,000. Why would a family strive to own a \$7,500 home when for approximately the same monthly outlay for housing it could rent a \$12,500 or \$25,000 cost dwelling unit? Not alone would the rent supplement proposal kill incentive for homeownership, it also would be a powerful incentive for a family to discontinue homeownership and become a renter on the Federal dole. That runs counter to the American way of life.

That runs counter to the American way of life. It is not the same as public housing. We are talking about a supplement for a living cost, a direct subsidy, one that is in addition to family income, one which I understand, according to the Internal Revenue Service, is not taxable. I believe it would destroy incentive. Why should a man earn sufficient money to pay $100 a month rent for his family when a tax will be levied on that $100? Why should he not be content to stay in an income group in which he would receive a $37.50 a month rent subsidy on which he would not have to pay taxes?

It has been said over and over again by those connected with the administration that many welfare programs are stifling the initiative of the people. I suggest that this program is designed to do precisely that.

There is another aspect. Many persons, it is reasoned, feel a little stigmatized if they have to live in a public housing project. So it is proposed to remove the stigma by giving them a rent subsidy so that they can go elsewhere to live.

One of the professed purposes of the measure is to achieve some sort of economic integration of the various socioeconomic groups in the country. I am not talking about race; race has nothing to do with it. I am talking about the socioeconomic scale. The idea is to try to create neighborhoods and communities in which families having low incomes, middle incomes, and high incomes will all live together. Federal dollars and Federal programs would be used to implement this idea. There would be no State or local control. According to the bill, there would be no need to consult with local authorities. There would be no need for the Administrator to pay any attention to local policy. He would go directly into a community, deal with a nonprofit sponsor, establish units, make contracts for the construction of units, and then guarantee full occupancy for 40 years. If anyone thinks that that is not a radically new program, he had better look at it again. It would cost us much more than merely the money involved. It would intrude the Federal Government too much into the affairs of men. It would cost us primarily in terms of incentive.

I have never seen a program better calculated to be destructive of incentive than this program. I fervently hope that the Senate will see its way clear to delete this program from the bill.

There are existing programs which, however defective they may be, or how much they may need improvement, have provided us with experience. There has been no experience with a program such as is proposed. There is no program in existence that is so vulnerable to abuse as the proposed program would be.

I believe the rent supplement program will be a harbinger of direct subsidization of the grocer in the form of a payment of a percentage of a family's grocery bill. It may be a direct subsidization of the clothing store, so as to pay a portion of the family's clothing bill. Ultimately, it will have progressed to a guaranteed annual income. There are those today who seriously advocate a guaranteed annual income. I believe that this is the beginning of such a program.

The program contains inherent dangers that have not been thought of yet. Originally, some of the proponents of the measure apparently decided that most of the lower-income persons in this country have been reduced almost to the status of absolute dependency on the Federal Government and, therefore, complete subordination to it. Now it is proposed to move into the middle class, to see if they cannot be reduced to the status of absolute dependency on Uncle Sam.

The bill started as a rent subsidy for moderate-income or middle-income families. In the wisdom of Senator from Maine [Mr. MUSKIE], that was changed in committee so as to revert to low-income families. It is bad enough there. It will have the effect of stifling incentive. My stars, if we ever stifle the incentive of what might be called the middle-income group in this country, we shall be in a bad situation.

I appreciate the constructive contribution the Senator from Maine has made; but even with that constructive contribution, I still believe the program is unwise and unsound. It is one with which we have had no experience, one as to which we can only guess what the results will be. I am afraid that they will not be to our liking; that we shall have committed ourselves irrevocably over the next 4 years to a contract for 40 years for a program that is, at best, educated guesswork.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum. I ask unanimous consent that the time for the quorum call not be charged to either side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the Senator from Ohio.

STRENGTHENING AND IMPROVEMENT OF NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I ask that the Chair lay before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives relative to House bill 5401.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives announcing its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 5401) to amend the Interstate Commerce Act so as to strengthen and improve the national transportation system, and for other purposes, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendment and agree to the request of the House for a conference, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. MAGNUSON, Mr. LAUSCHE, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. MCGEE, Mr. COTTON, Mr. MORTON, and Mr. PEARSON conferees on the part of the Senate.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2213) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities.

Mr. INOUE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield me 5 minutes?

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. INOUE. Mr. President, the House version of S. 2213, H.R. 7984, specifically provides that Federal savings and loan associations are permitted to make loans on leasehold interest in real estate if the term of the lease is renewable for or runs 10 years beyond the term of the loan.

I introduced a bill, S. 114, on January 6 of this year, very similar to the objective of this specific section in H.R. 7984, but with language stipulating 5 years instead of 10.

Mr. President, as Senators may know, this matter is part of section 541.9 of the rules and regulations for Federal savings and loan associations and related definition of the various types of lending authorized in section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933.

The basic question is whether or not the Federal Home Loan Bank Board should be authorized to reduce the remaining life of the lease to less than 15 years beyond the maturity of the debt—as stipulated in the 1933 act.

It was due to my belief that mortgage loans should be permitted on leaseholds which expire less than 15 years beyond the maturity of the debt that I originally introduced in S. 114. This would facilitate sales of mortgages secured by leaseholds to Federal associations under the participation loan program.

Incidentally, the applicable Hawaii statute in section 180-54, Revised Laws of Hawaii, authorizes State savings and loan associations to make mortgage loans "provided the unexpired term of the lease at the time the loan is made thereon is at least 2 years beyond the maturity date of the loan."

Mr. President, I am not presently concerned as to the relative merits and demerits of lease land as against fee simple land for residential mortgage loans. The truth of the matter is that long-term leasehold provisions for residential purposes are a practical fact in my State. The existing 15-year provision, therefore, is a great disadvantage to potential homeowners on leasehold lots in Hawaii. The situation is certainly a unique one and can probably be matched to a degree only by the State of Maryland.

For practical purposes, however, I believe that the reduced 10-year proviso pertains more directly to Hawaii. Since 1948, the Federal savings and loan associations there have been making loans on real estate secured by leasehold interest. The term of the loans run just a few years short of the term of the lease. As I have previously indicated, State chartered savings and loan associations, operating under State law, make loans secured by a leasehold interest as long as the lease runs 2 years beyond the term of the loan.

Practically speaking, the House proviso would permit Federal savings and loan associations to make loans on these leasehold interests provided that the term of the lease runs 10 years beyond the term of the loan. Incidentally, this would be similar to existing regulations on bank loans in this area.

Again, practically speaking, the House proviso of 10 years, which is 5 more years than I personally would prefer, would partially correct the present imbalanced competition between Federal savings and loan associations and State chartered associations in the area specifically, and only, of loans on real estate secured by leasehold interest.

The State chartered associations would also benefit by being able to generate additional needed mortgage funds through the sale of participation interests in leasehold loans to mainland Federal associations.

The effect, in short, should be a salutary one to all savings and loan associations dealing with leasehold mortgages. The 10-year proviso is at least a major step in the direction of recognizing leasehold residential real estate as a practical fact of life in Hawaii.

Mr. President, I had originally intended to introduce an amendment to S. 2213 along the lines of my bill, S. 114. However, in view of the House language on this point and after talking with the manager of S. 2213, I would like simply to go on record as requesting serious consideration be given to accepting the House language on this matter in conference.

Mr. MUSKIE. Let me say to the Senator from Hawaii that this is a problem that has troubled the committee. It has come to us in one or two different forms. I assure the Senator that we shall be happy to take it to conference and discuss it with the House managers of the bill.

Mr. INOUE. I thank my distinguished friend for that assurance.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may need for a short colloquy with the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN].

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KENNEDY of New York in the chair). The Senator from Maine has 10 minutes remaining.

Mr. MUSKIE. I yield myself 2 minutes.

Under the mortgage insurance for land development program, contained in section 201 of the bill, there is a requirement that the developed land be served by "public systems for water and sewerage." A question has arisen as to what constitutes a "public system" under the bill. In the State of Maine, for example, we have public water utilities, regulated by the Maine Public Utilities Commission. Some of these utilities are publicly owned. Some are investor owned. All are considered "public." It is the Senator's understanding that "public systems for water and sewerage," as contained in proposed "section 1005" under section 201(a) of the bill, means a water or sewer system, whether publicly or investor owned, which serves the general public in a specified area and is owned and operated under the authority of and regulation by an appropriate State public utility regulatory body?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes.

Mr. MUSKIE. I have one further question. Referring to the same section of the bill, the Commissioner is authorized to "approve an adequate privately or cooperatively owned—water or sewer—system which will be regulated in a manner acceptable to him." It is my understanding that this authority could be exercised where service by a public system is not feasible. The bill states that public systems must be "consistent with other existing or prospective systems within the area." Although the bill is not specific on this point, is it the Senator's understanding that the same condition applies to a "privately or cooperatively owned system"?

Mr. SPARKMAN. The answer again is in the affirmative.

Mr. MUSKIE. I thank the Senator very much for clarifying this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum, and ask unanimous consent that the time be charged to neither side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself 4 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized for 4 minutes.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Maine yield?

Mr. MUSKIE. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I should like to direct two questions to the Senator from Maine for purposes of acquiring information concerning the rent subsidy bill. The Senator from Alabama handed me a statement showing a sampling of the incomes which could qualify for a rent subsidy in 26 cities.

My first question is: Do I correctly understand that this sampling was made for the purpose of indicating what will happen if the rent subsidy bill is passed?

Mr. MUSKIE. Yes, the study shows the groups and indicates the incomes of typical groups in typical cities eligible for public housing, who, of course, would also be eligible under the pending bill.

Mr. LAUSCHE. The tabulation shows that in the 26 cities a $4,800 income is the low amount which would qualify an individual for a subsidy, and $6,500 is the high amount, in Chicago.

Mr. MUSKIE. The $6,500 ceiling in Chicago applies to housing for seven or eight persons in four-bedroom housing.

Mr. LAUSCHE. That means that under certain conditions the amounts which I have described would qualify those families for subsidies?

Mr. MUSKIE. Yes. For one bedroom housing in Chicago, the ceiling is $4,300, in the same table.

Mr. LAUSCHE. That would mean that in Chicago a family which needs one-bedroom housing, if it had an income of $4,300, would still qualify for the subsidy?

Mr. MUSKIE. If the family were also a member of one of the five groups who are eligible under the bill.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Can the Senator tell me what amount of income in New York City under maximum conditions would qualify? The Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT] has stated that $10,100 income would qualify a person for a rent subsidy.

Mr. MUSKIE. The New York experience is not reflected in this table. I believe it would be germane to point out how the income levels are established. They are not established as a result of anyone's arbitrary judgment as to what income level should qualify. Rather, a survey was made of the housing market to determine what rent level—not income level—in private housing is available which is decent, safe, and sanitary, for the families who would be involved. Then, once the rent level was established, it would be reduced by 20 percent—that is, if it were $100, it would be $80—and the $80 figure multiplied by the factor of 4 would determine the income level. So the income levels will vary from city to city. Presumably, New York might be higher than any other community.

Mr. LAUSCHE. My inquiry was as to the maximum amount in New York City which under maximum conditions would qualify for a subsidy. It has been stated that it is $10,100. Can the Senator answer that question?

Mr. MUSKIE. I do not have that figure.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Can the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] answer it?

Mr. SPARKMAN. If the Senator from Maine will yield, I am sorry, but I do not have that figure. I do have a figure which I believe is much more relevant. Let us remember that the purpose of the program is to supplant and replace future public housing. The average amount of the rental subsidy on public housing built today is $58 a unit. The average unit on the subsidy of the rent supplement plan is estimated to be $40 a unit. In addition—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Maine has expired.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself 1 additional minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized for 1 additional minute.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Public housing pays no taxes. It is estimated that the cost to the Federal Government would be $4,800 a year. I have placed all that information in the RECORD.

Mr. LAUSCHE. The Senator from Utah has stated that his calculations show that in New York City a family placed in the position of maximum strength can get the maximum subsidy which would qualify the family, if the income was $10,100. Do I understand that correctly?

Mr. BENNETT. I stated that the figure I received indicated that it is possible in New York to go above $10,000. That is the ceiling. If we had an income of $10,000 and the ceiling were $10,100, we would have a $100 potential rent subsidy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Maine has expired.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Who has time to yield to me?

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President,—

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Texas yield me 1 minute in order to complete my statement?

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield such time as the Senator from Ohio may require.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio may proceed.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I will not vote for the establishment of this program in our Federal system because, in my judgment, it would be the beginning of a program which, although in its infancy today, will grow and grow without limit in the future.

This is a dangerous, new program into which we are entering. Many difficulties lie ahead. I am not willing to take the position that the income levels which have been mentioned are so low that persons with those incomes should be entitled to a rent subsidy.

I thank the Senator from Maine and the Senator from Texas for yielding to me.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes on the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I am not going to attempt a recapitulation in a few minutes of all the colloquy that has occurred in the course of the day, nor on the point which the Senator from Ohio has raised. We are discussing the very same groups—no larger groups—of disabled, elderly, handicapped, displaced-by-Government-action persons that the Government has accepted as a responsibility, under the same criteria of eligibility, since 1937.

Therefore, we are not talking about whether those groups should not be subsidized. They are being subsidized at the present time, under the same income criteria as would be in effect under the rent supplement program. The groups eligible for rent supplements will be smaller than the groups eligible for public housing. The income ceilings are as relevant to the current public housing program as they are to this program.

We are discussing another way of dealing with exactly the same problem we have been dealing with since 1937, concerning exactly the same people that we have been dealing with since 1937.

But, I am for this method, because it is the cheaper way to do it. It may be a more effective way to do it. It is worth the experiment. The former colleague of the Senator from Ohio [Mr. LAUSCHE], Senator Taft, became an ardent supporter of public housing. Why? Not because he thought it was a perfect program, but because the public housing program was designed to meet the problems of people whose needs tugged at his heart and his conscience so that he could not ignore them. He therefore supported public housing as a means of dealing with the situation.

I am not happy with public housing. I am sure that the Senator is not happy with public housing. However, there is another way to deal with problems of exactly the same people because, in my judgment, it is cheaper, it may be more effective, and it is worth trying.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Texas yield me 3 or 4 minutes?

Mr. TOWER. I yield 4 minutes to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. The Senator from Maine has made a seemingly effective argument. He contends that the program of granting direct subsidies is identically the same program that thus far has been in existence.

Mr. MUSKIE. If it were identical I would not be in favor of it.

Mr. LAUSCHE. The Senator from Maine has been talking for 2 hours. I hope he will let me speak for a few minutes.

Mr. MUSKIE. The Senator from Ohio may have as much time as he wishes.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield not at all to the Senator from Maine in his desire to be charitable and helpful to those who are in need. This proposal goes far beyond it. We are about to enter into a program which, the Senator says today, provides that if a person earns $4,800 he is entitled to a subsidy.

I say to the Senator from Maine that by 1968, the next presidential election will take place, he will be raising that amount. That is what will happen. Every 2 years, when we have a congressional election, he will be lifting up the amount. That will be done as a demagogic appeal to the many people whom he will not wish to leave out, and who will not want to be denied something. If the money were available, I would say all right. How is the differentiation made? Why is $4,800 the sacrosanct amount? Why is $10,000 the sacrosanct amount in New York?

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President—

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I do not yield now. How will he answer those who will say—

Mr. MUSKIE. I shall be glad to answer.

Mr. LAUSCHE. How will he answer those who will say, "Why should I be barred?" He will not be able to do it.

Mr. MUSKIE. I shall be glad to answer the Senator's question.

Mr. LAUSCHE. The Senator may answer it on his own time.

Mr. MUSKIE. I can answer it now on my own time.

Mr. LAUSCHE. The Senator will have time to answer. He has been speaking for 2 hours.

Mr. MUSKIE. I have not been speaking for 2 hours. I would be happy to answer the Senator's question on my own time. I would like to do that now, so that my answer will relate to his question.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I am quite sure that the Senator will need 2 hours to explain it and to sustain his point.

Mr. MUSKIE. I am willing to take that long if it is necessary to do so.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I have asked for only a few minutes to speak. I admire the Senator from Maine for his desire to be helpful. However, I believe in a measure that must apply realistic fiscal programs to our country's policies.

Every day I hear the argument on the floor of the Senate, "Those who are not willing to continue spending more than they take in have callous souls. We who believe in deficit operations are persons who are gifted with a charitable and merciful attitude toward the people." That is the argument that is being made.

In conclusion, we shall be doing what the man did who killed the goose that had laid the golden egg. We have all read the Greek fable about the man who had a goose that laid a golden egg each day. He was not content with taking that golden egg. He decided he would kill the goose so that he would get all the golden eggs at one time. He killed the goose, and got nothing.

If we continue with our program, we shall achieve the same end.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes. I invite the Senator from Ohio to join me in the save-the-goose drive. We have heard from the opposition that the 4-year cost of the program would be $8 billion. HHFA, on the basis of an analysis, which I think is accurate, reduced that figure to $5.8 billion. If a 40-year cost has any relevancy, the cost of an equivalent number of units of public housing over a 40-year period would run from $15 to $18 billion. I believe the Senator from Ohio will recognize, even better than I, that that is more money than $8 billion.

Therefore I invite the Senator to join me in the save-the-goose drive.

So far as I am concerned, I was opposed to the President's original rent supplement program. If it were here in that form today, I would vote against it. I was opposed to the first modification in committee, which included the low income group and the low middle income group. If that program were before us today, I would vote against it.

I concede that the Senator from Ohio has a great heart. One reason why I am in favor of it in its present form, is that it is a cheaper way of dealing with the problems of exactly the same people—exactly, I say—as we are dealing with in public housing, and have been since 1937.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes.

The Senator from Maine said that our figure is somewhat high when we say $8 billion. He says that HHFA has a more realistic figure, which he states is accurate, in the amount of $5.8 billion.

I point out that the HHFA has gone up $1.1 billion since its representatives testified. When they testified, they said it would be only $4.7 billion.

To use a word that we hear very often these days, I believe this shows the pattern of escalation. I can see only escalation and an unsound, unwise, and unproved program.

The burden of proof or justification rests on the shoulders of those who advocate it. I believe this is a program which is doomed to stifle incentive and retard the desire of people to improve their lot and improve their housing and their standard of living. It will retard homeownership. It will have an altogether deleterious effect.

I point out what was said about this bill. Since so many organizations have been quoted as being in favor of it, let us repair to the statement of Mr. Ira S. Robbins, president of the National Association of Housing & Redevelopment Officials, an organization which has more compassion and does more for the elderly and the underprivileged than probably any other group. This is what he said:

The bill proposes two complex new programs—rent supplements, and "new towns" (sometimes the HHFA Administrator likes to call these "new communities")—that both were formulated without long, thoughtful probing and give-and-take debate with local public officials, who have a day-to-day exposure to the problems toward which the programs are directed.

The rent supplement plan, on which we will make extensive comments, is advanced as "the most crucial new instrument in our effort to improve the American city." Yet this plan, which at least is administratively cumbersome and socially indefensible, came to the Congress without any review of testing by representatives of the various local operating agencies that should administer the program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. TOWER. I yield myself 2 additional minutes.

This is the statement made by an official of the National Association of Housing & Redevelopment Officials.

The witness, I understand, was called as a friendly witness. I presume there was no little chagrin in the hearts of those who favor the program when they heard this testimony. This is what people who are closest to the problem think about it. This testimony should be given great credit.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. TOWER. I yield.

Mr. MUSKIE. I should like to ask the Senator a question.

It seems to me that the HHFA estimate in testimony before the committee was based on something other than the present program, which includes low-income groups and greatly enlarges the number of people eligible. That estimate was directed at the earlier program.

Mr. TOWER. The Senator from Maine [Mr. MUSKIE], with his amendment, made the cost another $1.1 billion.

Mr. MUSKIE. Obviously, more people would be taken in, for the reasons I have indicated. I shall not suggest to the Senator that we have fewer people, because we are bringing in poorer people rather than the higher income people. There are more of them.

Mr. TOWER. I understand.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MUSKIE. I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Illinois on the bill.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The Senator from Texas has brought into the debate the name of Mr. Ira Robbins, who has had an honorable career in public housing in New York. The public housing officials, though excellent citizens, have mesmerized themselves into believing that only public housing will solve the slum problem. Unfortunately, the fact remains that, excellent as that program is, it has not done so. A half million people are on the waiting list for public housing. Last year 21 out of 25 large cities did not initiate a single unit. Although 35,000 units had been authorized each year, not more than 24,000 have been built in recent years. The program is moving more and more into smaller cities and for the elderly, disregarding the slums of the larger communities, and yet the public housing authorities cling to the idea that they have a vested interest in the whole problem of poverty and will not permit another approach to be made to housing the poor. We are not opposing public housing; we are proposing to increase it. But we say that there should be another method as well, and we say to the public housing people, "Do not believe that you have a vested interest in misery."

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, as the saying goes, "You all called them. We did not." The Senator is trying to discredit his own witness. What I have stated is what he said about the program.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me for a question?

Mr. TOWER. I yield.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Only for a brief statement. I wish to correct the impression that might be left. I am appearing as amicus curiae, a friend of the court. As chairman of the subcommittee, I supervise the calling of witnesses. We do not call friendly or unfriendly witnesses. We always insert in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD notices of our hearings. We send notices to organizations. We invite all interested organizations, groups, and persons who wish to appear before the committee to let us know, and we put them on the schedule. That is exactly what was done with every single one of the organizations listed. We had no idea as to how their representatives might testify.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. TOWER. I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I should like to ask a question or two.

If I remember correctly, under the 1949 program we supposedly committed ourselves to the building of 810,000 public housing units. That was 16 years ago. In that period of time, instead of building 810,000 units, we built only 400,000. Is that correct?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I shall check that figure.

Mr. DIRKSEN. The Senator ought to be able to tell me now.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I believe the total is about 600,000. But stating such figures is not quite so simple. As the Senator knows, following the end of World War II, many defense projects were transferred over to cities and converted into public housing. So the program does not all come under the program to which the Senator refers.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I thought I had received correct figures. That would mean that in 16 years we have reached half the goal that was set in 1949. As I said, in 1946, there were commitments for 500,000 supplemental units, I suppose; and if we got only half of the 800,000 in 16 years, how would we get 500,000 in 4 years?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DIRKSEN. I yield.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator starts with a premise—

Mr. DIRKSEN. I did not start with anything.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes; I believe the Senator did when he said that we established a program which anticipated 810,000 units. It is true, I believe, that Senator Taft, in his estimates of costs as they prevailed at that time, stated that 810,000 units would be constructed. But he arrived at that figure on the following basis, and this is the way the Public Housing Act was set up: The Government obligated itself to a certain amount in support of the bond issues of various municipalities throughout the country. Over 40 years a total of those projects was set at $336 million. As costs went up, it meant that the number of units to be built under that kind of obligation would go down. That is the reason why I say that we probably proceed on the cost premise that if we take the 810,000 units as the tiedown point, actually it is $336 million. In that case, the proposal in the bill as it came from the committee was $200 million for the program. As I understand, the Senator from Maine [Mr. MUSKIE] proposes to offer an amendment to bring that figure in line with the House figure.

Mr. DIRKSEN. So costs increase.

Mr. SPARKMAN. They do.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Now we have a 40-year program. Has the Senator any reason to believe that costs will not go up like that over a 40-year period?

Mr. SPARKMAN. They may, but they are anchored.

Mr. DIRKSEN. "May?" They cannot help but increase.

Mr. SPARKMAN. They are anchored by the number of millions of dollars that may be assigned to do the job.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Mr. President, one of the most interesting things that a great Senator named Reed Smoot from Utah said to me one day was:

Young man, the course of the budget and expenditures is always up.

One of the most interesting statistical graphs that the Senator can ever look at is one which starts with 1789 and shows where we are in 1965. This is a 40-year program.

I have another question. Is it true that we had to increase subsidies on public housing twice?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Again we make a false conclusion by not keeping anchored to the original authorization, which has stood throughout the years. This is a $336 million involvement, to supplement rents. Somehow the term "rent supplement" seems to have become a bad name.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Let us call it a subsidy.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Very well, a subsidy. Using the term in the same way, it is proposed to subsidize rents not to exceed 3½ percent of the investment that an individual city has in a project. So the amount of the subsidy paid would always be limited by that 3½-percent figure. That has never been increased.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DIRKSEN. I yield.

Mr. ROBERTSON. I find it difficult to understand the reference to $336 million. We are at the moment committed to over $12 billion in public housing. Once we go 1 year into the new program, we shall be in it for the next 39 years. That is the point. When I heard the figure a few years ago, $9 billion was already committed then.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Over a period of years $9 billion will not even touch the program in my book.

I should like to ask another question. What is a limited dividend corporation?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am not personally familiar with them. Frankly, I do not know whether they exist in my State or not. They did not when I was practicing law. But, as I understand, a limited dividend corporation is a corporation that is organized in which the amount of earnings is limited to 6 percent. So far as the housing program is concerned, 6 percent profit is the limit.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Is there anything in the bill that would fix a limit to the salaries of the officers and the directors of a limited dividend corporation? If there is, I have not found it. My concept of a limited dividend corporation is one that could pay up to 6 percent.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DIRKSEN. I yield.

Mr. SPARKMAN. It might be that we could enlist the services of the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS], because there are limited dividend corporations in New York.

Mr. DIRKSEN. He knows. It is 6 percent.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am not certain as to what the general law might be on the question of the salaries of officers. There is no provision in the bill which would limit salaries. But I invite the Senator's attention to the fact that yesterday the Senate accepted an amendment of the Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER] that in the setup of charges, costs, and so forth, overhead could not exceed that of a normal housing corporation.

Mr. DIRKSEN. But what about direct subsidies?

Mr. SPARKMAN. They would be a part of the costs.

Mr. DIRKSEN. All I have to say is that this looks like a pretty lush business. It will be like the poverty program. Consider the astronomical salaries that are being paid to administer it. Six percent is not high today when building and loan institutions are paying 4 or 4½ percent and banks are paying 4 or perhaps 4½ percent. But here it is 6 percent. Let me get my hand on the wheel of one of these contracts and make myself $100,000 a year. I cannot think of anything fancier. Limited dividend corporations sprout like mad.

The Senator has not answered my question. Perhaps he has, so now I have another question.

Suppose there is a community in which there are vacancies, but someone wants to get in under the program. What would happen? Would the vacancies be ignored?

Mr. MUSKIE. Is the Senator asking with respect to housing under the rent supplement program?

Mr. DIRKSEN. Yes; or housing which is proposed to be built. Suppose a man puts up a string of houses and is looking for tenants. Suppose some "eager beaver" in town says, "Let's not bother with them. Let's get on the gravy train. Let's get into supplemental housing." The people who will be displaced or who live in slums or industrial areas will be invaded next, and they will go.

But suppose there is a man who has his own hard dough invested in buildings, buildings that are not substandard, either. What is proposed to be done? Let them stand there and bereave the owner of any tenants he might get?

Mr. MUSKIE. But if I understand the Senator's point correctly, he is asking about people who are eligible under the criteria of the bill, which are the same criteria as for public housing. The Senator is asking whether if someone wants to do something about it he can do it. Of course he can.

If the Senator is asking me whether the practice would be abused by someone who has vacant housing on his hands and is trying to get revenue, and sees this program as a convenient way to get rich—if the Senator is postulating the possibility of such abuse, I say that whether that would happen would depend on the integrity and judgment of the people who administer the program.

The Senator is, of course, free to postulate that; and I can see the possibility. All people are not angels; there is venality; and abuses can creep into a housing program unless people of integrity and honesty administer it. If the Senator's question is intended to get me to concede that there could be abuse, his point is made.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I would not have my beloved brother from the State of Maine concede anything. I am searching for information, because we have some public housing setups back home, and I have been through them. I once wrote a little booklet for Lewis Strauss, when he was Housing Administrator. The title was, "How To Live in a House." It was never published. It gave me some concern as I went through those properties. After a little while, they were reduced to slums. That is why I approach this program with a baleful eye.

Mr. MUSKIE. The State of Maine does not have much public housing, as the Senator from Illinois knows, so I do not know about those conditions as well as he undoubtedly does. This is one of the reasons why some of us who find ourselves on the Committee on Banking and Currency, charged with some responsibility for the legislation, have been studying the problem since the days of the late Senator Taft, seeking to deal with some of the difficulties. We do not say that we believe that the programs will work perfectly and will insure 100 percent beneficial results. Obviously, it will not.

I opposed the bill in its original form and in its first modified form. I find myself supporting it here principally as an alternative to public housing, with all the difficulties that public housing has encountered in its years of experience.

Although we all entertain reservations about new programs, I should like the Senator from Illinois to realize that, on balance, weighing the pros and cons, this is a reasonable approach.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I merely say to my good friend from Maine that this is like getting married.

Mr. MUSKIE. I had a few reservations about that, too.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Forty years. I am getting close to it. This program will extend beyond the year 2000. Yet it is proposed to commit the Government that far and hope to get out with the amount of money that is put in. I think it will have to be multiplied by 3 before we are through.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield on that point?

Mr. DIRKSEN. I yield.

Mr. MUSKIE. As the Senator from Virginia has said, when we took the first step in public housing, we were committed to a number of years.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Surely.

Mr. MUSKIE. If we take the first step in rent supplements, we shall be committed to a number of years. So the programs are alike. If this is a shortcoming, the programs are alike in that respect. I would agree that because we are being committed, we should take an extra good look at it.

Mr. DIRKSEN. But this is a different dish, because the man who builds the house, who is the landlord, will get the money. The tenant will not get the money.

Mr. MUSKIE. He will get the service.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Twenty-five percent of his monthly paycheck is the base for the rent.

Mr. MUSKIE. The tenant will not own the house in either instance. He will get a rental.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I know. That is another thing. The title will be somewhere in orbit with Gemini II.

Mr. MUSKIE. Perhaps it will be in orbit in Illinois, but in Maine it will be nailed down.

Mr. DIRKSEN. That I shall have to see.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DIRKSEN. I yield.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator from Illinois has been quite familiar with the operations of the Federal Housing Administration.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I was a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency when that bill was written.

Mr. SPARKMAN. That is correct. The Senator has been familiar with its operation over the years. I believe he will agree with me that the FHA has done an excellent job as a whole.

I invite attention, first of all, to the fact that this is not a program under which a person could build, go out into the free market, and say, "Come in, tenants; I will get you in and reap a harvest for you." This program will be authorized and supervised by the Federal Housing Administration.

Perhaps the Senator has not read the Miller amendment, which was agreed to yesterday. I should like to read it; it is brief.

Mr. DIRKSEN. That will not be necessary.

Mr. SPARKMAN. It is only 5 or 6 lines long. It reads:

No payments under this section may be made with respect to any property for which the costs of operation (including wages and salaries) are determined by the Administrator to be greater than similar costs of operation of similar housing in the community where the property is situated.

The Senator from Iowa offered that amendment, and we promptly accepted it.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Yes; and it is as wide as a 40-acre field.

Mr. SPARKMAN. It is so far as the discretion of the Administrator is concerned; but I think we can rely on the FHA doing a good job. The FHA has done a good job through the years. I think it will continue to do a good job.

So far as competition with existing buildings is concerned—the Senator mentioned that—remember that if there is anybody in this country who is concerned about free bidding and free competition, it is the people who build homes.

If the Senator will read the testimony of the National Association of Home Builders, which appears in the hearings, he will see how strongly they endorse the program. They are confident that the FHA will not approve a project that will draw a pall of gloom, despair, and disaster over housing that already exists in a community.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Mr. President, I have one further question. I foresee that among those who qualify for this assistance, there may be those who would be displaced by governmental action. That would be when the Federal bulldozer would come into play.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, does the Senator mean for the purpose of building highways, public buildings, or some other public purpose?

Mr. DIRKSEN. I mean for whatever displacement is occasioned by governmental action.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I understand.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Here is an opportunity for a family to get a house with a conventional mortgage on it. Perhaps the mother in the family would say, "We have been displaced by governmental action."

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator from Illinois ought to read further. That is only one condition. There is another very important condition.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I know.

Mr. SPARKMAN. It would not take effect at just any time.

Mr. DOMINICK. Mr. President, may we have order in the Chamber? I am interested in what is going on, if no one else is.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There will be order in the Chamber.

Mr. DIRKSEN. The family about which I spoke would discuss the subject around the family table. The father would say, "I have a chance to get a little family place with a conventional mortgage." The lady would say, "Don't be in a hurry. I see a chance to receive a big chunk of rent supplement from that great big Treasury in Washington, D.C." That family could qualify under the criteria established by the pending bill.

Would this provision be somewhat of a restraint on people going ahead in the field of home ownership? I am talking like a building and loan man. I could say, "building and loan" before I could say "jack rabbit." I have been brought up that way. I have lived in a community in which people continue to build and own their homes. I do not want to see that feature discouraged at all.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DIRKSEN. I yield.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to remind the Senator from Illinois that the building and loan interests strongly endorse this legislation.

Mr. DIRKSEN. That may be. Does the Senator mean that they all do?

Mr. SPARKMAN. The leagues which represent them.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Mr. President, I formerly belonged to a savings and loan association. Later I resigned. I was on the board of directors of the third largest savings and loan association in the United States. I have not heard a word from them as to their intention to support such a proposal.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator knows that there are two associations.

Mr. DIRKSEN. There is the Federal League.

Mr. SPARKMAN. There is the U.S. Savings League.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I know.

Mr. SPARKMAN. There is also the National Savings League. Both organizations appeared, and their testimony is contained in the transcript of the hearings.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Those leagues do not deal particularly with rental property. They deal in, and their primary function is, home ownership.

Mr. SPARKMAN. They are interested in the other field also.

Mr. DIRKSEN. This proposal would not deal with home ownership at all. In 40 years, the cost of this proposal would be away up there with Gemini.

Mr. SPARKMAN. They would have the privilege of buying a home if their income were to increase.

Mr. DIRKSEN. After a long time. However, they would not have to sell it to them. With 6 percent interest, a good salary for the company board of directors, and the necessary cost and expenses, this would be a good dish. This would be a pretty lush business.

Mr. President, I say to my friend, the Senator from Maine that, dearly as I love him, I am not going to vote for this kind of thing. I am going to support the amendment of the Senator from Texas to strike this provision from the bill.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes on the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I was never in any doubt from the beginning of the questions of the Senator as to what his position on this portion of the bill would be. However, the Senator began to ask a question which he did not finish. That question related to eligibility for this program.

I repeat what I have said several times this afternoon. The eligibility is exactly the same as it would be in the case of the public housing program as a first condition. However, that would be followed by five other conditions which would affect the number who would be eligible.

The first group would be those displaced by governmental action. Those displaced by governmental action are now covered by the public housing program. The second group would be the elderly. The elderly are now covered by the public housing program.

The third group would be the physically handicapped. They are now covered by the public housing program. The next group would be those occupying substandard housing. They are now covered by the public housing program. Those groups have been our concern since 1937. They were our concern when the public housing program was established.

This amendment is offered as a reasonable alternative to public housing for exactly the same people. To those groups we have added those hit by disaster. I said earlier that I had reservations about the President's original proposal, and until it reached its present form, I would not have supported it. I support it in its present form.

The Senator from Alabama has indicated that I plan to offer an amendment later to reduce the total amount that would be available. I do intend to offer such an amendment to bring the authorization in the Senate bill in line with the bill approved by the House last week. I intend to offer an amendment which would reduce the contract authorization from $200 million to $150 million.

The principal point that I emphasize is that the group who are covered by the public housing program is exactly the same group.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I wonder if the Senator from Maine would state more explicitly what his intended amendment would do, provided the Senator first votes down the amendment of the Senator from Texas.

Mr. MUSKIE. The present authorization for rent supplement contracts is $50 million a year for 4 years. The amendment I intend to offer would change that provision so as to reduce the authorization by $50 million, from $200 to $150 million for the 4-year period.

That would be the aggregate amount of the subsidy payments that could be contracted for, if the appropriations equaled the authorizations. The specific new contract authorizations under my amendment would be $30 million prior to June 30, 1966; $35 million on July 1, 1966; $40 million on July 1, 1967; and $45 million on July 1, 1968. The net effect would be to reduce the total contract authorization from $200 to $150 million.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The purpose of that provision would be to reduce the total number of authorized units from 500,000 apartments to 375,000.

Mr. MUSKIE. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DOUGLAS. First, we would have to defeat the amendment offered by the Senator from Texas, which would cut it out completely. Is that correct?

Mr. MUSKIE. The Senator is correct.

Mr. TOWER. First we would have to defeat the Tower liberation amendment.

Mr. President, I am prepared to yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, before the Senator yields back his time, will he yield for a question?

Mr. TOWER. I yield.

Mr. ROBERTSON. A staff member has just informed me that in this bill, if we add the authorization for rent subsidy and public housing, we would have an authorization of $15 billion over a period of years. Is that correct?

Mr. TOWER. That figure might be a little low.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield five minutes to the Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, the legislative achievements of this session of Congress have led some to describe the Senate and our colleagues in the House in rather generous terms.

The landmark legislation of this and the last session do indeed justify some pride of accomplishment on the part of all Americans.

But these legislative achievements, designed to meet the problems of conservation, education, civil rights, health, poverty, and a whole bundle of other national problems, are significant not so much because they have been passed, but rather because they have been passed at last.

For the problems of poverty predate the Republic.

The denial of equal civil rights for all citizens has afflicted us for a century.

The crisis of educational deficiency has existed for decades.

The destruction of our national beauty has been accelerating for many years.

All these problems have long been critical. They are not new.

What is new is effective congressional action to answer these crises which eat at the hope and heart of our civilization.

This Congress should not be called the "Civil Rights Congress" or the "Education Congress" or any of the other names with which it has been flattered.

We have only recognized and done our duty to provide the loom upon which the threads of American greatness may be spun into the fabric of a rejuvenated and improved American life.

If this Congress must be named, let it be known as the "Congress of Conscience," provided that we meet the urgent problems in American life which we have yet to take up.

The crisis of the American cities is one of those urgent problems we have yet to answer.

Ever since the first family units combined into communities, the quality of the community has influenced the quality of family life and the character of every member in the community. Nothing on earth since those first days has changed that fact.

Yet today, when crime and unemployment rates rise, when critics decry the meaninglessness of much of modern living, and when more and more of us are increasingly concerned with a lowering of ethical and cultural standards, urban decay remains the greatest unanswered domestic problem in America today.

The cities in which we live and raise our children are declining relentlessly into the decay of slums and the streams of concrete strips running endlessly on toward new suburbs into which we flee to postpone our slide.

Meanwhile, in the central parts of our cities, slumlife grows darker, choking the downtown heart which once invigorated urban living. There the hope of people flickers dimmer with each passing year of inaction.

We have had Federal programs for the cities.

We have built public housing. We have cleared some slums. And, recently, we have encouraged construction of decent private housing for people of low income.

But these programs have not even begun to meet the crisis of the cities.

Tentacles of the decay and desolation of urban blight squirm outward every year between the highways we build to escape them. The murky grip of blight closes its grasp on the central city.

The American dream is a nightmare for the child whose home is two rooms with bare bulbs, leaking plumbing, rats in the bedclothes, and numberless brothers and sisters.

The Horatio Alger story is a sneering joke for a youth who spends his formative years in filthy squalor many of us choose to pretend does not exist.

The vision of a better life is as faint for he prisoner of the slum as is our realization of his desperation.

Our answers to these problems of the cities have been ineffective and stingy.

Our attempts to provide decent housing for the families of very low-wage earners have been shortsighted.

The number of units built has been too small. After nearly 20 years of Federal housing programs, almost 8 million American families still live in substandard housing.

Moreover, the Federal public housing program penalizes ambition and initiative.

The law limits public housing to those who make 20 percent less than a family needs to rent decent housing in the same community.

Yet the law also expels from public housing anyone who makes more than a subsistence income.

Faced with the prospect of losing their public housing if they improve their living standard, yet knowing they will be unable to afford decent living elsewhere, many of the occupants of public housing sacrifice their chances for self and family improvement in order to be able to have a decent roof over their heads.

This vicious circle of despair inherent in the Federal public housing program illustrates how far we have failed in our obligation to meet the urban crisis.

We have been trying to answer 20th century problems with an 18th century poorhouse philosophy.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, now pending before the Senate, contains what may eventually be an answer to this pressing problem of providing decent housing for the economically disadvantaged.

The bill provides limited funds which can be paid to certain families to allow them to afford decent private housing.

These families will not be forced to wear the poorhouse badge of public housing.

They and their children will not be forced to live in a ghetto with the most poverty stricken in the city.

They will be able to earn as much as their talents permit them to earn, without losing their homes. And as their earnings increase, their Federal rent supplement will decrease.

This program provides no giveaways. The rent supplement plan will apply only to the most needy.

The only families eligible for assistance under this bill will be the elderly, the handicapped, those displaced by renewal projects or natural disaster, and those living in slums.

And to be eligible, even these most disadvantaged people in our society must have incomes so low that they are eligible for public housing.

In the areas of highest living cost in the country, that means an income of less than $6,500 to support a family of eight persons. In some cases it means an income as low as $4,800 to support a family of eight.

And no one will be eligible for assistance who does not presently live in substandard housing.

So only the most disadvantaged and most poor living in the worst housing in the Nation will be eligible for any assistance.

No one is going to profiteer in this program.

The rent supplement program provides only the difference between the rent for decent housing and 25 percent of the eligible tenant's income. If the eligible tenant has an income of $4,800 a year, and decent housing costs $1,500 a year, the program will pay only $300 a year—the difference between 25 percent of the tenant's income and the cost of decent housing.

As the tenant's income increases, the supplement decreases.

And to make sure the supplement is actually used for rent, it will be paid directly to the landlord.

But no landlords will get rich on this program.

The only housing for which rent supplements can be paid will be private housing built by nonprofit or cooperative enterprises or by corporations allowed to pay only limited dividends.

This program encourages new construction by private enterprise.

It will avoid creating new patches of public housing in our cities.

It will help get the Government out of the housing business.

In the light of the facts, I am surprised at the opposition of this prudent proposal has met from some quarters. Perhaps that opposition arises from the name "rent subsidies" which some have given the program.

The program should be called the private enterprise housing program or the antipublic housing program, because it encourages new construction of low-cost housing by private enterprise to provide decent, low-cost housing for the prisoners of despair who are locked in the slums of America.

The one valid criticism of the program which can be made is that it is not nearly big enough.

Despite all the housing acts of the last 2 decades, more than 8 million Americans still live in substandard housing.

More than 500,000 families are now on the waiting lists for the 600,000 public housing units built in the last 30 years.

And we are building new public housing at a rate of only 30,000 units a year.

The cost of the program proposed in this bill is $50 million for each of the next 4 years.

This investment will enable private enterprise to construct and finance, over the next 4 years, 500,000 decent housing units suited to the needs of low-income families.

That will be a remarkable and important achievement.

But we know that at this hour there are more than 2 million lower income elderly and handicapped families alone who cannot afford decent homes, and 6 million other families in substandard housing.

So even this step forward is too short. But we must take this step.

In passing this Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, Congress will act to meet a crucial part of its responsibilities toward one of the most urgent problems our Nation faces—how to preserve and enrich our way of life as our rapidly aging communities burst at their seams with population.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Texas. On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered; and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. MANSFIELD (after having voted in the negative). Mr. President, on this vote I have a pair with the distinguished senior Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "yea." If I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "nay." Therefore I withdraw my vote.

Mr. SPARKMAN (after having voted in the negative). Mr. President, on this vote I have a live pair with the distinguished Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "yea." If I were free to vote, I would vote "nay." Therefore I withdraw my vote.

Mr. TALMADGE (after having voted in the affirmative). Mr. President, on this vote I have a pair with the distinguished Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "nay." If I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "yea." I therefore withdraw my vote.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. I announce that the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Minnesota, [Mr. McCARTHY], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN], and the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTOYA] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD] and the Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTOYA] would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. McCARTHY] is paired with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON].

If present and voting, the Senator from Minnesota would vote "nay" and the Senator from Kansas would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING] is paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN].

If present and voting, the Senator from Alaska would vote "nay" and the Senator from Idaho would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH] is paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY].

If present and voting, the Senator from Idaho would vote "nay" and the Senator from Vermont would vote "yea."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN] and the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] is absent on official business.

On this vote, the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN] is paired with the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING].

If present and voting, the Senator from Idaho would vote "yea" and the Senator from Alaska would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] is paired with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. McCARTHY].

If present and voting, the Senator from Kansas would vote "yea" and the Senator from Minnesota would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY] is paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH].

If present and voting, the Senator from Vermont would vote "yea" and the Senator from Idaho would vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 40, nays 47, as follows:

So Mr. Tower's amendment (No. 319) was rejected.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which the amendment was rejected be reconsidered.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I move that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Alaska on the bill.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, the Senate now has the opportunity to enact a significant housing bill, a measure which extends and expands our present programs of housing and urban renewal and establishes several promising new programs as well. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 includes programs of proven worth and deals with problems which demand attention. The bill passed the House on June 30, and I urge early Senate approval.

The primary national development which makes necessary this comprehensive housing program is the phenomenal growth of our Nation's urban centers. Charles Abrams, world housing authority and author of "Man's Struggle for Shelter in an Urbanizing World," has estimated that during the next 40 years the population growth experienced in the world's cities alone will be double the population growth the entire world has experienced in the last 6,000 years. Housing needs in our Nation's cities and suburbs promise to increase sharply during the next few years as young adults born during the "baby boom" of the late forties marry and begin their families. As I said last September in commenting on the Housing Act of 1964:

It is folly to suppose that anything less than a massive effort will alleviate the housing difficulties these figures portend. Housing programs are integral to any national assault on poverty. They are essential to orderly urban development. They are absolutely necessary if population growth and urban expansion, promising as they are for a richer and more diversified society, are not at the same time to result in a deprived and miserable existence for millions.

We in Alaska have been later than the rest of the country to experience both the problems and the promises of urban growth. This has not meant, however, that we have not experienced acute housing needs. Our small and remote native villages have long suffered from inadequate shelter and from the lack of even the most basic sanitary facilities. It has been estimated that only 13.1 percent of rural Alaska natives live in structurally sound houses, with plumbing. Among Alaska natives, infant deaths account for 33 percent of all mortalities, as compared to 6 percent for the rest of the Nation. The tubercular and gastroenteric deaths rates among natives are six times what they are in the rest of the country.

Many of these problems are, of course, in large part attributable to the gross inadequacies of housing and public facilities in our native villages. And the problem is one which the entire range of Federal housing programs has failed to meet. The small populations of these native centers, the extremely low income of these families, and the extraordinarily high costs of construction and maintenance usually make existing Federal programs inapplicable or only partially applicable to our native villages. But the need for adequate shelter, for protection from cold and from disease, remains acute. Therefore, I have introduced and will continue to work for the enactment of S. 1915, a bill which would establish a housing program especially geared to the needs of these remote native villages. I have been very much gratified by the interest in this legislation displayed by the chairman and members of the Housing Subcommittee.

While Alaska's native housing problems have remained serious and in the large part unique, Mr. President, our cities and towns have more and more experienced rapid growth and housing and development needs similar to those of the other States. The population of Anchorage tripled between the censuses of 1950 and 1960 and is expected to double again by 1970. Fairbanks' population doubled between 1950 and 1960 and similar growth is projected for the current decade. This means, of course, that Alaska has increasingly experienced the problems and needs which have called forth the present variety of Federal housing programs. Consequently, these programs have found an increasing applicability and usefulness in the State. The following figures demonstrate that fact, showing what has been done in Alaska under each program to date:

COMMUNITY FACILITIES ADMINISTRATION AS OF DECEMBER 31, 1964

Public facility loans: $26,516,000 of which $25 million is for earthquake relief. In addition to earthquake area, localities of Palmer, Sitka, Dillingham, and Seward.

CFA's share of accelerated public works program: $4,440,484 in grants and $190,000 in loans.

Planning advances: $1,611,137 in planning advances for 58 projects.

College housing loans: Five loans to Alaska Methodist University and the University of Alaska for $9,423,000.

PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION AS OF JUNE 30, 1965

Ten low-rent projects in Anchorage, Fairbanks, Juneau, Ketchikan, Metlakatla Reservation, Petersburg, and Sitka, involving 591 units and total development costs of $12.6 million.

Also, 6 program reservations, totaling 97 units in Cordova, Ketchikan, Seldovia, Seward, Valdez, and Wrangell.

FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION AS OF MAY 31, 1965

Secondary market operations: 53 mortgages purchased totaling $1,293,000.

Special assistance functions: 2,597 mortgages totaling $60,162,000.

FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION AS OF DECEMBER 31, 1964

Insured home mortgages: 7,590, totaling $152,790,300.

Multifamily mortgages: 36 projects with 3,973 units, totaling $48,093,300.

Title I home improvement loans: 5,438 loans totaling $7,821,000.

URBAN RENEWAL ADMINISTRATION AS OF JUNE 30, 1965

Title I urban renewal projects: 16 projects in: Anchorage, 5; Kodiak, Seldovia, Seward, Valdez, 2; Cordova, Fairbanks, 2; Juneau, Petersburg, and Sitka. Grant reservations, $37,040,677.

Urban planning grants: 19 grants, totaling $462,118 for Anchorage, Anchorage Borough, Bristol Bay Borough, Cordova, Douglas, Fairbanks, Gateway Borough, Haines, Juneau, Juneau Borough, Kenai, Ketchikan, Kodiak, Palmer, Petersburg, Port Chilkoot, Seward, Sitka, Sitka Borough, and Skagway.

FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION AS OF
JUNE 11, 1965

Rural housing program: 241 loans totaling $3,197,580.

VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION AS OF MAY 31,
1965

Insured home loans: 290 loans totaling $2,610,000.

Direct home and farm loans: 965 loans totaling $9,650,000.

Alaska has indeed benefited from Federal housing and urban renewal programs. They have insured approximately 80 percent of the loans to individual homebuilders and developers of multiunit projects. They have stimulated local and institutional activity through loans and matching grants for college facilities, urban renewal, low-income and rural housing, community facilities and public works projects, and planning assistance. They were important to our earthquake recovery efforts. And they promise to be even more important as our State increasingly is touched by national trends of population growth and urban expansion.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, Mr. President, not only continues and expands these vital programs; it makes some promising new beginnings.

It authorizes grants to low-income homeowners in urban renewal areas for the financing of repairs necessary to bring their homes up to the standards prescribed for the area. This would make possible rehabilitation of certain neighborhoods without uprooting those living there or tearing down rundown houses that might be salvaged.

Second, the bill would provide for a moratorium on payments on FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages when the owner-occupant mortgagor is unemployed because of the closing of a Federal installation. It would authorize the Defense Department to purchase homes situated near a closing military base, thus giving relief to those who have been employed at the installation and have no market for their homes.

A third major provision of the bill would encourage land development by establishing a program of FHA mortgage insurance for private subdivision developers whether or not they themselves are homebuilders. As stated in the Banking and Currency Committee's report on the bill:

It is expected that the mortgage insurance device, which has proven so helpful in providing a stimulus to the construction of good homes, will prove equally helpful in providing a stimulus to the production of good building sites in good neighborhoods.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, in the fourth place, contains several provisions designed to aid communities in the construction of public facilities. It would supplement the assistance which has been available to Alaska communities under Area Redevelopment, the Economic Opportunity Act, Accelerated Public Works, and the programs of the Community Facilities Administration. It would provide for 50 percent matching grants to local public bodies and agencies for the construction of basic water and sewer facilities. In extreme hardship cases, where a community has less than 10,000 population and a high unemployment rate, the Federal share would be raised to 90 percent.

A further provision would authorize Federal grants to help finance neighborhood facilities projects providing health, recreational, and other community services. In a designated redevelopment area, which includes most of Alaska, the Federal share of these projects could be as high as 75 percent.

The bill also provides for an expansion of the present open-space program. Grants of up to 50 percent would be made available to communities, not only to acquire land for public use, but also to develop it as a park or recreational area, as part of a conservation effort, or for historic or scenic purposes. Special provision is made for acquiring and clearing land in built-up urban areas for open-space use.

A sixth section of the bill would revise and expand the present home-loan program of the Farmers Home Administration. The increasing demand for improved rural housing has proven the inadequacy of our existing programs. In spite of the fact that the Farmers Home Administration has, in the last few years, greatly increased its activity in Alaska, as well as the other States, the growing need for better rural homes is not being met. The bill would make available long-term, low-interest loans to low- and moderate-income rural families through an expanded loan insurance program similar to that now serving urban homeowners through the Federal Housing Administration.

In addition, the Housing Act would institute a program of lease guarantees for small businessmen. Small concerns which have been displaced by federally assisted construction projects or which are eligible for assistance under title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act would be eligible for Federal guarantees of their rental costs. This provision follows recommendations made at various times by the Senate Select Committee on Small Business, of which I am a member.

A final provision authorizes the payment of "rent supplements" to persons living in moderately priced, FHA-insured units whose income qualifies them for public housing and who have been subject to natural disaster or other particular hardships. Payments would be made to the owner of the nonprofit unit and would make up the difference between the rental cost and one-fourth of the renting family's income.

I have given only a brief review, Mr. President, of what the Federal housing program has meant to Alaska and of the most promising sections of the new bill. The measure is one which deals imaginatively with problems of urban growth and provides for advance planning on the part of communities soon to experience such growth. And it provides needed assistance as well to small towns and rural families. Our Nation's housing and community development program must, generally speaking, proceed on two fronts. We must remedy the blighted and deprived conditions that remain in our cities and countryside alike. And we must provide now that such conditions shall not multiply, but shall be replaced by housing and community facilities adequate for an expanding and progressing populace. In Alaska we must meet the needs of rural areas which have been too long overlooked; we must also enable our cities to plan and build for the years ahead. I regard the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 as a major step in the right direction.

Mr. TOWER and Mr. HARRIS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma is recognized.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I call up my amendment which was submitted yesterday and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The legislative clerk proceeded to state the amendment.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered; and the amendment will be printed in the RECORD at this point.

The amendment offered by Mr. HARRIS is as follows:

On page 61, strike out lines 10 through 17, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "PARTICIPATION BY NEW COLLEGES AND CERTAIN PUBLIC VOCATIONAL AND TECHNICAL INSTITUTIONS

"SEC. 502. Clause (1) of section 404(b) of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended to read as follows: '(1) (A) any educational institution which offers, or provides satisfactory assurance to the Administrator that it will offer within a reasonable time after completion of a facility for which assistance is requested under this title, at least a two-year program acceptable for full credit toward a baccalaureate degree (including any public educational institution, or any private educational institution no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual), or ((B) any public educational institution which (i) is administered by a college or university which is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association, (ii) offers technical or vocational instruction, and (iii) provides residential facilities for some or all of the students receiving such instruction,')"

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will suspend. The Senate will be in order. The galleries will be in order.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will please be in order.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President—

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma has the floor. The Chair has requested that the Senator suspend until order is maintained in the Chamber. The Senator from Oklahoma may proceed.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I refer Senators to page 16168 of yesterday's CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for an explanation of the amendment which was laid down yesterday and then temporarily laid aside.

Mr. President, the Office of Education informs us that the amendment would apply to not more than six such schools in the country now in existence. It would extend the present provisions of the Housing Act for colleges to schools which met four criteria, namely:

First, that they are publicly supported.

Second, that they are administered by a fully accredited degree-granting 4-year college or university.

Third, that they be vocational educational schools.

Fourth, that they provide residential facilities for some or all of their students.

Mr. President, I certainly hope that my amendment can be accepted by the Senator in charge of the bill.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, the amendment was discussed yesterday and was laid aside until we could obtain some more information which we desired. We now have that information. The agency says that there is no objection to it. Therefore, for my part, I am willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I have no objection to the pending amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Oklahoma.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which the amendment was agreed to be reconsidered.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I move that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 320

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 320 and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 2, line 19, strike out "$50,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$10,000,000".

On page 2, lines 20 and 21, strike out "$50,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$10,000,000".

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment. The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator from Texas yield?

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Washington.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President,—
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will please be in order.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, before the Senator from Washington proceeds, let me say for the benefit of all Senators that I do not intend to take much time on the pending amendment and, depending upon how much time the distinguished Senator from Alabama wishes to take, my guess would be that the larger proportion of the time would be yielded back and we should be able to vote on the amendment very shortly.

THE STRUGGLE BETWEEN THE NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION AND THE AMATEUR ATHLETIC UNION

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, this is a matter of some urgency; otherwise, I would not interrupt the debate on the housing bill. The Commerce Committee met this morning and discussed the subject at some length, and came to a decision on it.

Amateur athletics in our Nation suffers from a longstanding and harmful struggle. The struggle is between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union. The athletes, educators, and sports lovers of our land are the victims of that struggle here at home, while this shameful squabble threatens to cripple our athletic teams abroad.

The dispute between the NCAA and the AAU centers upon track and field competition and came to a boiling point in San Diego in June. There the AAU sponsored a meet at which athletes were chosen to compete for the U.S. team which will face the Russians at Kiev. The NCAA banned college students from NCAA schools from competing. Several courageous students, among them Gerry Lindgren from Washington State University, defied that ban to try for a spot on the U.S. team. These same students now face the possible loss of their athletic scholarships because they sought to represent our Nation. Though Gerry's fate is still undecided, we must ask ourselves why this 18-year-old boy has become a pawn and innocent victim in this dispute.

But that is not all, an ominous specter looms over the 1968 Olympics. The U.S. track and field contingent faces a crippling blow if the feud continues. In 1928 the NCAA boycotted the Olympic games. We cannot permit them to repeat that tragic boycott.

People throughout the land are worried about the tragic consequences of this unfortunate controversy. On the 30th of June I expressed my concern in remarks before this distinguished body and was joined by several other Senators, including my colleague [Mr. JACKSON], who has long taken a deep interest in what he considers a useless controversy. He also called the attention of the American people to this matter in a strong statement at that time.

We spoke for the athletes and sports lovers of this country who must remain silent. The Seattle Times recognized that fact in an editorial on July 2:

We are certain the Senators' views represent those of the vast majority of American sports fans. Those fans don't care whether the NCAA or the AAU can assert precedence over the other. They don't want athletes like Lindgren penalized because of the stubbornness of certain badge wearers and paper shufflers.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. TOWER. I yield 2 additional minutes to the Senator from Washington.
Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, this dispute has continued long enough. It is now the duty of the Senate to speak out for those who have no voice.

Therefore, I am pleased to announce that I will convene the Commerce Committee in special session to investigate every aspect of the NCAA-AAU controversy. We will call the representatives of all athletic organizations concerned in this dispute and seek their testimony in public hearings. We will call on those educators whose schools have been subjected to outside pressures as a result of this dispute. We will call on the athletes themselves. We will work until we get to the heart of this matter and we will take whatever action is necessary to prevent a strangling of athletic freedom in our Nation.

It is the young people of the country that I speak for today. Some of the college athletes involved in this dispute face the loss of their athletic scholarships and with it their college education. These young men and women must not be made to choose between an education and representing our country. The cost is too great to them, and to our country.

The Congress has worked to protect the freedom of every American to do many things necessary to the dignity of man. We must make certain that the freedom of every amateur athlete to compete for his nation is protected as well. If one student like Gerry Lindgren is denied his athletic scholarship, then we have betrayed our sacred trust. Our committee will not rest until athletic freedom is guaranteed to the young people of our land.

Mr. ALLOTT. Mr. President, I compliment the distinguished Senator from Washington for the work he has done. I hope his committee will pursue the subject vigorously. This situation is a disgrace to the United States. It is a purely childish feud which has existed and which has deprived our young men of the opportunity of participating across the board in athletic meets.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Washington may yield to the Senator from Maryland and to the Senator from New York and perhaps to other Senators, without the time being charged to either side on the pending amendment or bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HART in the chair). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREWSTER. First, I congratulate the chairman of the Committee on Commerce in bringing this matter to the attention of the committee, the Senate, and the country.

It has seemed to me for some time that it is more than regrettable that some of our best competitors cannot represent the United States in international competition. This was recently demonstrated at the San Diego meet, in connection with the conflict between the AAU and the NCAA.

As I see it, this dispute is entirely unnecessary and childish. I wish it were not necessary for the Government or the Committee on Commerce of the Senate to become involved in the dispute. However, inasmuch as the reputation of the United States around the world in international sports competition is at stake, it is entirely appropriate for us to look into the subject.

I should also like to say that I speak for the Presiding Officer, the junior Senator from Michigan [Mr. HART], who for a long time has shown a great interest in this area. Just before he took over the duty of presiding over the Senate, he asked me if I would also express his great interest in this subject matter. It seems to me that it would be very useful to bring in the officials of the AAU and the NCAA and ask them what their position is. I have written both of them and asked them for their position. To date, I have not had an answer to my letters.

After focusing the attention of the Congress and of the Nation on their position, we may be able to bring about a resolution of their differences without legislation. But on this point I stand firm, that no amateur athlete should be penalized because he wishes to represent his country or compete in any meet at any place, at any time, because the university he attends or the association to which he belongs happens to be in a childish dispute with some other group.

I congratulate the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON]. He is doing a great job. I am proud to associate myself with him in this situation.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I thank the Senator.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BREWSTER. I yield.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. President, I should like to join the Senator from Washington and the Senator from Maryland. My background and interest in this subject extends back to the very first international representation of the United States in an athletic event. That was in 1900, in Paris, when my father took a group of American athletes over there. They went on their own. They were not government sponsored. In 1904, in St. Louis. Again in 1908, in London, he was the coach of the first American team. He had the great privilege of taking the grandfather of the Senator from New York along with him as his friend and companion; again in 1912, when he was appointed the coach of the American team, and in 1906 in the Olympic Games.

I can remember arguments such as this, which worked to the detriment of athletes who wanted to perform and to represent their country and schools and colleges. From time to time selfish individuals would get on committees, and they would lose sight of the fact that the main purpose of this undertaking is the benefit derived from the athletic activity.

I concur completely in what the chairman has said. I hope that as this matter progresses, if I can be of any help, I shall be glad to assist the chairman. I have voluminous records. I am quite vigorous in my arguments at times. I can think of nothing that is more important to the attention of the committee than this subject. I associate myself with what the chairman has said.

Mr. KENNEDY of New York. Mr. President, I should like to commend the Senator from Washington for initiating this investigation and study, and also the members of the Commerce Committee. It is of great importance.

Over the past 4 years, I have had a good deal to do with both associations, the NCAA and the AAU.

I believe that if it had not been for the intervention of President Kennedy and then General MacArthur, our representation in the last Olympic Games would not have been of the caliber it was. It would have been far different. Many of our young athletes would have been penalized and not permitted to participate because they were members of one organization rather than of another organization.

Who determines it? The group that determines it are the paid officials, who have some authority and a vested interest in one organization or another. It has prevented young men and women from participation as athletes in behalf of the United States or in behalf of their university or college. What difference does it make? It does not make any difference to anyone in the Senate; it makes no difference to those in the galleries; it makes no difference to the people of the United States.

We desire to have the best possible team represent our country.

In fairness to the athlete himself, why should not the athlete who is the best athlete in his field not represent the United States, while someone else who is not quite as good, but who happens to belong to an organization which has the upper hand at a particular time, is permitted to participate in a meet, say, in the Soviet Union, France, England, or the Olympics?

Mr. President, it is completely unfair. The reason we have the existing situation is the result of complete selfishness on the part of the heads of both organizations, the AAU and the NCAA. There has been bad faith on the part of the high officials of both of those organizations over the past 4 years. The heads of both of those organizations could reach an agreement and an understanding.

I commend the Senator from Washington for his effort. I also commend to him the man who succeeded General MacArthur in working on the question. I talked with the Senator personally about Mr. James Gavin, our Ambassador to France, who has attempted to bring some order out of chaos, and who has many good ideas on the question.

I also hope that during the course of the investigation the committee will investigate whether either of these organizations is performing the functions that should be performed, and whether the young athletes in the United States are really being encouraged to the extent that they might be.

What about the young athlete who starts out well in high school and who does not have the financial means to go to college? Is he being encouraged? Is there any possibility for him to continue later in athletics and athletic events? We need some kind of organization, private or in some way associated with the Government—perhaps the committee could go into that subject—to insure that those who are interested in athletics, those who have some ability, are encouraged as they come along through elementary school and high school to continue their participation, wherever possible, even if they have not attended a university, and to represent the United States in meets around the world or within our own country.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BREWSTER. I yield to my colleague.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I would like to associate myself with the remarks of the distinguished senior Senator from Maryland [Mr. BREWSTER], and the Senator from New York [Mr. KENNEDY], and to commend the chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, the distinguished Senator from Washington, for his courage and initiative in presenting this matter.

I feel, and I believe the people of the State of Maryland also feel, that when the NCAA and the AAU get into jurisdictional disputes over which group shall control which track meet, these organizations have acted with almost total disregard for the interest of both our young athletes and the country.

It is outrageous for a young athlete to be deprived of the opportunity to compete and represent his country, because of petty bickering disputes between athletic organizations. It is high time for the leadership of the NCAA and the AAU to realize they are not beyond the realm of criticism.

I hope the distinguished chairman of this committee from the State of Washington realizes that there are a great many people interested in competitive athletics and in the physical and sports ability of these young people, who are behind us 100 percent. I hope he will pursue this matter with all possible vigor.

When the next Olympics comes around, the people of Maryland do not want another example of bickering and disregard for the athletes by a few entrenched bureaucrats at the head of these organizations.

I hope the situation will have a complete public hearing, and I commend the distinguished Senator from Washington for his leadership in this matter.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I thank the Senator. The case that has come out of Washington State University is only one example and, as the senior Senator from Maryland [Mr. BREWSTER] said the other day, it might be swept under the rug. But what we have seen will continue. I see no hope for the development of amateur athletes to represent the United States in future competition unless those athletes can be sure that they will not innocently, through no fault of their own, get in the middle between two organizations that have their feet in concrete about something.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BREWSTER. I yield to the Senator from Texas.

Mr. TOWER. It might be appropriate at this time to note that the distinguished Senator from Colorado [Mr. ALLOTT], who has spoken in support of the proposal of the Senator from Washington, was the junior and senior national AAU 400-meter hurdle champion in 1929. He was on the All-American track team in 1929, and I understand that at that time he broke an existing world record.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BREWSTER. I yield.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I have always known that the Senator from Colorado was a great runner.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, in conclusion, it seems to me that the entire country agrees that the athlete who represent the United States overseas should be the very best that we can produce.

To date the expenses of American athletes in international competitions have been financed by private contributions. They have not been subsidized by the U.S. Government. Although teams from many countries around the world are official government teams, our own, to date, have not been. But it is shameful—it is disgraceful—that the two leading amateur athletic organizations are competing with each other to such an extent that we penalize those unfortunate athletes who are caught in the middle of the dispute, and we do not present our best competitors to the world.

So I congratulate the chairman of the Committee on Commerce for bringing the question to the attention of the country. I have every hope that the committee hearings will assist in the resolution of this dispute.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ALLOTT. Mr. President, I thank my distinguished friend from Texas for his kind remarks. I do not know what kind of proposed legislation the Commerce Committee can bring out. But there is more to it than merely competing successfully against the Russians. The real issue is whether we shall permit our young men and women to compete under conditions which provide them with the maximum of competition and which permits them to develop themselves to their maximum. Every young man and woman has that right. As long as the NCAA and AAU are involved in this senseless quarrel, those athletes will be deprived of a part of that competition. I know that if the Congress brings its force and pressure behind those groups, we can somehow solve the problem. I congratulate the distinguished Senator from Washington, who is chairman of the Committee on Commerce.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2213) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How much time does the Senator from Texas yield to himself?

Mr. TOWER. I yield myself 3 minutes.

The rent supplement program provided for in the bill in effect calls for an authorization of $8 billion. That would be for the next 40 years.

To clarify it, the authorization would be for $50 million for the first year, $100 million for the second year, $150 million for the third year, and $200 million for the fourth year.

This is too great an expenditure for a program with as many difficulties as are readily apparent in this one. I believe that such a radical departure from our public housing approach should be undertaken in a more cautious manner.

Administrative difficulties will be voluminous. What we are doing here is increasing in a virtually unlimited manner the complexity of our already complex housing statutes.

The effect of my amendment would limit the total authorization to $100 million. In effect, what I am proposing is merely to continue the program, but not in such magnitude. I do not purpose changing the program at all. For all practical purposes, it would be a demonstration program. We can then take a look at it and see how it is working and later appropriate much larger sums if we feel that the program is worthwhile.

As I said earlier, we do not know what the results of the program will be. We do not know whether it will destroy the incentive to own homes or destroy the incentive of an individual to improve his own economic condition and, in that manner, improve his housing condition. There are too many unanswered questions.

We have noted, too, that the program as now drawn is vulnerable to abuse. That has been admitted by the managers of the bill. I am not proposing that we throw out the program; I merely propose to make it a smaller program, a demonstration program, to the extent that we may take a look at it and see how it is working, before we plunge into a costly program extending over 40 years.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I object to the amendment and urge that it not be supported. Whichever version of the program becomes law as a result of the action of Congress would be fixed into the program for 4 years. So the character of it would be fixed into the program for 4 years.

The Senator from Texas has identified his amendment as reducing the program to, and correctly, a demonstration program. The problems of the group we are dealing with in the bill are such that something more than a demonstration program is needed. A program is needed that will effectively meet the needs of the people. That action should not be postponed for 4 years.

Under the program provided in the bill, ample opportunity would be provided for the legislative committees of both Houses to supervise and observe the progress of the program. In addition, the Appropriations Committees of both Houses will have an opportunity to control the levels of appropriations which will implement the program. It seems to me that this will afford ample control while, at the same time, affording an opportunity to deal effectively with the problem, if experience justifies that kind of activity.

I concede that any new program is an experiment in the sense that it is untried as an operational program. So in that sense the rent supplement program has been referred to as an experimental program. But that is not to suggest that much thought, study, and consideration have not been given to it. To the extent that it is possible to judge the prospects of this kind of program for success, that kind of consideration has been given. Now we are ready to launch it. As we launch it, the amounts proposed in the committee bill are not excessive in terms of the program. We are dealing with a group of people consisting of 500,000 who are already on the waiting list and unnumbered other hundreds of thousands whose problem is not being dealt with to the extent of placing them on the list.

It is a big problem. It has commanded the attention of the Nation for a long time. To convert this program, which I think has real prospects for success, into a mere demonstration program for 4 years would not be a wise step to take.

Mr. President, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I strongly oppose the pending amendment. In my judgment, the $50 million authorization contained in the bill is wholly inadequate. If I had my way, we would have authorized a minimum of $200 million for the first year. Measured against our needs, on the one hand, and our potential, on the other, the bill does not provide enough money to do the job. If this most important new program, in which I have great faith, is to be cut down to 20 percent of the amount now in the bill, we shall find that it will be, as the Senator from Maine has so well said, a mere demonstration program.

In my judgment, the cities of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which I represent, in part, could, within the 4-year period, use the entire amount of the present authorization. We could use a great deal more of the $50 million in the first year than the 12½ percent to which we would normally be confined because of the wise rule that no individual State should be permitted to take more than that percentage of the amount of money provided for Federal housing.

When one thinks of the teeming cities all over the country, north, south, east, and west, full of old and needy people—yes, and I shall use the term “poverty-stricken people”—who do not presently have over their heads a roof that will not leak and a floor that will not fall under their feet, and who do not have plumbing of the most rudimentary nature, and when one remembers that 9 million Americans are now living in unsafe, insanitary housing, one can begin to appreciate in some measure the great need for this new program.

Public housing has been a great disappointment to me since I became mayor of Philadelphia in 1952. Philadelphia has perhaps as much public housing per capita as any other city in the country. Yet the lists of requests for admission to public housing projects grows and grows by the years. The sites available to build new projects become more and more expensive and less and less available.

I am strongly of the view that this new and imaginative approach to taking care of the housing needs of our low-income citizens should be approved and expanded rather than to go out by what may be the back door.

Both Houses of Congress have now approved a rent supplement program, to be sure, by quite close votes. But I would hope that having approved such a program, we would not now indirectly destroy a major part of its utility by cutting the amount of money authorized from $50 to $10 million, in effect cutting the heart out of it. I hope the amendment will be rejected.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I emphasize that if the program proves itself, Congress can next year or the year after raise the amount of money that is provided in the program. But if we commit ourselves now to $50 million, and that $50 million is let out in contracts, we cannot cut the amount once it has been obligated. The point is that we should allow the program to prove itself first. If it proves itself to be effective in the first few months, next year Congress can raise the amount to $100 million or to any other amount it wishes. But once we have committed $50 million, it will be committed, and we cannot reduce the amount, whether the program proves itself or not.

On that basis, I believe that very serious consideration should be given to my amendment.

I am prepared to yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, as I indicated in debate prior to the last vote, I have an amendment to propose which would, if agreed to, reduce the cost of the program on a 4-year period from $200 million to $150 million in new contract authorizations.

The Parliamentarian tells me that I cannot offer my amendment as a substitute to the pending amendment. Therefore, I will call it up immediately after the vote on the pending amendment. In order to give Senators an opportunity to vote on my amendment at the proper time, when Senators are ready to yield time—I have no desire to limit debate—I shall move to table the amendment of the Senator from Texas.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I first suggest the absence of a quorum so that enough Senators may be present to order a yea and nay vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I do not intend to move to table. There will be a straight rollcall vote on the Tower amendment. With that understanding, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield me 1 minute on the bill?

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute on the bill to the senior Senator from New York.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I have not spoken in detail on the rent subsidy proposal.

That issue has now been basically decided, and I say to the Senate that I believe I know of this situation from a social point of view. I believe I can say to the Senate that socially it is a wise move. One of the real problems that we have had is that we have cased people up, from a social tension point of view, in barracklike housing structures in which they feel that they are shut off from the rest of the world. They feel that they do not necessarily belong to the rest of the world because they are part of the large segment of substandard housing. Such amount of substandard housing is reflected by the fact that in 1950 New York City had approximately 367,000 units of substandard housing. Today it has a good deal less, but much more remains to be done.

I believe that the rent supplement experiment—and I say this with the greatest respect for those who oppose the bill—may very well prove to be a very desirable social effort in the big cities in which we have had a tremendous buildup of tensions, including racial tensions resulting from inadequate housing. I believe that has been somewhat attributable to the fact that we have segregated people in enormous housing structures and immunized them from a broad community responsibility. New York has a vital need of new housing units and improved housing.

Also of importance, is the legislative oversight which we should give to the program to insure that it is administered constructively and well no matter what amount of funds we finally agree on.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield myself 30 seconds to make a statement for the benefit of Senators who have just entered the Chamber.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized for 30 seconds.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, the Tower amendment would not afford us an opportunity to get started. The amendment is identified by the Senator from Texas himself as a demonstration grant amendment.

I shall offer another amendment which would reduce the authorization contained in the bill by $50 million.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Texas. On this question the yeas and nays have been ordered; and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CARLSON (when his name was called). On this vote, I have a live pair with the distinguished Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "nay"; if I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "yea." Therefore, I withhold my vote.

The rollcall was concluded.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH], the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN], and the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTROYA] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD], and the Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH], the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD], the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTROYA], and the Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS] would each vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY] is paired with the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN].

If present and voting, the Senator from Minnesota would vote "nay" and the Senator from Arkansas would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD] is paired with the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING].

If present and voting, the Senator from Virginia would vote "yea" and the Senator from Alaska would vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN] and the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] is absent on official business.

If present and voting, the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN] and the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] would each vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 38, nays 49, as follows:

So Mr. TOWER's amendment was rejected.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which the amendment was rejected be reconsidered.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I move that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Mr. DIRKSEN. Mr. President, if we may have order in the Chamber, I should like to ask the majority leader concerning the schedule for the remainder of the day and also for tomorrow.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, in response to the question raised by the distinguished minority leader, I wish to state that there is a possibility—how good remains to be seen—that the pending bill may be finished this evening at a reasonable hour.

At the conclusion of the consideration of the pending bill it is the intention of the leadership to bring up Calendar No. 258, S. 9, a bill to provide readjustment assistance to veterans who serve in the Armed Forces during the induction period. Then Calendar No. 368, S. 1118, the District of Columbia home rule bill.

Following that, Calendar No. 406, S. 949, a bill to promote economic growth by supporting State and regional centers to place the findings of science usefully in the hands of American enterprise.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Then, other than the pending bill, the Senator from Montana would not expect to run beyond that?

Mr. MANSFIELD. No.

Mr. DIRKSEN. I thank the Senator very much.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2213) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator from Maine yield?

Mr. MUSKIE. I yield.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I suggest to Senators that I believe we can dispose of the bill tonight. The remaining amendments could probably be disposed of by a voice vote, with the exception of the amendment of the Senator from Maine. Therefore, if Senators will not take up time with unrelated matters, I believe that we can press the pending bill to a conclusion this evening.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I believe that we can come to a yeas-and-nays vote on my amendment in the next 2 or 3 minutes, if Senators will stay in the Chamber.

Mr. President, I call up my amendment and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. RUSSELL of South Carolina in the chair). The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The legislative clerk proceeded to state the amendment.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered; and the amendment will be printed in the RECORD at this point.

The amendment offered by Mr. MUSKIE is as follows:

On page 2, lines 16 through 22, strike the last sentence of Sec. 101. (a), and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"The aggregate amount of the contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts and shall not exceed $30,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1966, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $35,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $40,000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by $45,000,000 on July 1, 1968."

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, let me say to the Senate that this is the amendment I promised to bring up in the course of debate on the first Tower amendment. What the amendment does would be to reduce the total amount of contract authorizations for the rent supplement program by $50 million.

Mr. ELLENDER. Is that over a period of 4 years?

Mr. MUSKIE. Yes, over a period of 4 years.

Mr. JORDAN of North Carolina. What would that make it per year?

Mr. MUSKIE. Over a 4-year period for $200 million, this amendment would reduce it to $150 million or $50 million a year, but it is scaled for $35 million up.

Mr. TOWER. I join the Senator from Maine in supporting his amendment. This would enable me to be on the winning side at least once today.

Mr. MUSKIE. I would be happy to accept the Senator's support.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time on the amendment has now been yielded back. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maine.

On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered; and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CARLSON (when his name was called). Mr. President, on this vote I have a pair with the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "nay." If I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "yea." I withhold my vote.

The rollcall was concluded.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH], the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN], the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTROYA], and the Senator from Virginia [Mr. ROBERTSON], are absent on official business.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN], the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTROYA], the Senator from Virginia [Mr. ROBERTSON], the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL], and the Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS], would each vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD] is paired with the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD]. If present and voting, the Senator from Virginia would vote "yea" and the Senator from Connecticut would vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN] and the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] is absent on official business.

If present and voting, the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN] and the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] would each vote "yea."

So Mr. MUSKIE's amendment was agreed to.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I move to table that motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I offer an amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 49, line 2, insert "(a)" after "Sec. 304.", and on page 49, after line 4, add a new subsection "(b)" to section 304, as follows:

(b) Section 114(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof an additional new paragraph as follows:

"In lieu of the payments authorized by the first sentence of this subsection (b), and a local public agency may pay to the owner of a displaced private business concern which cannot be relocated without a substantial loss of its existing patronage an amount equal to three times the average annual net earnings of such business over the three-year period prior to its displacement if the owner is fifty years of age or over and was a tenant of the property from which such business was displaced, and the average annual net earnings of the business in the three years preceding its displacement was less than $10,000 per year."

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Progress has its price. The price of progress in urban renewal is often to destroy the livelihood and earning capacity of the small, neighborhood store-keeper.

In Baltimore, for example, I know of a corner candy store owner who lived and worked in the same location for 40 years. His store was a focus of neighborhood activity. People came to buy their newspapers, to catch up on local neighborhood events, and to purchase last minute groceries on Sundays or late evenings. For 40 years, he was part and parcel of the community. While I was a student at the University of Maryland Law School, I lived in that neighborhood and many times found myself in that candy store.

Several years passed and then the city of Baltimore decided to renew this area, and the candy store was included in the urban renewal demolition project. The candy store and all of its customers were told they had to move.

The owner of the building, from whom this man had rented for 40 years, received payment for his building. But the man who rented and lived in the area, received no payment at all. His store was gone, his clientele was gone, his goodwill was lost. He was left adrift in the world, at age 65, with no place to live, no source of income, and only token relocation assistance.

This was an extreme hardship. To be sure, some hardships are inevitable, if we are to redevelop our slum neighborhoods. Some inconvenience cannot be avoided if we are to renew our decaying cities. I do not think we should allow these considerations to block progress. I support urban renewal for our cities.

But I firmly believe that we owe a moral obligation to the families and small businesses that have to be relocated to minimize the burdens and to make them as whole as possible.

The present law provides relocation payments for families and reimbursement of moving expenses for businesses. I am pleased that the pending bill will increase the relocation payment from $1,500 to $2,500, and that the Committee report strongly urges the Urban Renewal Administration to remove the $25,000 ceiling on reimbursement of business moving expenses. These are both useful improvements in the administration of our relocation programs.

However, all existing and proposed relocation programs fail to meet the needs of those businesses which, for all practical purposes, cannot be relocated. Take the candy store owner to whom I referred earlier. What can he do at age 65 with a $2,500 relocation payment and a few hundred dollars moving expense? Where can he go and set up a neighborhood candy store? Where can he become an integral part of a community?

Let us be honest. In the case of our candy store owner, urban renewal did not result in his relocation. It put him out of business. It cut off his source of income as effectively as if his business had been condemned.

I think we should provide for such cases in our urban renewal program. The amendment which I have introduced is limited in scope. It would provide the owners of small neighborhood businesses with a lump-sum cash payment, in lieu of relocation and moving expenses, which would be equal to the average annual earnings of that business for the past 3 years. If, for example, the candy store operator to which I have referred had an average annual income of $5,000, he would be entitled, under my amendment, to receive a lump-sum payment of $15,000. This would be in lieu of his $2,500 relocation payment and moving expenses.

This amendment is also limited in its applicability. In order to qualify for the foregoing payment, an owner located in an urban renewal project would have to meet the following four tests:

First. He would have to be 50 years of age or older.

Second. He would have had to be a tenant and not an owner of the property in which his business was located.

Third. His average annual net earnings for the preceding 3 years would have had to be less than $10,000 per year, and—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I yield myself 4 additional minutes.

Fourth. His business would have to be of such character that it could not be located without "a substantial loss of its existing patronage."

In essence, this amendment would apply only to the small, "Mom and Pop" neighborhood store in which the owners were over 50 years of age, earned less than $10,000, and rented their place of business.

I think the lump-sum payment which I have suggested is modest in amount and wholly consistent with our moral obligations to alleviate the hardships imposed by urban renewal progress.

The cost of this amendment would be low. The Urban Renewal Administration advises me that approximately 6,000 business establishments are relocated every year as a result of our urban renewal programs. Approximately 30 percent of these establishments go out of business. These are, for the most part, the small marginal business and neighborhood stores. We are thus dealing with a group of not more than 1,800 businesses, and a large number of these people will not meet the requirements of my amendment.

An educated estimate by a high official of the Urban Renewal Administration is that not more than 1,000 businesses per year would qualify under this amendment. If we assume the average annual earnings of these 1,000 businesses to be $7,000 per year—a relatively high figure considering the $10,000 ceiling in my amendment—we would be paying an average of $21,000 to each of these 1,000 businesses estimated or a total of $21 million. I think this is a small sum, in relation to our total urban renewal program. The present bill increases the capital grants for urban renewal by $2.9 billion.

The distinguished Senator from Maine [Mr. MUSKIE] is holding hearings on the subject of revision of relocation payments applicable to all Federal programs which require families or businesses to move. I ask the distinguished Senator from Maine whether his committee will act on the problem which has been referred to in my amendment. I invite any additional remarks that he might like to make on the subject. For that purpose I yield to him as much time as he may require.

Mr. MUSKIE. I thank the Senator from Maryland.

First, the select House subcommittee has recently completed and made available to the Congress what I consider to be an outstanding study of the problem which troubles so many people who have seen dislocation hardships resulting from government acquisition of land, whether it be local, State, or Federal government, and for whatever program.

The compensation is inadequate. My own view is that, subject to such safeguards as are necessary to avoid abuses, we ought to make people whole, to whatever degree it is necessary to make them whole, when we force them to move for reasons other than their voluntary wishes.

Pursuant to the select subcommittee's study, the distinguished Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] introduced this year Senate bill 1201, which would undertake to reform our policy with respect to relocation payments, and also with respect to our land acquisition policies and practices. It is a monumental work, deserving very careful attention. I myself introduced Senate bill 1681, which has to do only with dislocation payments. We have been holding hearings on both bills during the last 2 weeks. The possibility that we can get legislation on the relocation aspect of the problem, which is the one which the Senator is interested in, looks very good for this year, depending upon what happens at this session of the Congress and how far we are able to work out the case in the proposed legislation.

It is most appropriate that the Senator should bring up the point now. The present colloquy will be of great value and utility to the Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations, as it controls proposed legislation as to which we have had hearings.

Mr. TYDINGS. I do not wish to burden the housing bill with additional amendments. With the assurances of the distinguished Senator from Maine that the problem will be taken up in the appropriate subcommittee, and that action will, if possible, be taken this year, and with his cognizance of the extreme importance of this problem to the small shopkeeper in the community, I withdraw my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has the right to withdraw his amendment. If all time is yielded back, the amendment is withdrawn.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is withdrawn.

Mr. MORTON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield to the Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MORTON. I was interested in following the discussion of the Senator from Maryland and the Senator from Maine. It seems to me that we were told that the bill would relieve certain hardships on our cities. Now we have to consider an amendment to relieve hardships that would be brought about by the passage of the bill. All I ask is, How many hardships can we endure?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I should like to say a word with respect to the question propounded by the Senator from Kentucky, since I was the author of the first bill proposing some kind of treatment of this matter.

The Senator speaks of hardships. The purpose of my bill, as originally introduced, was to have a study made of the various systems of land acquisition throughout the country and to attempt to bring about some uniformity. The Defense Department will have one system; the Interior Department will have another; the TVA has one; and urban renewal has another. The highway departments and agencies that condemn land for airports have a system. All agencies have different systems.

The purpose of my original bill was to provide for a study. After the study was made, and the report was made, the purpose of my bill was to bring uniformity—not necessarily to relieve any one particular hardship, but at least to bring about some degree of uniformity.

Mr. MORTON. I have no quarrel with the objective of the Senator or what the Senator is trying to do.

I was pointing out the fact that we pass a measure to relieve a hardship, whatever it is, and then, we must pass additional bills and amendments to relieve the hardship thus created.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I would presume the Senator from Kentucky would consider uniformity good.

Mr. MORTON. I certainly do.

Mr. SPARKMAN. With reference to the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania, I have discussed the question with him and also in a limited way with the Senator from Texas.

AMENDMENT NO. 352

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 352 and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania will be stated.

The legislative clerk proceeded to read the amendment.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment offered by Mr. SCOTT is as follows:

(f) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Pulaski, Showalter, and Smedley Junior High Schools, and the William Penn and Stetser Elementary Schools in Chester, Pennsylvania, local expenditures made in connection with such schools shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid for federally assisted urban renewal projects in Chester that will be served by such schools.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, the amendment would provide certain needed assistance to the city of Chester, Pa., by providing that certain expenditures made by the city in its various schools and school districts be accredited and counted as local grants-in-aid for federally assisted urban renewal projects in Chester.

I ask unanimous consent that a letter to me from the Chester Redevelopment Authority and another letter from the mayor of Chester be printed at this point in my remarks.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CHESTER REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY,
Chester, Pa., July 14, 1965.
Attention Mr. Richard W. Murphy.
Re proposed amendment to Housing Act of 1965, Senate bill 2213.
Hon. HUGH SCOTT,
U.S. Senate, 260 Old Senate Office Building,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR SCOTT: This is in reference to Mayor Gorbey's letter of July 7, 1965, requesting that you use the good graces of your office to introduce an amendment to the proposed housing bill (2213) now before the Senate that is of much import to the city of Chester.

As explained in the mayor's letter, the city of Chester is faced with an extremely high number of substandard dwelling units, an almost impossible unemployment situation, and a very low annual budget that merely allows the city to operate on a status quo basis. Mayor Gorbey and city council have determined that a dynamic all-encompassing urban renewal program is the only solution and the approach to solving our many problems. Through urban renewal, we can remove all of the slum and blighting conditions and replace them with an inventory of good housing, several hundred acres to allow for expansion of existing industry, and provide sites for new industry, a dynamic downtown that is inviting and exciting, which also will provide many jobs for unskilled and semiskilled people in the Chester area, etc.

Chester is today faced with many competing demands for funds. Faced with these demands, it is almost impossible for the city to undertake an expansive urban renewal program that will solve many of its problems. The only solution is to parlay expenditures made by other public entities, much the same as other cities are doing, both small and large, all over the country. For instance, New Haven, Conn., faced many of our same problems in that they had to try to rid the city of its slum and substandard housing, while at the same time undertaking an expansive school construction program. By coordinating urban renewal and school construction, New Haven is demolishing 15 old schools, constructing 14 new schools, and the expenditures for the school construction will meet the cost of urban renewal projects undertaken concurrently with and revolving around the school construction program.

The school board in Chester expended approximately $10 million in recent years constructing school facilities. If such school construction program had been coordinated with urban renewal undertakings, the school credits resulting from such school construction would have met a substantial portion, of the city of Chester's share of a large-scale urban renewal program. The problem lies in the fact that all of this money, except for $371,000, will be lost because the city of Chester was not aware, through ignorance, that such financial credits were possible.

The city spent $50,000 of its own money to plan one project, the Smedley urban renewal project, which allowed the city the opportunity to save a portion of the potential noncash credit. The Smedley Junior High School, which is located in the Smedley urban renewal area, was renovated starting on July 15, 1962. The city of Chester had only until July 15, 1965, in which to save a portion of the $2,100,000 expended on this school. As you know, the Smedley project was approved and the city did save $371,000 of this $2,100,000.

What Mayor Gorbey and city council are requesting in the proposed amendment which is set forth in Mayor Gorbey's letter of July 7, 1965, is a waiver of the 3-year statutory limit so that the city can claim an additional portion or portions of the $1,800,000 that is now lost on the Smedley Junior High School, as well as non-cash credits that could arise from expenditures that were made in connection with the Pulaski, Showalter, and Smedley Junior High Schools, and the William Penn and Stetser Elementary Schools. While none of these other schools are within the boundaries of projects for which applications for survey and planning funds have already been submitted to the Urban Renewal Administration, or within proposed projects for which applications will be made in the immediate future, children residing in these potential urban renewal project areas will nevertheless attend these new school facilities. As such, the schools will qualify as supporting facilities, and a substantial portion of the money expended for these schools could qualify as noncash credits to meet the local share of presently proposed urban renewal projects. As you know, the criteria for eligibility does not require that a school facility be located within the renewal project; rather, the credit is based on the total number of children from a redevelopment area going to the school divided by the total capacity of the school.

It is not possible to estimate a specific time period, and thus there is no specific time period set forth in the proposed amendment. With the tremendous amount of importance given to the relocation aspects of an urban renewal project, the city will have to undertake several projects concurrently, depending on the amount of relocation resources that are available, and then move into other urban renewal projects as quickly as possible. The city would receive credit immediately from the Smedley Junior High School and the Stetser Elementary School in connection with the Smedley urban renewal project. The city would also receive a portion of credit for moneys expended for Showalter Junior High School in connection with a project entitled "North-Central Urban Renewal Project," a 170-acre clearance and conservation project for which the Redevelopment Authority requested survey and planning money approximately 8 months ago. As of the moment, the city would find it extremely difficult to undertake any further urban renewal projects in which to meet the locality's share. However, if credit could be forthcoming from the William Penn Elementary School and the Pulaski, Showalter, and Smedley Junior High Schools, there are potentially six or seven other areas in the city of Chester on which the city could proceed on urban renewal projects because there would be noncash credits to help the city meet its financial obligation to the Urban Renewal Administration.

I apologize for being somewhat general in this letter, but it is very difficult to be more specific. In noting other amendments, I do find that the amendments were very general and Mayor Gorbey, city council, and I hope that it is also possible for our amendment to follow closely the language that is suggested by Mayor Gorbey in his letter of July 7. This language is almost identical to that found in the Housing Acts of 1961 and 1964. For instance, following is an amendment to the Housing Act of 1964:

"TITLE X, SECTION 1008

"Eligibility of certain local grants-in-aid

"(a) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Fox Point hurricane dam in Providence, Rhode Island, local expenditures made in connection with such dam shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the railroad relocation urban renewal project (Rhode Island R-8) in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

"(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 112(b) of the Housing Act of 1949, expenditures made by the Methodist Hospital of Central Illinois, and Saint Francis Hospital, Peoria, Illinois, for the purchase of two parcels of land on or about June 25 and July 28, 1956, for a price of not more than $82,980, shall if otherwise eligible be counted as local grants-in-aid to the Peoria 'Medical Center' urban renewal project (Illinois R-61) in accordance with the remaining provisions of title I of that Act."

It will be noted that our proposed amendment follows very closely the language as that set forth in section 1008 of the 1964 bill. There is no termination date, and likewise there is no dollar amount set forth in the amendment itself. We would hope that our suggested amendment could therefore follow closely the language as set forth in Mayor Gorbey's letter.

If there is any other specific information that you desire, we will be more than happy to try to obtain such data. I very much appreciate the interest which you have given to this matter and I assure you that the citizens of Chester will join with Mayor Gorbey and the city council in expressing their thanks if it is possible to have this amendment incorporated into the final bill.

Respectfully,

JOHN J. FITZGERALD,
Director of Redevelopment.

CITY OF CHESTER, PA.,

July 7, 1965.

Re proposed amendment to housing legislation, 1965, Senate bill 2213.

Hon. HUGH SCOTT,
U.S. Senate,
Old Senate Office Building,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR SCOTT: The city of Chester has been in a depression period for almost 15 years. The city, with an oversupply of slum blighted housing, the exodus of several large industries, an unemployment rate of approximately 10-11 percent, a socio-economic problem arising from the fact that 52 percent of the people in the city over 25 years of age have less than an eighth-grade education, etc., can look only to urban renewal for salvation.

The city of Chester is a poor town, as can readily be seen from the above statistics. As such, the city faces a financial burden in trying to meet its local share of renewal projects. We have recently found out that the city, if it had been knowledgeable in the past, could have utilized moneys expended by our school board for the construction of new schools as a credit toward our local contribution. The problem arises in that these moneys have been expended beyond the 3-year period set forth in the law.

In reviewing the various housing acts, especially the housing bills of 1961 and 1964, I note that waivers were granted for items in various cities so as to allow certain expenditures to be eligible in order to finance the project, even though the expenditures had been made prior to the 3-year limitation. If Chester is ever going to pull out of its present depression period, it must take full advantage of the urban renewal program passed by Congress and must depend for its ultimate success on receiving credit for funds expended by our school board. Accordingly, we would like to request that the following amendment be proposed at such time as the full Senate considers Senate bill 2213:

"PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO SENATE BILL 2213

"Eligibility of certain local grants-in-aid

"Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Pulaski, Showalter, and Smedley Junior High Schools, and the William Penn and Stetser Elementary Schools in Chester, Pa., local expenditures made in connection with such schools shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aids for urban renewal projects that will be served by such schools."

It is my understanding that the housing bill has not yet been scheduled but that it might come before the Senate late next week or the following week. We therefore respectfully request that you present an amendment to Senate bill 2213 that would achieve the results set forth above, which in turn would allow Chester to embark on an ambitious urban renewal undertaking.

Very truly yours,

JAMES H. GORBIEY,
Mayor.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I have told the Senator from Pennsylvania that I frankly doubted that his proposal would come under the coverage of the general law. It may be that some of it would. I have told him that since it is not in the House bill and therefore would be in conference, I would be perfectly willing to take the amendment to conference, and in the meantime I shall study it.

Mr. President, I do not direct what I am about to say to the Senator from Pennsylvania. I said something about it yesterday. More amendments relating to individual cases have been offered to the bill, and which were never brought to the attention of the committee, than have ever been previously offered.

Had they been presented as amendments to the bill in the committee, or as separate bills introduced so they would have been before us, we would have had ample time to check into them and find out what the facts were. We had several measures. The bill contains 4 or 5 of those that were introduced and came before the committee and could be considered.

I implore that hereafter action be started well ahead of time while the hearings are in progress so that we may have an opportunity to explore all the measures submitted to us.

I do not direct this statement to the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania, but point out a general situation.

I am perfectly willing to take the amendment to conference under those conditions.

Mr. SCOTT. I was furnished this information in time to make it available to the distinguished Senator from Alabama. I call attention of the Senator from Alabama and the Senator from Maine to the correspondence which I have asked to have printed in the RECORD. That cites two or more similar instances in which the officials of Chester, Pa., are certain that similar matters have been taken care of in the past.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I believe the Senator is correct. I believe the Senator will find that it is only a question of time.

Mr. MORTON. I hope that the Senator will give it his most earnest consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is all time yielded back?

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HARTKE. Mr. President, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be waived but that it be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Russell of South Carolina in the chair). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 52, between lines 16 and 17, insert a new section as follows:

"LIMITATION ON NONCASH GRANT-IN-AID CREDIT ALLOWED FOR PUBLICLY OWNED PARKING FACILITIES

"SEC. 306. The parenthetical phrase in clause (3) of the first sentence of section

110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "and" and inserting in lieu thereof a comma, and by inserting at the end thereof (within the parenthesis) the following: ", and publicly owned parking facilities which do not provide free parking".

Renumber succeeding sections in title III accordingly.

Mr. HARTKE. Mr. President, this amendment is very nearly the same as section 310 of the House bill as passed, H.R. 7984. The Comptroller General suggested the policy which is embodied in this amendment in the 1962 Report of the General Accounting Office, and the change was supported by Housing Administrator Weaver in a letter from which I shall quote, a letter addressed to Representative Rains during the 88th Congress. Mr. Weaver's letter concluded with a statement that the Bureau of the Budget had advised that it had no objection.

The GAO report had this to say:

In connection with certain slum clearance and urban renewal projects, URA has tentatively allowed noncash grant-in-aid credits amount to $9.3 million for certain land and construction costs applicable to six publicly owned parking facilities. The cities where the facilities are located plan to recover, out of revenues derived from the operations, the entire cost of the parking facilities. The effect of allowing these noncash grants-in-aid will be that the cities will be reimbursed in amounts in excess of the actual costs of the facilities. The entire costs, totaling about $12 million will be recovered through user charges and, in addition, about $6 million will be contributed by the Federal Government as a result of the grants-in-aid being included in the project.

It is quite possible that other projects are similarly affected besides those noted by the GAO in 1962. The further notation made then suggested that Congress "may wish to consider enacting legislation which would amend the Housing Act of 1949, to exclude from noncash grants-in-aid all publicly owned facilities to the extent that the capital costs of such facilities are contemplated to be recovered out of revenues from their operations."

The House bill, in its section 310, provided for the exclusion of "publicly owned parking facilities to the extent that the cost thereof is anticipated to be recovered from revenues."

This conforms with the suggestions made by Mr. Weaver.

The amendment I offer has similar wording, but is somewhat more restrictive in that it would allow only facilities which would be furnished to the public by the municipality for parking on a free basis. The wording is: "publicly owned parking facilities which do not provide free parking."

Federal capital grants which are in effect made available under the noncash provisions are intended to be provided for facilities which support urban renewal projects, such as provision for schools, streets, sewer and water lines, and similar facilities which do not generally, and are not intended to, produce revenue but to serve the public in the area. But parking facilities of the kind to which the GAO report refers are frequently revenue producing and, in the words of the letter from Mr. Weaver to which I referred:

They provide a service which is often similar to that provided by private enterprise.

Mr. Weaver's letter continues:

We believe that these problems would be met by the enactment of * * * legislation which would reduce the noncash credit allowable with respect to publicly-owned parking facilities by that portion of their total cost which is anticipated to be recovered from revenues. Thus, * * * appropriate allowance of noncash grant-in-aid credit would continue to be authorized where a municipality desires to provide parking facilities free.

Mr. President, I believe, that it is hardly justifiable for the Urban Renewal Administration to allow in lieu of cash a property which becomes revenue-producing for the municipality while other categories such as schools, hospitals, sewers, and so on, do not. The net effect is a straight giveaway to those cities which set up parking-for-pay facilities. I certainly have no objection to free parking facilities, and I believe they may well be a great boon to the urban renewal project of which they are a part.

I hope the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I wish very much that the Senator from Indiana would not insist upon his amendment. Section 310 was not written into the bill in committee; it is in the House bill. The effect of it not being written into the Senate bill will subject the whole matter to conference.

What is sought to be done by section 310 of the House bill is to amend section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 to provide that publicly owned parking facilities provided by a locality in connection with the redevelopment of an urban renewal area can be counted as local grants-in-aid under the urban renewal program only to the extent that the cost of such facilities is not anticipated to be recovered out of the revenues therefrom.

Mr. HARTKE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield for a question?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. HARTKE. Is it not true that there would be a windfall for the local community if the House provision were not in the Senate version? I know it is in the House bill.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I do not necessarily agree.

Mr. HARTKE. I am 100 percent for the urban renewal program, but I think it should be conducted on the basis that we have faith in the community. That is what the House bill does. It maintains the two-thirds/one-third ratio. But when that is eliminated from the Senate bill, as I understand has been done, and as I read it, unless I misunderstand it—and I would be willing to be corrected if I am wrong—the truth is that under existing law it would permit the local municipal government to collect revenue over and above that which is allowed in the first place.

Mr. SPARKMAN. As I have said, we can care for this in conference.

Mr. HARTKE. Because it is omitted from the Senate bill.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes. Section 310 of the House bill provides that publicly owned parking facilities provided by a locality in connection with the redevelopment of an urban renewal area can be counted as local grants-in-aid under the urban renewal program only to the extent that the cost of such facilities is not anticipated to be recovered out of the revenues therefrom.

Mr. HARTKE. I agree with that.

Mr. SPARKMAN. We are dealing with an exemption.

The House language provides that revenues that are collected shall be deducted from what otherwise would be a credit to the Federal Government. In other words, the amount of such revenues represents that much saving for the Federal Government. The House bill would prohibit the grant-in-aid credit for such facilities. The Senate did not include that provision.

What the Senator from Indiana is seeking to do is to write language into the Senate bill to conform to the language in the House bill.

Mr. HARTKE. The Senator is correct.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am speaking against that provision at the present moment. It would be in conference between the two Houses. What we seek to do in the Senate is to retain existing law which gives credit to the city for expenditures made by the city for parking facilities.

Mr. HARTKE. Mr. President, as I understood my friend the Senator from Alabama, when he was first discussing this matter, he said that he did not want to permit any greater amount to be recovered than the amount actually expended on the facility.

That is what section 310 of the House bill would do. So far as I am concerned, I would be perfectly willing to accept the House language or any language which would accomplish that purpose. However, I believe that it would be wrong for us to accept an amendment which the House has agreed to, which Mr. Weaver of the HHFA has recommended, and which the General Accounting Office has suggested, and delete anything therefrom.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I would have no objection to what the Senator from Indiana is aiming at—putting them in the business of operating a parking lot. However, the language of the Senator would forbid them from using any free space.

Suppose that the parking lot were available or could provide space for parking, for public facilities, or for public buildings adjacent to it. In my hometown of Huntsville, Ala., a new city hall has just been built, a new police department, a new library, and public buildings. There is an area immediately across the street that probably will not be included in the redevelopment for perhaps 3 or 4 or 5 years.

It is proposed there to utilize that space as a parking lot for the use of those who work or who have business places nearby. It is not intended to be used for commercial purposes at all. It is not intended to compete with commercial property. It could very well be developed, had it not been intended for other development. It could be developed as parking spaces for each individual building, except that the land is not laid out in precisely that way.

Mr. HARTKE. Mr. President, I would have no objection to that. The point that I make is that under the Senate bill, as now written, there would be a windfall to certain cities over and beyond what was intended by the General Accounting Office recommendation, by Mr. Weaver's recommendation, and by the language of the House bill.

If the Senator would limit the amount, as provided by the language in the House bill, to publicly owned parking facilities to the extent that the cost thereof is anticipated to be recovered from revenues, I would have no objection. I do not care what language is used. However, I do not feel that we should tamper with the basic two-thirds to one-third ratio. That is, in effect, what the Senate provision would do.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I do not see how the Senator can argue that the Senate bill would do that when the Senate bill is silent. The Senate bill contains the existing law.

Mr. HARTKE. The Senator is correct.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Our idea is that we would meet in conference with the House and attempt to agree upon a plan that would be acceptable. It might very well be that the proposal of the Senator would be that plan. However, I would not like to be placed in a straitjacket when we go to conference.

Mr. HARTKE. Mr. President, let me read the words from the Comptroller General in the General Accounting Office report of 1962, which deals with the policy of noncash grants-in-aid, and public parking facilities. The language reads:

In connection with certain slum clearance and urban renewal projects, URA has tentatively allowed noncash grant-in-aid credits amounting to $9.3 million for certain land and construction costs applicable to six publicly owned parking facilities. The cities, where the facilities are located plan to recover, out of revenues derived from the operations, the entire cost of the parking facilities. The effect of allowing these noncash grants-in-aid will be that the cities will be reimbursed in amounts in excess of the actual costs of the facilities. The entire costs, totaling about $12 million will be recovered through user charges and, in addition, about $6 million will be contributed by the Federal Government as a result of the grants-in-aid being included in the project.

Then the General Accounting Office suggests to Congress:

It may wish to consider enacting legislation which would amend the Housing Act of 1949, to exclude from noncash grants-in-aid all publicly owned facilities to the extent that the capital costs of such facilities are contemplated to be recovered out of revenue from their operations.

The House took the recommendation of the General Accounting Office which, to me, makes good sense. That would mean that we would not have a windfall. I can see no good reason for the provision being omitted from the bill.

Mr. SPARKMAN. All that I ask is that we be allowed to go to a free conference with the language in the House bill being the proposal that the Senator from Indiana makes. However, do not tie our hands.

If the Senator will withdraw his amendment, I assure him that we shall give the fullest cooperation. However, if the Senator has the provision placed in the Senate bill, we shall be virtually hand tied.

I beg the Senator to let us go to conference with his words ringing in our ears.

Mr. HARTKE. Mr. President, I should like to accede to the request of the Senator from Alabama. However, in good conscience, after offering the amendment which has been recommended as good accounting procedure, I do not see how I could do so.

I should like to have a vote on the amendment.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Indiana.

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, after the rather lengthy discussion on yesterday, concerning the amendment I then offered, I have studied the matter further. The views which I then communicated are applicable to the amendment I shall soon offer.

I understand that the able Senator from Alabama will accept my amendment. I have spoken to several interested colleagues on both sides of the aisle—the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], and the Senator from Michigan [Mr. McNAMARA], and others.

Having said that, Mr. President, I send to the desk amendments, offered by myself and the senior Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS], and the junior Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MONDALE]. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of them be waived, and that they be printed in the RECORD, and then I shall specifically, in plain English, indicate what the amendments are designed to do.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the reading is waived, and the amendments will be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. KUCHEL's amendments, offered for himself and other Senators, are as follows:

On page 10, between lines 7 and 8, insert the following:

"(c) The third sentence of section 212(a) of such Act (relating to the applicability of the Davis-Bacon Act) is amended to read as follows: 'The provisions of this section shall apply to the insurance under section 221 of any mortgage described in subsection (d) (3) or (d) (4).'"

On page 32, between lines 6 and 7, insert the following:

"(4) Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: 'The provisions of this section shall also apply to insurance under title X with respect to laborers and mechanics employed in land development financed with the proceeds of any mortgage insured under that title.'"

On page 76, line 1, strike out "707 and 708" and insert "708 and 709".

On page 78, between lines 8 and 9, insert the following:

"LABOR STANDARDS"

"SEC. 807. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is further amended by inserting after section 706 (as added by section 806 of this Act) the following new section:

"LABOR STANDARDS"

"SEC. 707. (a) The Administrator shall take such action as may be necessary to insure that all laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors in the performance of construction work financed with the assistance of grants under this title shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended. The Administrator shall not approve any such grant without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work.

"(b) The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in subsection (a), the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 1332-15), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 948; 40 U.S.C. 276c)."

On page 78, line 10, strike out "807" and "707" and insert in lieu thereof "808" and "708", respectively.

On page 78, line 17, strike out "808" and insert in lieu thereof "809".

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, my amendments seek three objectives.

I first seek to amend section 212 of the Housing Act. That section presently restricts the application of Davis-Bacon standards to cooperative housing corporations and limited dividend corporations or other entity, which are mortgagors under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act. I would extend Davis-Bacon to private nonprofit corporations or other entity and public bodies which are mortgagors. To effect this limited wider scope of prevailing wage standards, I amend subsection (d)(3) and (d)(4) of section 221.

The housing law presently exempts family units of 12 or less from Davis-Bacon coverage under sections 220 and 233. My amendment does not affect these sections at all. Section 220, for the information of the Senate, covers rehabilitation and neighborhood conservation housing, generally known as urban renewal. Section 233 deals with experimental housing. I repeat that the 12-unit rule, now the law, applying to both these sections specifically, remains untouched.

My other two amendments do not relate to housing.

My second amendment is offered to title 10, the land development program, under which mortgage insurance will be made available to a land developer. I would apply, by this second amendment, the prevailing wage procedure of the Davis-Bacon Act to this title.

My third amendment is to title 7, land beautification. I would apply the provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act to this program.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KUCHEL. I yield.

Mr. JAVITS. Will the Senator permit me to join my name to the amendment?

Mr. KUCHEL. I am glad to observe that I have placed on the amendment the names of the distinguished senior Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS] and the distinguished junior Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MONDALE].

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KUCHEL. I yield.

Mr. BENNETT. Yesterday I offered an amendment to the Senator's amendment. I offered my amendment because I misunderstood the purpose of the Senator's amendment. I have the impression that he himself misunderstood it yesterday.

Mr. KUCHEL. There certainly was some confusion on this matter yesterday.

Mr. BENNETT. With the very clear explanation which we have had today, I believe I am safe in saying that the objective I sought yesterday is in fact carried out by this amendment, which was to make sure the Davis-Bacon standards were not implied to single-family units.

Mr. SPARKMAN. As the Senator from California has stated, he has discussed the amendment with me. In fact, between him and his staff and our Housing Subcommittee staff, the language was worked out. I believe the Senator from California has given us a very clear statement. We are willing to accept the amendment. I am willing to yield back the time.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, will the Senator from California yield?

Mr. KUCHEL. I yield.

Mr. GORE. I invite the attention of Senators to the degree to which this body operates by consent. When there was general misunderstanding and widespread misunderstanding about the purport and intent and scope of the amendment and controversy arose, I did not wish to see any young American with a wife and children denied the benefit of FHA to build a home and rear his family by reason of an amendment hastily adopted by the Senate. When objections and questions were raised and when a request was made that a consideration of the amendment be postponed, the distinguished able Senator from California himself rose and asked consent to defer action on his amendment until today. Comity prevailed, except perhaps I was a little abrasive in my remarks. If so, I apologize to my dear and trusted friend from California.

I wish he would add my name as a cosponsor of his amendment.

Mr. KUCHEL. First let me say that one of the pleasures I have in the Senate is my friendship with the fine gentleman and my able colleague from Tennessee. No apology is necessary. I express my gratitude for his courtesy.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the names of the distinguished senior Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE] and the distinguished senior Senator from West Virginia [Mr. RANDOLPH] be added as cosponsors of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, in view of the graciousness between the Senator from Tennessee and the Senator from California, so that the trinity may be completed, I ask that my name be added as a cosponsor.

Mr. TOWER. Put my name on it, too.

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the names of the Senator from Rhode Island and the Senator from Texas be added as cosponsors of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MORTON. Mr. President—

Mr. KUCHEL. And the name of the Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MORTON. No; I am not trying to get into the family. I wish to ask a question.

Does the amendment go beyond the building trades? I am thinking of a quasi-governmental body such as the TVA. Would it have to apply the Davis-Bacon law in buying coal?

Mr. KUCHEL. No.

Mr. MORTON. This has nothing to do with TVA?

Mr. KUCHEL. That is correct.

Mr. President, I yield back all my time on the amendment.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendments of the Senator from California.

The amendments were agreed to.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendments were agreed to.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 322

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 322, and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment offered by the Senator from Texas will be stated.

The legislative clerk read the amendment, as follows:

On page 9, strike out lines 16 through 19 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(k) The Administrator shall submit to the Congress annual reports of operations under this section, together with his recommendations with respect thereto. Such reports shall be submitted on or before January 1 of each year."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How much time does the Senator yield himself?

Mr. TOWER. I yield myself 30 seconds.

The purpose of this amendment is to require the Administrator of the HHFA to furnish the Congress with a report on the status of the rent supplement program at the end of each year. The report should not be limited to statistical information, but should delve into administrative problems, both experienced and anticipated successes and failures, including an evaluation of the attitude of the sponsors of projects participating in the rent supplement program.

Voluminous testimony was heard by the Housing Subcommittee on this vast undertaking. A considerable amount of it was negative, but the most impressive part of all was that some of the most ardent supporters of the program were uninhibited in their skepticism toward the administration launching such a monumental program in which absolutely no experience has been had. A most articulate and knowledgeable person in the field of housing and housing management, Ira S. Robbins, president of the National Association of Housing & Re-development Officials, told the subcommittee:

The rent supplement plan is advanced as the "most crucial instrument in our effort to improve the American city," yet this plan, which at least is administratively cumbersome and socially indefensible, came to the Congress without any review of testing by the various local operating agencies that should administer the program.

The adoption of my amendment will at least put the Congress in an advised and enlightened position to better protect the taxpayers against an unleashed spending program such as this one.

Mr. President, I have spoken in little detail considering the magnitude and unwieldiness of the rent supplement program as we are considering it here today. I had hoped that the subcommittee could have had extensive hearings on the subject and then recommended the enactment of a cautiously laid out program on an experimental basis which could be expanded judiciously as experience showed us the way.

Mr. President, I yield back my time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I am glad to accept the amendment. I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has been yielded back. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 338

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 338.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment offered by the Senator from Texas will be stated.

The legislative clerk proceeded to read the amendment.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with, and that it be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment offered by Mr. TOWER (No. 338) is as follows:

On page 46, between lines 6 and 7, insert a new section as follows:

"FHA MORTGAGE FINANCING FOR VETERANS"

"SEC. 214. (a) Section 203(b)(2) of the National Housing Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'and not to exceed' and inserting in lieu thereof 'and (except as provided in the last sentence of this paragraph) not to exceed'; and

"(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: 'If the mortgagor is a veteran (as defined in section 101(2) of title 38, United States Code) who has not received any direct, guaranteed, or insured loan under laws administered by the Veterans' Administration for the purchase, construction, or repair of a dwelling (including a farm dwelling) which was to be owned and occupied by him as his home, and the mortgage to be insured under this section covers property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a one-family residence, the principal obligation may be in an amount equal to the sum of (i) 100 per centum of $20,000 of the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, and (ii) 85 per centum of such value in excess of $20,000."

"(b) Section 203(b)(9) of such Act is amended by inserting after 'on account of the property' the following: '(except in a case to which the last sentence of paragraph (2) applies)'."

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I ask that the names of the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS] and the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN] may be added to the amendment as cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, the purpose of the amendment is to establish a new mortgage insurance program for veterans under the Federal Housing Administration.

With the inclusion of this amendment in the bill, the FHA would insure 100 percent of the first $20,000 value of a home mortgage, and 85 percent of any additional value to the present FHA maximum of $30,000. In effect, this would mean a veteran would be able to have a no-downpayment insured mortgage for the first $20,000 and would have to have only a 5-percent downpayment for a $30,000 home. The standard FHA interest rate, which is the same rate under the VA programs, plus an additional one-half of 1 percent to cover insurance costs, would be charged.

Those covered by the amendment are veterans having had active military service, who have been discharged or released from service under conditions other than dishonorable. The amendment would not apply to veterans who have received any direct, guaranteed, or insured loan under any Veterans' Administration program for the purchase, construction, or repair of his residential property. Those veterans not using up their eligibility under the Veterans' Administration loan program would be eligible for the FHA program.

In the past 20 years, almost 6½ million veterans of World War II and the Korean war have availed themselves of the loan guarantee program administered by the Veterans' Administration. Some $60.2 billion in mortgage loans has been guaranteed, with only 2.5 percent of the loans resulting in default.

The veterans home program has been a good one, for not only our veterans, but for our homebuilding industry and entire economy as well.

Some 12¾ million veterans remain eligible for the VA program, but their eligibility under the law is phasing out. Present law provides for a 10-year eligibility from the date of discharge plus 1 year of eligibility for each 3 months of active duty. For World War II veterans, eligibility expiration began July 5, 1962, for Korean war veterans, eligibility expiration began January 31, 1965. Thus the phasing-out process has begun, and will be completed for World War II veterans in July of 1967, and in case of Korean veterans on January 31, 1975.

The new program I offer here will cover both those who have never been eligible for VA benefits as well as those who have not yet used their eligibility.

The economic aspect is important, too. Certainly, many servicemen now being discharged cannot afford present downpayments, yet these servicemen represent a tremendous potential for the homebuilding market, a vital segment of our national economy.

Under the amendment I offer, some 21 million veterans would be eligible for mortgage insurance. If 35 percent of these veterans use the new program, which is the percentage of eligibles using the VA program, then we could expect approximately 6½ million new housing starts.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, will the Senator from Texas yield?

Mr. TOWER. I yield.

Mr. DOUGLAS. May I inquire of the Senator whether his amendment provides for any downpayment by veterans?

Mr. TOWER. No.

Mr. DOUGLAS. No downpayments.

Mr. TOWER. No downpayments up to $20,000.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Are veterans who were not in combat eligible as well as veterans who were in combat?

Mr. TOWER. Yes, provided they were war veterans.

Mr. DOUGLAS. How long a period of time do the veterans have to serve before they would be eligible? One day? Ten days? Thirty days? Sixty days? Ninety days?

Mr. TOWER. The same regulations as apply to the Veterans' Administration.

Mr. DOUGLAS. What are they?

Mr. TOWER. I will provide the Senator with that information.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I was told it is 90 days.

Mr. TOWER. I believe that 90 days is correct.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Are veterans of World War I eligible?

Mr. TOWER. Veterans of World War I would be eligible.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Veterans of the Spanish-American War?

Mr. TOWER. Spanish-American War. If veterans wish to go out and build a home, they would be eligible.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Veterans of the Indian Wars?

Mr. TOWER. Veterans of the Indian Wars, if any survive. Also the Civil War, if any are left.

Mr. DOUGLAS. For several years the Republicans have charged that FHA insurance reserves were being jeopardized because, under the liberalized terms permitted on FHA mortgages, unsound loans were being made to veterans and others, that the downpayments were too low, and the maturities were too long. Now we find them preparing an amendment which would radically liberalize the terms on FHA mortgages for all veterans.

Is this a vote-catching amendment, or is it an honest, bona fide amendment intended to help deserving veterans?

It looks to me as though it is a fly-catcher.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, let me ask the Senator from Alabama a question. Is not this amendment in the House bill?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes, it is in the House bill. One thing that concerns me about the Senator's amendment is the fact that he is offering the identical language in the House bill and there would be no room to work things out if we go to conference. It seems to me the amendment should have more work done on it.

Mr. TOWER. I would be glad to consider any modification the Senator might wish to make.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Let us kill the whole amendment and then work on it in conference.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Of course, that would be very good. If the amendment were withdrawn, the issue then would be wide open and we could write in anything we wished. I did draft an amendment to the Senator's amendment, but I did it purely to give us maneuvering room at the conference table.

Mr. TOWER. As I remember, the Senator from Alabama has proposed that $15,000 rather than $20,000 would be the base amount.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes; the Senator is correct.

Mr. TOWER. And 90 percent of value in excess of $15,000—as between $15,000 and $20,000, and so forth. That sounds reasonable to me and I am prepared to accept that modification.

Mr. SPARKMAN. There is one other modification—

Mr. TOWER. This would apply to veterans after September 16, 1940, which would render veterans of World War I, the Spanish-American War, the Indian Wars, and the Civil War ineligible.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I must confess that this is unusual, because I am a World War I veteran and I would be cutting myself out by suggesting this.

Mr. TOWER. I wish the Senator had not said that, because I am a World War II veteran and I am including myself in.

Mr. SPARKMAN. But I am denouncing self-interest by cutting myself out.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Let me say that I believe we have much more room for flexibility and maneuvering if we rejected the amendment outright. The Senator from Ohio just told me that he thought my use of the term "kill" a moment ago was a bit too severe. I should say let us "reject" the amendment.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I said that to the Senator from Illinois because it does not harmonize with his gentility and general character.

Mr. DOUGLAS. May I ask that the former word "kill" be eliminated and that the term "reject" may be included. The Senator from Alabama is a conciliator par excellence, and I do not wish to interfere with his tactics. Therefore, I shall accept the amendment.

However, I do wish to say that this illustrates a very bad political tendency.

It is a position which the Democratic Party at times has been guilty of being in, when President Eisenhower was at the White House; namely, loading down a bill with all kinds of exemptions and special privilege and then denouncing the bill because of its contents which the minority insisted on putting in.

Therefore, I shall yield and not object to the amended provision.

Mr. TOWER. Let me say to the Senator from Illinois that all we are doing here is following a policy followed by the Veterans' Administration. The program was inaugurated after World War II, under a Democratic administration. I certainly wish to give credit where credit is due.

Mr. DOUGLAS. There should be a way for veterans to get established and move into homes. Most of the veterans have now had 20 years in which to get assimilated into civilian life. This is not so true of Korean war veterans but, on the whole, peacetime military service has not been onerous.

I am going to vote for the bill sponsored by the Senator from Texas [Mr. YARBOROUGH] on education, but it disturbs me to see this practice of loading down a bill with all kinds of extra expenses and then using those very items which have been incorporated in the bill as reasons why the bill should be voted against. This practice should stop, whether from our side of the aisle or from the other side of the aisle.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I should like to modify my amendment to conform it to the suggestions made by the Senator from Alabama.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator modifies his amendment accordingly.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, my amendment as modified, is now pending. I am ready to yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I wish to say a word about keeping the amendment in, to answer what the Senator from Illinois has said. In the form in which I suggested it be modified there is ample maneuvering room for conference. It would require that there be something done on the veterans matter. I do not believe that is bad. For several years there has been some agitation toward combining the veterans housing programs into FHA housing program. Three years ago we passed the phasing out plan for veterans housing programs. Since that time our boys have gone to Vietnam and the Dominican Republic and to other places. After all, the Korean war provision does not phase out completely until 1975. This amendment makes it possible for veterans to use FHA, which I believe will be a good thing.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. TOWER. I yield 1 minute to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. It has been argued that the authorization for 240,000 public housing units covering a period of 4 years, at 60,000 each year, and the authorization for the subsidizing of rents, would destroy the incentive of individuals in our country to own their own homes.

How does the Senator from Texas reconcile his proposal for a subsidy for the veterans—and I am a veteran—with that argument?

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, this is not a subsidy.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I understand. It is a guarantee.

Mr. TOWER. It is a guarantee. The VA experience is that only 2.5 percent are in default. This is counter to the rent supplement, which in my opinion destroys the incentive to home ownership. This is an incentive to home ownership.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Why should a veteran with a modest income wish to avail himself of what the Senator from Texas proposes, when he could go into a public housing unit or get subsidized rent?

Mr. TOWER. Well, I think it is the desire to own one's own home.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I concur in what the Senator says. I shall not prolong the debate.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I shall vote for this compromise, but before I do I wish to be assured by the Senator from Texas, who is so zealous to maintain the integrity of the FHA insurance reserves, whether he thinks the amendment will jeopardize the FHA insurance reserve.

Mr. TOWER. I do not think it will.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I shall vote for the amendment, but I do not want to hear the Senator take the stump during the next year and contend that the reserve of the FHA is in jeopardy. Under those conditions I shall not object to the amendment, and shall vote for it.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. TOWER. I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time for debate has expired.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment, as modified, offered by the Senator from Texas.

The amendment, as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was adopted.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I send to the desk an amendment and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 45, beginning with line 10, strike out all through line 6 on page 46.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, the Senator from Illinois earlier referred to me as a conciliator. This is a conciliation amendment. There were two provisions in the bill that were in some controversy. The Senator from Texas was prepared to strike one. The Senator from Illinois was prepared to strike the other.

The two Senators have agreed that I offer an amendment to strike both.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I am perfectly amenable to this procedure, provided that my distinguished friend from Illinois is in favor of it also.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Yes, it is agreeable to me.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time for debate has expired. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. JAVITS. I call up my amendment No. 347. I offer it in behalf of myself and my colleague from New York [Mr. KENNEDY], the Senator from Illinois [Mr. Douglas], the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK], and the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. CASE].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 54, line 24, after "by" insert the following: "striking out '$50,000,000' and inserting in lieu thereof '$100,000,000 for each fiscal year', and by".

On page 55, between lines 5 and 6, insert the following:

(c) Section 312 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) No loan shall be made under the authority of this section after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a contract, commitment, or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date."

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I yield myself 3 minutes to explain the amendment. Section 308 of the bill provides low interest rate—3 percent—rehabilitation loans that can be made for the improvement of properties in an urban renewal area.

In order to have the rehabilitation loan program do its share, the authorization for that purpose was established in the 1964 Housing Act at $50 million. All of the funds have now been appropriated. It is included into the Independent Office Appropriation in both the House and in the Senate following appropriation of loan funds in the second supplemental appropriation act of fiscal year 1965. The House report referred to the program as a useful, and important one which was supported by considerable testimony in the record of hearings.

The House left this program without a ceiling. It took off the $50 million ceiling. However, the House, in its report, said that the proper amount to be filled in here was at least $100 million per year.

As we in the Senate always like to have things go out with a firm ceiling, I believe this is the proper way in which to do it. At the same time the increased limit gives some feeling of definiteness and assurance to the many thousands who are involved in this particular program, and responds to the type of strong testimony which substantiated the program, not only before the Banking and Currency Committees, but also before the Appropriations Committee.

I have taken this amendment up with the majority and minority. I understand that by way of fixing a ceiling before the matter leaves the Senate this is the desirable thing to do. The program of rehabilitation loans in support of local rehabilitation efforts in urban renewal areas, sponsored in the House by Congressman WIDNALL, deserves strong backing.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, the Senator from New York has explained the amendment. I am willing to take it to conference.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. JAVITS. I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time for debate has expired. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I also call up my amendment No. 348.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 22, between lines 4 and 5, insert a new section as follows:

STUDY CONCERNING RELIEF OF HOMEOWNERS IN PROXIMITY TO AIRPORTS

SEC. 109. The Housing and Home Finance Administrator shall undertake a study to determine feasible methods of reducing the economic loss and hardship suffered by homeowners as the result of the depreciation in the value of their properties and possible methods of abating noise from aircraft in such housing following the construction of airports in the vicinity of their homes. Findings and recommendations resulting from such study shall be reported to the President for transmission to the Congress at the earliest practicable date, but in no event later than one year after the date of enactment of this Act.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. JAVITS. The purpose of the amendment is to focus much needed attention on the plight of the homeowner near airports where the homeowner finds his property reduced in value by virtue of aircraft noises. The amendment also directs a study at one and the same time of what might be done in the housing construction field to see if such aircraft noises could be reduced.

The reason that I have been moved to suggest my approach—which, as I emphasize, involves a study, the report on which shall be rendered as soon as practicable but in no event later than 1 year—is that there is a very grave problem here. In my particular part of the country there are a number of airports surrounding New York, and undoubtedly there will be more—and other Senators will have the same problem in their areas we found in our research that in England it was finally decided, after considerable inquiry, that a great deal could be done to abate aircraft noises by the method of home construction. A report prepared for the Parliament by a committee on the problem of noise proposed a grant program to help people seriously disturbed near airports to improve dwellings.

There seems to be no reason why there should be a damaging depreciation of home values because the homes are located near airports. Based upon that precedent, instead of trying a specific detailed program—because I felt we should proceed to get the Administrator of HHFA to dig into the problem and to bring back some word as to what might be done, and then we can decide whether we want to do it or not. The House report urges a study of the question of depreciation of homes near airports and urges that it be the subject of subcommittee hearings.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, the Senator from New York has been in discussions with me on this subject. We have told him that we would be willing to take the amendment to conference. There is no such provision in the House bill. The amendment would give us an opportunity to explore the situation.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from New York.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I wish to express my appreciation to the Senators in charge of the bill, who have no doctrinaire views on amendments because they necessarily come from Senators who at the moment are not members of the committee. They are most wise and fair in their judgment as to how they handle these questions. I thank the Senators.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I offer an amendment which I send to the desk and ask to have stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment of the Senator from Maine will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 46, between lines 6 and 7, it is proposed to insert the following:

MORTGAGE LIMITS FOR HOMES UNDER SECTION 203(b)

SEC. 214. Clause (iii) of section 203(b) (2) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "75 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "85 per centum".

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I have discussed the amendment with the distinguished Senator from Alabama. The amendment would cover a problem in relation to the FHA program that is not covered in either the House bill or the Senate bill as they now stand. The purpose of the amendment is to take the problem to conference.

The sole effect of the proposed amendment is to increase slightly the ratio of mortgage to value on homes valued between $20,000 and $30,000—which latter figure remains as the maximum permissible value of a home eligible for an insured mortgage. Thereby, of course, the down payment required on such homes is correspondingly reduced.

When the mortgage ratio schedule now in effect was enacted, a $15,000 to $20,000 home was considered as typically available for so-called moderate-income families and ratios were so devised to favor that bracket, with homes in excess of that valuation requiring substantially higher down payments.

Since then, increased costs—particularly land costs and higher street and land development requirements—and the public demand for larger and better equipped homes have now moved the typical modest home bracket in many areas from $15,000 to $20,000 to $20,000 to $30,000.

Down payments now required by the act for the latter bracket in some cases are no less than—and frequently are the same or more than—available in practice on an uninsured loan. For example, federally chartered savings and loan associations—without benefit of insurance on the loan on FHA inspections—may lend 90 percent on the first $25,000 of value and 80 percent on the excess up to $30,000.

The amendment would make the down payment on an FHA-insured loan on a home valued at $20,000 to $30,000 more suitable to the realities of today's new home market, and more nearly in conformity with the practice on uninsured loans.

I should like to ask the Senator from Alabama for his comment.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I have considered the subject. I believe the Senator has correctly stated it. A hardship would be placed on the purchasers of homes in that price bracket. There are areas in the country where it is difficult to buy a home at a lower price than an amount between $20,000 and $30,000, or even between $15,000 and $30,000. The amount of the down payment is quite steep. The amendment would give some relief—not a great deal—I believe about $500. So far as I am concerned, I am willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. MUSKIE. I have discussed the amendment with the Senator from Texas. I understand that he is agreeable to the amendment.

Mr. TOWER. I am agreeable.

Mr. MUSKIE. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maine.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I ask the Senator in charge of the bill to yield me 20 minutes.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield 20 minutes to the Senator from Pennsylvania on the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized for 20 minutes.

Mr. CLARK. If I might have the attention of the Senator from Alabama, I should like to ask a couple of questions in connection with the bill.

I wonder if the Senator does not agree with me that one of the best ways to attack both the employment and the environmental aspects of poverty is through a self-help program. In other words, does not the Senator agree that we could make substantial progress in terms of both employment and the war against poverty if we could encourage, through the housing program, the rehabilitation of dwellings by self-help?

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator is correct. This may not be completely analogous, but the Senator will remember that at the time we were in a recession—in the 1957–58 period. I introduced a bill entitled the Emergency Housing Act of 1958 which made $1 billion available to the Federal National Mortgage Association with which to purchase a certain class of mortgages with low down payments. It provided nearly a hundred thousand homes.

Mr. CLARK. I believe the Senator will recall that I was a cosponsor of that bill.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator from Pennsylvania was a cosponsor. He remembers quite well that under that legislation some 100,000 homes were built. That program was undertaken to relieve unemployment.

I have always believed that the Emergency Housing Act of 1958 was probably the greatest single factor in the recovery from that recession.

I believe that it is analogous because there is nothing that provides jobs better than the construction and rehabilitation of homes.

Mr. CLARK. I agree with the Senator. I am wondering whether, seriously, we should not encourage, over the long run, legislation in the housing field which would encourage the rehabilitation of existing housing, which inevitably provides instruction in basic skills associated with renovation without displacing employed labor.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I believe the Senator is correct. It would be good for us to encourage self-help and the rehabilitation of homes.

Mr. CLARK. The program would involve teaching skills to those out of work and living in substandard housing at the same time they rehabilitate their own house. That is of particular interest to me as chairman of the Subcommittee on Employment and Manpower.

I would therefore suggest, if the Senator concurs, that we should encourage the HHFA to integrate this housing program, particularly this community action program, to the maximum possible extent with the efforts of the Office of Economic Opportunity, which is waging the war on poverty, and which is headed by Mr. Shriver. Would not the Senator agree that that would be a wise administrative action to take?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I have not given thought to it, but my offhand opinion would be that it would be a very good move.

Mr. CLARK. I point out that such a program initiated voluntarily as long ago as 1952 by the Society of Friends was quite successful, it seemed to me. I hope that the Senator will agree that the proposed method of combating both urban decay and unemployment might well be fostered and encouraged by the Johnson administration.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I think it would be a good program.

Mr. CLARK. I presume the Senator shares my satisfaction with the increased emphasis on the rehabilitation of older houses, reflected in the bill. As President Johnson has pointed out, "it is often possible to improve, rebuild, and rehabilitate existing homes with less cost and less human dislocation" than is entailed in new construction.

Does not the Senator from Alabama agree that the supplemental rent program should be used to encourage non-profit and limited-profit organizations to rehabilitate older housing for low-income tenants, instead of necessarily building new housing all the time?

Mr. SPARKMAN. This could be looked into. There are complications. I am sure the Senator from Pennsylvania would agree with me that there are some things that would need to be worked out in that kind of program, but I think they could be worked out.

Mr. CLARK. I thank the Senator from Alabama for his helpful intervention.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may yield, without losing my right to the floor, to the Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER] and the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE], to permit them to offer an amendment.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I merely happen to be a cosponsor of the amendment. It is the Miller amendment. I do not know whether the Senator from Iowa is ready to present it yet or not.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The amendment has now become lost. I shall find it quickly, though.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. I am perfectly willing to wait until after the third reading of the bill to make the speech I have been trying to make all day.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Pennsylvania yield?

Mr. CLARK. I am happy to yield.

Mr. MORSE. The proceedings have been moving so fast that I have not been able to keep up with the latest move. The Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER] offered and I cosponsored an amendment to the last housing bill that was before the Senate. The last I knew was that the Senator from Iowa was working with members of the staff of the Senator from Alabama to see if a modification of the amendment might be acceptable. Has that modification been agreed to? If so, I shall be willing to place my statement in the RECORD, and perhaps the Senator from Iowa would be willing to place his statement in the RECORD, too.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, would the Senator from Alabama suggest that I continue with my speech, or is he about ready to make a decision?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I believe the Senator from Iowa is ready to proceed.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, without losing my right to the floor, I yield to the Senator from Iowa.

AMENDMENT NO. 349

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, for myself and on behalf of the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE], I call up amendment No. 349, as modified. I ask unanimous consent that the amendment, as modified, not be read but that it be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

On page 55, after line 5, insert the following new subsection:

"SEC. 309. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 'For the purposes of this title, the term "project" shall not include (except as provided in paragraph (7) above) (A) the construction or improvement of any building, or (B) the acquisition, disposition, or demolition of any building other than a substandard building. The term "redevelopment" and derivations thereof shall mean development as well as redevelopment.'

"(b) Section 110 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(1) "Substandard building" means any building other than a building (1) which can be economically improved or modified to meet requirements reasonably established by the local public agency for integration into an urban renewal plan, and (2) whose owner or lessee agrees within thirty days from date notice is received from the agency, and presents satisfactory evidence that he is willing and able, to make such improvements or modifications within a reasonable time limit set by the local public agency."

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, the amendment would merely amend the definition of the term "project" contained in the Housing Act of 1949 to preclude Federal assistance for the acquisition, disposition, or demolition of any building other than a "substandard building." The amendment defines "substandard building" as any building other than a building, first, which can be economically improved or modified to meet requirements reasonably established by the local public agency for integration into an urban renewal plan, and second, whose owner or lessee promptly agrees, and presents satisfactory evidence that he is able, to make such improvements or modifications within a reasonable time limit set by the local public agency.

Since we are dealing with legislation concerning urban renewal, we are affecting the homes and places of business of a great many people. Therefore, it is our belief that some practical guideline should be specified in the law for appropriate administrative officials to follow.

The Housing and Home Finance Agency has provided in its regulations—chapter 1, Selection and Treatment of Project Areas—some guidelines for clearance and redevelopment as follows:

The necessity for clearance of a project area, or of any part thereof, must be satisfactorily demonstrated in all cases. If conditions warranting clearance do not exist, the appropriate treatment will be conservation and rehabilitation which may include spot clearance.

The local public agency must also (1) show that the extent of clearance proposed is warranted, and (2) fully justify the acquisition of individual parcels of basically sound property which involves high-acquisition costs and might not be incompatible with land use proposals. Every possibility must be explored to develop an urban renewal plan which permits a maximum number of sound structures to remain in the area.

HHFA will not concur in the acquisition for demolition of property that is:

1. Of such quality and potential use that its retention is compatible with the achievement of the urban renewal plan objectives for the project area.

2. Capable of being improved and successfully integrated into the project.

Unfortunately, however, these regulations have not always been complied with. The most notorious example of the failure to follow these regulations is pointed out in the report of the General Accounting Office on the Urban Renewal Administration's approval of funds for the Erieview urban renewal project in Cleveland. The GAO stated that many buildings were torn down that need not have been demolished. It found that only 24 buildings in the area were substandard in contrast to the 84 substandard buildings cited in the Urban Renewal Agency's approval of funds.

Another example can be found right here in the Nation's Capital. Subcommittee No. 4 of the House Committee on the District of Columbia, under the chairmanship of Representative Downy, spent a great deal of time conducting hearings on the matter of urban renewal in the District of Columbia area. The results of the investigation of the Columbia Plaza project in the District raise serious questions about the grant of discretion which Congress has made to nonelected administrative officials and about the direction which future urban renewal should take. It is my understanding that the House District Committee's hearings are being printed now and will be available in the very near future.

In the meantime, I would invite attention to the rather shocking statistics set forth in a summary of the findings by Representative Downy appearing on pages 24046-24049 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of December 19, 1963.

In its report on the Erieview project—on page 35—the GAO made the following recommendations for the Administrator, HHFA, and the Commissioner, URA:

1. Revise the criteria governing the eligibility of areas for large-scale demolition to more clearly define the condition "substandard requiring clearance" and to relate this condition solely to the structural condition of the specific buildings being considered.

2. Clarify the criteria for Federal participation in proposed large-scale demolition projects to provide that, if an area does not have a significant number of structurally substandard buildings, expenditure of Federal funds shall be limited to other feasible but less costly forms of urban renewal (e.g., rehabilitation and spot clearance).

3. Obtain more effective administration, at all levels, of URA's established policy that the Government will not share in the cost of acquiring and demolishing properties which can be improved and successfully integrated into a project.

4. Require thorough examination by qualified HHFA personnel of the condition of structures in proposed project areas before such areas are approved for large-scale demolition.

5. Review the proposed demolition of buildings in project I—Erieview with the view toward retaining those buildings that can be successfully integrated into the project.

Commissioner William L. Slayton of the URA commented on the GAO report on the Cleveland Erieview project in a letter to the chairman of this subcommittee as follows:

Neat rules based on the structural condition of buildings or on the number of structurally substandard buildings in an area have an appeal in an engineering or accounting sense. I believe, however, that they would be self-defeating through vitiating the flexibility needed for a positive approach to urban renewal. They would work to prohibit clearance which may be required to achieve the objectives of a sound urban renewal plan. They also could make it extremely difficult for a local public agency to prepare and carry out an urban renewal plan that meets the objectives of the Federal statute as I understand them.

Our amendment would carry out the GAO recommendations. It would not vitiate the flexibility needed for a positive approach to urban renewal unless the redevelopment plans are designed to destroy property rights on a whimsical basis. It would not hamper those seeking to develop our urban areas who really wish to give recognition to the policy that buildings which can be integrated into a plan should be preserved, even though they may require some modifications. If modifications can be made economically to those buildings to meet reasonable requirements, and if the owners are ready, able, and willing to do so within a reasonable period of time, we believe it would be contrary to good policy for the Government to acquire such buildings for demolition.

From the statement in his housing message of January 27, 1964, that "Rehabilitation and preservation of existing housing wherever possible is a key element in the urban renewal process today," it appears that President Johnson agrees.

I want to emphasize the almost absolute power which the legislative branch has in this area.

In 1954, the Supreme Court rendered a decision in the case of Berman v. Parker, 348 U.S. 26, approving the public taking of property which was not substandard or slum property because it happened to be in an area covered by a redevelopment plan; moreover, the fact that the public taking was followed by sale for private use in conformity to the plan was held to not disqualify it under the "public use" requirement of the Constitution. The Court declared:

Subject to specific constitutional limitations, when the legislature has spoken, the public interest has been declared in terms well-nigh conclusive. In such cases the legislature, not the judiciary, is the main guardian of the public needs to be served by social legislation, whether it be Congress legisla-

ing concerning the District of Columbia or the States legislating concerning local affairs. This principle admits of no exception merely because the power of eminent domain is involved. The role of the judiciary in determining whether that power is being exercised for a public purpose is an extremely narrow one.

Aside from the constitutional requirements of due process and just compensation, then, the legislature holds in its hands absolute power over urban renewal.

It seems to me that property owners are entitled to the protection which would be provided by the guidelines we propose in our amendment. If Congress were to enact this legislation, an aggrieved property owner who did not think his property should be condemned for an urban renewal project could go into court. In the condemnation proceeding, the local public agency would have to show that the building to be acquired and demolished was "substandard." In that connection the agency must prove that the building could not be economically improved or modified to meet the requirements, which it had reasonably established, for integration into the plan; or, if the building could be economically modified, the Agency would have to show that the owner refused to do so.

This is not a very large burden of proof to put on an administrator who wishes to be fair. In our zeal for improvements for the public good we should never forget that Government exists primarily for the individual, and individual rights should be protected.

In conclusion, Mr. President, I would like to point out that I am not questioning the dedication of our administrative officials engaged in urban renewal. We all know, however, that to err is human. One reason we serve in Congress is to enact laws so that there will not be as many errors as there might otherwise be. That is why we have tried to devise an amendment to prevent a repetition in other parts of the country of poor administrative judgment as evidenced by the allotting of funds for the Erieview project in Cleveland and the Columbia Plaza project in the District.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, many aspects of urban renewal have not been resolved, despite the rising need for the upgrading of much of our metropolitan areas.

One of the difficulties many of us have in supporting not the theory but some of the practice of urban renewal has been the frequency with which private property is taken for an urban renewal project even though the property may not itself be substandard, or when an owner is willing to upgrade his property to the required level.

We know that urban renewal hinges in large part upon the use of eminent domain to take over large tracts of land. But very often the public authority is exercised to take property from one private owner and turn it over to another private owner—a developer—who has a redevelopment plan that has been adopted by the city for its own.

This principle becomes downright painful when the original property owner holds well maintained property, or when he is ready to remodel or improve his property to bring it up to the required level.

The amendment we are offering would permit such an owner to retain his property under those conditions, and when it fits into the renewal plan. I think that is a very reasonable standard.

It is reasonable not only from the standpoint of equity, but from the standpoint of the criticism that is growing about urban renewal, which is that it too often razes a monotony of substandard buildings, only to erect a monotony of new buildings.

There is not a single redevelopment area I know anything about that does not contain many buildings that would lend variety both of appearance and function to a redeveloped community if they could be preserved. Some of the provisions in this bill seek to place greater emphasis than previously upon rehabilitation as an alternative to complete razing and reconstruction. It does this by raising the rehabilitation grants to low-income homeowners in urban renewal areas.

We should accompany that provision with an assurance that if the property is well maintained, or is to be rehabilitated, and if function is within the terms of the renewal plan, the property may remain in the hands of its owner without being automatically condemned and leveled.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, there is no similar provision in the House bill. The modification, I think, could be lived with. It is agreeable to me to take the amendment to conference. It has to do with buildings within urban renewal areas that may be repaired.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama yield back the remainder of his time?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment, as modified, offered by the Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER].

The amendment, as modified, was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is open to further amendment.

The Chair recognizes the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there may be the third reading of the bill without losing my right to the floor.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, will the Senator from Pennsylvania please withhold his request for the third reading of the bill? The Senator from Delaware [Mr. WILLIAMS] wishes to propose an amendment. If the Senator from Pennsylvania will proceed with the delivery of his remarks, the Senator from Delaware will offer his amendment afterward.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, how much time have I remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania has about 5 minutes remaining.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I ask the manager of the bill to yield me 10 minutes more, so that I may have 15 minutes altogether.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania time on the bill sufficient to provide him with 15 minutes.

Mr. CLARK. I thank the Senator from Alabama.

On April 9, 1965, a group of nine Senators—including Mr. BAYH, Mr. HART, Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts, Mr. KENNEDY of New York, Mr. McNAMARA, Mr. MORSE, Mr. PELL, Mr. TYDINGS, and myself—submitted a joint statement before the Housing Subcommittee of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, entitled "A Decent Home for Every American."

It was our purpose in that statement, first, to express our support for S. 1354, the administration's Housing and Urban Development Act, and second, to commend to the subcommittee bolder program expansions and innovations which, in our judgment, are absolutely necessary if the goal of "a decent home for every American" is to be realized.

We pointed out the enormity of the task—in providing decent, safe, and sanitary shelter for the quarter of this Nation which today lives in substandard housing—in transforming our cities from gray wastelands of danger and decay into places of beauty and delight in curbing the unrestrained sprawl of suburbia across the last remaining islands of countryside near our great cities—in meeting the special needs of the old, the infirm, and those displaced by demolition and shifts in Federal spending. And we provided the subcommittee with a list of specific recommendations which, in our judgment, were better adapted to provide solutions to these problems than the proposals contained in the bill as introduced.

It is gratifying to note that a good many of these suggestions have been incorporated in the bill by the committee. Among the most significant are these:

First. The income limits for families qualified to receive the proposed rent supplements have been lowered in order to help those who need it the most—those with incomes low enough to qualify for public housing.

Second. Two new sections have been added to provide badly needed assistance to distressed homeowners who become unemployed as the result of the closing of a Federal installation. Under one provision, a homeowner who lost his job because of a Federal base closing could invoke a moratorium on his FHA or VA mortgage. The other new section would provide relief in a situation where, as a result of a base closing, a homeowner is unable to find a buyer willing to pay a fair price for his house. It would authorize the Secretary of Defense to buy the house at a price determined by consulting the market prior to the time the Department of Defense announced its intention to close the base.

Mr. President, I am happy to say that this provision will bring much relief to the Olmstead Air Force Base, at Harrisburg, Pa. This base has been closed by the Air Force, throwing out of work thousands of persons who own their own homes. They have had no possibility to sell them at anything like the prices which they paid for them.

These two provisions can be of great help in cushioning families against the financial shock of a base closing. It may be that many of the families who have been hard hit by the Federal phase-out at Olmstead Air Force Base, in my own State, will be able to ease their financial difficulties by making use of these new provisions.

Local housing authorities which have failed to build the housing units for which they have reserved Federal funds would now be given only 5 years to place them under construction. If they do not meet the deadline, the units would be re-allocated to communities that would build them.

The maximum income limit for families entitled to homeowner rehabilitation grants would be raised from $2,000 to a more realistic $3,000. Although this is still about $1,000 below where the limit should be, it is a substantial step in the right direction. Similarly, the maximum grant has been raised from $1,000 to $1,500—not enough, but still a meaningful improvement on the bill as introduced.

Open-space grants would be increased from 30 to 50 percent of the total cost of acquisition. The committee report points out that this was done to achieve comparability with the land and water conservation fund, which likewise offers 50-percent grants. But comparability will not be enough so long as the Bureau of the Budget continues to adhere to an erroneous interpretation of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act, as a result of which the use of the fund is denied for any conservation area half or more of which is within a metropolitan area. As one who supported that bill because it seemed the best vehicle for preserving open areas in close proximity to population centers, I urge the Bureau of the Budget to abandon this interpretation, which completely frustrates the intent of the Congress. The whole purpose of both the fund and the open space program in this bill is to provide green space where the people are, and it is absolutely erroneous to split them up and regard the open space program as an urban program, and the conservation fund as a primarily rural program.

Mr. President, I have discussed this with the able junior Senator from Washington [Mr. JACKSON]. He tells me that he agrees with my view. We hope to make as much of an effort to persuade the Bureau of the Budget to reverse its erroneous interpretation of the Land Conservation Act as is possible.

While there is much in the bills, as reported by the committee, which is laudable, in particular its emphasis upon low cost but safe and sanitary housing for those who have least to spend, there is much more that could and should have been done.

First. Measured against our needs on the one hand, and our potential on the other, this bill does not have enough money in it to do the job. With unemployment still in the area of 5 percent, and our actual GNP still from $25 to $35 billion short of its potential in terms of matching idle hands with idle machinery, a frugality which condemns millions to housing which is not decent, safe, and sanitary is neither wise nor humane. We can well afford a larger program.

Significantly it is the great cities, and particularly those areas which surround the downtown core, which have suffered most. To the older residential areas have come the waves of migrants—under-skilled and in flight from economic failure, less able in many ways to cope with the complexities of urban living and the new demands of the job market than the immigrants from overseas who preceded them. Simultaneously the Federal Government has been subsidizing the flight to the suburbs of the middle class: through the operation of the FHA and VA programs, and through the vast Federal highway program which has made feasible the use of suburban land for home and factory sites. It is largely true that the wealth produced in the cities has been drained out by the Federal income tax and redistributed first to agriculture, second to suburbia, and third—the leavings—to the cities. And all this has gone on while the tax base of the cities has been eroding, and the cost of municipal services has been climbing.

Paradoxically, although the present bill acknowledges this by expanding the responsibilities of the Federal Government in the field of housing and urban development, it fails to expand the authorization of funds necessary to carry out these responsibilities. For example, instead of a capital grant authorization for urban renewal of $2.9 billion for 4 years, at least $1 billion per year should be authorized. The need is there. The money could be wisely spent.

Second. Although the new towns concept was brought forth stillborn this year, I am confident that it, or something very like it, will have to be adopted before too long. Unless it is, a substantial proportion of our population will shortly be clustered in one vast "slurb" stretching from Boston to Washington and beyond. Similar "slurbs" will exist in every other large metropolitan area. I cannot imagine that we will wait for the last patch of woods to fall to the subdividers before we act—but there are fewer and fewer patches of woods with every day that passes—and as the new beltways spread out in concentric circles, there will be fewer still.

It must be stressed that the new town, if it is to succeed, must be more than a middle class ghetto. It is not enough merely to change the physical features of the suburbs by replacing acres of tiny lots with clustered row houses and high rise apartments. My guess is that the ennui of suburbia which one hears so much about is more a function of the lack of variety in the community than the physical landscape.

It is essential that the new towns not be homogeneous, not only because our democratic traditions require it, but because variety and vitality go hand in hand. Adequate shelter must be available at all levels—even for those who will require rent supplements—so that all segments of American society can participate in and contribute to the life of the new communities.

Third. A great deal more must be done to expand the capabilities of local public housing authorities to supply adequate low-cost housing for the poor. The provisions in the committee bill which provide for modest increases in per room cost limitations are good, but go only part of the way. The nub of the problem will continue to be the cost of land acquisition. One approach, suggested in the joint statement, but unfortunately rejected by the committee, is the elimination of the artificial distinction between clearing a site for public housing and clearing a site for urban renewal. This could be done by providing for the clearance of public housing sites the same write down which is available for urban renewal.

Undoubtedly the flexibility of local housing authorities will be greatly enhanced by the new provision which would permit them to make greater use of existing housing through the purchase, rehabilitation, and lease of existing housing units. But would it not have made equally good sense to make available to local housing authorities direct low-interest rehabilitation loans under section 312 of the 1964 Housing Act, and permit them to take advantage of the FHA's 221(d)(3) below market insurance program? Similarly, local authorities should have been given a clear mandate to acquire an appropriate participating share in a variety of housing projects, as long as the cost does not exceed the established limits. An authority should be able to share in the development of a 221(d)(3) project, or buy participating shares in a cooperative, or enter into advance lease agreements with a builder for rental units in a projected building or development.

This is not iconoclasm; it is common-sense. Artificial compartmentalization of programs and jealous jurisdictional disputes cannot be permitted to bar us from our goal—the provision of decent shelter for every American.

Fourth. It is appropriate that a major emphasis in the bill should be on the rehabilitation of older housing.

I have had a discussion earlier today concerning this matter with the distinguished Senator in charge of the bill, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], and he agrees with me.

Most of the more than 9 million homes in this country which are run down or deteriorating are in cities. Our characteristic response has been heavy-handed; rather than seek to preserve our urban heritage we have opted for the bulldozer. In doing so we have haphazardly erased, along with the eyesores, much of the history, charm, and vitality which provides the delight in urban living. As President Johnson pointed out in his message on the cities:

We have concentrated almost all our past effort on building new units, when it is often possible to improve, rebuild, and rehabilitate existing homes with less cost and less human dislocation.

Progress in this new direction will be aided by the upward revisions in the program of rehabilitation grants to low-income homeowners in urban renewal areas, and the FHA's section 220 mortgage insurance program as it applies to rental housing in urban renewal area. But the need remains for a massive expansion of the section 312 program adopted last year for direct 3-percent loans for rehabilitation of existing housing and business properties in urban renewal areas. That program was initially provided with a revolving fund of $50 million—a sum which can be considered no more than a token amount in view of the need. If we intend to make a serious effort to curb the growth of slums, and reinvigorate the decaying gray areas which surround the heart of nearly all our cities, at least $150 million will have to be authorized for this loan program.

In addition it should be made clear that rehabilitation and rent supplements are not alternatives, but rather that they are to go hand in hand. The rent subsidy program should be used to encourage nonprofit and limited-profit organizations to rehabilitate older housing for low-income tenants.

Fifth. Although urban planning grants under section 701 of the Housing Act of 1964 are available to State and metropolitan planning agencies, and in some cases to cities, they are not presently available to local public housing authorities. In the interest of facilitating local communitywide planning for low-income housing, housing authorities should be added to those entitled to receive grants under this program.

Although I shall give my strong support to this housing and urban development bill, I do so with a full awareness that it is a blend of ambitious programs and missed opportunities, beneficial innovations and parsimonious authorizations. What we have omitted to do this year, we shall have to do next year, or the year after. Meanwhile millions of Americans will be condemned to continue to live in ramshackle homes where the roof leaks and the plumbing does not work. We are the richest Nation in the history of mankind. When we fail to provide a decent home for every American, it is not because we cannot, but because we would not.

But I believe that the people of this country will not let us fail because they know that we are all involved and that the poison which breeds in slums spreads to sicken the whole society. As President Johnson has said:

The modern city can be the most ruthless enemy of the good life, or it can be its servant. The choice is up to this generation of Americans.

If our cities are to continue in their historic role as communities for the enrichment of the life of man, there is only one choice we can make, and we must not delay much longer in making it.

It is plain, however, that we will be able to do so only after we have unshackled ourselves from the unreal and outmoded economic concepts which purport to measure the responsibility of a government in terms of its ability to keep the Federal budget small, and in balance. We must come to understand that the only government which is truly responsible is one which has the courage to keep the Federal budget large enough to provide the essential services to all of its citizens—including decent housing, education to the maximum of the capabilities of each child, and preservation of our precious natural heritage—and large enough as well to provide the economic stimulus needed to bring about full employment.

Given the spectacular rate of expansion of our economy, the day when a hundred-billion-dollar budget could meet these needs has long since past. To cling to an artificial limit of a hundred billion dollars in the face of the continuing growth of the overall economy is, in fact, to move backwards. I hope that the President and his advisers will come to see and acknowledge this in the months ahead while they are engaged in preparing the budget for next year.

There is much to be done if the Great Society to which we all aspire is to become a reality. But I believe that that vision is not a chimera—that it lies, in fact, practically within our grasp. If, however, we are truly to abolish poverty and enrich the lives of all Americans, as I believe we can, we must show the courage to discard those long held and deeply cherished economic fictions which stand in our way. We must be prepared, and I hope that before very long we shall be prepared, to say "Good riddance" to the myths of yesterday, and "Welcome" to the future.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware. Mr. President, I send my amendment to the desk, and ask the clerk to state it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BREWSTER in the chair). The amendment offered by the Senator from Delaware will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. It is proposed, on page 46, after line 6, to insert a new section as follows:

STUDY OF CERTAIN FHA INSURANCE PROGRAMS

SEC. 214. The Federal Housing Commissioner shall undertake a study of existing programs for the insurance of mortgages secured by multifamily housing projects with a view to making recommendations for strengthening such programs and reducing losses thereunder. Findings and recommendations resulting from such study shall be reported to the Congress not later than January 1, 1966.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware. Mr. President, I yield myself 10 minutes.

In recent weeks my attention has been called to the alarming rate at which multifamily projects have been going into bankruptcy, particularly in the Florida and Texas areas.

Upon analysis, I have been much concerned to find that in many instances there has not been a careful evaluation as to the original cost of the land and the actual cost of construction, and relating that cost to the mortgage. Some of the mortgages on these projects have been overinsured by virtue of having the actual cost of the land, and the actual cost of construction, inflated for the purpose of obtaining a larger mortgage guarantee from the Government. In some instances, excessive profits have been made by construction firms owned by those borrowing the money and then building projects, with large salaries making up a part of the cost. Some of these projects were not economically feasible and never should have been approved.

Many of these projects have gone bankrupt without any payments having been made either on the principal or interest.

Concern should be given to the manner in which contractors are borrowing money for multifamily projects, setting up separate corporate entities for each project whereby, if one goes bankrupt, the Government is left holding the bag, but if another project makes a profit, that corporate entity keeps it. The profits on one project cannot be attached to offset the losses on another. The borrower should be required to put his own guarantee on that mortgage and pledge all of his assets toward its repayment.

My amendment directs the Commissioner to report to Congress as to the number of foreclosures being made, so we may make further examination of the law to see if it needs amendment.

At the same time I strongly recommend that the Committee on Banking and Currency reexamine the financing arrangements being made on these multifamily projects. The alarming rate of foreclosures with no payments having been made—the numerous instances of windfall profits by irresponsible operators—should be adequate warning to the Congress.

I understand the manager of the bill is willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware. I yield.

Mr. TOWER. I commend the Senator for offering the amendment. It is a constructive and worthwhile one. I add my urging to the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee to accept the amendment.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I am willing to accept the amendment. It fits in very well with provisions we have in the bill already.

Furthermore, I should like to say that the subcommittee carries on a study all the time. We have had various constituent agencies of FHHA make reports. In the bill we provide for specific studies. The amendment is a good one. I am willing to accept it.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware. I am glad to know that the committee is studying this situation. I know that the General Accounting Office has been much concerned with the same problem and they too may have a report later. This amendment would put extra emphasis on the importance of this study and also put a time limit for making the report to the Congress. Later I expect to have some more examples of bankrupt projects which were too heavily mortgaged and which should have been recognized as economically unsound in the first place. I yield back my time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time on the amendment has been yielded back.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment of Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware was agreed to.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes on the bill to the Senator from Maryland.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland may proceed for 2 minutes.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, yesterday, the distinguished senior Senator from California [Mr. KUCHEL], spoke most eloquently about the necessity of expanding the program of the Farmers Home Administration. There are numerous families in small communities of a rural character with populations of more than 2,500 who should be able to avail themselves of Farmers Home Administration loans so that they may be able to afford decent housing.

At the present time, the Farmers Home Administration uses the census figure of 2,500 to define a rural area. The amendment offered by the Senator from California [Mr. KUCHEL] would have defined a rural area as one with a population of 5,500 or less, and which is not part of or associated with an urban area.

The Senator from California withdrew his amendment when the distinguished Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] gave assurances that the housing problems of the residents of small rural communities would be sympathetically considered in conference, so that language might be drafted to expand the rural housing programs to the areas of existing need.

Mr. President, I wish to associate myself with the remarks of the Senator from California concerning the need for providing housing assistance to the small rural communities. I wish, in addition, to commend the Senator from Alabama for his assurances that he will seek to draft language to deal with this problem in a fair and equitable manner.

I am particularly concerned that the very worthwhile program of housing loans to rural families be provided with the necessary flexibility to aid as many of our rural families as possible to acquire adequate housing. The present population limitation of 2,500 effectively prevents the accomplishment of this goal, in some instances.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to insert at the end of my remarks an article from the Baltimore Sun about an excellent rural housing program near Chestertown on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. This program was ineligible for the Farmers Home Administration's rural housing loan program because according to the 1960 census report, Chestertown had a population of 3,602.

Under a more realistic definition of a rural community, the residents of the

Chestertown area, and the residents of many similar rural communities throughout our country, will be better able to make the American promise of decent, stable housing for every deserving family a living reality.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MARYLAND WOMAN GIVES LAND TO KENT COUNTY NEGROES

(By Douglas D. Connah, Jr.)

CHESTERTOWN, Md.—November 14.—A wealthy woman is giving Kent County Negroes land to build houses on.

A foundation set up by Mrs. Louisa d'A. Carpenter, of Wilmington, Del., has bought 50 acres of rolling farmland near here to give away in half-acre lots.

Richard Carvell, Mrs. Carpenter's Chestertown lawyer, is guiding the low-cost housing experiment as director of the Springfield Foundation, Inc., which was started, he said, "primarily to improve the living conditions of the Negroes here, who needed it, God knows."

SPURRED BY UNREST

Mrs. Carpenter and Mr. Carvell had thought about the plan for several years, and outbreaks of racial trouble on the Eastern Shore in 1963 helped them decide to go ahead.

Their idea is to make decent homes available at the lowest possible cost, to help people leave the slums.

The families who move into the new neighborhood, called Washington Park, will pay from $7,700 to $8,825 for new three- and four-bedroom shingle houses, the foundation will pay for everything else the property involves.

SEVENTY-THREE LOTS

Seventy-three lots each at least 20,000 square feet, have been laid out, and about 4 acres have been reserved for a park.

Contracts have been signed for 22 houses. Two are completed, four are under construction, and people will probably be moving in by Christmas.

A committee of three Negroes and three whites screens applicants. The qualities it looks for, Mr. Carvell said, are good moral character, a good credit reputation and enough earning power to handle a 20-year mortgage.

The project has had its share of headaches. The main problem has been, and still is, finding low-interest financing.

"Well, naturally these people had not been able to accumulate any money," Mr. Carvell said, "and therefore we knew it was very important that we obtain as low a price as possible."

"I thought we'd have no trouble getting 4 or 4½ percent money through the Federal Government."

Mr. Carvell had heard about all kinds of Government programs to help the poor, but now he speaks with wry disenchantment when he talks about Federal aid. When he went to Washington for help, he said, he couldn't find it.

The Farmers Home Administration, which lends money directly, turned him down. The development would be a satellite of Chestertown, it said, and would not qualify as a rural area.

RATES TOO HIGH

The Federal Housing Administration, which insures mortgages, was sympathetic, he said, but the interest rates were too high.

Mr. Carvell even called the White House. "They thought it was a wonderful idea," he said. "We couldn't get the money."

Meanwhile, local Negroes, who had been told of the project during the Cambridge racial crisis, were beginning to get restless. They suspected that the plan had been merely a dodge to keep them quiet until the racial unrest died down and that the houses were unlikely ever to materialize.

Mrs. Carpenter then agreed to allow the foundation to pay part of the mortgage interest on the first 22 houses, so work could begin. Three local banks agreed to take the mortgages at 6 percent.

PAYING 2 PERCENT

The foundation is paying 2 percent, and the buyers 4, but this arrangement won't be available for later houses, Mr. Carvell said. The foundation already pays for the land, the streets, the waterlines, the septic tanks, and other incidental costs.

Mr. Carvell has not given up on the Federal Government yet, and he also plans to get in touch with the Ford and Rockefeller Foundations.

The buyer's monthly mortgage payment ranges from $47.50 for a three-bedroom house to $55.16 for four bedrooms, plus about $13 a month for taxes, insurance, and water.

When a home buyer is given his land, he must sign a contract with the builder, E. S. Adkins & Co. This protects the foundation's interest.

RESTRICTIONS CITED

For 20 years there will be restrictions: the homeowner cannot lease, sell, or add to the property without the foundation's consent, or use it for a business. The foundation has also appointed a supervisory committee of residents, to make sure the property is kept up.

"You cannot conceive, frankly, of the detail work that was involved," Mr. Carvell said, "but despite all the disappointments, it has been more than worth it because of the response of the people who are going to move out there."

Mrs. Carpenter, a sister of Robert Carpenter, owner of the Philadelphia Phillies, owns a farm in Kent County and over the years has contributed to several other local projects.

There are three basic designs—a three-bedroom and a four-bedroom one-story house, and a three-bedroom house with unfinished space upstairs for another bedroom and a bath.

Living-dining rooms range from 13½ by 17½ feet to 12 by 22½ feet, and most bedrooms range from about 9½ by 12½ feet to about 12 by 13 feet. Gas stoves and refrigerators come with the houses.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes on the bill to the Senator from Texas.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Mr. President, I congratulate the committee on the fine bill which it has reported out to the Senate. I am particularly pleased with the sections of the bill which make special provision for our elderly. As the report to the bill states;

One of the most urgent needs in the field of housing is the provision of suitable accommodations for our elderly citizens. This older age group is growing more rapidly than the population as a whole and, generally speaking, its incomes are substantially lower.

In recognition of this ever-growing problem the committee has put in the bill two sections which will go a long way to insuring that every one of our senior citizens can live out his life in the comfort of his own home surrounded by his friends and family.

Section 101 of the bill provides for rent supplements to our senior citizens with low incomes. This provision is particularly important to those older Americans living in our great urban areas where it is impossible for persons of modest means to own their own housing.

For those older citizens who are seeking to buy their own housing under the direct loan program for housing the elderly, section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, section 105 of the bill sets the interest rate at 3 percent. Under the present program this rate has already climbed from 3¾ to 4 percent on June 30 of this year. The lowering of the interest rate to 3 percent will be very helpful to those of our older citizens seeking to pay off these loans out of small, fixed incomes. The committee has also had the foresight to enlarge the authorization for the direct loan program from $350 to $500 million. This will mean that an increasing number of our elderly citizens can complete their lives in the safety and comfort of their own homes.

I again congratulate the committee on reporting out this excellent bill and urge that the Senate give it overwhelming approval so that every deserving American may have the chance to live in a decent home at a decent cost.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes on the bill to the Senator from Maryland.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I rise to congratulate the distinguished Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] and his able subcommittee for the bill which they have brought before us.

This bill is a good bill. It strengthens and expands existing programs. It is also a progressive bill. It offers a number of important innovations. I am particularly pleased that the committee has provided for rent supplements, mortgage insurance for land development, and grants for neighborhood community centers.

For the cities, the committee has provided an increase of $2.9 billion, over 4 years, in capital grants to public bodies for urban renewal and resulting relocation. The bill also offers the inhabitants of these cities new assistance in the form of $50 million worth of rent supplements over each of the next 4 years. This aid should allow private builders to construct 500,000 units of standard housing for low-income families. The bill also provides for 60,000 more units of public housing to be built over each of the next 4 years.

For homeowners and renters everywhere, but especially in the suburbs, all FHA insurance programs have been extended for another 4 years. In addition, another $1.625 million has been authorized for purchase of mortgages by the Federal National Mortgage Association.

For the rural areas, $300 million has been authorized for making or insuring housing loans for low- and moderate-income families.

Finally, the bill extends and expands programs of urban and regional planning, for open-space conservation, the development of urban parks, and for advance public works planning.

Because of these and numerous other worthwhile provisions, this bill is an excellent continuation of our 31-year-old national housing program.

Nonetheless, I am concerned about the enormity of our future housing needs. Population estimates show that by the year 2000 we will be a nation of 340 million people. This means that in the next 35 years we will need to provide housing for an additional 145 million Americans.

The manner in which these additional people are housed, schooled, and employed will do much to shape the face of our Nation. As land becomes increasingly scarce, it is apparent that imaginative and coordinated planning innovations will be necessary if we are to have attractive, well-planned communities.

Undoubtedly the growth of the next three decades will be too great to be entirely absorbed by our central cities. They are already crowded. While urban renewal can be expected to improve living conditions and help beautify our cities, it cannot be expected to provide for significantly increased population density. As the National Housing Conference has indicated, most of our growth will occur in what is "presently undeveloped land or farmland in or near metropolitan areas."

Absent new directions in Federal housing programs, much of this new land development will, I fear follow the all too prevalent pattern of unplanned urban sprawl.

The social, economic, and esthetic costs of this form of development have proved exorbitant. What it too often produces are homogeneous residential areas in which all families are of the same income level, the same religion, and the same social stratum. The community is thus denied the vitality that comes with the interaction of individuals of different social and economic outlooks.

The National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials has stressed that—

Richness of experience in neighborhood life is enhanced by a mixture of family types and incomes. * * * Complete segregation by income class—whether it be in a high income suburb or a welfare poorhouse—can be sterile living for its inhabitants.

Another social cost of creeping subdivisionism is the lack of open spaces sufficient to satisfy the recreational needs of the community. The inadequacy of facilities for baseball, swimming, camping, golf, boating, tennis, and other sports is painfully apparent in too many of our suburbs.

The economic costs of a sprawl pattern of development is equally enormous. Among those cited by HHFA Administrator Robert Weaver are the higher costs for sewer and water facilities built on a small scale without areawide planning. Equally important are the tremendous costs of extended trunklines for sewer and water which the wasteful use of land requires.

It is the traffic problem, however, that best dramatizes the economic costs of urban sprawl. Whereas a regional development plan would provide for a mass transit system built to meet residential and business needs, development by sprawl usually results in inadequate highways and in population patterns that make mass transit unworkable. The consequence is a coast-to-coast traffic jam costing this Nation an estimated $6 to $8 billion a year in lost time and wages, higher accident rates, and extra vehicle wear and tear, and all in addition to personal exasperation and frayed nerves.

Finally, sprawl has serious esthetic consequences. It indiscriminately tears up the American countryside to criss-cross it with the asphalt and concrete of our superhighways; it digs up fertile soil and replaces it with uneconomic pipelines to serve a poorly placed community; it places row upon row of blocklike houses in grid patterns which do not conform with the topography of the land. And whatever countryside it does not mutilate or cover it blocks from view with the billboard jungle that surrounds the highways.

Uncoordinated land use and lack of diversity are the natural consequences of the piecemeal development that has been encouraged, in part, by Federal housing programs. Rather than working within the framework of an overall scheme, too many independent developers are able to receive governmental assistance to purchase and develop their tracts without adequately considering the needs of the larger community.

It is long past time in my judgment to gear the program of Federal assistance to the needs of the future. Rather than stimulating sprawl, we must develop methods for encouraging the rational use of undeveloped land. One of the most promising techniques is offered by the concept of the "New Town." This concept of planned new towns is not a new one to this country. It has existed since the depression, in the form of Government-built greenbelt towns; it exists in the town of Park Forest, a planned, relatively self-contained community built near Chicago soon after the war. New town developments in England, Sweden, and Canada have existed for some years. But the galloping growth of our metropolitan areas in the forties and fifties largely ignored the planned, economical, yet richly diversified use of land envisioned in the new town in favor of the shortsighted, wasteful, but easy-to-execute suburban sprawl.

Recently, concerned observers of our growing population and diminishing land supply have attempted to revive the new town idea. I am delighted by the advances made by private developers in this field, including three of the pioneer developments which are being planned now in nearby Reston, Va.; Columbia and Gaithersburg, Md. But the increasing needs of our population for housing are staggering, and the need for new, well-planned communities with adequate open spaces, schools, transit, and community amenities, cannot be met by a few exceedingly well-financed, large developers.

I was thus pleased that the President recommended legislation to provide Federal assistance for the development of new towns. This legislation will enable a great many more developers who lack enormous financial resources, to participate in the development of large, well-planned communities. It will also enable State and local planning agencies to establish priorities and potential locations for substantial new communities secure in the belief that there will be a significant number of potential developers, and that their plans will not be at the mercy of only one or two financial giants. Moreover, the bill's requirement that these developments include "a proper balance of housing for families of moderate or low income" goes a long way toward offering our disadvantaged minority groups a viable alternative to life in the crowded cities.

The stimulus of such new town development is contained in title II of the administration bill. As proposed, the bill would have provided substantial FHA mortgage insurance to assist in financing the cost of land development for residential and related purposes and it would have authorized the Housing and Home Finance Administrator to make loans to State land development agencies to finance the acquisition of land to be used for the development of well-planned residential communities.

The bill as reported is largely patterned on the President's proposal. Certain changes have, however, been made. First, the provisions for HHFA loans to State land development agencies has been deleted; second, mortgage obligations for a single land development that can be insured under the bill can at no time exceed $10 million, rather than the $25 million ceiling set by the administration bill; third, mortgages, except for those relating to privately owned sewer and water systems, may not exceed 7 years; and fourth, the provision extending FNMA special assistance to permit the purchase of new town mortgages has been deleted.

While some of these changes limit the scope and flexibility of the President's proposal, they do not seriously detract from the basic concept of providing Federal assistance for large-scale land development.

What disappoints me, however, is that the committee report envisions only a limited role for this innovation. Although, on its face, the bill seems to permit mortgage insurance to be used to encourage land development on any scale, page 17 of the committee report specifically states that the mortgage insurance provisions are not to be used for "land development which would, in fact, create independent new towns."

I trust this does not mean that the bill should not be used to assist large, well-planned communities with an independent economic base, adequate open spaces, recreation facilities, schools, churches, and community amenities.

I do not, of course, expect the Administrator to violate the committee's clear admonition not to use this title to "create independent new towns." But there is no clear point at which a neighborhood is of such magnitude as to be a subdivision and there is likewise no obvious distinction in size between a subdivision and an independent new town. These verbalizations are merely attempts to segmentize the continuum running from the small subdivisions to the new town.

Thus, I urge that the mortgage insurance provisions be construed to cover the large, well-planned community or subdivision, for it is this type of development, with its own sources of employment, schools and transit system, that must be encouraged if we are to change the waste of urban sprawl into the savings of resources and beauty inherent in a carefully planned community.

I am fully aware that this broader application of the mortgage insurance provisions was opposed at the hearings by representatives of the mayors and of the homebuilders. I believe that their opposition is ill advised. The mayors argued that conditions in our cities should be improved before Federal assistance is given to the development of new land. This argument fails to come to grips with the size and immediacy of the population increase. Urban renewal and new land development are not alternatives; rather they are complementary programs designed to meet the awesome task of housing 145 million more people in the next 35 years.

The builders expressed fear that large scale developments would squeeze out the small builder. What will actually happen, it seems to me, is that the mortgage builder provisions will increase the number of building sites while provisions of section 1004 will assure that a fair proportion of these sites are made available to small builders. The question is not whether small builders will participate in the housing explosion, but whether they will help to build more sprawl or planned communities. The residents of the new communities will reap the numerous benefits cited by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

They include efficient land use, orderly conversion of undeveloped land to urban use, protection and development of natural resources, preservation of large open spaces, expanded opportunities for outdoor recreation, efficient arrangement of public utilities and services, effective transportation systems, variety of living environments and imaginative design.

The realization of these benefits is something that cannot be postponed. Each year vast areas fall prey to urban sprawl. In his speech on March 2, President Johnson pointed out that "Last year alone 1 million acres were urbanized." If we begin to act now we can register enormous savings in both money and hardship by seeing that development is coordinated. But if we wait until much of our undeveloped land has been overrun by sprawl we will, nonetheless, find it necessary to carry out what will then be redevelopment plans. It seems clear to me that when the job is done for the first time, it should be done right.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield 3 minutes on the bill to the Senator from New Mexico.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico is recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. FANNIN. Mr. President, this bill is another example of omnibus legislation which apparently has been designed to please a variety of interests instead of accomplishing a specific objective.

Everyone will agree that adequate housing at a reasonable cost is a desirable goal, and in fact we have come closer to achieving this objective for all of our citizens than any other nation in the world.

I would also agree that adequate housing—at rentals they can afford to pay—is not now available to a small minority of the population in some areas of the country.

However, I am not persuaded that this particular bill will solve that problem.

The minority report on S. 2213 ably pointed out the bill's defects and weaknesses, especially those provisions relating to the novel rent subsidy program and below-market-rate financing of housing construction.

We are told that the subsidy would be limited to those families with incomes that would qualify them for public housing under existing regulations. But the truth is that under this bill, the Housing Administrator would have the administrative authority to define income and set up eligibility procedures.

Another weakness of this bill is the fact that no effective ceiling is established on the amount of rent supplement which the Government could pay for any one unit under the plan. Again, this is left to the discretion of the Administrator.

I share the concern of those who are alarmed at vesting this kind of broad authority in what would be virtually a Federal housing czar.

As for the financing provisions, I cannot accept the economic judgment of those who want to finance construction at rates below what it will cost the Federal Treasury to borrow the money. Nor do I think it is wise for the Congress to commit the Government to a program of guaranteeing rental payments to mortgagors for 40 years.

If a need can be factually demonstrated for additional public housing units, that is one thing. Personally, I am not convinced.

But I do not understand how you can justify saying on the one hand that public housing has not done the job, and then turn around and authorize more public housing units in a package that is supposedly designed to assist private enterprise.

It has been pointed out without contradiction that, under certain conditions regarding income definition, a family in New York with an income in excess of $11,000 a year could be eligible for the rental subsidy program. To me, this is certainly not helping the low-income families to obtain improved housing.

Finally, Mr. President, I am genuinely concerned that one effect of this legislation will be to discourage individual home ownership throughout the country.

It is certainly not my intention to disparage anyone who by choice or necessity rents instead of owns. At the same time, all of us recognize that homeownership by an increasing number of our citizens is one of the distinguishing characteristics of our way of life.

This growing proportion of homeowners in our population contributes much stability to our society, and there is abundant evidence to indicate a definite relationship between homeownership and a high degree of good citizenship and participation in community affairs.

Any legislation in the housing field should aim at encouraging more Americans to acquire and maintain their own homes. But there are elements in this bill that will tend to destroy the incentive to purchase and keep up a home.

Just this afternoon, I was informed by Mr. George E. Leonard, chairman of the board of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association in Phoenix, Ariz., that the foreclosure rate on individual homes in my State has reached an alarming stage. In the Phoenix area alone, I am informed that more than 5,000 units are either foreclosed or in the process of being foreclosed.

The FHA report for June 30 listed 1,879 defaults pending, 706 foreclosures completed but not yet transferred, and 1,161 properties on hand. Add to this from the Veterans' Administration the following—815 defaults pending, 439 liquidations pending and about 300 properties on hand—and the total exceeds 5,000 units. Further, it has been reported to me that comparable situations exist in other parts of the country as well.

Consider the effect of the rent subsidy program on those families with limited income who are struggling to keep their homes and continue building their equity in them.

This bill tells them, in effect, not to worry with it all. It says to these hard-working people, go ahead and abandon the home and let the Government pay your rent.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes on the bill to the Senator from New Hampshire.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. President, I support the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, because I believe that it offers a mixture of ingredients for private initiative to utilize in meeting today's housing needs. We have listened to a great deal of discussion in the Housing Subcommittee and here on the Senate floor attesting to the broad scope of the unfulfilled needs for decent, safe, and sanitary housing—the grim reality that in 1965 we still have over 8 million homes which are dilapidated or deteriorated and more than 4 million homes which have neither running water nor plumbing. In my State of New Hampshire the percentage of housing units deteriorating or dilapidated runs as high as 29 percent in Grafton County with some towns having as much as 73 percent of their housing units in this category. Far too many people are living in unsafe and inadequate shelter without hot water, toilet, and bath facilities.

What alternative is available to these ill housed? Where can they turn if forced to leave? In this instance demand far exceeds supply—there simply is not enough adequate housing available for poorly housed low-income Americans today.

This housing shortage has recently come to the forefront right here in the District of Columbia, and I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD at this point two articles which appeared in the Washington Post pointing out the urgency of the situation.

There being no objection, the articles were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CITY'S HOUSING SHORTAGE THE TARGET, FRUSTRATION THE THEME AT DISCUSSION

(By George Lardner, Jr.)

Frustration was the theme.

The city's shortage of low-cost housing was the target. The audience sounded aroused.

But the members of more than 25 housing organizations, civil rights groups, and public agencies who gathered to try to "do something" about the housing crisis seemed to realize they were punching futilely at the same old paper bag—full of exorbitant rents, dilapidated homes, slumlords, and the bureaucratic delays facing almost any attempt at improvement.

"We seem to be moving backward," said Stephen Pollak, president-elect of the Washington Planning and Housing Association which called the meeting.

"A tent on the Mall would be an enormous improvement for more people than I care to think of," said Harris Weinstein, the Association's Housing Committee chairman.

The D.C. Coalition of Conscience has been trying to put up a tent for a family of 13—with two working mothers—who were evicted last month, but can't find new quarters. The emergency housing program the city loudly promised in May for predicaments like this may take another 3 months to get started, according to city officials who are not accustomed to rushing.

Forty-five real estate agents and nine public and private agencies had been called, said Coalition cochairman Walter E. Fauntroy, but none could come up with a single unit that the family could afford.

The tent, of course, is a gimmick—but an appropriate one. As Mr. Fauntroy said, "We have to create pressure to effect the cures."

One WPHA worker who helps families in the Cardozo area told of an eight-room house worth $17,600 that produces gross rentals of $600 a month for its owner.

The worker, Tom Flor, also told of another landlord who "for the 40th time in the last 6 months has evicted or threatened to evict families because they called the city's Housing Division" to get needed repairs ordered.

Another WPHA worker, Belvie Rooks, broke into tears when she described how her organization had to pay $300 a month in back rent to "one of the worst slumlords in the city" to save a mother of seven from eviction from a house with broken-down plumbing and inadequate heating. The family, Miss Rooks said, had been living there for 3 years when the old owner died. Suddenly, she said, the rent went up from $50 a month with utilities to $100 a month—without utilities.

The audience had plenty of suggestions—ranging from rent controls, to tougher enforcement of the housing code to easing the housing code's restrictions against overcrowding.

Mr. Fauntroy suggested that citizens' organizations start scouring the suburbs for sites—a suggestion that should be well worth pursuing under the administration's rent subsidy program before Congress. He proposed that "we move into the surrounding area and, if necessary, purchase land to relieve the (city's housing) need."

But no one followed through with the thought. Despite the suggestions, the meeting reflected, primarily, a feeling of exasperation at all the years gone by without any substantial progress.

"What we called victories really just switched people around the slums," said Lillian Secundy of the Washington Urban League.

The WPHA had drafted a statement calling for more low-income housing in the city and action on several long-stalled projects, but the audience didn't bother to endorse it.

"Pious paragraphs," said one speaker. "Too wishy-washy," said another.

Pollak agreed, but added: "I'm wondering what we can do." He suggested development of a "plan of action" backed by a federation of all interested organizations. But no one could do anything right away. They've got their boards of directors to check with.

Everyone, it seems, is saddled with his own bureaucracy—which brings us back to the District Building.

District Commissioner Walter N. Tobriner has suggested "an emergency in low-cost housing" might be declared—so the Commissioners could temporarily lift relatively minor housing code requirements in run-down neighborhoods.

The suggestion was sincerely made, but it hardly seems an adequate response to an emergency. If it had any noticeable effect, it would probably benefit the landlords more than the tenants, and promote slums rather than decent housing.

If the Commissioners can agree there's an "emergency"—and there is—perhaps they might try promoting some one- or two-block urban renewal projects—for public housing. It might not work, but it seems worth the attempt. It'll take a while to get to the suburbs.

[From the Washington (D.C.) Post, July 25, 1965]

HOUSING WAITING LIST KEEPS LENGTHENING
(By George Lardner Jr.)

His T-shirt sagging, a tired traveler shuffled up the steps of an antique red building on New York Avenue NW.

He got there just in time to catch Walter E. Washington, executive director of the National Capital Housing Authority, in the hallway.

"I walked all the way from Baltimore," the man announced solemnly. "But," he said lowering his voice, "I don't want a handout; I want a job."

"You ought to have something to eat after a long walk like that," Washington said, handing him some change and sending him upstairs to the personnel office.

"We get them all," Washington said philosophically.

Most callers don't have quite so broad a notion of public housing. The families who often fill Housing Authority's first-floor hallway are usually looking for just one thing: a decent place to live.

It was possible to help the guy from Baltimore. But all Walter Washington can do for the families who need housing is put them on his waiting list; it's more than 5,400 families long.

In fact, Washington has had his waiting list so long that one might think it's full of phantom families. The turnover in public housing is rapid enough to make room in as little as 90 days for families displaced by urban renewal, highways and other city programs.

On the surface, then, it might seem that the Housing Authority's waiting list is just a fictional gimmick maintained to promote new housing projects.

But all that's fictional about the list is that it shows only a fraction of the need for decent housing at prices low income families can afford to pay.

"Anyone who wants a piece of this housing market," Washington says, "can be our guest."

The Housing Authority can find one or two-bedroom units within 3 to 6 months for families facing displacement by Government action, said NCHA Economist Charles Park.

But "85 percent of the displaced families on our list need three or more bedrooms," said NCHA Deputy Director Edward Aronov.

The priority they get for public housing means a wait of 6 months to a year for three bedrooms and up to 3 or 4 years for larger units, said Park.

Meanwhile the Housing Authority has to keep playing musical chairs with the families they now have. As they grow, they need larger quarters. And they get priority, too.

The families without priority, those simply living in slum dwellings without the money to get out, have to wait—and wait—and wait. Of the 5,444 families on the waiting list last month, 5,093 had no priority.

Slightly more than 60 percent of the Housing Authority's units have only one or two bedrooms. But 66 percent of the applicants need more space than that.

Yet, Park said, the turnover in the NCHA's 754 four-bedroom units, for example, is so slow that it would take 8½ years just to take care of the last displaced family and the last Housing Authority tenant waiting for one now.

As a result, families either sit and wait or get knocked off the eligibility lists. Those who don't check with the Housing Authority every 6 months are dropped automatically.

If the lists prove anything, they show that public housing projects in land-shy Washington can never do the job alone.

"There's a crying need expressed in these applications," Washington said, nodding at solid rows of filing cabinets.

One opened at random produced a file on a Mrs. "Smith" dating back to 1954 when she, her husband and two children faced displacement by urban renewal in the Southwest.

The family got public housing in 1956, the same year Mrs. "Smith's" husband went to jail, but moved out of NCHA quarters in 1963, owing $60 in rent which she later paid. Mrs. "Smith" has eight children now, has moved four times within the past 2 years and has been evicted twice through enforcement of the Housing Code. She has "priority" of a sort, but she's been waiting for public housing for more than a year.

When will she get it?

Washington shook his head. "She'll probably be taken in when we open up a new project," he said. "Maybe late summer."

And maybe not.

Mr. MCINTYRE. Mr. President, housing represents far more than shelter—it is a part of the fabric of neighborhood life and the entire social milieu. But above all, housing is a basic necessity of life.

We must invest our resources in meeting this challenge if we are to attain the goals clearly set forth in the Housing Act of 1949—a decent home and suitable living environment for every American family.

One cannot talk about this year's housing bill without mentioning the new rent supplement program.

This bold new feature which the President has called "the most crucial new instrument in our effort to improve the American city" has not met with an immediate overly enthusiastic response here in the Congress. I have expressed some concern over the manner in which this attempts to provide the necessary stimulus but it seems to me that the major advantage this approach offers is that it enlists the energy and imagination of private enterprise in the battle to provide decent housing for the low income. The FHA-insured housing units will be owned by private nonprofit, limited dividend or cooperative groups, constructed by private builders, financed by private lenders, and managed by private landlords.

Moreover, eligibility is limited to the elderly, handicapped, those forced to move because of governmental action or natural disaster, and those living in substandard or slum housing who meet the income requirements for public housing. These are the people who have no place to go—housing is just not available for them at rents which they can afford.

The benefits which this program can bring to this segment of our society merit thoughtful attention. For example, consider the more than 3 million veterans 65 and over who after serving their Nation seek the security and dignity that a lifetime of service deserves. Should we deny encouragement to veterans organizations, church groups, and other civic-minded bodies to unleash their resources in providing safe and suitable housing?

I should hope, rather, that every assistance would be offered to channel their efforts into realization of such worthwhile goals, consistent with the traditions of our American way of life.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD at this point the letter which I received from the Administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency pointing out the advantages which this program will offer to our elderly and handicapped veterans of low income.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

HOUSING AND HOME
FINANCE AGENCY,

Washington, D.C., April 12, 1965.

Hon. TOM MCINTYRE,
U.S. Senate Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR MCINTYRE: Thank you very much for your letter of April 8 in which you call to my attention the potential use of the rent supplementation program in providing housing for aged and handicapped veterans. I appreciate very much receiving the benefit of your studies in this area and wish to confirm your conclusions. Elderly and handicapped veterans of low and moderate income will be eligible for such rent supplementation under the proposed legislation and will therefore have the opportunity to secure housing suitable to their age and physical needs at rentals which they can afford.

As you emphasized, there are 3 million veterans 65 years of age and over at the present time. According to 1960 Census data more than one-third of all families headed by a veteran 65 or over were in the lower income group for which rent supplementation is designed.

A number of veterans organizations are considering the sponsorship of housing specially designed for older or handicapped veterans and will find this new program particularly helpful. As you have indicated so well, the veterans who have contributed so much to the defense and growth of our Nation deserve a dignified place to live within their means in their retirement years.

We appreciate immensely your taking this leadership in the field of housing for aged and handicapped veterans. Through this proposal for rent supplementation which the President has described as our "most crucial new instrument" we can assist you in this very important effort.

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT C. WEAVER,
Administrator.

Mr. MCINTYRE. Mr. President, while the rent supplement feature of this bill has attracted the glare of the spotlight, we must not overlook the importance of other parts of this far-reaching program directed at alleviating the host of problems related to man's quest for a suitable living environment. For small communities confronted with financing construction of vitally needed public facilities as well as larger cities overwhelmed with fighting blight and decay, this proposal offers a mixture of ingredients designed to serve their needs.

Since World War II we have witnessed a tremendous population explosion in our cities that today finds 7 out of 10 Americans concentrated in urban areas. Megalopolis—the extended eastern seaboard metropolis spanning from southern New Hampshire to northern Virginia—contains 21 percent of our population in 1.8 percent of its area.

Many steps have been taken to cope with this phenomenon and this bill before us now provides additional tools for assisting in the development and redevelopment of communities throughout the Nation.

Mr. President, I should like to point out a few of the provisions in S. 2213 which I feel are of particular significance to the State of New Hampshire.

First. Continuance of FHA: probably the best known of our Federal housing programs is FHA, the self-supporting mortgage loan insurance program. By extending FHA for another 4 years, the Congress recognizes the important role which this program plays in bringing homeownership within the reach of many who could not otherwise afford it. As of the first of the year, the New Hampshire FHA office had in force mortgage insurance totaling $72 million covering 1,146 multifamily units and 7,200 homes.

Second. Extension of public housing programs for the elderly: In New Hampshire we have seen several achievements under low-rent public housing for the elderly. There are about 1,000 units of specially designed housing for our senior citizens in the low-rent pipeline in New Hampshire, representing a Federal investment of about $14 million. My own hometown of Laconia is presently in the process of developing plans for the construction of 80 units of low-income housing for the elderly, designed to provide a physical and social environment that will extend the time span during which our senior citizens can live independently in comfort and safety and with sustained interest in life.

Third. Increased authorization for urban renewal: Eight of our New Hampshire cities have active urban renewal programs of one form or another. There are 16 projects in planning or underway—one of which is being financed entirely without Federal aid. Furthermore, we have one of the most exciting and unique urban renewal projects in the country—the Strawberry Banke colonial restoration project in Portsmouth. This superb effort to recreate a typical 18th-century community represents an investment of millions of dollars and the time and tireless energies of hundreds of local residents. We have seen how the Federal Government can provide the initial tools and machinery for transforming a blighted decaying area into a beautiful historic restoration.

Fourth. Special assistance to homeowners affected by closure of Federal installations: The two new provisions in this bill—one to delay payments under FHA and VA mortgages for unemployed mortgagors and the other to authorize the Secretary of Defense to buy houses in a depressed market—will be welcome relief for homeowners in areas such as the seacoast region of New Hampshire which are threatened by curtailment of military activities.

Mr. President, another feature which I am pleased to see incorporated in this bill is section 307 which will allow the District of Columbia to use urban renewal powers in nonresidential areas in the same manner as other U.S. cities do.

Some of you may recall that an amendment designed to accomplish this same purpose was added last year in the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to S. 3049 but, unfortunately, the amendment was dropped in conference. This year the administration's proposal included the District.

Although the provision is not in the House-passed bill, I would strongly urge that the Senate version prevail in conference so that the District of Columbia urban renewal program will be able to obtain those powers which every other major city in the United States now shares and to make available to small business the benefits of this program which are presently denied under the laws of the District of Columbia.

Mr. President, many hours have been spent preparing this bill which is now before us. I intend to support S. 2213 for I believe that it is an improved bill, reflecting the tireless and diligent efforts of the distinguished chairman of the Senate Housing Subcommittee, the Senator from Alabama, Senator SPARKMAN.

As a new member of the Housing Subcommittee, I am particularly grateful for the tutelage which I have received during consideration of this complex and technical legislation from both the chairman, Senator SPARKMAN, and the very able ranking member of the subcommittee, the senior Senator from Illinois, Senator DOUGLAS.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there be no further amendment to be proposed, the question is on the third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time.

The bill (S. 2213) was read the third time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of H.R. 7984, a companion House bill to S. 2213.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be stated by title.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. A bill (H.R. 7984) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I now move that all after the enacting clause be stricken and that the text of S. 2213, as amended, be substituted therefor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Alabama.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I ask for the third reading of the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment of the amendment and the third reading of the bill.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill (H.R. 7984) was read the third time.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I must vote against S. 2213 because of its provision for Federal rent subsidies.

I wish to point out, however, my support for several sections of the bill.

I need not detail but briefly the merits of the Federal Housing Administration and what it has done for the homeowner, the homebuilding industry, and our economy. There can be no question about the advisability of extending the insurance authority of the Federal Housing Administration. Its value and service to a great segment of the homeowning and homebuying public is proven by the fact that the FHA, since 1934, has insured loans totaling well over $96 billion. Equally impressive is the fact that the agency has amassed over $1 billion in insurance reserves and they continue to grow. The addition by my amendment of the new program for veterans, whereby some 21 million will become eligible for guaranteed mortgages, represents a measure which I feel will be of much assistance to our deserving veterans.

Equally important is the continuance of the Federal National Mortgage Association. I shall not take the time to recount the thoroughly businesslike way in which FNMA has conducted its three major functions; secondary market operations, special assistance, and management and liquidating functions.

The population rise among our senior and handicapped citizens leaves no question about the serious need for housing programs designed to accommodate their sector. Testimony before the subcommittee demonstrated beyond doubt both the need and the workability of such programs.

I foresee major improvements to the urban renewal and public housing programs.

The fact that HHFA is to make a thorough study of urban renewal and public housing programs and will report its findings within 2 years will result, I believe, in program improvement. I hope we can see an end to the displacement of lower income individuals and families from urban renewal areas without adequate provision for housing them elsewhere. I am hopeful we can see an end to the wasteful bulldozer approach whereby relatively new, sound structures have been destroyed in the name of urban renewal improvements. I am, of course, hopeful that my proposal to require the repayment of urban renewal grants will alternately result in urban renewal paying at least a portion of its own way.

The public housing study called for in the bill will result, I believe, in purging from the so-called pipeline many units now authorized. I would think, also, that the long waiting list of eligibles could be substantially reduced.

It has long been a contention that public housing does not meet the need which it was designed to meet, thus the necessity for further examination of this program with an eye to improving and rendering it more efficient. As long as the Congress continues to authorize contract authority for the public housing agency, every measure should be taken to streamline the program. As the chairman of the subcommittee has noted, we have been quite impressed with the low-income housing demonstration program. I have strongly supported the demonstration program as a possible method for improving what has long been a most controversial program. I am hopeful my proposal, now incorporated into the bill, to allow a public housing tenant to purchase his individual unit by counting monthly rentals over a 3-year period as a downpayment, will be a welcome and practical inducement to affected public housing occupants to buy a home.

I endorse the rural housing section of the bill. Certainly one of the most impressive facts brought out during the hearings was that almost half of the substandard housing in this Nation lies in rural areas, but only about 30 percent of the population resides there. It is not speculation that there is a great need for rural housing credit sources. The Farmers Home Administration currently has a backlog of 15,000 applications and the situation has been comparable for years. Furthermore, the Farmers Home Administration shows an excellent repayment record. No other title of this bill is needed more nor will any other provision serve a more worthy cause.

The bill wisely provides for making new colleges eligible for college housing loans. We are all aware of the increasing pressure for facilities to provide higher learning. This provision is to remove a paradox whereby new colleges were prevented, by administrative determination, from securing the type of loan they needed to become functional. To date, over 2,390 loans for a total of approximately $2.6 billion have been approved and the agency has experienced not a single default on payment of principal or interest.

Concerning the new programs of land development, grants for basic water and sewer facilities, grants for neighborhood facilities, and advance acquisition of land—I believe the reports from the agency required by the inclusion of several of my amendments—will result in more judicious administration of these programs.

My support of a number of provisions in this housing bill, however, does not lessen my opposition to what is considered to be the most important provision in the bill; that is, to the concept of rent supplements. I am fearful, as I have noted, of a stifling of the incentive for homeownership, fearful of a trend toward giving to renters the status of Government wards. I believe there is little doubt that the rent supplement program will have an adverse effect upon those families now purchasing, or planning to purchase their own homes without Federal subsidization.

I am hopeful, at least, that with the inclusion of my amendment requiring annual reports from the agency on the operations of the rent supplement program, the Congress may be able to guard against its more adverse effects.

Mr. President, I wish to again commend the chairman of our subcommittee for his superb handling of this measure. I know that certain provisions of the bill are not of his making, and certainly not of his liking. The responsibility is his, however, and he has met it effectively and judiciously. I wish to thank our distinguished chairman in particular for his consideration of, and in a number of cases his assistance with, ideas and proposals from this side of the aisle.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Do Senators yield back their time?

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I shall vote against the bill—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield 3 minutes to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I will vote against the measure because I do not believe it is in the interest of the people of our country, nor consistent with the general principles and structure of our Government. I come from a neighborhood in Cleveland occupied by humble people, with modest homes, but possessed of great pride in the maintenance and keeping up of those homes. The domiciles in which they live are not equipped with modern installations, but as one moves through the neighborhood he sees houses painted in white, bordered by green, small lawns, with hardly a patch that is not covered with grass. One sees little plots with trees in them. One sees hedges. Those people are proud of their homes.

I am convinced that, under the language of the bill, those people will be found living in quarters that do not measure up to what we say they ought to be living in. I visualize my community in Cleveland becoming decimated, and those people moving into public housing or places providing subsidized rents.

The inducement to own a home would be destroyed by this program.

It is believed by the sponsors of the bill that great good has been done. We can have a strong and solid America only by having many individuals own their own homes. I can say that with a deep feeling of sensitivity, because my greatest pride as a boy was to know that my mother and father bought a home of their own, and I vibrated and thrilled with the knowledge that we lived in our own home.

By this bill we are saying to the people such as I have described, "Give up your quarters. Move into property owned by the U.S. Government, and into property for which the U.S. Government will subsidize the payment of your rent."

Instead of having a sanctuary and a stake where the family, the mother, father, and children can live as one unit—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. LAUSCHE. May I have 3 more minutes?

Mr. TOWER. I yield 3 additional minutes to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. They will abandon that sanctuary and move into a communized facility.

I know that Senators want to vote at this time, but I also know that I want to tell the people of Ohio why I cannot support this measure.

Great boasts are made that the bill has made some advances but has not gone far enough. How far are we going? The prediction has already been made that next year we must go further than we have this year. The speech made a moment ago foretells what will happen next year and 2 years from now, and corroborates the declarations made by Senators on the floor of the Senate that this will be only the beginning, that we shall be continuing the program of 60,000 public dwelling units a year for the next 4 years. We will be putting $150 million, as I understand it, into rent subsidies. There is something conflicting about that.

The argument was made about 4 hours ago that the new program would save money and the old program of public housing would waste money—240,000 units at $12,000 a unit are provided for in the bill. Money will be borrowed by selling bonds to be paid in 40 years. The interest which will accumulate during 40 years of payments will be in excess of the original cost of construction.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Ohio has expired.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Will the Senator from Alabama yield me 3 more minutes?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield 3 additional minutes to the Senator from Ohio.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized for 3 additional minutes.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I hope that the proponents of this program are right, but I would be delinquent in my duty if I did not point out to them that I believe they are thoroughly wrong.

I believe that we are now at the threshold of a program which will create a monster so great that the economic ambitions of the American people will be destroyed, because they will feel that inasmuch as the Government will provide their rent for them, they are not bound to do anything about it. In the end, it will not be helpful to the maintenance of our system of government.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from South Carolina.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is literally bursting at the seams with power and money, and is designed to put the National Government in a place of authority over the housing needs of the public, more than ever before. It is impossible to place an exact price tag on the bill, but a good guess would place the figure at around the $20 billion mark.

By far the largest and most expensive provision of the bill is the rent subsidy provision, which I have already discussed. This section alone authorizes the expenditure of up to $6 billion over the next 40 or so years.

Other expensive provisions of the bill are: $700 million, over 4 years, to pay half the cost of extending and enlarging water and sewer facilities to meet the anticipated growth of urban communities to be determined in the sole discretion of the HHFA Administrator; $50 million a year to develop neighborhood social and recreational facilities to take care of the population growth of communities as anticipated by the HHFA Administrator; $25 million a year to pay the financing costs for the acquisition of land for future public works needs of urban communities as anticipated by the HHFA Administrator. The location of the land will be determined by the "guess" of the Administrator as to which direction the community will expand.

These programs are in addition to the existing Federal programs now on the books, all of which are being expanded or extended by the pending bill. No distinction is made between the good and the bad existing programs. They are all being carried on, and most of them are being amended to the point that any local participation, in either funds or control, is only token in importance.

The public housing program, which is extended and expanded in the bill, was begun more than a quarter century ago. It has resulted in 581,000 public housing units now in operation across the country. The disillusionment with this program at the local level, however, is so intense that 170,000 units are tied up in the pipeline; that is, they have been authorized but not constructed. Of the 240,000 public housing units authorized by this bill, 140,000 will be of the conventional type and will be subject to site selection by local authorities in the communities. In other words, this bill would add 140,000 units of conventional public housing to the 170,000 already authorized, but which nobody wants.

The remaining 100,000 units of public housing in the bill are to be divided between the purchasing and leasing of existing homes. Units of this type are not subject to site selection by local authorities and may, therefore, be scattered helter-skelter throughout the community. In my opinion, local officials should have the authority and responsibility for approving or rejecting any proposed public housing unit or project in their community. This authority is lacking in this provision of the bill.

The urban renewal program is significantly expanded under the terms of the bill. When Congress originally adopted the urban renewal program in 1954, the original intent was to provide Federal funds primarily for the purpose of rebuilding dilapidated areas of cities, with the emphasis upon dwellings. The 1965 Housing Act contains a completely new theory. First, the emphasis is shifted from providing homes to reconstructing business areas. The trend in this direction over the past few years has resulted in many people being evicted from their homes and left with no places to live when their homes are replaced by a newly constructed office building or other type business establishment. This trend will increase under the pending bill. Second, urban areas could be provided financial assistance by the Federal Government to defray the costs of increased city services, such as street maintenance, and fire and police protection. These are strictly local functions, and there is no authority in the Constitution for the Federal Government to subsidize such activities, just as there was no constitutional authority for the National Government to enter the general field of housing in the first instance.

The bill authorizes $2,900 million more in the next 4 years for urban renewal capital grants and $125 million more over the next 4 years for urban renewal planning grants.

In addition to the urban renewal funds, the bill contains an increase of $225 million over the next 4 years in 50-percent grant contract authority to broaden the open-space program in urban areas. This is to include beautification, purchase of land, demolition of unsafe and unsightly buildings, and the relocation of people who are left without a place to live. An ever-expanding program of this type places increasing authority in the hands of the Federal bureaucrats to handle the affairs of local communities. The result will be that local officials will be looking more and more to the Federal Government to solve their problems for them, and local initiative and responsibility will decrease in direct proportion to the Federal involvement.

The bill would authorize three new grant programs, all of which require the Administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency to make omniscient judgments of the future. These three programs call for $400 million, over the next 4 years, to finance 50 percent of the cost of water and sewage facilities; $700 million, over the next 4 years, to finance the purchase by communities of land for sites for future public works; $200 million, over the next 4 years, to provide cities with neighborhood facilities, which would include community centers, youth centers, health stations, and other social services. In all of these programs, the Administrator of HHFA will have to predict, with a reasonable amount of certainty, the future growth of communities, including both the direction and the amount of the growth. Grants for the future such as these are necessarily speculative in nature and open the door to windfall profits for those individuals who are able to forecast the Administrator's decisions.

It is my firm belief that money loaned by the Federal Government should bear an interest rate at least equivalent to that which the Federal Government must pay to obtain the money which it relans. This should be flexible and tied to the actual cost of money to the U.S. Treasury at any given time. And yet, in this bill, two existing programs would be changed so as to carry a set interest rate which is below that paid by the Federal Government at the present time. A flat 3 percent interest rate is written into the elderly housing program authorized by section 202 of the Federal Housing Act and the section 221 (d)(3) low rent housing program. These are subsidized interest rates; and if they are authorized, as is proposed in the pending bill, pressures will be brought to incorporate the subsidized interest rates into other existing loan programs.

One other section of the bill about which I have serious reservations is section 221, which proposes to add a new section to title V of the National Housing Act. I discussed this in my additional individual views contained in the committee report, and on the floor of the Senate earlier in the debate. In short, this section would require the Administrator of the HHFA to adopt a uniform procedure for the acceptance of materials and products which are found to be technically suitable for the use proposed in structures approved for mortgages and loans under the Housing Act.

I share the concern that has been expressed concerning the seeming reluctance of the FHA, and certain commodity standards groups, to approve new materials which are the result of technological advances in the industry. This is a matter which deserves a searching study by the appropriate congressional committees to assure that new materials can be taken advantage of to reduce the costs of housing to the American public where these materials are as good as, or better than, those presently in use.

Nevertheless, I am disturbed about the words "technically suitable," because the fear has been expressed to me that this amendment could open the door to the FHA accepting substandard items that might be classified as "technically suitable." It is not clear, in the wording of the amendment, who is to determine if any material is "technically suitable," but it is apparent that the Administrator of the HHFA would be required to make an independent judgment as to each and every product concerned. This would place an onerous burden upon the Administrator, one that he is not capable of adequately performing at the present time. The cost to the HHFA of testing the materials could greatly increase the administrative expenses of the Agency.

It is my belief, as I have previously stated, that the committee should conduct full and open hearings on this proposal, before including it in any bill. Until such hearings are held, I cannot support this provision.

Mr. President, this bill will result in further centralization of power and authority in the National Government over the general field of housing. By enacting this measure, we are approaching closer and closer to the socialization of housing, over which the Government has no constitutional authority. I cannot support such a bill and I intend to vote against it.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized for 1 minute.

Mr. COTTON. Mr. President, I am growing very tired of salve, veneer, and deceit.

I do not mind politics, if politics are played aboveboard and in a decent and gentlemanly way. However, on this very day, the 15th of July, 1965, as the Senate comes to vote on the pending bill which will provide one of the greatest political weapons in the history of American politics, I have just had revealed to me one instance of dirty, contemptible, petty, back-door politics coming straight from the office of Dr. Weaver and this Housing Agency.

Of all the departments of Government, this is the department which I believe furnishes the most proof.

I, of course, shall vote against the bill.

I shall have something more to say about this episode later, when I am not delaying the Senate.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time, and ask for the yea-and-nay vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has been yielded back. The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall it pass?

On this question the yeas and nays have been ordered; and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. I announce that the Senator from Nevada [Mr. CANNON], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH], the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN], the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTROYA], and the Senator from Ohio [Mr. YOUNG] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD] and the Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Nevada [Mr. CANNON], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH], the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD], and the Senator from Ohio [Mr. YOUNG] would each vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD] is paired with the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING]. If present and voting, the Senator from Virginia would vote "nay" and the Senator from Alaska would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY] is paired with the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN]. If present and voting, the Senator from Minnesota would vote "yea" and the Senator from Arkansas would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTROYA] is paired with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. SALTONSTALL]. If present and voting, the Senator from New Mexico would vote "yea" and the Senator from Massachusetts would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS] is paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. YOUNG]. If present and voting, the Senator from Florida would vote "yea" and the Senator from North Dakota would vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN], the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY], the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. SALTONSTALL] and the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. YOUNG] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] and the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. CASE] are absent on official business.

On this vote, the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. CASE] is paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN]. If present and voting, the Senator from New Jersey would vote "yea" and the Senator from Idaho would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] is paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY]. If present and voting, the Senator from Kansas would vote "yea" and the Senator from Vermont would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. SALTONSTALL] is paired with the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. MONTROYA]. If present and voting, the Senator from Massachusetts would vote "nay" and the Senator from New Mexico would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. YOUNG] is paired with the Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS]. If present and voting, the Senator from North Dakota would vote "nay" and the Senator from Florida would vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 54, nays 30, as follows:

So the bill (H.R. 7984) was passed.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed.

Mr. MUSKIE. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that in the engrossment of the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7984) the Secretary of the Senate be authorized to make all necessary technical and clerical changes and corrections, including corrections in section, subsection, and so forth, designations, and cross references thereto.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Calendar No. 366, S. 2213, be indefinitely postponed. I understand that in so doing, the bill will be removed from the calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMENDATION OF SENATORS

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I want to take a moment of the Senate's time to commend the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] for his excellent leadership in managing this very complicated but much-needed legislation. His long experience in this field as Chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing gives him an expertise in this area respected by all Members. His willing manner to study alternative proposals not contained in the bill and appreciate their merit and agree with those that do not interfere with the general thrust of the bill reflects not only the best tradition of the Senate but also his personal skill as a floor manager.

Similar commendation must be given to the junior Senator from Maine [Mr. MUSKIE] for his able and articulate assistance; as well as to the senior Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS] for the benefit of his many years of experience in this field.

In like manner I want to commend the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER], for his cooperation and assistance in expediting this measure. He and the senior Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT] in presenting their opposition to certain aspects of this bill were always constructive and as is their usual manner most articulate.

Of course there are many others who have participated in this debate whose names I have not mentioned but all of whom as well as the Senate as a whole deserve so much credit for the expeditious manner in which this bill has been passed. I must, however, pay particular tribute to the Senator from Virginia [Mr. ROBERTSON] chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, who although opposed to many aspects of this bill, permitted it to be handled expeditiously in committee and on the floor.

The conduct of the Senate as a whole on this measure renews my optimism that with a continuing effort similar to these past 2 days, we will be able to finish our business by Labor Day.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] was recognized by his committee colleagues as the Senator in charge of the bill for the minority. I have seen no greater expression of fidelity to duty than was displayed by him. He has been on the floor every minute while the bill was under consideration. He has taken account of every moment. I salute him for the great job that he did.

READJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE TO VETERANS WHO SERVE IN THE ARMED FORCES DURING THE INDUCTION PERIOD

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 258, S. 9.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be stated by title.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. A bill (S. 9) to provide readjustment assistance to veterans who serve in the armed forces during the induction period.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Montana?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare with an amendment, on page 6 after line 6, to strike out:

§ 1911. Duration of veterans' education or training

And, in lieu thereof, to insert:

§ 1910. Entitlement to education or training generally

So as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act shall be known as the "Cold War Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act".

6 OR OCCUPANTS OF SUBSTANDARD HOUSING

7 SEC. 101. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Ad-
8 ministrator (hereinafter referred to as the "Administrator")
9 is authorized to make, and contract to make, annual pay-
10 ments to a "housing owner" on behalf of "qualified tenants",
11 as those terms are defined herein, in such amounts and under 12 such circumstances as are prescribed in or pursuant to this
13 section. In no case shall a contract provide for such pay-
14 ments with respect to any housing for a period exceeding
15 forty years. The aggregate amount of the contracts to make 16 such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appro-
17 priation Acts and shall not exceed $30,000,000 per annum
18 prior to July 1, 1966, which maximum dollar amount shall 19 be increased by $35,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $40,000,-
20 000 on July 1, 1976, and by $45,000,000 on July 1, 1968.

(b) As used in this section, the term "housing owner" means a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under section 221(d)(3) of

1 the National Housing Act and which, after the enactment of
 2 this section, has been approved for mortgage insurance there-
 3 under and has been approved for receiving the benefits of 4 this section: Provided, That no payments under this section
 5 may be made with respect to any property financed with a
 6 mortgage receiving the benefits of the interest rate provided
 7 for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of that Act.

8 (e) As used in this section, the term "qualified tenant"
 9 means any individual or family who has, pursuant to criteria
 10 and procedures established by the Administrator, been deter-
 11 mined—

12 (1) to have an income below the maximum amount
 13 which can be established in the area, pursuant to the 14 limitations prescribed in section 2(2) of the United 15 States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public
 16 housing dwellings; and

17 (2) to be one of the following—

18 (A) displaced by governmental action;

19 (B) sixty-two years of age or older (or, in the 20 case of a family, to have a head who is, or whose 21 spouse is, sixty-two years of age or over);

22 (C) physically handicapped (or, in the case of 23 a family, to have a head who is, or whose spouse is,
 24 physically handicapped); or

25 (D) occupying substandard housing.

1 ~~(d)~~ The amount of the annual payment with respect
2 to any dwelling unit shall not exceed the amount by which
3 the fair market rental for such unit exceeds one-fourth of 4 the tenant's income as determined by the Administrator pur-
5 suant to procedures and regulations established by him.

6 ~~(e)~~~~(1)~~ For purposes of carrying out the provisions
7 of this section, the Administrator shall establish criteria
8 and procedures for determining the eligibility of occupants
9 and rental charges, including criteria and procedures with 10 respect to periodic review of tenant incomes and periodic 11 adjustment of rental charges. The Administrator shall issue, 12 upon the request of a housing owner, certificates as to the 13 following facts concerning the individuals and families apply-
14 ing for admission to, or residing in, dwellings of such owner:

15 ~~(A)~~ the income of the individual or family; and

16 ~~(B)~~ whether the individual or family was displaced
17 by governmental action, is elderly, is physically handi-
18 capped, or is ~~(or was)~~ occupying substandard housing.

19 ~~(2)~~ Procedures adopted by the Administrator here-
20 under shall provide for recertifications of the incomes of 21 occupants, except the elderly, at intervals of two years ~~(or~~
22 at shorter intervals in cases where the Administrator may
23 deem it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting rental charges
24 and annual payments on the basis of occupants' incomes,
25 but in no event shall rental charges adjusted under this

1 section for any dwelling exceed the fair market rental of 2 the dwelling.

3 ~~(3)~~ The Administrator may enter into agreements, or
4 authorize housing owners to enter into agreements, with
5 public or private agencies for services required in the selec-
6 tion of qualified tenants, including those who may be ap-
7 proved, on the basis of the probability of future increases in 8 their incomes, as lessees under an option to purchase (which 9 will give such approved qualified tenants an exclusive right
10 to purchase at a price established or determined as provided
11 in the option) dwellings or cooperative ownership interests
12 therein, and in the establishment of rentals. The Adminis-
13 trator is authorized (without limiting his authority under any 14 other provision of law) to delegate to any such public or 15 private agency his authority to issue certificates pursuant to 16 this subsection.

17 ~~(f)~~ Section 101(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is 18 amended by inserting “(i)” after “a mortgage under” in the 19 first proviso and by inserting immediately before the colon at 20 the end of such proviso the following: “; or ~~(ii)~~ section
21 221(d)~~(3)~~ of the National Housing Act if payments with 22 respect to the mortgaged property are made or are to be
23 made under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Devel-
24 opment Act of 1965, except that no such mortgage shall 25 be insured, and no commitment to insure such a mortgage

1 shall be issued, with respect to property in any community
2 for which a workable program for community improvement
3 was required and in effect at the time a contract for a loan
4 or capital grant was entered into under this title, or a con-
5 tract for annual contributions or capital grants was entered
6 into pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937,
7 unless there is a workable program for community improve-
8 ment which meets the requirements of this subsection in 9 effect in such community at the time of such insurance or 10 commitment”.

11 ~~(g)~~ The Administrator is authorized to make such rules
12 and regulations; to enter into such agreements; and to adopt
13 such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to
14 carry out the provisions of this section. Nothing contained
15 in this section shall affect the authority of the Federal
16 Housing Commissioner with respect to any housing assisted 17 under this section and under section 221(d)(3) of the 18 National Housing Act, including his authority to prescribe
19 occupancy requirements under other provisions of law or to 20 determine the portion of any such housing which may be
21 occupied by qualified tenants.

22 ~~(h)~~ There are authorized to be appropriated such sums
23 as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this sec-
24 tion, including, but not limited to, such sums as may be

1 necessary to make annual payments as prescribed in this
 2 section; pay for services provided under (or pursuant to 3 agreements entered into under) subsection (e); and provide 4 administrative expenses.

5 (i) Section 114(c)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949
 6 is amended by inserting before the colon at the end of the 7 first proviso the following: “; or a dwelling unit assisted
 8 under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development
 9 Act of 1965”.

10 (j) On or before January 1, 1968, the Administrator
 11 shall submit to the Congress a full report of operations under 12 this section; together with his recommendations with respect
 13 thereto.

14 EXTENSION OF FHA SECTION 221 PROGRAMS; MODIFICA-
 15 TION OF INTEREST RATE; POOLING OF MORTGAGES FOR 16 SALE

17 SEC. 102. (a) The fifth sentence of section 221(f) of
 18 the National Housing Act is amended by striking out “sub-
 19 section (d)(2) or (d)(4) after September 30, 1965; or 20 under subsection (d)(3) after September 30, 1965,” and
 21 inserting in lieu thereof “this section after October 1, 1969.”

22 (b) The proviso in section 221(d)(5) of such Act is 23 amended by striking out “not less than the annual rate of 24 interest determined” and inserting in lieu thereof “not less

1 than the lower of ~~(A)~~ 3 per centum per annum, or ~~(B)~~ the 2 annual rate of interest determined”.

3 ~~(c)~~ The third sentence of section 212(a) of such Act is 4 amended by striking out “described in subsection ~~(d)~~ (3)”
5 and all that follows and inserting in lieu thereof “described
6 in subsection ~~(d)~~ (3) or ~~(d)~~ (4).”

7 ~~(d)~~ Section 302(e) of such Act is amended by insert-
8 ing before the last sentence thereof the following: “If there
9 shall be included within one or more of the trusts or other
10 agencies created pursuant to the authority of this subsection
11 any mortgages bearing a below-market interest rate and in-
12 sured under section 221(d) (3) after the date of the enact-13 ment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 14 1965, there are authorized to be appropriated from time to 15 time such amounts as may be necessary to reimburse the 16 Association for the amount of the differential (including 17 interest, other costs, and a fair proportion of administrative 18 expense) between (1) the total outlay with respect to out-
19 standing participations or other instruments in an amount not
20 to exceed the dollar amount of such below-market interest
21 rate mortgages, and (2) the total receipts from such 22 mortgages.”

1 ~~LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS~~

2 ~~SEC. 103. (a)~~ The United States Housing Act of 1937
3 is amended by redesignating section 23 as section 24, and by 4 adding after section 22 the following new section:

5 ~~“LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS~~

6 ~~“SEC. 23. (a)~~ For the purpose of providing a supple-
7 mentary form of low-rent housing which will aid in assuring
8 a decent place to live for every citizen and promote efficiency
9 and economy in the program under this Act by taking full
10 advantage of vacancies or potential vacancies in the private 11 housing market, each public housing agency shall, to the 12 maximum extent consistent with the achievement of the 13 objectives of this Act, provide low-rent housing under this
14 Act in the form of low-rent housing in private accommoda-
15 tions in accordance with this section where such housing in 16 private accommodations can be provided at a cost equal to or
17 less than housing in projects assisted under other provisions
18 of this Act. As used in this section the term ‘low-rent hous-
19 ing in private accommodations’ means dwelling units in an
20 existing structure, leased from a private owner, which provide 21 decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and
22 related facilities effectively supplementing the accommoda-

1 tions and facilities in low-rent housing assisted under the
2 other provisions of this Act in a manner calculated to meet
3 the total housing needs of the community in which they are
4 located. As used in this section, the term 'owner' means
5 any person or entity having the legal right to lease or sub-
6 lease property containing one or more dwelling units as
7 described in this section.

8 “(b) Beginning as soon as practicable after the date of
9 the enactment of this section, each public housing agency
10 shall conduct a continuing survey and listing of the available
11 dwelling units within the community or communities under 12 its jurisdiction which provide decent, safe, and sanitary
13 dwelling accommodations and related facilities and are, or 14 may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private
15 accommodations under this section.

16 “(c) Each public housing agency, by notification to 17 the owners of housing listed under subsection (b), or by
18 publication or advertisement, or otherwise, shall from time
19 to time make known to the public in the community or com-
20 munities under its jurisdiction the anticipated need for dwell-
21 ing units in such community or communities to be used as
22 low-rent housing in private accommodations under this sec-
23 tion, inviting the owners of such dwelling units to make
24 available for purposes of this section one or more of such 25 units (not exceeding 10 per centum of the units in any single

1 structure except to the extent that the agency, because of
2 the limited number of units in the structure or for any other
3 reason, determines that such limit should not be applied).
4 The public housing agency shall conduct appropriate inspec-
5 tions of the units offered to be made available in any
6 residential structure by the owner thereof in response to
7 such invitation, and if—

8 “~~(1)~~ it finds that such units are, or may be made,
9 suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accom-
10 modations within the meaning of subsection ~~(a)~~, and

11 “~~(2)~~ the rentals to be charged for such units, as
12 negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner
13 of the structure in a manner consistent with subsection
14 ~~(d)~~ ~~(2)~~, are within the financial range of families of
15 low income,

16 such agency may approve such units for use as low-rent
17 housing in private accommodations in accordance with ~~(and~~
18 ~~subject to the applicable limitations contained in)~~ this sec-
19 tion. Each public housing agency shall maintain and keep
20 current a list of units approved by it under this subsection,
21 including such information with respect to each such unit
22 as it may consider necessary or appropriate.

23 “~~(d)~~ To the extent of contracts for annual contributions
24 entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency
25 under section 10(c), such agency may enter into contracts

1 with the owners of structures containing dwelling units ap-
2 proved under subsection (c) for the use of such units in
3 accordance with this section. Each such contract with an
4 owner shall provide (with respect to any unit) that—

5 “(1) the selection of tenants for such units shall be 6 the function of the owner, subject to the provisions of
7 the contract between the Authority and the agency;

8 “(2) the rental and other charges to be received by
9 the owner shall be negotiated and agreed to by the
10 agency and the owner, and the rental and other charges
11 to be paid by the tenant shall be determined in accord-
12 ance with the standards applicable to units in low-rent
13 housing projects assisted under the other provisions of 14 this Act;

15 “(3) the agency shall have the sole right to give
16 notice to vacate, with the owner having the right to 17 make representations to the agency for termination of 18 a tenancy;

19 “(4) maintenance and replacements (including
20 redecoration) shall be in accordance with the standard
21 practice for the building concerned, as established by
22 the owner and agreed to by the agency; and

23 “(5) the agency and the owner shall carry out such
24 other appropriate terms and conditions as may be
25 mutually agreed to by them.

1 Each contract between a public housing agency and an
2 owner entered into under this subsection shall be for a term
3 of not less than twelve months nor more than thirty-six
4 months, and shall be renewable by such agency and owner
5 at the expiration of such term.

6 “(e) The annual contribution under this Act for a proj-
7 ect of a public housing agency for low-rent housing in private
8 accommodations under this section in lieu of any other guar-
9 anteed contribution authorized by section 10 shall not exceed
10 the amount of the fixed annual contribution which would be
11 established under this Act for a newly constructed project
12 by such public housing agency designed to accommodate the 13 comparable number, sizes, and kinds of families. The
14 period over which payments will be made to a public hous-
15 ing agency for a project of low-rent housing in private
16 accommodations under this section, and the aggregate
17 amount of such payments, under a contract for annual
18 contributions, shall be determined on the basis of the number
19 of units in the community or communities under the juris-
20 diction of such agency which are in use (or can reasonably 21 be expected to be placed in use) as low-rent housing in
22 private accommodations under this section, taking into ac-
23 count the terms of the leases under which such units are (or 24 will be) so used. In addition, contracts for financial assist-
25 ance entered into by the Authority with a public housing

1 agency pursuant to this section shall provide for reimburse-
2 ment of reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by such
3 agency in conducting surveys, listings, and inspections de-
4 scribed in subsections ~~(b)~~ and ~~(e)~~.

5 “~~(f)~~ On or before January 1, 1968, the Authority shall
6 submit to the Congress a full report of operations under this
7 section, together with its recommendations with respect
8 thereto.”

9 ~~(b)~~ The last sentence of section 2~~(1)~~ of such Act is 10 amended by striking out “Income limits for occupancy and
11 rents” and inserting in lieu thereof “Except as otherwise pro-
12 vided in section 23, income limits for occupancy and rents”.

13 ~~(c)~~ The provisions of sections 10~~(h)~~ and 15~~(7)~~ of the 14 United States Housing Act of 1937, and the workable pro-
15 gram requirement in section 10~~(c)~~ of such Act and section
16 101~~(c)~~ of the Housing Act of 1949, shall not apply to low-
17 rent housing in private accommodations provided under sec-
18 tion 23 of the United States Housing Act of 1937.

19 LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

20 SEC. 104. ~~(a)~~ Section 10~~(c)~~ of the United States
21 Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting after “per 22 annum,” the following: “which limit shall be increased by
23 $47,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing
24 and Urban Development Act of 1965, and by further

1 amounts of $17,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years
2 1966, 1967, and 1968, respectively.”

3 ~~(b)~~ Section 10(c) of such Act is amended by striking
4 out “And provided further” and inserting in lieu thereof
5 “Provided further”, and by inserting before the period at 6 the end thereof the following: “: And provided further, That
7 the amount of the fixed annual contribution which would be
8 established under this Act for a newly constructed project by 9 a public housing agency designed to accommodate a number
10 of families of a given size and kind may be established, as a
11 maximum annual contribution in lieu of any other guaranteed
12 contribution authorized under this section, for a project by 13 such public housing agency which would provide housing
14 for the comparable number, sizes, and kinds of families
15 through the acquisition, acquisition and rehabilitation, or use
16 under lease of existing structures which are suitable for low-
17 rent housing use and obtainable in the local market”.

18 ~~(c)~~ Section 2(2) of such Act is amended to read as
19 follows:

20 “(2) The term ‘families of low income’ means families
21 (including elderly and displaced families) who are in the
22 lowest income group and who cannot afford to pay enough
23 to cause private enterprise in their locality or metropolitan
24 area to build an adequate supply of decent, safe, and sanitary

1 dwellings for their use. The term 'families' includes families
 2 consisting of a single person in the case of elderly families
 3 and displaced families, and includes the remaining member
 4 of a tenant family. The term 'elderly families' means families
 5 whose heads (or their spouses), or whose sole members, have 6 attained the age at which an individual may elect to receive
 7 an old-age benefit under title II of the Social Security Act,
 8 or are under a disability as defined in section 223 of that
 9 Act, or are handicapped within the meaning of section
 10 202 of the Housing Act of 1959. The term 'displaced fami-
 11 lies' means families displaced by urban renewal or other
 12 governmental action."

13 ~~(d) Section 15(7)(b) of such Act is amended by strik-~~
 14 ~~ing out "(ii)" and all that follows down through "and~~ 15 ~~(iii)", and by inserting in lieu thereof "and (ii)".~~

16 DIRECT LOANS TO PROVIDE HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY
 17 OR HANDICAPPED

18 SEC. 105. ~~(a) Section 202(a)(4) of the Housing Act~~
 19 ~~of 1959 is amended by striking out "not to exceed $350,-~~
 20 ~~000,000"~~ and inserting in lieu thereof "such sums as may 21 be necessary for purposes of this section,"

22 ~~(b) Effective with respect to loans made on or after~~ 23 ~~the date of the enactment of this Act, section 202(a)(3) of~~ 24 ~~such Act is amended by striking out "the higher of (A)~~

1 $2\frac{3}{4}$ per centum per annum, or” and inserting in lieu thereof
 2 “the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or”.

3 (c) Section 202 (a) of such Act is further amended
 4 by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

5 “(5) No loan shall be made under this section after 6 October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment entered
 7 into on or before such date.”

8 REHABILITATION GRANTS TO HOMEOWNERS IN URBAN

9 RENEWAL AREAS

10 SEC. 106. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is
 11 amended by adding at the end thereof the following new
 12 section:

13 “REHABILITATION GRANTS

14 “SEC. 115. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision
 15 of this title, the Administrator may authorize a local public
 16 agency to make grants (and the urban renewal project may 17 include the making of such grants) as prescribed in this sec-
 18 tion. Any such grant may be made only to an individual or
 19 family, as described in subsection (b), who owns and oc-
 20 cupies a structure in an urban renewal area, and only for the 21 purpose of covering the cost of repairs and improvements
 22 necessary to make such structure conform to public standards
 23 for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by appli-

1 eable codes or other requirements of the urban renewal plan
2 for the area. Any contract for financial assistance under this
3 title shall provide that the capital grant otherwise payable
4 for the project shall be increased by an amount equal to the 5 total amount of the grants under this section and that no part 6 of the total amount of such grants shall be required to be 7 contributed as part of the local grant-in-aid.

8 “(b) A grant authorized by this section may be made
9 to an individual or family whose income does not exceed
10 $2,000 a year, and such grant may be in an amount which
11 does not exceed the lesser of (1) the actual (and approved)
12 cost of the repairs and improvements involved, or (2)
13 $1,500. In case the income of the individual or family
14 exceeds $2,000 a year, a grant may be made under this 15 section, subject to the limitations specified in clauses (1) and 16 (2) of the preceding sentence, but only in an amount not to 17 exceed that portion of the cost of the repairs and improve-
18 ments which cannot be paid for with any available loan that 19 can be amortized as part of such individual's or family's 20 monthly housing expense without requiring such monthly
21 housing expense to exceed 25 per centum of such individual's 22 or family's monthly income.”

23 (b) Any contract with a local public agency which was 24 executed under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 before the 25 date of enactment of this Act may be amended to provide for

1 grants authorized by section 115 of the Housing Act of
2 1949.

3 TITLE II—FHA INSURANCE OPERATIONS

4 LAND DEVELOPMENT

5 SEC. 201. (a) The National Housing Act is amended
6 by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

7 “TITLE X—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR LAND
8 DEVELOPMENT

9 “DEFINITIONS

10 “SEC. 1001. As used in this title—

11 “(a) the term ‘mortgage’ means a lien or liens on 12 real estate in fee simple, or on a leasehold (1) under a
13 lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renew-
14 able or (2) under a lease having a period of not less
15 than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was
16 executed;

17 “(b) the term ‘first mortgage’ includes such classes
18 of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances
19 (including but not limited to advances during construc-
20 tion) on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate
21 under the laws of the State in which the real estate is
22 located, together with the credit instrument or instru-
23 ments, if any, secured thereby, and may be in the form
24 of trust mortgages or mortgage indentures or deeds of
25 trusts securing notes, bonds, or other credit instruments;

1 “(e) the terms ‘mortgagee’, ‘mortgagor’, and
2 ‘State’ have the same meaning as in section 207 of
3 this Act;

4 “(d) the term ‘improvements’ means waterlines and
5 water supply installations, sewerlines and sewage dis-
6 posal installations, roads, streets, curbs, gutters, side-
7 walks, storm drainage facilities, and other installations
8 or work, whether on or off the site, which the Com-
9 missioner deems necessary or desirable to prepare land
10 primarily for residential and related uses or to provide,
11 for public or common use, facilities which (1) shall 12 include only such buildings as are needed in connection
13 with water supply or sewage disposal installations and 14 such buildings, other than schools, as the Commissioner
15 considers appropriate, and (2) are to be owned and 16 maintained jointly by the property owners; and

17 “(e) the term ‘land development’ means the process
18 of making, installing, or constructing improvements.

19 “BASIC CONDITIONS FOR INSURANCE

20 “SEC. 1002. The Commissioner is authorized (1) to 21 insure, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe,
22 any first mortgage (including advances on such mortgage)
23 in accordance with the provisions of this title and (2) to 24 make a commitment for the insurance of such mortgage prior
25 to the date of execution of such mortgage or prior to the date

1 of disbursement of the mortgage proceeds. No mortgage
 2 shall be insured under this title after October 1, 1969, except
 3 pursuant to a commitment to insure issued before such date.

4 “SEC. 1003. The mortgage shall—

5 “(a) be executed by a mortgagor, other than a pub-
 6 lic body, approved by the Commissioner;

7 “(b) be made to and held by a mortgagee approved
 8 by the Commissioner; and

9 “(c) cover the land to be developed and the im-
 10 provements to be made with the assistance of the mort-
 11 gage insurance under this title, except facilities intended
 12 for public use and in public ownership.

13 “SEC. 1004. The principal obligation of the mortgage
 14 shall ~~(1)~~ not exceed 75 per centum of the Commissioner’s
 15 estimate of the value of the property upon completion of the 16 land development, and ~~(2)~~ not exceed the sum of 50 per 17 centum of the Commissioner’s estimate of the value of the 18 land before development and 90 per centum of his estimate
 19 of the cost of such development. The outstanding principal
 20 obligations of mortgages involving a single land development
 21 undertaking, as defined by the Commissioner, shall at no
 22 time exceed $12,500,000.

23 “SEC. 1005. The mortgage shall—

24 “(a) have a maturity, not to exceed seven years,

1 and contain repayment provisions satisfactory to the 2 Commissioner;

3 “(b) bear interest at a rate satisfactory to the Com-
4 missioner; and such interest shall be exclusive of premium
5 charges for mortgage insurance and such service charges
6 and fees as may be approved by the Commissioner; and

7 “(c) contain such terms and provisions with respect
8 to protection of the security, payment of taxes, de-
9 linquency charges, prepayment, additional and secondary 10 lines, and other matters as the Commissioner may in his 11 discretion prescribe.

12 “SEC. 1006. A property or project to be financed by a 13 mortgage insured under this title shall—

14 “(a) represent a good mortgage insurance risk;
15 and

16 “(b) involve improvements that comply with all
17 applicable State and local governmental requirements
18 and with minimum standards approved by the Com-
19 missioner.

20 ~~"LAND PLANNING~~

21 “SEC. 1007. (a) The land development covered by a
22 mortgage insured under this title shall be undertaken pur-
23 suant to a schedule, conforming to such requirements and
24 procedures as the Commissioner may prescribe, that will

1 assure the use of the land for the purposes for which it is to
 2 be developed within the shortest reasonable period consistent
 3 with the objectives of sound and economic community growth
 4 or urban development.

5 “(b) The land development shall be undertaken in
 6 accordance with an overall development plan, appropriate
 7 to the scope and character of the undertaking, which—

8 “(1) has received all governmental approvals re-
 9 quired by State or local law or by the Commissioner;

10 “(2) is acceptable to the Commissioner as provid-
 11 ing reasonable assurance that the land development will
 12 contribute to good living conditions in the area being 13 developed; which area (i) will have a sound economic 14 base and a long economic life; (ii) will be characterized
 15 by sound land-use patterns; and (iii) will include or be
 16 served by such shopping, school, recreational, transpor-
 17 tation, and other facilities as the Commissioner deems
 18 adequate or necessary; and

19 “(3) is consistent with a comprehensive plan which 20 covers, or with comprehensive planning being carried
 21 on for, the area in which the land is situated; and which
 22 meets criteria established by the Housing and Home
 23 Finance Administrator for such plans or planning.

1 "ENCOURAGEMENT OF SMALL BUILDERS AND MODERATE
2 COST HOUSING

3 "SEC. 1008. The Commissioner shall adopt such require-
4 ments as he deems necessary in land development covered
5 by mortgages insured under this title to encourage the main-
6 tenance of a diversified local homebuilding industry, broad
7 participation by builders, and the inclusion of a proper bal-
8 ance of housing for families of moderate or low income.

9 "WATER AND SEWERAGE FACILITIES

10 "SEC. 1009. After development of the land it shall be 11 served by public systems for water and sewerage which are 12 consistent with other existing or prospective systems within 13 the area. If the Commissioner determines that public own-
14 ership of such a system is not feasible, he may approve an 15 adequate privately or cooperatively owned system which 16 will be regulated, during the period of such ownership, in 17 a manner acceptable to him with respect to user rates and 18 charges, capital structure, methods of operation, and rate
19 of return. Approval of such system shall be given only 20 where the Commissioner receives assurances, satisfactory
21 to him, with respect to eventual public ownership and op-
22 eration of the system and with respect to the conditions
23 and terms of any sale or transfer.

1 “RELEASES

2 “SEC. 1010. The Commissioner may, on such terms and
3 conditions as he may prescribe, consent to the release or
4 subordination of a part or parts of the mortgaged property
5 from the lien of the mortgage.

6 “PREMIUMS AND FEES

7 “SEC. 1011. The Commissioner shall collect reasonable
8 premiums for the insurance of any mortgage under this title
9 and make such charges as he determines are reasonable for
10 the analysis of the land development plan and the appraisal
11 and inspection of the property and improvements. On or
12 before January 1, 1967, the Commissioner shall make a
13 report to the Congress concerning the premium rates and
14 other charges under this title that he estimates will be ade-
15 quate to provide income sufficient for a self-supporting pro-
16 gram.

17 “INSURANCE BENEFITS

18 “SEC. 1012. The provisions of subsections (c), (g),
19 (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 of this
20 Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured under this
21 title, except that as applied to such mortgages (1) any 22 reference therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to
23 this title, and (2) any reference to an annual premium shall

1 be deemed to refer to such premiums as the Commissioner
2 may designate under this title.

3 "INCONTESTABILITY PROVISIONS

4 "SEC. 1013. Any contract of insurance executed by the
5 Commissioner under this title shall be conclusive evidence of
6 the eligibility of the mortgage for insurance; and the validity
7 of any contract of insurance so executed shall be incontest-
8 able in the hands of an approved mortgagee from the date of
9 the execution of such contract, except for fraud or material
10 misrepresentation on the part of such approved mortgagee.

11 "RULES AND REGULATIONS

12 "SEC. 1014. The Commissioner is authorized to make
13 such rules and regulations and to require such agreements
14 as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the pro-
15 visions of this title.

16 "TAXATION PROVISIONS

17 "SEC. 1015. Nothing in this title shall be construed to
18 exempt any real property acquired and held by the Com-
19 missioner under this title from taxation by any State or 20 political subdivision thereof to the same extent, according 21 to its value, as other real property is taxed.

22 "COST CERTIFICATION

23 "SEC. 1016. (a) The Commissioner shall adopt such re-
24 quirements as he determines necessary to assure, at reason-
25 able intervals of time during land development and upon

1 completion of such development, that the amount of the
2 mortgage loan outstanding at each such interval does not
3 exceed with respect to that portion of the land remaining
4 under the lien of the mortgage ~~(1)~~ 50 per centum of the
5 Commissioner's estimate of the value of such remaining
6 land before development, plus ~~(2)~~ 90 per centum of the 7 actual costs of the development allocated by the Commis-
8 sioner to such remaining land.

9 ~~"(b)~~ From time to time during, and upon completion
10 of, the development, the Commissioner shall require the 11 mortgagor to certify as to the actual costs of development
12 of the land.

13 ~~"(c)~~ Certifications required pursuant to this section
14 shall be accompanied by such data and records as the Com-
15 missioner shall prescribe.

16 ~~"(d)~~ A mortgagor's certification approved by the Com-
17 missioner shall be final and incontestable except for fraud
18 or material misrepresentation on the part of the mortgagor.

19 ~~"(e)~~ As used in this section, the term 'actual costs'
20 means the costs ~~(exclusive of kickbacks, rebates, or trade~~
21 ~~discounts)~~ to the mortgagor of the improvements involved.
22 These costs may include amounts paid for labor, materials,
23 construction contracts, land planning, engineers' and archi-
24 tects' fees, surveys, taxes, and interest during development,
25 organizational and legal expenses, such allocation of general

1 overhead expenses as are acceptable to the Commissioner;
2 and other items of expense incidental to development which
3 may be approved by the Commissioner. If the Commis-
4 sioner determines there is an identity of interest between
5 the mortgagor and the contractor, there may be included
6 an allowance for contractor's profit in an amount deemed
7 reasonable by the Commissioner."

8 ~~(b)~~ (1) Section 302~~(b)~~ of the National Housing Act is 9 amended by striking out "the term 'mortgages' " in the last
10 sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "the terms 'mortgages'
11 and 'home mortgages' ".

12 ~~(2)~~ The first paragraph of section 24 of the Federal
13 Reserve Act is amended by inserting before the next to last 14 sentence the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the
15 foregoing limitations and restrictions in this section, any na-
16 tional banking association may make loans for land develop-
17 ment which are secured by mortgages insured under title X
18 of the National Housing Act."

19 ~~(3)~~ Section 5~~(c)~~ of the Home Owners Loan Act of 20 1933 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following
21 new paragraph:

22 "Without regard to any other provision of this sub-
23 section, any such association may, to such extent as the 24 Federal Home Loan Bank Board may by regulation permit;

1 invest in loans, and interests in loans, secured by mortgages
 2 as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under 3 title X of the National Housing Act or of a commitment or 4 agreement for such insurance, and investments under this
 5 sentence shall not be included in any percentage of assets
 6 or other percentage referred to in this subsection."

7 ~~(4)~~ Section 212~~(a)~~ of the National Housing Act is 8 amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new 9 sentence: "The provisions of this section shall also apply
 10 to insurance under title X with respect to laborers or me-
 11 chanics employed in land development financed with the 12 proceeds of any mortgage insured under that title."

13 EXTENSION OF INSURANCE AUTHORIZATIONS

14 SEC. 202. ~~(a)~~ Section 2~~(a)~~ of the National Housing
 15 Act is amended by striking out "October 1, 1965" and insert-
 16 ing in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

17 ~~(b)~~ Section 217 of such Act is amended—

18 ~~(1)~~ by striking out "title VIII" and inserting in 19 lieu thereof "title VIII, or title X", and

20 ~~(2)~~ by striking "October 1, 1965" and insert-
 21 ing in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

22 ~~(c)~~ The second sentences of sections 809~~(f)~~ and 810~~(k)~~
 23 of such Act are each amended by striking out "October 1, 24 1965" and inserting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

1 MULTIFAMILY MORTGAGE LIMITS FOR FOUR OR MORE

2 BEDROOM UNITS

15 ~~(b)(1)~~ Section 213(b)(2) of such Act is amended—

16 ~~(A)~~ by striking out “and $18,500 per family unit
17 with three or more bedrooms” and inserting in lieu
18 thereof “$18,500 per family unit with three bedrooms,
19 and $21,000 per family unit with four or more bed-
20 rooms,”; and

21 ~~(B)~~ by striking out “and $22,500 per family unit
22 with three or more bedrooms” and inserting in lieu
23 thereof “$22,500 per family unit with three bedrooms,
24 and $25,500 per family unit with four or more bed-
25 rooms”.

1 ~~(2)~~ Section 213(c) of such Act is amended by strik-
 2 ing out “and not to exceed” and all that follows and insert-
 3 ing in lieu thereof the following: “and not to exceed a sum
 4 computed on the basis of a separate mortgage for each
 5 single-family dwelling (irrespective of whether such dwell-
 6 ing has a party wall or is otherwise physically connected
 7 with another dwelling or dwellings) comprising the prop-
 8 erty or project, equal to the total of each of the maximum
 9 principal obligations of such mortgages which would meet
 10 the requirements of section 203(b)~~(2)~~ if the mortgagor
 11 were the owner and occupant who had made any required
 12 payment on account of the property prescribed in such 13 paragraph.”

14 ~~(c)~~ Section 220(d)~~(3)~~(B)~~(iii)~~ of such Act is 15 amended—

16 (1) by striking out “and $18,500 per family unit
 17 with three or more bedrooms” and inserting in lieu

8 rooms".

9 REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

10 SEC. 204. Section 220(d)(3)(A) of the National
11 Housing Act is amended—

12 ~~(1)~~ by striking out the second proviso in clause
13 ~~(i)~~; and

14 ~~(2)~~ by striking out clause ~~(ii)~~ and inserting in 15 lieu thereof the following:

16 "~~(ii)~~ in a case where the mortgagor is not the
17 occupant of the property and intends to hold the prop-
18 erty for rental purposes, have a principal obligation in 19 an amount not to exceed 93 per centum of the amount
20 computed under the provisions of clause ~~(i)~~;

21 "~~(iii)~~ in a case where the mortgagor is not the
22 occupant of the property and intends to hold the prop-
23 erty for the purpose of sale, have a principal obligation
24 in an amount not to exceed 85 per centum of the amount

1 computed under the provisions of clause (i), or in the 2 alternative, in an amount equal to the amount computed
3 under the provisions of clause (i) if the mortgagor and 4 mortgagee assume responsibility in a manner satisfactory
5 to the Commissioner for the reduction of the mortgage
6 by an amount not less than 15 per centum of the out-
7 standing principal amount thereof, or by such greater 8 amount as may be required to meet the limitations of 9 clause (iv), in the event the mortgaged property is not,
10 prior to the due date of the eighteenth amortization pay-
11 ment of the mortgage, sold to a purchaser acceptable to 12 the Commissioner who is the occupant of the property
13 and who assumes and agrees to pay the mortgage in-
14 debtedness; and

15 “(iv) in no case involving refinancing (except as 16 provided in clause (iii)) have a principal obligation
17 in an amount exceeding the sum of the estimated cost
18 of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as deter-
19 mined by the Commissioner) required to refinance ex-
20 isting indebtedness secured by the property or project,
21 plus any existing indebtedness incurred in connection
22 with improving, repairing, or rehabilitating the prop-
23 erty; or”.

1 NONDWELLING FACILITIES FOR URBAN RENEWAL HOUSING

2 SEC. 205. Section 220(d)(3)(B) of the National 3 Housing Act is amended by striking out clause (iv) and 4 inserting in lieu thereof the following:

5 “(iv) include such nondwelling facilities as the 6 Commissioner deems desirable and consistent with the 7 urban renewal plan: Provided, That the project shall 8 be predominantly residential and any nondwelling fa-
9 cility included in the mortgage shall be found by the 10 Commissioner to contribute to the economic feasibility
11 of the project.”

12 LARGER INSURED MORTGAGES FOR SERVICEMEN

13 SEC. 206. Section 222(b) of the National Housing Act
14 is amended—

15 (1) by striking out “$20,000” in paragraph (2)
16 and inserting in lieu thereof “$30,000”; and

17 (2) by striking out paragraph (3) and inserting
18 in lieu thereof the following:

19 “(3) have a principal obligation not in excess of 20 the amount derived by applying the maximum ratio of 21 loan to value prescribed in the first sentence of section
22 203(b)(2); and”.

1 REFINANCING OF INSURED MORTGAGES

2 SEC. 207. Section 223(a)(7) of the National Housing
3 Act is amended by striking out "section 608 of title VI prior 4 to the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954 or under 5 section 220, 221, 903, or section 908" and inserting in lieu
6 thereof "this Act".

7 CONSOLIDATION OF FHA INSURANCE FUNDS

8 SEC. 208. Title V of the National Housing Act is
9 amended by adding at the end thereof the following new
10 section:

11 "ESTABLISHMENT OF GENERAL INSURANCE FUND

12 "SEC. 519. (a) There is hereby created a General In-13 surance Fund which shall be used by the Commissioner, on 14 and after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban 15 Development Act of 1965, as a revolving fund for carrying 16 out all the insurance provisions of this Act with the excep-
17 tion of those specified in subsection (e). All mortgages or 18 loans insured under this Act pursuant to commitments issued
19 on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and 20 Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in 21 subsection (e), and all loans reported for insurance under 22 section 2 on or after the date of the enactment of the 23 Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, shall be 24 insured under the General Insurance Fund. The Commis-
25 sioner shall transfer to the General Insurance Fund—

1 “(1) the assets and liabilities of all insurance ac-
2 counts and funds, except the Mutual Mortgage Insurance
3 Fund, existing under this Act immediately prior to 4 the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development
5 Act of 1965;

6 “(2) all outstanding commitments for insurance
7 issued prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing
8 and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those 9 specified in subsection (c);

10 “(3) the insurance on all mortgages and loans in-
11 sured prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing
12 and Urban Development Act of 1965, except insur-
13 ance specified in subsection (c); and

14 “(4) the insurance of all loans made by approved
15 financial institutions pursuant to section 2 prior to the 16 date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban De-
17 velopment Act of 1965.

18 “(b) The general expenses of the operations of the Fed-
19 eral Housing Administration relating to mortgages and loans
20 which are the obligation of the General Insurance Fund
21 may be charged to the General Insurance Fund.

22 “(c) Moneys in the General Insurance Fund not needed
23 for the current operations of the Federal Housing Admin-
24 istration with respect to mortgages and loans which are the 25 obligation of the General Insurance Fund shall be deposited

1 with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of such
2 Fund, or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in
3 bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and
4 interest by, the United States. The Commissioner may, with
5 the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in
6 the open market debentures issued as obligations of the Gen-
7 eral Insurance Fund or issued prior to the enactment of the 8 Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 under other 9 provisions of this Act, except debentures issued under the 10 Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be 11 made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not 12 less than the yield obtainable from other investments author-
13 ized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be can-
14 celed and not reissued.

15 “(d) Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, and
16 appraisal and other fees received on account of the insurance
17 of any mortgage or loan which is the obligation of the Gen-
18 eral Insurance Fund, the receipts derived from the property
19 covered by such mortgages and loans and from the claims,
20 debts, contracts, property, and security assigned to the Com-
21 missioner in connection therewith, and all earnings on the 22 assets of the Fund shall be credited to the General Insurance
23 Fund. The principal of, and interest paid and to be paid on,
24 debentures which are the obligation of such Fund, and cash
25 insurance payments and adjustments, and expenses incurred

1 in the handling, management, renovation, and disposal of
 2 properties acquired, in connection with mortgages and loans
 3 which are the obligation of such Fund, shall be charged to 4 such Fund.

5 “(e) The General Insurance Fund shall not be used
 6 for carrying out the provisions of sections 203(b), 203(h),
 7 and 203(i), or the provisions of section 213 to the extent
 8 that they involve mortgages the insurance for which is the 9 obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insur-
 10 ance Fund created by section 213(k); and nothing in this
 11 section shall apply to or affect any mortgages, loans, com-
 12 mitments, or insurance under such provisions.”

13 MUTUALITY FOR MANAGEMENT-TYPE COOPERATIVES

14 SEC. 209. (a) Section 213 of the National Housing Act
 15 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new 16 subsections:

17 “(k) There is hereby created a Cooperative Manage-18 ment Housing Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as 19 the ‘Management Fund’). The Management Fund shall 20 be used by the Commissioner as a revolving fund for carry-21 ing out the provisions of this section with respect to 22 mortgages or loans insured, on or after the date of the enact-
 23 ment of this subsection, under subsections (a)(1), (a)(3)
 24 (if the project is acquired by a cooperative corporation), 25 (i), and (j). The Management Fund shall also be used as

1 a revolving fund for mortgages, loans, and commitments
2 transferred to it pursuant to subsection (m). The Commis-
3 sioner is directed to transfer to the Management Fund from 4 the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to section
5 519 such amount as the Commissioner determines to be 6 necessary and appropriate. General expenses of operation
7 of the Federal Housing Administration relating to mort-
8 gages or loans which are the obligation of the Management
9 Fund may be charged to the Management Fund.

10 “(l) The Commissioner shall establish in the Manage-
11 ment Fund, as of the date of the enactment of this subsec-
12 tion, a General Surplus Account and a Participating Reserve
13 Account. The aggregate net income thereafter received or 14 any net loss thereafter sustained by the Management Fund, 15 in any semiannual period, shall be credited or charged to 16 the General Surplus Account or the Participating Reserve
17 Account or both in such manner and amounts as the Com-
18 missioner may determine to be in accord with sound actu-
19 arial and accounting practice. Upon termination of the 20 insurance obligation of the Management Fund by payment
21 of any mortgage or loan insured under this section, and at 22 such time or times prior to such termination as the Commis-
23 sioner may determine, the Commissioner is authorized to 24 distribute to the mortgagor or borrower a share of the Par-
25 ticipating Reserve Account in such manner and amount as

1 the Commissioner shall determine to be equitable and in ac-
 2 cordance with sound actuarial and accounting practice: Pro-
 3 vided, That in no event shall the amount of the distributable
 4 share exceed the aggregate scheduled annual premiums of the 5 mortgagor or borrower to the year of payment of the share
 6 less the total amount of any share or shares previously dis-
 7 tributed by the Commissioner to the mortgagor or borrower:
 8 And provided further, That in no event may a distributable
 9 share be distributed until any funds transferred from the Gen-
 10 eral Insurance Fund to the Management Fund pursuant to 11 subsection ~~(k)~~ or ~~(o)~~ have been repaid in full to the General
 12 Insurance Fund. No mortgagor, mortgagee, borrower, or 13 lender shall have any vested right in a credit balance in any 14 such account or be subject to any liability arising out of the 15 mutuality of the Management Fund. The determination of 16 the Commissioner as to the amount to be paid by him to any 17 mortgagor or borrower shall be final and conclusive.

18 “~~(m)~~ The Commissioner is authorized to transfer to the 19 Management Fund commitments for insurance issued under 20 subsections ~~(a)(1)~~, ~~(i)~~, and ~~(j)~~ prior to the date of the 21 enactment of this subsection, and to transfer to the Manage-
 22 ment Fund the insurance of any mortgage or loan insured
 23 prior to the date of the enactment of this subsection under 24 subsection ~~(a)(1)~~, ~~(a)(3)~~ (if the project is acquired by a 25 cooperative corporation), ~~(i)~~, or ~~(j)~~, but only in cases

1 where the consent of the mortgagee or lender to the transfer
 2 is obtained or a request by the mortgagee or lender for the 3 transfer is received by the Commissioner within such period
 4 of time after the date of the enactment of this subsection as 5 the Commissioner shall prescribe: Provided, That the insur-
 6 ance of any mortgage or loan shall not be transferred under 7 the provisions of this subsection if on the date of the enact-
 8 ment of this subsection the mortgage or loan is in default and 9 the mortgagee or lender has notified the Commissioner in 10 writing of its intention to file an insurance claim.— Any 11 insurance or commitment not so transferred shall continue to 12 be an obligation of the General Insurance Fund.

13 “(n)—Notwithstanding the limitations contained in 14 other provisions of this Act, premium charges for mortgages
 15 or loans insured under this section and sections 207, 231, and 16 232 may be payable in debentures issued in connection with 17 mortgages or loans transferred to the Management Fund or 18 in connection with mortgages or loans insured pursuant to 19 commitments transferred to the Management Fund, as pro-
 20 vided in subsection (m) of this section.

21 “(o)—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act,
 22 the Commissioner is authorized to transfer funds between 23 the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund and 24 the General Insurance Fund in such amounts and at such 25 times as he may determine, taking into consideration the

1 requirements of each such Fund, to assist in carrying out
 2 effectively the insurance programs for which such Funds
 3 were respectively established."

4 ~~(b)~~ Section 213 of such Act is further amended—

5 ~~(1)~~ by inserting before the period at the end of 6 subsection ~~(a)~~ the following: "Provided, That as ap-
 7 plied to mortgages the mortgage insurance for which is 8 the obligation of the Management Fund, the reference
 9 to the General Insurance Fund in section 207(b)(2)
 10 shall be construed to refer to the Management Fund";
 11 and

12 ~~(2)~~ by inserting before the period at the end of 13 subsection ~~(c)~~ the following: "Provided, That as ap-
 14 plied to mortgages or loans the insurance for which is 15 the obligation of the Management Fund ~~(1)~~ all refer-
 16 ences to the General Insurance Fund shall be construed
 17 to refer to the Management Fund, and ~~(2)~~ all refer-
 18 ences to section 207 shall be construed to refer to sub-19 sections ~~(a)(1)~~, ~~(a)(3)~~ (if the project involved is 20 acquired by a cooperative corporation), ~~(i)~~, and ~~(j)~~
 21 of this section".

22 OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

23 SEC. 210. Title V of the National Housing Act is 24 amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 208 of this Act) the following new section:

“OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

“SEC. 520. (a) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act with respect to the payment of insurance benefits, the Commissioner is authorized, in his discretion, to pay in cash or in debentures any insurance claim or part thereof which is paid on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 on a mortgage or a loan which was insured under any section of this Act either before or after such date. If payment is made in cash, it shall be in an amount equivalent to the face amount of the debentures that would otherwise be issued plus an amount equivalent to the interest which the debentures would have earned, computed to a date to be established pursuant to regulations issued by the Commissioner.

“(b) The Commissioner is authorized to borrow from the Treasury from time to time such amounts as the Commissioner shall determine are necessary to make payments in cash (in lieu of issuing debentures guaranteed by the United States, as provided in this Act) pursuant to the provisions of this section. Notes or other obligations issued by the Commissioner in borrowing under this subsection shall be subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. Each sum borrowed pur-

1 suant to this subsection shall bear interest at a rate deter-
2 mined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consid-
3 eration the average market yield on outstanding marketable
4 obligations of the United States of comparable maturities
5 during the month preceeding the issuance of such notes or 6 other obligations."

7 FHA MORTGAGE FINANCING FOR VETERANS

8 SEC. 211. ~~(a)~~ Section 203(b)(2) of the National
9 Housing Act is amended—

10 ~~(1)~~ by striking out "and not to exceed" and in-11 serting in lieu thereof "and ~~(except as provided in the~~ 12 last sentence of this paragraph) not to exceed"; and

13 ~~(2)~~ by adding at the end thereof the following
14 new sentence: "If the mortgagor is a veteran (as de-
15 fined in section 101(2) of title 38, United States Code)
16 who has not received any direct, guaranteed, or insured
17 loan under laws administered by the Veterans' Admin-
18 istration for the purchase, construction, or repair of a 19 dwelling (including a farm dwelling) which was to be 20 owned and occupied by him as his home, and the mort-
21 gage to be insured under this section covers property
22 upon which there is located a dwelling designed prin-
23 cipally for a one-family residence, the principal obliga-
24 tion may be in an amount equal to the sum of ~~(i)~~ 100
25 per centum of $20,000 of the appraised value of the

1 property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for 2 insurance, and ~~(ii)~~ 85 per centum of such value in 3 excess of $20,000."

4 ~~(b)~~ Section 203(b)(9) of such Act is amended by 5 inserting after "on account of the property" the following:
 6 "(except in a case to which the last sentence of paragraph
 7 (2) applies)".

8 MORTGAGE LIMIT FOR HOMES IN OUTLYING AREAS UNDER
 9 FHA SECTION 203(i) PROGRAM

10 SEC. 212. Section 203(i) of the National Housing Act
 11 is amended by striking out "$11,000" and inserting in lieu
 12 thereof $12,500".

13 REFINANCING OF HOUSING FOR ELDERLY PROJECTS

14 SEC. 213. Section 231(c)(7) of the National Housing
 15 Act is amended by striking out "with 50 per centum" and 16 inserting in lieu thereof "or involves the refinancing of a 17 mortgage covering an existing property or project in which 18 it has been determined by the Commissioner that such re-
 19 financing is necessary or desirable in order to avoid hardship
 20 for elderly or handicapped persons or families who are tenants
 21 or prospective tenants of such project: Provided, That in 22 either case, such property or project shall contain 50 per 23 centum".

TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL

STUDY OF HOUSING AND BUILDING CODES, ZONING, TAX
POLICIES, AND DEVELOPMENT STANDARDS

SEC. 301. (a) The Congress finds that the general welfare of the Nation requires that local authorities be encouraged and aided to prevent slums, blight, and sprawl, preserve natural beauty, and provide for decent, durable housing so that the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family may be realized as soon as feasible. The Congress further finds that there is a need to study housing and building codes, zoning, tax policies, and development standards in order to determine how (1) local property owners and private enterprise can be encouraged to serve as large a part as they can of the total housing and building need, and (2) Federal, State, and local governmental assistance can be so directed as to place greater reliance on local property owners and private enterprise and enable them to serve a greater share of the total housing and building need. The Housing and Home Finance Administrator is therefore directed to study the structure of (1) State and local urban and suburban housing and building laws, standards, codes, and regulations and their impact on housing and building costs, how they can be simplified, im-

1 proved, and enforced, at the local level, and what methods
 2 might be adopted to promote more uniform building codes
 3 and the acceptance of technical innovations including new
 4 building practices and materials; ~~(2)~~ State and local zoning
 5 and land use laws, codes, and regulations, to find ways by 6 which States and localities may improve and utilize them in
 7 order to obtain further growth and development; and ~~(3)~~
 8 Federal, State, and local tax policies with respect to their 9 effect on land and property cost and on incentives to build
 10 housing and make improvements in existing structures.

11 ~~(b)~~ The Administrator shall submit a report based on 12 such study to the President and to the Congress within 18
 13 months after the enactment of the Housing and Urban De-14 velopment Act of 1965 or the appropriation of funds for the 15 study, whichever is later.

16 ~~(c)~~ There are authorized to be appropriated such funds
 17 as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.
 18 Any funds so appropriated shall remain available until 19 expended.

20 GENERAL NEIGHBORHOOD RENEWAL PLANS

21 SEC. 302. Section 102(d) of the Housing Act of 1949
 22 is amended—

23 ~~(1)~~ by striking out the fifth sentence and inserting
 24 in lieu thereof the following:

25 “In order to facilitate proper preliminary planning for

1 the attainment of the urban renewal objectives of this title,
 2 the Administrator may also make advances of funds (in addi-
 3 tion to those authorized above) to local public agencies for 4 the preparation of General Neighborhood Renewal Plans (as 5 herein defined). A General Neighborhood Renewal Plan
 6 may be prepared for an area which consists of an urban re-
 7 newal area or areas together with any adjoining areas, and 8 which is of such size that the urban renewal activities in the 9 urban renewal area or areas may have to be carried out in 10 stages, consistent with the capacity and resources of the 11 respective local public agency or agencies, over an estimated 12 period of not more than ten years.”; and

13 ~~(2)~~ by striking out clause ~~(1)~~ of the sixth sentence
 14 and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

15 “~~(1)~~ in the interest of sound community planning,
 16 it is desirable that the urban renewal activities proposed 17 for the area be planned in their entirety;”.

18 INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR CAPITAL GRANTS

19 SEC. 303. (a) The first sentence of section 103(b) of 20 the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out
 21 “$4,725,000,000” and inserting in lieu thereof “$4,700,-
 22 000,000, which amount shall be increased by $675,000,000
 23 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban 24 Development Act of 1965, by $725,000,000 on July 1,

1 1966, and by $750,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years
2 1967 and 1968”.

3 ~~(b)~~ The proviso in the first sentence of section 103(b)
4 of such Act, and the second sentence of section 6(b) of 5 the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, are repealed.

6 USE OF GRANT OR LOAN FUNDS IN CODE ENFORCEMENT
7 AND REHABILITATION PROJECTS

8 SEC. 304. The unnumbered paragraph immediately fol-
9 lowing clause ~~(8)~~ in section 110(e) of the Housing Act
10 of 1949 is amended—

11 ~~(1)~~ by inserting “(A)” before “no contract”; and 12 ~~(2)~~ by inserting before the period at the end of the 13 paragraph the following: “, and (B) not less than 10
14 per centum of the aggregate amount of (i) grants
15 authorized to be contracted for under this title by the 16 Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and sub-
17 sequent Acts, and (ii) loans authorized to be made
18 under section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964, shall be 19 available for projects assisted with such grants or loans
20 which involve primarily code enforcement and reha-
21 bilitation”.

1 STRENGTHENED WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT

2 SEC. 305. Section 101 of the Housing Act of 1949 is
3 amended by adding at the end thereof the following new
4 subsection:

5 “(e) No loan or grant contract may be entered into 6 by the Administrator for an urban renewal project unless
7 he determines that (A) the workable program for com-
8 munity improvement presented by the locality pursuant to 9 subsection (c) is of sufficient scope and content to furnish a
10 basis for evaluation of the need for the urban renewal project;
11 and (B) such project is in accord with the program.”

12 REHABILITATION LOANS

13 SEC. 306. (a) Section 312(d) of the Housing Act of 14 1964 is amended to read as follows:

15 “(d) In order to provide moneys for loans in accord-
16 ance with this section, the Administrator is authorized to 17 establish a revolving fund which shall comprise all moneys
18 heretofore or hereafter appropriated pursuant to this
19 section, together with all repayments and other receipts
20 heretofore or hereafter received in connection with loans
21 made under this section. There are authorized to be

1 appropriated to such revolving fund, in addition to amounts
 2 authorized for the purposes of this section prior to the date
 3 of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development
 4 Act of 1965, such funds as may be necessary to carry out
 5 the purposes of this section. —All funds so appropriated shall
 6 remain available until expended.”

7 (b) Section 312 of such Act is further amended by
 8 adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

9 “(h) No loan shall be made under the authority of this
 10 section after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a contract,
 11 commitment, or other obligation entered into pursuant to
 12 this section before that date.”

13 LEASE GUARANTIES FOR SMALL-BUSINESS CONCERNS

14 DISPLACED BY URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS

15 SEC. 307. (a) Section 7 of the Small Business Act is 16 amended by adding at the end thereof the following new
 17 subsection:

18 “(e)-(1) The Administration also is empowered, in 19 order to assist small-business concerns which have been dis-
 20 placed by urban renewal projects in obtaining leases of 21 property for use in the conduct of their business operations, 22 to insure the owner or lessor of any such property, or the 23 lending institution financing the construction thereof, against 24 losses which such owner, lessor, or institution might sustain

1 as a result of the failure of the small-business concern to
2 perform the lease in accordance with its terms.

3 “(2) No insurance under this subsection shall be granted
4 by the Administration with respect to any lease unless—

5 “(A) the lease is for a period of not more than 6 ten years and contains or is subject to such other terms
7 and conditions as the Administration may require in 8 order to protect the interests of the small-business con-
9 cern and to insure that the lease will assist in carrying 10 out the purpose of this Act; and

11 “(B) the small-business concern is financially sound
12 and efficiently managed; and has provided satisfactory
13 assurances that it will comply with the terms of the lease
14 and any related documents and with such additional 15 terms and conditions as the Administration may specify.

16 “(3) There is hereby established an insurance fund for 17 use by the Administration in carrying out this subsection.
18 Each person granted insurance under this subsection shall be 19 required to pay premiums for such insurance, at such times
20 and in such manner as may be prescribed by the Administra-
21 tion; in amounts which shall be fixed by the Administration¹⁸
22 but which shall not exceed, in the case of any lease, an²⁰
23 amount equivalent to 1 per centum of the annual rental (or²²
24 minimum rental) payable under such lease. Such premiums,

1 together with any other receipts under the insurance program
2 established by this subsection, shall be placed in the insurance
3 fund. Moneys in such fund not needed for the payment of 4 current operating expenses of the insurance program or for 5 the payment of claims arising thereunder may be invested in 6 bonds or other obligations of, or bonds or other obligations
7 guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States;
8 except that moneys made available to provide initial capital
9 for such fund under the sixth sentence of section 4(c) shall 10 be returned to the revolving fund established by such section,
11 in such amounts and at such times as the Administration
12 determines to be appropriate, whenever the level of such 13 insurance fund (by reason of premiums and receipts from 14 other sources) is sufficiently high to permit the return of 15 such moneys without danger to the solvency of the insurance
16 program under this subsection.

17 “(4) The Administration is authorized and directed to 18 prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary
19 to carry out this subsection.”

20 (b) Section 4(c) of such Act is amended—

21 (1) by inserting “7(c);” after “7(b);” in the first 22 sentence; and

23 (2) by inserting after the fifth sentence the fol-24 lowing new sentence: “Not to exceed $5,000,000 shall be made available to provide initial capital for the insurance fund established by section 7(c)-(3)."

(c) Section 5(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting after "loans granted" in paragraphs (2) and (3) the following: "or the performance of leases insured";

(2) by striking out "loans made" each place it appears in paragraphs (4) and (7) and inserting in lieu thereof "loans made or leases insured"; and

(3) by striking out "and (b)" in paragraph (5) and inserting in lieu thereof ", 7(b), and 7(c)".

RELOCATION OF DISPLACED FROM URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 308. (a) Section 105(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"(c) There shall be a feasible method for the temporary relocation of individuals and families displaced from the urban renewal area, and there are or are being provided, in the urban renewal area or in other areas not generally less desirable in regard to public utilities and public and commercial facilities and at rents or prices within the financial means of the individuals and families displaced from the urban renewal area, decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings equal number to the number of and available to such dis-

1 placed individuals and families and reasonably accessible
2 to their places of employment. The Administrator shall 3 issue rules and regulations to aid in implementing the 4 requirements of this subsection and in otherwise achiev-
5 ing the objectives of this title. Such rules and regula-
6 tions shall require that there be established, at the earli-
7 est practicable time, for each urban renewal project in-
8 volving the displacement of individuals, families, and 9 business concerns occupying property in the urban 10 renewal area, a relocation assistance program which shall 11 include such measures, facilities, and services as may be 12 necessary or appropriate in order (A) to determine the 13 needs of such individuals, families, and business concerns
14 for relocation assistance; (B) to provide information and 15 assistance to aid in relocation and otherwise minimize the 16 hardships of displacement, including information as to real 17 estate agencies, brokers, and boards in or near the urban 18 renewal area which deal in residential or business property
19 that might be appropriate for the relocating of displaced 20 individuals, families, and business concerns; and (C) to 21 assure the necessary coordination of relocation activities
22 with other project activities and other planned or proposed 23 governmental actions in the community which may affect 24 the carrying out of the relocation program, particularly 25 planned or proposed low-rent housing projects to be con-

1 structed in or near the urban renewal area. As a condition
2 to further assistance after the enactment of this sentence with
3 respect to each urban renewal project involving the displace-
4 ment of individuals and families, the Administrator shall
5 require, within a reasonable time prior to actual displacement,
6 satisfactory assurance by the local public agency that decent,
7 safe, and sanitary dwellings as required by the first sentence
8 of this subsection are available for the relocation of each such 9 individual or family."

~~(b)~~ The requirements imposed by the amendment made by subsection ~~(a)~~ of this section shall not be applicable to any project receiving Federal recognition prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

14 REDEVELOPMENT IN ACCORDANCE WITH URBAN RENEWAL
15 PLAN

16 SEC. 309. Section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 is
17 amended by adding at the end thereof the following new
18 subsection:

“(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, no contract shall be entered into for any loan or capital grant under this title with any local public agency unless the local public agency establishes, by evidence satisfactory to the Administrator, that any urban renewal project with respect to which such local public agency has received a loan or capital grant under this title has been, or will be, undertaken

1 and carried out in substantial accordance with the urban re-
 2 newal plan, and any amendments thereto, approved with re-
 3 spect to such project, and the terms of the contract for loan
 4 or capital grant covering such project."

5 ~~LIMITATION ON NONCASH GRANT-IN-AID CREDIT ALLOWED~~
 6 ~~FOR PUBLICLY OWNED PARKING FACILITIES~~

7 SEC. 310. The parenthetical phrase in clause ~~(3)~~ of 8 the first sentence of section 110~~(d)~~ of the Housing Act of 9 1949 is amended by striking out "and" and inserting in lieu 10 thereof a comma, and by inserting at the end thereof (within 11 the parentheses) the following: ", and publicly owned park-
 12 ing facilities to the extent that the cost thereof is anticipated
 13 to be recovered from revenues".

14 ~~ELIGIBILITY OF COMMUNITIES IN DEPRESSED AREAS FOR~~
 15 ~~URBAN RENEWAL ASSISTANCE~~

16 SEC. 311. ~~(a)~~ Subparagraph ~~(B)~~ of section 103~~(a)~~
 17 ~~(2)~~ of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as
 18 follows:

19 "~~(B)~~ three-fourths of the aggregate net project costs
 20 of any such projects which are located in ~~(i)~~ a munici-
 21 pality having a population of fifty thousand or less ac-
 22 cording to the most recent decennial census, or ~~(ii)~~ a
 23 municipality situated in a labor market area which, at 24 the time the contract or contracts involved are entered
 25 into or at such earlier time as the Administrator may specify in order to avoid hardship, is designated as a redevelopment area under the second sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act or any other legislation enacted after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 containing standards for designation as a redevelopment area generally comparable to those set forth in the second sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act, and”.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply only with respect to urban renewal projects placed under contract for capital grant on or after the date of the enactment of this Act; except that such amendment shall apply with respect to all urban renewal projects in the city of Providence, Rhode Island, placed under contract for capital grant during the period Providence was designated as a redevelopment area under section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act (or at such earlier time as the Administrator may specify in order to avoid hardship) and not completed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

LOCAL GRANTS IN AID FOR URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS IN PHILADELPHIA AND WILKES-BARRE, PENNSYLVANIA

SEC. 312. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, moneys heretofore expended by the University of Pennsylvania and Wilkes College for land (and related expenditures

1 for demolition and relocation) included in the overall devel-
 2 opment plans proposed by such institutions and utilized, or 3 to be utilized, in connection with new facilities of such
 4 institutions within one mile of urban renewal projects Penn-
 5 sylvania 5-3 (University City) and Pennsylvania R-149
 6 (Wright Street), respectively, shall, if otherwise eligible,
 7 be allowed as local grants in-aid for such projects.

DENVER

10 SEC. 313. Notwithstanding the extent to which the 11 cultural and convention center proposed to be built adjacent 12 to urban renewal project Colorado R-15 (Skyline) in 13 Denver, Colorado, may benefit areas other than the urban 14 renewal area, expenses incurred by the city of Denver in 15 constructing such center shall, to the extent otherwise eligi-
 16 ble, be counted as a grant-in-aid toward such project.

17 ~~LOCAL GRANT-IN-AID CREDIT FOR CERTAIN COAL~~

18

ROYALTIES

19 SEC. 314. (a) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 20 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following
 21 new paragraph:

22 "Where a project in any municipality includes an area
 23 affected by an underground mine fire or by a coal mine
 24 subsidence and where it is necessary in such project to

1 remove any underlying coal deposits in order to stabilize
 2 the soil or to control the underground mine fire, then any
 3 royalties received by the project from the removal and sale
 4 of such coal deposits shall be credited to the project as a
 5 local grant-in-aid made by such municipality.”

6 ~~(b)~~ Any contract under title I of the Housing Act of
 7 1949 executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act
 8 shall, at the request of the municipality involved, be amended
 9 to reflect the amendment made by subsection ~~(a)~~.

10 TITLE IV—COMPENSATION OF CONDEMNEDS

11 DECLARATION OF POLICY

12 SEC. 401. In order to encourage the acquisition of real
 13 property in a manner which affords fair and equitable treat-
 14 ment to owners and tenants of such property and on as 15 nearly uniform a basis as practicable, the Congress hereby 16 establishes a Federal policy of uniform land acquisition pro-
 17 cedures for real property to be acquired in the course of 18 federally assisted development programs.

19 DEFINITIONS

20 SEC. 402. For the purposes of this title—

21 ~~(1)~~ the term “development program” means any 22 program established by or conducted under any of the 23 following provisions of law:

24 ~~(A)~~ the United States Housing Act of 1937;

1 ~~(B)~~ title I of the Housing Act of 1949;

2 ~~(C)~~ title IV of the Housing Act of 1950;

3 ~~(D)~~ title II of the Housing Amendments of 4 1955;

5 ~~(E)~~ section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959;

6 and

7 ~~(F)~~ title VII of the Housing Act of 1961;

8 ~~(2)~~ the term "Federal assistance" means a grant,
9 loan, contract or guaranty, annual contribution, or other
10 assistance provided by the United States;

11 ~~(3)~~ the term "applicant" means any public body
12 or other agency or nonprofit institution authorized to 13 receive Federal assistance under a development program;

14 ~~(4)~~ the term "interest" means any interest in real
15 property and includes future, nonpossessory, and lease-
16 hold interests;

17 ~~(5)~~ the term "real property" means any land, or 18 any interest in land, and ~~(A)~~ any building, structure,
19 or other improvements embedded in or affixed to land,
20 and any article so affixed or attached to such building,
21 structure, or improvement as to be an essential or integral 22 part thereof; ~~(B)~~ any article affixed or attached to such 23 real property in such manner that it cannot be removed 24 without material injury to itself or the real property; and 25 ~~(C)~~ any article so designed, constructed, or specially

1 adapted to the purpose for which such real property is 2 used that ~~(i)~~ it is an essential accessory or part of such 3 real property, ~~(ii)~~ it is not capable of use elsewhere, and 4 ~~(iii)~~ it would lose substantially all its value if removed 5 from the real property; and

6 ~~(6)~~ the term "Administrator" means the Housing
 7 and Home Finance Administrator.

8 LAND ACQUISITION POLICY

9 SEC. 403. ~~(a)~~ As a condition of eligibility for Federal 10 assistance pursuant to a development program, each applicant
 11 for such assistance shall satisfy the Administrator that the 12 following policies will be followed in connection with the 13 acquisition of real property by eminent domain in the course
 14 of such program—

15 ~~(1)~~ the applicant shall make every reasonable effort
 16 to acquire the real property by negotiated purchase;

17 ~~(2)~~ the real property shall be appraised before the 18 initiation of negotiations, and the owner or his designated
 19 representative shall be given an opportunity to accom-
 20 pany the appraiser during his inspection of the property;

21 ~~(3)~~ before the initiation of negotiations for acqui-
 22 sition of the real property, the applicant shall establish a
 23 price believed to be fair and reasonable and shall offer
 24 to acquire the property for the price so established;

1 ~~(4)~~ if only a part of or an interest less than a fee
2 title to real property is to be acquired, the applicant shall 3 provide the owner with a statement of its estimate of—

4 ~~(A)~~ the fair value of the entire property imme-
5 diately before the acquisition;

6 ~~(B)~~ the fair value of the property remaining
7 immediately after the acquisition;

8 ~~(C)~~ the fair value of the part of or interest in 9 the property actually acquired;

10 ~~(D)~~ the damages, if any, resulting to the 11 remaining property ~~(or interest therein)~~; and

12 ~~(E)~~ the benefits, if any, accruing to the remain-
13 ing property ~~(or interest therein)~~;

14 ~~(5)~~ no owner shall be required to surrender pos-
15 session of real property before the applicant pays to the 16 owner ~~(A)~~ the agreed purchase price arrived at by 17 negotiation, or ~~(B)~~ in any case where only the amount 18 of the payment to the owner is in dispute, not less than 19 75 per centum of the most recent fair and reasonable
20 price established under paragraph ~~(3)~~;

21 ~~(6)~~ the construction or development of any public
22 improvements shall be so scheduled that no person law-
23 fully occupying the real property shall be required to 24 surrender possession on account of such construction or 25 development without at least 90 days' written notice

1 from the applicant of the date on which such construc-
2 tion or development is scheduled to begin;

3 (7) if the applicant does not require the use of a
4 building, structure, or other improvement on the real
5 property to be acquired, the applicant shall offer to 6 permit its owner to remove it upon agreement that the 7 fair value of the building, structure, or other improve-
8 ment to be removed from the real property, as deter-
9 mined by the applicant, will be deducted from the 10 compensation otherwise to be paid for the real property,
11 or will be paid to the applicant by the owner;

12 (8) if the applicant permits an owner or tenant to 13 rent acquired real property for a short term or for a
14 period subject to termination by the applicant on short 15 notice, the amount of rent required shall not exceed the 16 fair rental value of the property to the owner or tenant
17 for such term or period, as determined by the applicant;

18 (9) the applicant shall not advance the time of 19 eminent domain, nor defer eminent domain or the deposit
20 of funds in court for the benefit of the owner, in order
21 to compel an agreement on the price to be paid for the 22 real property;

23 (10) if the acquisition of only a part of any real
24 property would leave its owner with an uneconomic

1 remnant, the applicant shall acquire the entire property;

2 and

3 ~~(11)~~ in determining the boundaries of a proposed
4 public improvement, the applicant shall take into account
5 human considerations, including the economic and social
6 effects of the proposed public improvement on owners
7 and tenants of real property in the area, in addition to 8 engineering and other factors.

9 ~~(b)~~ Nothing in this section shall be construed as super-
10 seding or otherwise affecting the provisions of any State or 11 local law, or as affecting the validity of any property acqui-
12 sition by purchase or eminent domain.

13 RELOCATION PAYMENTS UNDER FEDERALLY ASSISTED 14 DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

15 SEC. 404. ~~(a)~~ To the extent not otherwise authorized 16 under any Federal law, financial assistance extended to an 17 applicant under any federally assisted development program
18 may include grants for relocation payments, as herein de-
19 fined. Such grants may be in addition to other financial as-
20 sistance under such federally assisted development programs,
21 and may cover the full amount of such relocation payments.
22 The term "relocation payments" means payments by the 23 applicant which are ~~(1)~~ made to an individual, family, busi-
24 ness concern, or nonprofit organization displaced by a project
25 on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and

1 Urban Development Act of 1965, and ~~(2)~~ made on such 2 terms and conditions and subject to such limitations ~~(to the~~
 3 ~~extent applicable, but not including the date of displacement)~~
 4 as are provided for relocation payments, at the time such
 5 payments are approved, by sections 114 ~~(b)~~, ~~(c)~~, and ~~(d)~~
 6 of the Housing Act of 1949 with respect to projects assisted 7 under title I thereof. Relocation payments authorized by 8 this subsection shall be made subject to such rules and regu-
 9 lations as may be prescribed by the Administrator.

10 ~~(b)~~ Section 114~~(b)~~~~(2)~~ of the Housing Act of 1949
 11 is amended by striking out “$1,500” and inserting in lieu
 12 thereof “$2,500”.

13 ~~(c)~~~~(1)~~ Section 114 of such Act is further amended by 14 redesignating subsection ~~(d)~~ as subsection ~~(c)~~ and by in-15 serting after subsection ~~(c)~~ the following new subsection:

16 “~~(d)~~ In addition to payments authorized to be made
 17 under subsections ~~(b)~~ and ~~(c)~~, a local public agency may 18 pay to any displaced individual, family, business concern,
 19 or nonprofit organization reasonable and necessary expenses
 20 incurred for ~~(1)~~ recording fees, transfer taxes, and similar 21 expenses incidental to conveying real property to a project
 22 assisted under this title; ~~(2)~~ penalty costs for prepayment
 23 of any mortgage encumbering such real property; and ~~(3)~~
 24 the pro rata portion of real property taxes allocable to a 25 period subsequent to the date of vesting of title or the

1 effective date of the acquisition of such real property by
2 such agency, whichever is earlier."

3 ~~(2)~~ Section ~~15(8)~~ of the United States Housing Act
4 of 1937 is amended by striking out "section 114 ~~(b)~~ or 5 ~~(c)~~" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 114 ~~(b)~~, ~~(c)~~,
6 and ~~(d)~~".

7 ~~(d)~~ Subsection ~~(a)~~ shall not be applicable to any proj-
8 ect receiving financial assistance under a development pro-
9 gram prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

10 FUNDS FOR CERTAIN PAYMENTS IN EMINENT DOMAIN

11 SEC. 405. Notwithstanding any other provision of law,
12 financial assistance under any federally assisted development
13 program may include amounts necessary for financing, in 14 the same manner that other costs of a project assisted under 15 such program are financed, the payments described in para-
16 graph ~~(5)-(B)~~ of section 403~~(a)~~ of this Act.

17 TITLE V—COLLEGE HOUSING

18 INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR COLLEGE HOUSING 19 LOANS

20 SEC. 501. Section 401~~(d)~~ of the Housing Act of 1950
21 is amended by striking out "through 1964" each place it
22 appears and inserting in lieu thereof "through 1968".

23 INTEREST RATE ON COLLEGE HOUSING LOANS

24 SEC. 502. ~~(a)~~ Effective with respect to loan contracts
25 entered into after the date of the enactment of this Act, see-

tion 401(c) of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by striking out "the higher of (1) $2\frac{3}{4}$ per centum per annum, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "the lower of (1) 3 per centum per annum, or".

(b) Effective with respect to notes or other obligations financing loan contracts entered into after the date of the enactment of this Act, section 401(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "the higher of (1) $2\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per annum, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "the lower of (1) $2\frac{3}{4}$ per centum per annum, or".

PARKING FACILITIES FOR COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

SEC. 503. Section 404(h) of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "In addition, such term includes parking facilities primarily to serve the needs of students and faculty."

TITLE VI—COMMUNITY FACILITIES

PURPOSE

SEC. 601. The purpose of this title is to assist and encourage the communities of the Nation fully to meet the needs of their citizens by making it possible, with Federal grant assistance, for their governmental bodies (1) to construct adequate basic water and sewer facilities needed to promote the efficient and orderly growth and development of the communities; and (2) to construct neighborhood facilities needed

1 to enable them to carry on programs of necessary social
2 services.

3 GRANTS FOR BASIC WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

4 SEC. 602. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Ad-
5 ministrator (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "Ad-
6 ministrator") is authorized to make grants to local public
7 bodies and agencies to finance specific projects for basic pub-
8 lic water and sewer facilities (including works for the storage, 9 treatment, purification, and distribution of water): Provided,
10 That no grant shall be made under this section for any sewer 11 facilities unless the Secretary of Health, Education, and 12 Welfare certifies to the Administrator that any waste ma-
13 terial carried by such facilities will be adequately treated 14 before it is discharged into any public waterway, so as to 15 meet applicable Federal, State, interstate, or local water
16 quality standards.

17 (b) The amount of any grant made under the authority
18 of this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the develop-
19 ment cost of the project.

20 (c) No grant shall be made under this section in con-
21 nection with any project unless the Administrator deter-
22 mines that the project is necessary to provide adequate
23 water or sewer facilities for, and will contribute to the im-
24 provement of the health or living standards of, the people
25 in the community to be served, and that the project is (1)

1 designed so that an adequate capacity will be available to
 2 serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area;
 3 ~~(2)~~ consistent with a program meeting criteria, established
 4 by the Administrator, for a unified or officially coordinated
 5 areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the 6 comprehensively planned development of the area, except 7 that prior to July 1, 1968, grants may, in the discretion of 8 the Administrator, be made under this section when such 9 a program for an areawide water and sewer facilities system
 10 is under active preparation, although not yet completed, if 11 the facility or facilities for which assistance is sought can 12 reasonably be expected to be required as a part of such 13 program, and there is urgent need for the facility or facilities,
 14 and ~~(3)~~ necessary to orderly community development.

15 GRANTS FOR NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES

16 SEC. 603. ~~(a)~~ The Administrator is authorized to make 17 grants, in accordance with the provisions of this section, to 18 local public bodies and agencies to finance specific projects
 19 for neighborhood facilities.

20 ~~(b)~~ The amount of any grant made under the authority
 21 of this section shall not exceed $66\frac{2}{3}$ per centum of the devel-22 opment cost of the project for which the grant is made ~~(or~~ 23 ~~75~~ per centum of such cost in the case of a project located
 24 in an area which at the time the grant is made is designated
 25 as a redevelopment area under section 5 of the Area Redevel-

1 opment Act or under any other legislation enacted after the 2 date of the enactment of this Act containing standards for
3 designation as a redevelopment area generally comparable
4 to those set forth in section 5 of the Area Redevelopment
5 Act).

6 (c) No grant shall be made under this section for any
7 project unless the Administrator determines that the project
8 will provide a neighborhood facility which is (1) necessary
9 for carrying out a program of health, recreational, social, or
10 similar community service (including a community action
11 program approved under title II of the Economic Opportu-
12 nity Act of 1964) in the area, (2) consistent with compre-
13 hensive planning for the development of the community, and
14 (3) so located as to be available for use by a significant por-
15 tion (or number in the case of large urban places) of the 16 area's low- or moderate-income residents.

17 (d) For a period of twenty years after a grant has 18 been made under this section for a neighborhood facility,
19 such facility shall not, without the approval of the Adminis-
20 trator, be converted to uses other than those proposed by 21 the applicant in its application for the grant. The Adminis-
22 trator shall not approve any conversion in the use of such 23 a neighborhood facility during such twenty-year period un-
24 less he finds that such conversion is in accord with the then
25 applicable program of health, recreational, social, or similar

1 community services in the area and consistent with compre-
 2 hensive planning for the development of the community in
 3 which the facility is located. In approving any such con-
 4 version, the Administrator may impose such additional con-
 5 ditions and requirements as he deems necessary.

6 ~~(e)~~ The Administrator shall give priority to applica-
 7 tions for projects designed primarily to benefit members of
 8 low-income families or otherwise substantially further the 9 objectives of a community action program approved under
 10 title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

11 GENERAL PROVISIONS

12 SEC. 604. ~~(a)~~ In the performance of, and with respect
 13 to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this
 14 title, the Administrator shall ~~(in addition to any authority~~
 15 ~~otherwise vested in him)~~ have the functions, powers, and
 16 duties set forth in section 402, except subsections ~~(a)~~, ~~(c)~~
 17 ~~(2)~~, and ~~(f)~~ of the Housing Act of 1950.

18 ~~(b)~~ The Administrator is authorized, notwithstanding
 19 the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, to 20 make advance or progress payments on account of any 21 grant made pursuant to this title. No part of any grant
 22 authorized to be made by the provisions of this title shall be 23 used for the payment of ordinary governmental operating 24 expenses.

2

SEC. 605. As used in this title—

3

(a) The term “State” means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the territories and possessions of the United States.

(b) The term “local public bodies and agencies” includes public corporate bodies and political subdivisions; public agencies or instrumentalities of one or more States; municipalities, or political subdivisions of one or more States (including public agencies and instrumentalities of one or more municipalities or other political subdivisions of one or more States); Indian tribes; and boards or commissions established under the laws of any State to finance specific capital improvement projects.

15

(c) The term “development cost”, with respect to any facility, means costs of the construction of the facility and the land on which it is located, including necessary site improvements to permit its use as a site for the facility.

19

20

SEC. 606. All laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors on projects assisted under sections 602 and 603 shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the

1 ~~Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a-276a-5):~~
2 No such project shall be approved without first obtaining
3 adequate assurance that these labor standards will be main-
4 tained upon the construction work. The Secretary of Labor
5 shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in 6 this section, the authority and functions set forth in Re-
7 organization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176;
8 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 133z-15), and section 2 of the 9 Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 948; 40
10 U.S.C. 276e).

11 ~~APPROPRIATIONS; TERMINATION OF PROGRAM~~

12 SEC. 607. (a) There are hereby authorized to be appro-
13 priated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the 14 provisions of this title. All funds so appropriated shall
15 remain available until expended.

(b) No grant shall be made under this title after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a contract or commitment entered into on or before such date.

19 ~~TITLE VII—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE~~

20 ASSOCIATION

21 INCREASE IN PNMA SPECIAL ASSISTANCE AUTHORITY

22 SEC. 701. (a) Section 305(c) of the National Housing
23 Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end 24 thereof the following: “, which limit shall be increased by

1 $100,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing
 2 and Urban Development Act of 1965, by $450,000,000 on 3 July 1, 1966, by $550,000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by 4 $525,000,000 on July 1, 1968”.

5 ~~(b)~~ Section 305 ~~(f)~~ of such Act is amended by inserting
 6 before the period at the end thereof the following: “: Pro-
 7 vided further, That any portion of the total amount of 8 authority set forth in the first proviso of this subsection
 9 which, on the date of the enactment of the Housing and 10 Urban Development Act of 1965 and on each July 1 there-
 11 after, would otherwise be available for making purchases and 12 commitments pursuant to this subsection, shall be transferred
 13 to and merged with the authority granted by subsection ~~(a)~~
 14 and added to the amount of such authority as set forth in sub-15 section ~~(c)~~; and the total amount of authority set forth in the 16 first proviso of this subsection shall progressively be reduced
 17 by the amount of each such transfer”.

18 INCREASE IN LIMITATION ON MORTGAGES FOR DWELLING
 19 UNITS HAVING FOUR OR MORE BEDROOMS

20 SEC. 702. Section 302 ~~(b)~~ of the National Housing Act
 21 is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the 22 first sentence the following: “(plus an additional $2,500

1 for each such family residence or dwelling unit which has
2 four or more bedrooms)".

3 ~~TITLE VIII—OPEN SPACE LAND AND URBAN~~
4 ~~BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT~~

5 CHANGE IN NAME OF PROGRAM; FINDINGS AND PURPOSE

6 SEC. 801. (a) The heading of title VII of the Housing
7 Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: "~~TITLE VII—~~
8 ~~OPEN SPACE LAND AND URBAN BEAUTIFICA-~~
9 ~~TION AND IMPROVEMENT~~".

10 (b) Section 701 of such Act is amended by redesignig-
11 nating subsection (b) as subsection (c) and by inserting
12 after subsection (a) the following new subsection:

13 "(b) The Congress further finds that there is an urgent
14 need both for the additional provision of parks and other 15 open-space areas in the developed portions of the Nation's 16 urban areas and for greater and better coordinated local 17 efforts to beautify and improve open space and other public
18 land throughout urban areas, to facilitate their increased use
19 and enjoyment by the Nation's urban population."

20 (c) The subsection of section 701 of such Act redesignig-21 nated as subsection (c) by subsection (b) of this section is
22 amended—

1 ~~(1)~~ by inserting “(1) provide and” before “pre-

2 serve open-space land”, and

3 (2) by inserting before the period at the end
4 thereof the following: “, and (2) beautify and improve
5 open-space and other public urban land, in accordance 6 with programs to encourage and coordinate local public
7 and private efforts toward this end”.

8 INCREASED GRANT LEVEL FOR PRESERVATION OF OPEN-
9 SPACE LAND

10 SEC. 802. Section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1961
11 is amended by striking out "20 per centum" and "30 per 12 centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "30 per centum" and 13 "40 per centum", respectively.

14 SUBSTITUTION OF APPROPRIATION AUTHORITY FOR GRANT
15 CONTRACT AUTHORITY

16 ~~SEC. 803.~~ (a) Section 702 (a) of the Housing Act of
17 ~~1961~~ is amended—

18 ~~(1)~~ by striking out “enter into contracts to” in the 19 first sentence, and

20 ~~(2)~~ by striking out all of the third sentence.

21 ~~(b)~~ Section 702~~(b)~~ of such Act is amended by striking
22 out the first two sentences and inserting in lieu thereof the 23 following: "There are hereby authorized to be appropriated
24 such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes
25 of this title."

1 (e) Section 702 of such Act is further amended by
2 adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

3 “(f) No grant shall be made under this title after 4 October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a contract or commit-
5 ment entered into on or before such date.”

6 (d) Section 703(a) of such Act is amended by striking
7 out “enter into contracts to”.

8 ~~GRANTS FOR PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT-UP~~

9 ~~URBAN AREAS~~

10 SEC. 804. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is
11 amended by redesignating sections 705 and 706 as sections
12 708 and 709, respectively, and by inserting after section
13 704 the following new section:

14 ~~“GRANTS FOR PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT-~~

15 ~~UP URBAN AREAS~~

16 “SEC. 705. (a) The Administrator is further author-
17 ized to make grants to States and local public bodies to help
18 finance the acquisition of title to, or other permanent in-
19 terests in, developed land in built-up portions of urban areas
20 defined herein. The Administrator shall make such grants
21 only where the local governing body determines that ade-
22 quate open-space land cannot effectively be provided through
23 the use of existing undeveloped or predominantly undevel-
24 oped land and the Administrator determines that the pro-

1 posed acquisition is important to the comprehensively
2 planned development of the locality. Grants under this
3 section shall not exceed the lesser of ~~(1)~~ $500,000 or ~~(2)~~
4 40 per centum of the cost of acquiring such title or other
5 interests and of necessary demolition and removal of im-
6 provements.

7 “~~(b)~~ Financial assistance extended to any project under
8 this title may include grants for relocation payments, as 9 herein defined. Such grants may be in addition to other
10 financial assistance under this title, and no part of the 11 amount of such relocation payments shall be required to be
12 contributed as a local grant. The term ‘relocation payments’
13 means payments by the applicant which are ~~(1)~~ made to an 14 individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organization
15 displaced, after March 4, 1965, by a project assisted under 16 this title, ~~(2)~~ not otherwise authorized under any Federal 17 law, and ~~(3)~~ made only on such terms and conditions and 18 subject to such limitations ~~(to the extent applicable, but not~~ 19 ~~including the date of displacement)~~ as are provided for relo-
20 cation payments, at the time such payments are approved, by 21 sections 114 ~~(b)~~, ~~(c)~~, and ~~(d)~~ of the Housing Act of 1949.
22 Relocation payments authorized by this subsection shall be
23 made subject to such rules and regulations as may be pre-
24 scribed by the Administrator.”

1 GRANTS FOR URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

2 SEC. 805. (a) Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961
3 is further amended by inserting after section 705 (as added
4 by section 804 of this Act) the following new section:

5 "GRANTS FOR URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

6 "SEC. 706. The Administrator is authorized to make
7 grants, as herein provided, to States and local public bodies
8 to assist in carrying out local programs for the greater use
9 and enjoyment of open-space and other public land in urban 10 areas. The Administrator shall establish criteria for such 11 programs to assure that each (1) represents significant and 12 effective efforts, involving all available public and private 13 resources, for the beautification of such land and its improve-
14 ment for open-space uses, and (2) is important to the com-
15 prehensively planned development of the locality. Grants
16 made under this section shall not exceed 40 per centum of 17 the amount by which the cost of the activities carried on by 18 an applicant during a fiscal year under an approved program
19 exceeds its usual expenditures for comparable activities:
20 Provided, That, notwithstanding any other provision of this
21 section, the Administrator may use not to exceed $5,000,000
22 of the funds available for grants under this section to make 23 grants in amounts up to the full cost of activities which he

1 determines to have special value in developing and demon-
 2 strating new and improved methods and materials for use in
 3 carrying out the purposes of this section."

4 (b) Section 702(c) of such Act is amended by insert-
 5 ing after "development costs" the following: "(except as 6 authorized under section 706); or the additional price which
 7 is attributable to improvements to be retained on open-space
 8 land which are not incidental to the proposed open-space
 9 uses,".

10

LABOR STANDARDS

11 SEC. 806. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is 12 further amended by inserting after section 706 (as added by 13 section 805 of this Act) the following new section:

14

"LABOR STANDARDS

15 "SEC. 707. (a) The Administrator shall take such ac-
 16 tion as may be necessary to insure that all laborers and 17 mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors in the 18 performance of construction work financed with the assist-
 19 ance of grants under this title shall be paid wages at rates
 20 not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the 21 locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accord-
 22 ance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended. The Admin-
 23 istrator shall not approve any such grant without first obtain-
 24 ing adequate assurance that these labor standards will be 25 maintained upon the construction work.

1 “(b) The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to
 2 the labor standards specified in subsection (a), the authority
 3 and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered
 4 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 133z-
 5 15), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended
 6 (48 Stat. 948; 40 U.S.C. 276e).”

7 USE OF FUNDS FOR STUDIES AND PUBLICATION

8 SEC. 807. The second sentence of the section of the 9 Housing Act of 1961 redesignated as section 708 by section
 10 804 of this Act is amended to read as follows: “The Admin-
 11 istrator is authorized to use during any fiscal year not to 12 exceed $100,000 of the funds available for grants under 13 this title to undertake such studies and publish such 14 information.”

15 CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

16 SEC. 808. (a) The heading of section 702 of the Hous-
 17 ing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: “GRANTS
 18 FOR PRESERVATION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND”.

19 (b) Section 702(a) of such Act is amended by striking
 20 out “provisions of this title” and “purposes of this title” and 21 inserting in lieu thereof “provisions of this section” and 22 “purposes of this section”, respectively.

23 (c) Section 702(c) of such Act is amended by striking
 24 out “served by the open-space land acquired” in the second 25 sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “assisted”.

1 ~~(d)~~ Section 703(a) of such Act is amended by striking
2 out “this title” and inserting in lieu thereof “section 702(a)”.

3 ~~(e)~~ Section 704 of such Act is amended by striking
4 out “for which” in the first sentence and inserting in lieu
5 thereof “for the acquisition of which”.

6 TITLE IX—RURAL HOUSING

7 LOANS FOR PREVIOUSLY OCCUPIED BUILDINGS AND

8 MINIMUM SITE ACQUISITION

9 SEC. 901. ~~(a)~~ Section 501(a) of the Housing Act of
10 1949 is amended—

11 ~~(1)~~ by inserting after “their farms,” in clause ~~(1)~~
12 the following: “and to purchase previously occupied
13 buildings and land constituting a minimum adequate site, 14 in order”; and

15 ~~(2)~~ by inserting after “rural areas” in clause ~~(2)~~
16 the following: “for the construction, improvement, al-
17 teration, or repair of dwellings, related facilities, and 18 farm buildings and to rural residents for such purposes
19 and for the purchase of previously occupied buildings and 20 the purchase of land constituting a minimum adequate
21 site, in order”.

22 ~~(b)~~ Section 501(c) of such Act is amended by insert-
23 ing “or a rural resident” in clause ~~(1)~~ after “or that he is 24 the owner of other real estate in a rural area”.

INTEREST RATE ON DIRECT RURAL HOUSING LOANS

SEC. 902. Section 502(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "with interest at a rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal." and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "with interest in the case of loans under this section pursuant to clauses (1) and (2) of section 501(a) at a rate not to exceed 5 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal and in the case of loans under this section pursuant to clause (3) of section 501(a) and under sections 503 and 504 at a rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on such unpaid balance.—Borrowers with loans made or insured under this title shall pay such fees and other charges as the Secretary may require."

~~INSURED RURAL HOUSING LOANS~~

SEC. 903. (a) Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sections:

~~"INSURANCE OF LOANS~~

"SEC. 517. (a) The Secretary is authorized to insure and to make loans to be sold and insured in accordance with the provisions of sections 501, 502, 514, and 515, and this section, other than the provisions of section 514(a) (3).

1 and ~~(5)~~ and ~~(b)~~ and section 515 ~~(a)~~ and ~~(b)~~ (4), except
2 that such loans in accordance with sections 501 and 502—

3 “~~(1)~~ to persons of low or moderate income as de-
4 fined by the Secretary shall not exceed amounts neces-
5 sary to provide adequate housing modest in size, design,
6 and cost, as determined by the Secretary, and shall bear
7 interest at a rate not to exceed 5 per centum per an-
8 num; and the aggregate of such loans made and insured
9 in any one fiscal year shall not exceed $300,000,000;
10 and

11 “~~(2)~~ to persons other than those of low or moderate
12 income shall bear interest and provide for insurance or 13 service charges (at rates determined by the Secretary)
14 comparable to the combined rate of interest and premium
15 charges then in effect under section 203 of the National 16 Housing Act.

17 “~~(b)~~ The Secretary may use the Rural Housing Insur-
18 ance Fund created by this section for the purpose of making 19 loans to be sold and insured under this section, provided that 20 the aggregate of such loans made and not disposed of at any 21 one time shall not exceed $100,000,000.

22 “~~(c)~~ The Secretary may insure loans advanced by 23 lenders other than the United States, and may sell and insure 24 loans made from other or held in the Rural Housing Insurance
25 Fund by the Secretary, for the payment of principal and

1 interest thereon as it becomes due. The Secretary is author-
2 ized to make agreements with respect to servicing loans
3 held by or insured by the Secretary under this section and 4 purchasing such insured loans on such terms and conditions
5 as he may prescribe: Provided, That no purchase agreement
6 shall obligate the Secretary to purchase such an insured loan
7 before the expiration of an initial period of five years from 8 the date of the note. Any contract of insurance executed
9 by the Secretary shall be an obligation supported by the full 10 faith and credit of the United States and incontestable except 11 for fraud or material misrepresentation of which the holder
12 has actual knowledge. In connection with loans insured
13 under this section the Secretary may take liens running to 14 the United States notwithstanding the fact that the notes evi-
15 dencing such loans may be held by lenders other than the 16 United States. Notes evidencing such loans shall be freely
17 assignable but the Secretary shall not be bound by any 18 assignment until notice thereof is given to and acknowledged
19 by the Secretary.

20 “(d) After ninety days after the original capitalization
21 of the Rural Housing Insurance Fund, no loans, other than 22 loans then held or insured by the Secretary pursuant to 23 section 514 or 515(b), shall be made or insured under 24 section 514 or 515(b) except in accordance with this section.

25 “(e) There is hereby created the Rural Housing In-

1 surance Fund (hereinafter in this section referred to as the
2 'Fund') which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving
3 fund for carrying out the provisions of this section. There
4 are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums
5 as may be necessary for the purposes of the Fund.

6 “(f) Money in the Fund not needed for current opera-
7 tions shall be invested in direct obligations of the United
8 States or obligations guaranteed by the United States.

9 “(g) All funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and
10 property acquired by the Secretary under this section, and
11 all collections and proceeds therefrom, shall constitute assets
12 of the Fund; and all liabilities and obligations of such assets
13 shall be liabilities and obligations of the Fund. Loans may 14 be held in the Fund and collected in accordance with their
15 terms or may be sold by the Secretary with or without agree-
16 ments for insurance thereof. Loans may be sold by the 17 Secretary at prices within the range of market prices for the 18 particular class or classes of loans involved, as determined by 19 the Secretary from time to time. The aggregate of (1) any 20 amount by which the balance outstanding on loans at the 21 time of sale exceeds the price at which the loans are sold
22 and (2) the amount of any fees and charges paid in con-
23 nection with any sales of loans shall be reimbursed to the 24 Fund by annual appropriations.

25 “(h) The Secretary is authorized to issue notes to the

1 Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds necessary for
2 discharging obligations under this section and for author-
3 ized expenditures out of the Fund, but, except as may be
4 authorized in appropriation Acts, not for the original capi-
5 tal or any additional capital of the Fund or to reimburse the 6 Fund for losses from any sales of loans at less than par
7 value. Such notes shall be in such form and denominations
8 and have such maturities and be subject to such terms and 9 conditions as may be prescribed by the Secretary with the 10 approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Each note shall 11 bear interest at such rate as may be determined by the 12 Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the 13 current average market yields on outstanding marketable
14 obligations of the United States with remaining periods to 15 maturity comparable to the average maturities of the loans
16 held by the Secretary in the Fund, adjusted to the nearest
17 one-eighth of 1 per centum, during the month of June
18 preceeding the fiscal year in which the loans were made.
19 The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed 20 to purchase any notes of the Secretary issued hereunder, and 21 for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized 22 to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the 23 sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond
24 Act, and the purposes for which such securities may be is-25 sued under such Act are extended to include purchases of

1 notes issued by the Secretary under this subsection. All re-
 2 demptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the 3 Treasury of such notes shall be treated as public debt trans-
 4 actions of the United States. The notes issued by the Secre-
 5 tary to be Secretary of the Treasury shall constitute obliga-
 6 tions of the Fund.

7 “(i) The Secretary may retain out of interest payments
 8 by the borrower an annual charge in an amount specified
 9 in the insurance or sale agreement applicable to the loan.
 10 Of the charges retained by the Secretary, if any, not to 11 exceed 1 per centum per annum of the unpaid balance of the 12 loan shall be deposited in the Fund. Any retained charges
 13 not deposited in the Fund shall be available for administra-
 14 tive expenses in carrying out the provisions of this title, to 15 be transferred annually and become merged with any appro-
 16 priation for administrative expenses of the Farmers Home
 17 Administration, when and in such amounts as may be author-
 18 ized in appropriation Acts.

19 “(j) The Secretary may also utilize the Fund—

20 “(1) to pay amounts to which the holder of a
 21 note is entitled in accordance with an insurance or sale
 22 agreement under this section accruing between the date
 23 of any prepayment by the borrower to the Secretary and 24 the date of transmittal of such prepayment to the 25 holder of the note; and, in the discretion of the Secretary, prepayments other than final payments need not be remitted to the holder until due;

“(2) to pay the holder of any note insured under this section any defaulted installment or, upon assignment of the note to the Secretary at the Secretary’s request, the entire balance outstanding on the note;

“(3) to purchase notes in accordance with agreements previously entered into;

“(4) to pay taxes, insurance, prior liens, expenses necessary to make fiscal adjustments in connection with the application and transmittal of collections, and other expenses and advances to protect the security for loans which are insured under this section or held in the Fund, and to acquire such security at foreclosure sale or otherwise; and

“(5) to pay fees and charges in connection with sales by the Secretary of loans insured under this section.

“RURAL HOUSING DIRECT LOAN ACCOUNT

“SEC. 518. (a) There is hereby created the Rural Housing Direct Loan Account (hereinafter in this section referred to as the ‘Account’) which shall be used by the Secretary for carrying out the provisions of this section. There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the purposes of the Account.

1 “(b) There are hereby transferred to the Account (1)
2 all funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and property,
3 and all collections and proceeds therefrom, held by the
4 Secretary under the direct loan provisions of this title, in-
5 cluding those securing notes issued by the Secretary to the
6 Secretary of the Treasury under section 514 and any un-
7 expended balance of amounts borrowed upon such notes,
8 and (2) all unexpended balances of appropriations for direct
9 loans under this title, including the fund authorized by sec-
10 tion 515(a). All amounts hereafter borrowed by the
11 Secretary from the Secretary of the Treasury under section
12 514 shall be deposited in the Account. All collections and 13 proceeds from assets acquired by the Account shall be
14 deposited in the Account.

15 “(c) When and in such amounts as may be authorized
16 in appropriation Acts, the Secretary may issue notes to the 17 Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds to be deposited in 18 the Account. The form, denominations, maturities, and other
19 terms and conditions of such notes shall be prescribed by 20 the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary of the 21 Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at such rate as may 22 be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into 23 consideration the current average market yields on outstand-
24 ing marketable obligations of the United States with remain-
25 ing periods to maturity comparable to the average maturi-

1 ties of the loans held by the Secretary in the Account, ad-
2 justed to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, during the
3 month of June preceeding the fiscal year in which the loans
4 were made. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and 5 directed to purchase any notes of the Secretary issued here-
6 under, and for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is 7 authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds
8 from the sale of any securities issued under the Second
9 Liberty Bond Act, and the purposes for which such securities
10 may be issued under such Act are extended to include the 11 purchase of notes issued by the Secretary under this sub-
12 section. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Sec-
13 retary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated as public
14 debt transactions of the United States.

15 “(d) The Account shall remain available to the Secre-
16 tary for the payment of interest and principal on notes issued
17 by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury under sec-
18 tion 511 or this section, and for direct loans and related
19 advances under this title in such amounts as are now author-
20 ized by law and in such further amounts as shall be authorized
21 in appropriation Acts. Amounts so authorized for such loans
22 and advances shall remain available until expended.”

23 (b) Section 511 of such Act is amended—

24 (1) by inserting “direct” after “making”, and by

1 striking out “(other than loans under section 504(b)
2 or 515(a))”, in the first sentence;

3 (2) by striking out “, of which $50,000,000 shall
4 be available exclusively for assistance to elderly persons
5 as provided in clause (3) of section 501(a)”, and by 6 striking out “September 30, 1965” and inserting in 7 lieu thereof “October 1, 1969”, in the second sentence;
8 and

9 (3) by striking out “rate on outstanding marketable
10 obligations of the United States as of the last day of the 11 month preceding the issuance of the notes or obligations
12 by the Secretary” in the fifth sentence and inserting
13 in lieu thereof the following: “yields on outstanding
14 marketable obligations of the United States with remain-
15 ing periods to maturity comparable to the average ma-
16 turities of the loans held by the Secretary in the Rural 17 Housing Direct Loan Account, adjusted to the nearest
18 one-eighth of 1 per centum, during the month of June
19 preceding the fiscal year in which the loans were made”.

20 FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION SECONDARY

11 amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new sec-
12 tions added by section 903 of this Act) the following new
13 section:

14 "INTEREST ON APPROPRIATIONS FOR RURAL HOUSING
15 LOANS

16 “SEC. 519. (a) The Secretary shall pay to the Secretary
17 of the Treasury interest at a rate determined under the 18 formula contained in section 517(h) or 518(e) (as may be 19 applicable) on any portion of any future appropriations
20 deposited in the Rural Housing Insurance Fund or the 21 Rural Housing Direct Loan Account for the purpose of mak-22 ing loans (as distinguished from appropriations for the 23 purpose of restoring losses or expenditures from such Fund
24 or Account). Such interest shall be payable annually upon

1 any sum so deposited until an amount equal to such sum
 2 is paid from the Fund or Account to which it was deposited
 3 and returned to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

4 “(b) Any sums in the Rural Housing Insurance Fund
 5 or the Rural Housing Direct Loan Account which the Sec-
 6 retary determines are in excess of amounts needed to meet
 7 the obligations and carry out the purposes of such Fund or 8 Account shall be returned to miscellaneous receipts of the 9 Treasury.”

7 inserting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund";
8 and

9 ~~(2)~~ by striking out subsection ~~(h)~~ and inserting in 10 lieu thereof the following:

11 "~~(h)~~ The provisions of section 207(k) and section 207
12 ~~(l)~~ of this Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured un-
13 der this title and to property acquired by the Commissioner
14 hereunder, except that, as applied to such mortgages and 15 property, the reference in section 207(k) to subsection ~~(g)~~
16 shall be construed to refer to subsection ~~(d)~~ of this section."

17 ~~(v)~~ Section 809 of such Act is amended by striking out
18 "the Armed Services Housing Mortgage Insurance Fund"
19 each place it appears in subsections ~~(b)~~, ~~(c)~~, and ~~(g)~~
20 and inserting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund".

21 ~~(w)~~ Section 810 of such Act is amended—

22 ~~(1)~~ by striking out "the Armed Services Housing 23 Mortgage Insurance Fund" in subsection ~~(c)~~ and in-
24 serting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund";

1 ~~(2)~~ by striking out “~~(l)~~, ~~(m)~~, ~~(n)~~, and ~~(p)~~” in 2 subsection ~~(j)~~ and inserting in lieu thereof “~~(l)~~, and
 3 ~~(n)~~”; and

4 ~~(3)~~ by striking out the proviso in subsection ~~(j)~~
 5 and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “: Provided,
 6 That wherever the words ‘Fund’ or ‘Mutual Mortgage
 7 Insurance Fund’ appear in section 204, such reference
 8 shall refer to the General Insurance Fund with respect
 9 to mortgages insured under this section”.

10 ~~(x)~~ Section 903 of such Act is amended by striking
 11 out “the National Defense Housing Insurance Fund” each
 12 place it appears in subsection ~~(a)~~ and inserting in lieu 13 thereof “the General Insurance Fund”.

14 ~~(y)~~ Section 904 of such Act is amended—

15 ~~(1)~~ by striking out “the National Defense Housing
 16 Insurance Fund” each place it appears in subsections
 17 ~~(c)~~ and ~~(d)~~ and inserting in lieu thereof “the General
 18 Insurance Fund”; and

19 ~~(2)~~ by striking out all of subsection ~~(c)~~ which 20 follows “of this Act” and inserting in lieu thereof a 21 period.

22 ~~(z)~~ Section 908 of such Act is amended—

23 ~~(1)~~ by striking out “the National Defense Housing
 24 Insurance Fund” in subsection ~~(b)~~~~(1)~~ and inserting in 25 lieu thereof “the General Insurance Fund”;

~~(2)~~ by striking out all of subsection ~~(d)~~ which follows "of this Act" and inserting in lieu thereof a period; and

~~(3)~~ by striking out subsection ~~(f)~~ and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

~~"(f)~~ The provisions of section 207(k) and section 207(1) of this Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured under this section and to property acquired by the Commissioner hereunder, except that, as applied to such mortgages and property, the reference therein to subsection ~~(g)~~ shall be construed to refer to subsection ~~(e)~~ of this section."

~~(aa)~~ Section 219, 602, 605, 710, 802, 804, 902, and 905 of such Act are repealed.

SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

SEC. 1007. Section 5(e) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended—

~~(1)~~ by adding at the end of the first paragraph the following new sentence: "Loans on the security of buildings substantially all of which are used or are to be used after completion for college dormitories, fraternity houses, or sorority houses, or for residential purposes by the staffs of community hospitals, shall be considered as loans on 'other dwelling units' for the purposes of this subsection.";

1 ~~(2)~~ by inserting before the period at the end of
2 the next to last paragraph ~~(as determined without re-~~
3 gard to the new paragraphs added by this Act) the 4 following: “: Provided, That in any State or area within 5 a State where the Board shall find that a substantial part 6 of the land occupied by or suitable for residential struc-
7 tures is available for purchase only on a leasehold basis,
8 any such association may make a loan on the security of 9 a first lien on the remainder of the term of any such 10 leasehold which extends or is renewable for at least ten 11 years beyond the maturity of such loan”;

12 ~~(3)~~ by adding at the end thereof ~~(after the new~~ 13 paragraph added by section 201(b)~~(3)~~ of this Act)
14 the following new paragraph:

15 “Any building association, building and loan association,
16 or savings and loan association organized and operating 17 under the laws of the District of Columbia shall have the 18 same powers with respect to the investment of its assets
19 as are authorized for Federal savings and loan associations
20 under this subsection, and shall be governed by such regula-
21 tions as the Board may prescribe in relation to the exercise
22 of such powers by Federal savings and loan associations; and

23 ~~(4)~~ by adding at the end thereof ~~(after all other ad-~~
24 ditions made by this Act) the following new paragraph:
25 “No building and loan association incorporated under

1 the laws of the District of Columbia or organized in said Dis-
 2 trict or doing business in said District shall establish any 3 branch or move its principal office or any branch without the 4 prior written approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank
 5 Board, and no other building and loan association shall estab-
 6 lish any branch in said District or move its principal office or 7 any branch in said District without such approval. As used
 8 in the sentence next preceding, 'branch' means any office,
 9 place of business, or facility, other than the principal office
 10 as defined by said Board, of a building and loan association
 11 at which accounts are opened or payments thereon are re-
 12 ceived or withdrawals therefrom are paid, or any other office,
 13 place of business, or facility of a building and loan association
 14 defined by said Board as a branch within the meaning of 15 said sentence, and as used in said sentence and in this sen-
 16 tence 'building and loan association' means any incorporated
 17 or unincorporated building, building or loan, building and 18 loan, savings and loan, or homestead association or coopera-
 19 tive bank."

20 URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN JOHNSON CITY, TENNESSEE

21 SEC. 1008. Notwithstanding the date of commencement
 22 of the installation of certain underground electrical wiring in 23 Johnson City, Tennessee, expenditures made in connection
 24 with such installation shall, to the extent otherwise eligible,
 25 be counted as a local grant-in-aid to Johnson City's proposed

1 downtown urban renewal project ~~(Tennessee R-80)~~ in ac-
2 cordance with provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 3 1949.

4 ACQUISITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTIES SITUATED AT OR
5 NEAR MILITARY BASES WHICH HAVE BEEN ORDERED
6 TO BE CLOSED

7 SEC. 1009. (a) The Secretary of Defense is authorized
8 to acquire title to any property, improved with a one- or
9 two-family dwelling, which is situated at or near a military
10 base or installation which the Department of Defense has,
11 subsequent to November 1, 1964, ordered to be closed in 12 whole or in part, if he determines—

13 ~~(1)~~ that the owner of such property is, or has been,
14 employed or performing military service at such base
15 or installation;

16 ~~(2)~~ that the closing of such base or installation, in
17 whole or in part, has required or will require the ter-
18 mination of such owner's employment or service at 19 such base or installation; and

20 ~~(3)~~ that as the result of the actual or pending
21 closing of such base or installation there is no present
22 market for the sale of such property upon reasonable
23 terms and conditions.

24 ~~(b)~~ The purchase price of any property which is situ-
25 ated at or near a military base or installation and is acquired

1 under this section shall be equal to an amount determined by
2 the Secretary of Defense to be the average price at which
3 properties, similar in size, construction, condition, and loca-
4 tion to that of the property to be acquired, were sold during
5 a representative period, as determined by the Secretary,
6 prior to the announcement of the intention of the Depart-
7 ment of Defense to close all or part of such base or
8 installation.

9 (c) The title to any property acquired under this sec-
10 tion shall be free and clear of any outstanding liens or encum-
11 brances and shall conform to such requirements as the
12 Secretary of Defense shall by regulation require. Such reg-
13 ulations shall also prescribe the terms and conditions under
14 which payments may be made under this section, and deci-
15 sions by the Secretary regarding such payments, and the 16 terms and conditions under which the same are approved or 17 disapproved, shall be final and conclusive and shall not be
18 subject to judicial review.

19 (d) Properties acquired under this section shall be
20 transferred to the Federal Housing Commissioner, and the
21 Federal Housing Commissioner shall have power to deal
22 with, rent, renovate, or sell for cash or credit any properties
23 so transferred. Receipts from the management or sale of 24 any such properties may be utilized by the Commissioner

1 to defray expenses arising in connection with the manage-
 2 ment of such properties, and any part of such receipts not
 3 required for such expenses shall be covered into the Treas-
 4 ury as miscellaneous receipts.

5 ~~(e)~~ Section 223(a) of the National Housing Act is
 6 amended—

7 ~~(1)~~ by striking out the period at the end of para-
 8 graph ~~(7)~~ and inserting in lieu thereof “; or”; and

9 ~~(2)~~ by inserting after paragraph ~~(7)~~ a new para-
 10 graph as follows:

11 “~~(8)~~ executed in connection with the sale by the
 12 Commissioner of any housing acquired pursuant to sec-
 13 tion 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act
 14 of 1965.”

15 ~~(f)~~ Such sums as may be necessary to carry out the
 16 provisions of this section are hereby authorized to be appro-
 17 priated, and any sums so appropriated shall remain available
 18 until expended.

19 MORTGAGE RELIEF FOR HOMEOWNERS WHO ARE UNEM-
 20 PLOYED AS THE RESULT OF THE CLOSING OF A FED-
 21 ERAL INSTALLATION

22 SEC. 1010. ~~(a)~~ For the purposes of this section—

23 ~~(1)~~ The term “mortgage” means a mortgage which
 24 ~~(A)~~ is insured under the National Housing Act, or ~~(B)~~
 25 secures a home loan guaranteed or insured under the Service-

1 men's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38,
2 United States Code.

3 ~~(2)~~ The term "Federal mortgage agency" means—

4 ~~(A)~~ the Federal Housing Commissioner when used
5 in connection with mortgages insured under the National
6 Housing Act; and

7 ~~(B)~~ the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs when
8 used in connection with mortgages securing home loans
9 guaranteed or insured under the Servicemen's Readjust-
10 ment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United
11 States Code.

12 ~~(3)~~ The term "distressed mortgagor" means an indi-
13 vidual who

14 ~~(A)~~ is unemployed, although willing to work, as
15 the result of the closing (in whole or in part) of a
16 Federal installation; and

17 ~~(B)~~ is the owner-occupant of a dwelling upon
18 which there is a mortgage securing a loan which is in 19 default because of the inability of such individual to 20 make payments of principal and/or interest under such 21 mortgage.

22 ~~(b)(1)~~ Any distressed mortgagor, for the purpose
23 of avoiding foreclosure of his mortgage, may apply to the
24 appropriate Federal mortgage agency for a determination

1 that suspension of his obligation to make payments of prin-
2 cipal and/or interest under such mortgage during a tem-
3 porary period is necessary in order to avoid such foreclosure.

4 ~~(2)~~ Upon receipt of an application made under this sub-
5 section by a distressed mortgagor, the Federal mortgage
6 agency shall issue to such mortgagor a certificate of mora-
7 torium if it determines, after consultation with the interested
8 mortgagee, that—

9 ~~(A)~~ the mortgagor is not in default with respect to 10 any condition or covenant of the mortgage other than 11 that requiring the payment of installments of principal
12 and/or interest under the mortgage, and

13 ~~(B)~~ such action is the only available means where-
14 by a foreclosure of such mortgage can be avoided.

15 ~~(3)~~ Prior to the issuance to any distressed mortgagor of
16 a certificate of moratorium under paragraph ~~(2)~~, the Fed-
17 eral mortgage agency shall require such mortgagor to enter
18 into a binding agreement under which he will be required to 19 make payments to such agency, after the expiration of such
20 certificate, in an aggregate amount equal to the amount paid
21 by such agency in behalf of such mortgagor as provided in
22 subsection ~~(c)~~. The manner and time in which such pay-
23 ments shall be made shall be determined by the Federal 24 mortgage agency having due regard to the purposes sought
25 to be achieved by this section.

1 ~~(4)~~ Any certificate of moratorium issued under this
2 subsection shall expire on whichever of the following dates
3 is the earliest—

4 ~~(A)~~ three years from the date on which such cer-
5 tificate is issued;

6 ~~(B)~~ thirty days after the date on which the mort-
7 gator to whom such certificate is issued ceases to be a
8 distressed mortgagor as defined in subsection ~~(a)~~; or

9 ~~(C)~~ the date on which such mortgagor becomes in 10 default with respect to any condition or covenant in his
11 mortgage other than that requiring the payment by him
12 of installments of principal and/or interest under the 13 mortgage.

14 ~~(c)~~ ~~(1)~~ Whenever a Federal mortgage agency issues
15 a certificate of moratorium to any distressed mortgagor
16 with respect to any mortgage, it shall transmit to the mort-
17 gagee a copy of such certificate, together with a notice stat-
18 ing that, while such certificate is in effect, such agency will
19 assume the obligation of such mortgagor to make payments
20 of principal, and if so specified in the certificate, of interest,
21 under the mortgage.

22 ~~(2)~~ Payments made by any Federal mortgage agency
23 pursuant to a certificate of moratorium issued under this
24 section with respect to the mortgage of any distressed mort-

1 gagor shall include, in addition to the payments referred to
2 in paragraph (1), an amount equal to the unpaid principal
3 and interest charges which had accrued under such mort-
4 gage prior to the issuance of such certificate and subsequent
5 to the date on which such mortgagor became a distressed
6 mortgagor as defined in subsection (a).

7 ~~(3)~~ While any certificate of moratorium issued under
8 this section is in effect with respect to the mortgage of any 9 distressed mortgagor, no further payments of principal, and
10 if so specified in the certificate, of interest, under the mort-
11 gage shall be required of such mortgagor, and no action
12 ~~(legal or otherwise)~~ shall be taken or maintained by the 13 mortgagee to enforce or collect such payments. Upon the 14 expiration of such certificate, the mortgagor shall again be
15 liable for the payment of all amounts due under the mort-
16 gage in accordance with its terms.

17 ~~(4)~~ Each Federal mortgage agency shall give prompt
18 notice in writing to the interested mortgagor and mortgagee
19 of the expiration of any certificate of moratorium issued by 20 it under this section.

21 ~~(d)~~ The Federal mortgage agencies are authorized to 22 issue such individual and joint regulations as may be neces-
23 sary to carry out this section and to insure the uniform
24 administration thereof.

25 ~~(e)~~ There shall be in the Treasury ~~(1)~~ a fund which

1 shall be available to the Federal Housing Commissioner for
2 the purpose of extending financial assistance in behalf of
3 distressed mortgagors as provided in subsection ~~(c)~~, and ~~(2)~~
4 a fund which shall be available to the Administrator of Vet-
5 erans' Affairs for the same purpose. The capital of each
6 such fund shall consist of such sums as may, from time to
7 time, be appropriated thereto, and any sums so appropriated
8 shall remain available until expended. Receipts arising from 9 the programs of assistance under subsection ~~(c)~~ shall be 10 credited to the fund from which such assistance was ex-
11 tended. Moneys in either of such funds not needed for cur-
12 rent operations, as determined by the Federal Housing
13 Commisisoner, or the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs,
14 as the case may be, shall be invested in bonds or other
15 obligations of the United States, or paid into the Treasury
16 as miscellaneous receipts.

17 ~~(f)~~ Section 1816 of title 38, United States Code, is
18 amended by inserting "~~(a)~~" before the text of such section,
19 and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as
20 follows:

21 "~~(b)~~ With respect to any loan made under section
22 1811 which has not been sold as provided in subsection
23 ~~(g)~~ of such section, if the Administrator finds after there
24 has been a default in the payment of any installment of

1 principal or interest owing on such loan; that the default
2 was due to the fact that the veteran who is obligated under
3 the loan has become unemployed as the result of the closing
4 (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, he shall
5 (1) extend the time for curing the default to such time
6 as he determines is necessary and desirable to enable such
7 veteran to complete payments on such loan, including an
8 extension of time beyond the stated maturity thereof, or
9 (2) modify the terms of such loan for the purpose of chang-
10 ing the amortization provisions thereof by recasting, over
11 the remaining term of the loan, or over such longer period
12 as he may determine, the total unpaid amount then due
13 with the modification to become effective currently or upon
14 the termination of an agreed upon extension of the period
15 for curing the default."

16 REPAYMENT OF CERTAIN PLANNING GRANTS

17 SEC. 1011. Notwithstanding any other provision of law,
18 no advance made under section 501 of Public Law 458,
19 Seventy-eighth Congress; Public Law 352, Eighty-first Con-
20 gress; or section 702, Housing Act of 1954, Public Law 560,
21 Eighty-third Congress, for the planning of any public works
22 project shall be required to be repaid if construction of such 23 project has been heretofore or is hereafter initiated as a result
24 of a grant-in-aid made from an allocation made by the Presi-
25 dent under the Public Works Acceleration Act.

1 TRANSFER OF LAND FOR URBAN RENEWAL PURPOSES BY 2 HOUSING AUTHORITY OF THE CITY OF MACON, GEORGIA

3 SEC. 1012: (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of title
4 I of the Housing Act of 1949 and the United States Housing
5 Act of 1937, the Housing and Home Finance Administrator
6 and the Public Housing Commissioner are authorized and 7 directed to consent to the transfer by the Housing Authority
8 of the City of Macon, Georgia, to the Urban Renewal De-
9 partment of the City of Macon, Georgia, of all property ac-
10 quired by the Housing Authority for low-rent housing project
11 numbered Georgia 7-8, on condition that (1) an amount
12 which, together with any funds of the Housing Authority
13 available for the purpose, is sufficient to pay and discharge all
14 obligations incurred by the Housing Authority in connec-
15 tion with such low-rent housing project and owing at the time
16 of transfer, will be paid by the Urban Renewal Department
17 of the City of Macon to the Public Housing Administration
18 to be applied in satisfaction of the Housing Authority's obli-
19 gations which it cannot meet with its own funds available for 20 the purpose, and (2) the total amount so paid by the Urban
21 Renewal Department of the City of Macon will be included
22 in the gross project cost of its Coliseum Urban Renewal
23 Project, Georgia R-95.

24 (b) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator and

1 the Public Housing Commissioner are authorized to modify
2 any contracts heretofore entered into and to take any other
3 appropriate action necessary to carry out the provisions of 4 subsection (a).

5 URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN SAVANNAH, GEORGIA

6 SEC. 1013. (a) Notwithstanding any provision of the 7 Housing Act of 1949 or any other provision of law, the 8 urban renewal project in Savannah, Georgia, known as 9 Project "J" in the General Neighborhood Renewal Plan for 10 the Broad Street-Canal Urban Renewal Area adopted by 11 resolution of the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of 12 Savannah on November 18, 1958, may include the donation
13 by Housing Authority of Savannah, by a suitable instrument
14 of conveyance, of the right, title, and interest of the Author-
15 ity in and to all or any portion of the land included within 16 the boundaries of such Project "J" in the City of Savannah,
17 Chatham County, Georgia, the area of such Project "J"
18 being generally bounded on the North by properties of the 19 Central of Georgia Railway Company, on the East by West
20 Broad Street, on the South by the right-of-way for Interstate 21 Highway No. I-16, and on the West by the Savannah and 22 Ogeechee Canal and West Boundary Street.

23 (b) The conveyance authorized to be included in the 24 urban renewal project under subsection (a) of this section
25 shall be made only if the donee represents, and furnishes such

1 assurances as may be required by Housing Authority of 2 Savannah, that such donee will develop, preserve, and
 3 operate such property on a non-profit basis as a historical 4 site or monument.

5 URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN OTTUMWA, IOWA

6 SEC. 1014. Notwithstanding the June, 1956 commence-
 7 ment of certain flood control work in Ottumwa, Iowa, local
 8 expenditures in connection with such flood control work
 9 shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local 10 grant-in-aid to the Marina Gateway urban renewal project
 11 (Iowa R-12) in accordance with the provisions of Title I
 12 of the Housing Act of 1949.

13 That this Act may be cited as the "Housing and Urban 14 Development Act of 1965".

15 TITLE I—SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR DISAD-
 16 VANTAGED PERSONS

17 FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO ENABLE CERTAIN PRIVATE
 18 HOUSING TO BE AVAILABLE FOR LOWER INCOME
 19 FAMILIES WHO ARE ELDERLY, HANDICAPPED, DIS-20 PLACED, VICTIMS OF A NATURAL DISASTER, OR 21 OCCUPANTS OF SUBSTANDARD HOUSING

22 SEC. 101. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Ad-
 23 ministrator (hereinafter referred to as the "Administrator").
 24 is authorized to make, and contract to make, annual pay-

1 ments to a "housing owner" on behalf of "qualified tenants",
2 as those terms are defined herein, in such amounts and under
3 such circumstances as are prescribed in or pursuant to this
4 section. In no case shall a contract provide for such pay-
5 ments with respect to any housing for a period exceeding
6 forty years. The aggregate amount of the contracts to make
7 such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in ap-
8 propriation Acts and shall not exceed $30,000,000 per an-
9 num prior to July 1, 1966, which maximum dollar amount
10 shall be increased by $35,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $40,- 11 000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by $45,000,000 on July 1,
12 1968.

13 (b) As used in this section, the term "housing owner"
14 means—

15 (1) a private nonprofit corporation or other entity,
16 a limited dividend corporation or other entity, or a co-
17 operative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor
18 under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act
19 and which, after the date of enactment of this Act, has 20 been approved for mortgage insurance thereunder and 21 has been approved for receiving the benefits of this
22 section;

23 (2) a private nonprofit corporation, a public body
24 or agency, or a cooperative housing corporation which 25 is a borrower under section 202 of the Housing Act of

1 1959 and has been approved for receiving the benefits
2 of this section; and

3 (3) a private nonprofit corporation or other entity
4 which is the mortgagor under a mortgage insured under 5 section 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act and 6 which, after the date of enactment of this Act, has ob-
7 tained final endorsement of such mortgage for mortgage
8 insurance and has been approved for receiving the bene-
9 fits of this section.

10 (c) As used in this section, the term "qualified tenant"
11 means any individual or family who has, pursuant to criteria
12 and procedures established by the Administrator, been 13 determined—

14 (1) to have an income below the maximum amount
15 which can be established for occupancy in public hous-
16 ing dwellings pursuant to the limitations prescribed in 17 sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States
18 Housing Act of 1937; and

19 (2) to be one of the following—

20 (A) displaced by governmental action;

21 (B) sixty-two years of age or older (or, in the 22 case of a family, to have a head who is, or whose
23 spouse is, sixty-two years of age or over);

24 (C) physically handicapped (or, in the case

1 of a family, to have a head who is, or whose spouse
2 is, physically handicapped);

3 (D) occupying substandard housing; or

4 (E) an occupant or former occupant of a
5 dwelling which is (or was) situated in an area
6 determined by the Small Business Administration,
7 subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected
8 by a natural disaster, and which has been ex-
9 tensively damaged or destroyed as the result of 10 such disaster.

11 (d)(1) Payments under this section with respect to 12 properties financed with mortgages insured under section
13 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act shall be made 14 only if such mortgages do not receive the benefits of the 15 interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)
16 (5) of that Act; except that the Administrator may make,
17 and contract to make, such payments, on an experimental 18 basis, with respect to properties financed with mortgages
19 receiving such benefits subject to the condition that such 20 payments shall not be made with respect to more than 21 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any property so
22 financed.

23 (2) Payments under this section with respect to prop-
24 erties financed under section 202 of the Housing Act of 25 1959 or section 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act

1 shall be made on an experimental basis subject to the condi-
2 tion that such payments shall not be made with respect to 3 more than 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any 4 property so financed.

5 (3) With respect to properties financed (A) with mort-
6 gages receiving the benefits of the interest rate provided
7 for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of the National
8 Housing Act, (B) with mortgages receiving the benefits
9 of section 231(c)(3) of such Act, and (C) under section
10 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, the Administrator may 11 make, and contract to make, payments under this section
12 subject to the condition that not more than 10 per centum
13 of the amounts approved in appropriation Acts, pursuant to 14 subsection (a), for payments under this section in any year
15 shall be utilized for payments with respect to properties so
16 financed.

17 (4) The Administrator shall include in the report sub-
18 mitted to the Congress, pursuant to subsection (k), a full 19 report concerning the experimental programs authorized
20 under this subsection, together with his recommendations
21 with respect thereto.

22 (5) No payments under this section may be made with 23 respect to any property for which the costs of operation
24 (including wages and salaries) are determined by the Ad-
25 ministrator to be greater than similar costs of operation of

1 similar housing in the community where the property is 2 situated.

3 (e) The amount of the annual payment with respect
4 to any dwelling unit shall not exceed the amount by which 5 the fair market rental for such unit exceeds one-fourth of the 6 tenant's income as determined by the Administrator pur-
7 suant to procedures and regulations established by him.

8 (f)(1) For purposes of carrying out the provisions of 9 this section, the Administrator shall establish criteria and 10 procedures for determining the eligibility of occupants and 11 rental charges, including criteria and procedures with respect
12 to periodic review of tenant incomes and periodic adjustment
13 of rental charges. The Administrator shall issue, upon the 14 request of a housing owner, certificates as to the following
15 facts concerning the individuals and families applying for 16 admission to, or residing in, dwellings of such owner:

17 (A) the income of the individual or family; and

18 (B) whether the individual or family was dis-
19 placed by governmental action, is elderly, is physically
20 handicapped, or is (or was) occupying substandard
21 housing or housing extensively damaged or destroyed
22 as the result of a natural disaster.

23 (2) Procedures adopted by the Administrator here-
24 under shall provide for recertifications of the incomes of 25 occupants, except the elderly, at intervals of two years (or

1 at shorter intervals in cases where the Administrator may
2 deem it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting rental charges
3 and annual payments on the basis of occupants' incomes,
4 but in no event shall rental charges adjusted under this sec-
5 tion for any dwelling exceed the fair market rental of the 6 dwelling.

7 (3) The Administrator may enter into agreements, or
8 authorize housing owners to enter into agreements, with
9 public or private agencies for services required in the selec-
10 tion of qualified tenants, including those who may be ap-
11 proved, on the basis of the probability of future increases in 12 their incomes, as lessees under an option to purchase dwell-
13 ings or cooperative ownership interests therein, and in the 14 establishment of rentals. The Administrator is authorized
15 (without limiting his authority under any other provision 16 of law) to delegate to any such public or private agency his 17 authority to issue certificates pursuant to this subsection.

18 (g) Section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is 19 amended by inserting "(i)" after "a mortgage under" in 20 the first proviso and by inserting immediately before the 21 colon at the end of such proviso the following: ", or (ii)
22 section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act if pay-
23 ments with respect to the mortgaged property are made or 24 are to be made under section 101 of the Housing and Urban

1 Development Act of 1965, except that no such mortgage
2 shall be insured, and no commitment to insure such a mort-
3 gage shall be issued, with respect to property in any com-
4 munity for which a workable program for community
5 improvement was required and in effect at the time a contract
6 for a loan or capital grant was entered into under this title,
7 or a contract for annual contributions or capital grants was 8 entered into pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 9 1937, unless there is a workable program for community
10 improvement which meets the requirements of this subsec-
11 tion in effect in such community at the time of such insurance
12 or commitment''.

13 (h) The Administrator is authorized to make such rules
14 and regulations to enter into such agreements, and to adopt
15 such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to
16 carry out the provisions of this section. Nothing contained
17 in this section shall affect the authority of (1) the Federal
18 Housing Commissioner with respect to any housing assisted
19 under this section and under sections 221(d)(3) and 231
20 (c)(3) of the National Housing Act, or (2) the Housing
21 and Home Finance Administrator with respect to any hous-
22 ing assisted under this section and under section 202 of the 23 Housing Act of 1959, including the authority to prescribe
24 occupancy requirements under other provisions of law or to

1 determine the portion of any such housing which may be
2 occupied by qualified tenants.

3 (i) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums
4 as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this sec-
5 tion, including, but not limited to, such sums as may be
6 necessary to make annual payments, pay for services pro-
7 vided under (or pursuant to agreements entered into under)
8 subsection (f), and provide administrative expenses.

9 (j) Section 114(c)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949
10 is amended by inserting before the colon at the end of the 11 first proviso the following: “, or a dwelling unit assisted
12 under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development
13 Act of 1965”.

14 (k) The Administrator shall submit to the Congress
15 annual reports of operations under this section, together with 16 his recommendations with respect thereto. Such reports
17 shall be submitted on or before January 1 of each year.

18 EXTENSION OF FHA SECTION 221 PROGRAMS; MODIFICA-
19 TION OF INTEREST RATE

20 SEC. 102. (a) The fifth sentence of section 221(f) of
21 the National Housing Act is amended by striking out “sub-
22 section (d)(2) or (d)(4) after September 30, 1965, or 23 under subsection (d)(3) after September 30, 1965,” and
24 inserting in lieu thereof “this section after October 1, 1969,”

1 (b) The proviso in section 221(d)(5) of such Act is
2 amended by striking out “not less than the annual rate of
3 interest determined” and inserting in lieu thereof “not less
4 than the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or (B)
5 the annual rate of interest determined”.

6 (c) The third sentence of section 212(a) of such Act
7 (relating to the applicability of the Davis-Bacon Act) is 8 amended to read as follows: "The provisions of this section
9 shall apply to the insurance under section 221 of any mort-
10 gage described in subsection (d)(3) or (d)(4)."

11 REHABILITATION GRANTS TO HOMEOWNERS IN URBAN
12 RENEWAL AREAS

13 SEC. 103. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is
14 amended by adding at the end thereof the following new
15 section:

16 "REHABILITATION GRANTS

17 "SEC. 115. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision
18 of this title, the Administrator may authorize a local public
19 agency to make grants (and the urban renewal project may 20 include the making of such grants) as prescribed in this sec-
21 tion. Any such grant may be made only to an individual or
22 family, as described in subsection (b), who owns and oc-
23 cupies a structure in the urban renewal area and for the pur-
24 pose of covering the cost of repairs and improvements neces-
25 sary to make such structure conform to public standards for

1 decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable
2 codes or other requirements of the urban renewal plan for 3 the area. Any contract for financial assistance under this
4 title shall provide that the capital grant otherwise payable
5 for the project shall be increased by an amount equal to the
6 total amount of such grants and that no part of the total
7 amount of such grants shall be required to be contributed as 8 part of the local grant-in-aid.

9 “(b) A grant authorized by this section may be made
10 to an individual or family whose income does not exceed 11 $3,000 a year, and such grant may be in an amount which
12 does not exceed the lesser of (1) the actual (and approved)
13 cost of the repairs and improvements, or (2) $1,500. In 14 case the income of the individual or family exceeds $3,000 a 15 year, a grant may be made under this section, subject to the 16 limitations specified in clauses (1) and (2) of the preceding
17 sentence, in an amount not to exceed that portion of the cost
18 of such repairs and improvements as cannot be paid for with 19 any available loan which can be amortized as part of such 20 individual's or family's monthly housing expense without 21 requiring such monthly housing expense to exceed 25 per 22 centum of such individual's or family's monthly income.”

23 (b) Any contract with a local public agency which was
24 executed under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 before the
25 date of enactment of this Act may be amended to provide for

1 grants authorized by section 115 of the Housing Act of
2 1949.

3 PARITY OF TREATMENT FOR THE HANDICAPPED AND
4 ELDERLY IN PUBLIC HOUSING

5 SEC. 104. Section 2(2) of the United States Housing
6 Act of 1937 is amended to read as follows:

7 “(2) The term ‘families of low income’ means families
8 (including elderly and displaced families) who are in the
9 lowest income group and who cannot afford to pay enough
10 to cause private enterprise in their locality or metropolitan
11 area to build an adequate supply of decent, safe, and sanitary
12 dwellings for their use. The term ‘families’ includes families
13 consisting of a single person in the case of elderly families
14 and displaced families, and includes the remaining member
15 of a tenant family. The term ‘elderly families’ means fam-
16 ilies whose heads (or their spouses), or whose sole members, 17 have attained the age at which an individual may elect to 18 receive an old-age benefit under title II of the Social Security
19 Act, or are under a disability as defined in section 223 of that
20 Act, or are handicapped within the meaning of section 202
21 of the Housing Act of 1959. The term ‘displaced fami-
22 lies’ means families displaced by urban renewal or other
23 governmental action, or families whose present or former 24 dwellings are situated in areas determined by the Small Business Administration, subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected by a natural disaster, and which have been extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of such disaster."

MODIFICATION OF INTEREST RATE ON LOANS TO PROVIDE HOUSING FOR ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED

SEC. 105. Section 202(a)(3) of the Housing Act of 1959 is amended by striking out "the higher of (A) $2\frac{3}{4}$ per centum per annum, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or".

RELOCATION PAYMENTS UNDER THE URBAN MASS
TRANSPORTATION ACT OF 1964

SEC. 106. Section 7(b) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 is amended by striking out all that follows the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The term 'relocation payments' means payments by the applicant which are (1) made to an individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organization displaced by a project on or after March 4, 1965, (2) not otherwise authorized under any Federal law, and (3) made only on such terms and conditions and subject to such limitations (as applicable, but not including the date of displacement) as are provided for relocation payments, at the time such payment is approved, by sections 114 (b) and (c) of the Housing Act of 1949. Relocation payments authorized by this subsection

1 shall be made subject to such rules and regulations as may
2 be prescribed by the Administrator."

3 MORTGAGE RELIEF FOR HOMEOWNERS WHO ARE UNEM-
4 PLOYED AS THE RESULT OF THE CLOSING OF A FED-
5 ERAL INSTALLATION

6 SEC. 107. (a) For the purposes of this section—

7 (1) The term "mortgage" means a mortgage which
8 (A) is insured under the National Housing Act, or (B)
9 secures a home loan guaranteed or insured under the Service-
10 men's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38,
11 United States Code.

12 (2) The term "Federal mortgage agency" means—

13 (A) the Federal Housing Commissioner when used
14 in connection with mortgages insured under the National
15 Housing Act, and

16 (B) the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs when
17 used in connection with mortgages securing home loans
18 guaranteed or insured under the Servicemen's Readjust-
19 ment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United
20 States Code.

21 (3) The term "distressed mortgagor" means an indi-
22 vidual who—

23 (A) is unemployed, although willing to work, as
24 the result of the closing (in whole or in part) of a
25 Federal installation, and

1 (B) is the owner-occupant of a dwelling upon
2 which there is a mortgage securing a loan which is in
3 default because of the inability of such individual to
4 make payments of principal and/or interest under such
5 mortgage.

6 (b)(1) Any distressed mortgagor, for the purpose
7 of avoiding foreclosure of his mortgage, may apply to the
8 appropriate Federal mortgage agency for a determination
9 that suspension of his obligation to make payments of prin-
10 cipal and/or interest under such mortgage during a tem-
11 porary period is necessary in order to avoid such foreclosure.

12 (2) Upon receipt of an application made under this sub-
13 section by a distressed mortgagor, the Federal mortgage
14 agency shall issue to such mortgagor a certificate of mora-
15 torium if it determines, after consultation with the interested
16 mortgagee, that—

17 (A) the mortgagor is not in default with respect to 18 any condition or covenant of the mortgage other than
19 that requiring the payment of installments of principal
20 and/or interest under the mortgage, and

21 (B) such action is the only available means whereby
22 a foreclosure of such mortgage can be avoided.

23 (3) Prior to the issuance to any distressed mortgagor of
24 a certificate of moratorium under paragraph (2), the Fed-
25 eral mortgage agency shall require such mortgagor to enter

1 into a binding agreement under which he will be required to
2 make payments to such agency, after the expiration of such
3 certificate, in an aggregate amount equal to the amount paid
4 by such agency in behalf of such mortgagor as provided in
5 subsection (c). The manner and time in which such pay-
6 ments shall be made shall be determined by the Federal mort-
7 gage agency having due regard to the purposes sought to be
8 achieved by this section.

9 (4) Any certificate of moratorium issued under this
10 subsection shall expire on whichever of the following dates
11 is the earliest—

12 (A) one year from the date on which such certifi-
13 cate is issued;

14 (B) thirty days after the date on which the mort-
15 gagee to whom such certificate is issued ceases to be a
16 distressed mortgagor as defined in subsection (a); or

17 (C) the date on which such mortgagor becomes in 18 default with respect to any condition or covenant in his
19 mortgage other than that requiring the payment by him
20 of installments of principal and/or interest under the 21 mortgage.

22 (c)(1) Whenever a Federal mortgage agency issues
23 a certificate of moratorium to any distressed mortgagor
24 with respect to any mortgage, it shall transmit to the mort-
25 gagee a copy of such certificate, together with a notice stat-

1 ing that, while such certificate is in effect, such agency will
2 assume the obligation of such mortgagor to make payments
3 of principal, and if so specified in the certificate, of interest,
4 under the mortgage.

5 (2) Payments made by any Federal mortgage agency
6 pursuant to a certificate of moratorium issued under this
7 section with respect to the mortgage of any distressed mort-
8 gator shall include, in addition to the payments referred to
9 in paragraph (1), an amount equal to the unpaid principal
10 and interest charges which had accrued under such mort-
11 gage prior to the issuance of such certificate and subsequent
12 to the date on which such mortgagor became a distressed
13 mortgagor as defined in subsection (a).

14 (3) While any certificate of moratorium issued under 15 this section is in effect with respect to the mortgage of any
16 distressed mortgagor, no further payments of principal, and
17 if so specified in the certificate, of interest, under the mort-
18 gage shall be required of such mortgagor, and no action
19 (legal or otherwise) shall be taken or maintained by the 20 mortgagee to enforce or collect such payments. Upon the 21 expiration of such certificate, the mortgagor shall again be
22 liable for the payment of all amounts due under the mort-
23 gage in accordance with its terms.

24 (4) Each Federal mortgage agency shall give prompt

1 notice in writing to the interested mortgagor and mortgagee
2 of the expiration of any certificate of moratorium issued by
3 it under this section.

4 (d) The Federal mortgage agencies are authorized
5 to issue such individual and joint regulations as may be 6 necessary to carry out this section and to insure the uniform
7 administration thereof.

8 (e) There shall be in the Treasury (1) a fund which
9 shall be available to the Federal Housing Commissioner for 10 the purpose of extending financial assistance in behalf of
11 distressed mortgagors as provided in subsection (c), and (2)
12 a fund which shall be available to the Administrator of Vet-
13 erans' Affairs for the same purpose. The capital of each
14 such fund shall consist of such sums as may, from time to
15 time, be appropriated thereto, and any sums so appropriated
16 shall remain available until expended. Receipts arising 17 from the programs of assistance under subsection (c) shall 18 be credited to the fund from which such assistance was 19 extended. Moneys in either of such funds not needed for 20 current operations, as determined by the Federal Housing
21 Commissioner, or the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs,
22 as the case may be, shall be invested in bonds or other
23 obligations of the United States, or paid into the Treasury
24 as miscellaneous receipts.

1 (f) Section 1816 of title 38, United States Code, is
2 amended by inserting "(a)" before the text of such section,
3 and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as
4 follows:

5 "(b) With respect to any loan made under section
6 1811 which has not been sold as provided in subsection
7 (g) of such section, if the Administrator finds after there
8 has been a default in the payment of any installment of 9 principal or interest owing on such loan, that the default
10 was due to the fact that the veteran who is obligated under
11 the loan has become unemployed as the result of the closing
12 (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, he shall
13 (1) extend the time for curing the default to such time
14 as he determines is necessary and desirable to enable such 15 veteran to complete payments on such loan, including an
16 extension of time beyond the stated maturity thereof, or
17 (2) modify the terms of such loan for the purpose of chang-
18 ing the amortization provisions thereof by recasting, over
19 the remaining term of the loan, or over such longer period
20 as he may determine, the total unpaid amount then due
21 with the modification to become effective currently or upon
22 the termination of an agreed-upon extension of the period
23 for curing the default."

1 ACQUISITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTIES SITUATED AT OR
2 NEAR MILITARY BASES WHICH HAVE BEEN ORDERED
3 TO BE CLOSED

4 SEC. 108. (a) The Secretary of Defense is authorized
5 to acquire title to any property, improved with a one- or
6 two-family dwelling, which is situated at or near a military
7 base or installation which the Department of Defense has,
8 subsequent to November 1, 1964, ordered to be closed in
9 whole or in part, if he determines—

10 (1) that the owner of such property is, or has been,
11 employed or performing military service at such base
12 or installation;

13 (2) that the closing of such base or installation, in
14 whole or in part, has required or will require the ter-
15 mination of such owner's employment or service at such 16 base or installation; and

17 (3) that as the result of the actual or pending
18 closing of such base or installation there is no present
19 market for the sale of such property upon reasonable
20 terms and conditions.

21 (b) The purchase price of any property which is situ-
22 ated at or near a military base or installation and is acquired
23 under this section shall be equal to an amount determined by
24 the Secretary of Defense to be the average price at which

1 properties, similar in size, construction, condition, and loca-
2 tion to that of the property to be acquired, were sold during
3 a representative period, as determined by the Secretary,
4 prior to the announcement of the intention of the Depart-
5 ment of Defense to close all or part of such base or
6 installation.

7 (c) The title to any property acquired under this sec-
8 tion shall be free and clear of any outstanding liens or encum-
9 brances and shall conform to such requirements as the
10 Secretary of Defense shall by regulation require. Such reg-
11 ulations shall also prescribe the terms and conditions under
12 which payments may be made under this section, and deci-
13 sions by the Secretary regarding such payments, and the 14 terms and conditions under which the same are approved or 15 disapproved, shall be final and conclusive and shall not be
16 subject to judicial review.

17 (d) Properties acquired under this section shall be
18 transferred to the Federal Housing Commissioner, and the
19 Federal Housing Commissioner shall have power to deal
20 with, rent, renovate, or sell for cash or credit any properties
21 so transferred. Receipts from the management or sale of
22 any such properties may be utilized by the Commissioner
23 to defray expenses arising in connection with the manage-
24 ment of such properties, and any part of such receipts not

1 required for such expenses shall be covered into the Treas-
2 ury as miscellaneous receipts.

3 (e) Section 223(a) of the National Housing Act is
4 amended—

5 (1) by striking out the period at the end of para-
6 graph (7) and inserting in lieu thereof “; or”; and

7 (2) by inserting after paragraph (7) a new para-
8 graph as follows:

9 “(8) executed in connection with the sale by the
10 Commissioner of any housing acquired pursuant to sec-
11 tion 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act
12 of 1965.”

13 (f) Such sums as may be necessary to carry out the
14 provisions of this section are hereby authorized to be appro-
15 priated, and any sums so appropriated shall remain available
16 until expended.

17 STUDY CONCERNING RELIEF OF HOMEOWNERS IN
18 PROXIMITY TO AIRPORTS

19 SEC. 109. The Housing and Home Finance Adminis-
20 trator shall undertake a study to determine feasible methods
21 of reducing the economic loss and hardship suffered by home-
22 owners as the result of the depreciation in the value of their 23 properties and feasible methods of abating noise from air-
24 craft in such housing following the construction of airports
25 in the vicinity of their homes. Findings and recommenda-

1 tions resulting from such study shall be reported to the Presi-
 2 dent for transmission to the Congress at the earliest practica-
 3 ble date, but in no event later than one year after the date of 4 enactment of this Act.

5 TITLE II—FHA INSURANCE OPERATIONS

6 LAND DEVELOPMENT

7 SEC. 201. (a) The National Housing Act is amended
 8 by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

9 "TITLE X—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR LAND 10 DEVELOPMENT

11 "DEFINITIONS

12 "SEC. 1001. As used in this title—

13 "(a) the term 'mortgage' means a lien or liens on
 14 real estate in fee simple, or on a leasehold (1) under a
 15 lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renew-
 16 able or (2) under a lease having a period of not less
 17 than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was
 18 executed;

19 "(b) the term 'first mortgage' includes such classes
 20 of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances
 21 (including but not limited to advances during construc-
 22 tion) on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate
 23 under the laws of the State in which the real estate is
 24 located, together with the credit instrument or instru-

1 ments, if any, secured thereby, and may be in the form
2 of trust mortgages or mortgage indentures or deeds of
3 trusts securing notes, bonds, or other credit instruments;

4 “(c) the terms ‘mortgagee’, ‘mortgagor’, and
5 ‘State’ have the same meaning as in section 207 of
6 this Act;

7 “(d) the term ‘improvements’ means waterlines and
8 water supply installations, sewerlines and sewage dis-
9 posal installations, roads, streets, curbs, gutters, side-
10 walks, storm drainage facilities, and other installations
11 or work, whether on or off the site, which the Com-
12 missioner deems necessary or desirable to prepare land
13 primarily for residential and related uses or to provide 14 facilities for public or common use; but such term shall 15 not include any building unless it is (1) a building
16 which is needed in connection with a water supply or 17 sewage disposal installation, or (2) a building, other
18 than a school, which is to be owned and maintained
19 jointly by the property owners; and

20 “(e) the term ‘land development’ means the process
21 of making, installing, or constructing improvements.

22 “BASIC CONDITIONS FOR INSURANCE

23 “SEC. 1002. (a) The Commissioner is authorized (1)
24 to insure, upon such terms and conditions as he may pre- 25 scribe, any first mortgage (including advances on such

1 mortgage) in accordance with the provisions of this title,
2 and (2) to make a commitment for the insurance of such
3 mortgage prior to the date of execution of such mortgage
4 or prior to the date of disbursement of the mortgage pro-
5 ceeds. No mortgage shall be insured under this title after 6 October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment to insure 7 issued before such date.

8 “(b) The mortgage shall—

9 “(1) be executed by a mortgagor, other than a
10 public body, approved by the Commissioner;

11 “(2) be made to and held by a mortgagee approved
12 by the Commissioner; and

13 “(3) cover the land to be developed and the im-
14 provements to be made with the assistance of the mort-
15 gage insurance under this title, except facilities intended
16 for public use and in public ownership.

17 “(c) The principal obligation of the mortgage shall 18 (1) not exceed 75 per centum of the Commissioner’s esti-
19 mate of the value of the property upon completion of the 20 land development, and (2) not exceed the sum of 50 per
21 centum of the Commissioner’s estimate of the value of the
22 land before development and 90 per centum of his estimate
23 of the cost of such development. The outstanding principal
24 obligations of mortgages involving a single land development

1 undertaking, as defined by the Commissioner, shall at no
2 time exceed $10,000,000.

3 “(d) The mortgage shall—

4 “(1) have a maturity, not to exceed seven years
5 or such longer maturity as the Commissioner deems 6 reasonable in the case of a privately owned system for 7 water or sewerage, and contain repayment provisions
8 satisfactory to the Commissioner;

9 “(2) bear interest at a rate satisfactory to the Com-
10 missioner, and such interest shall be exclusive of premium
11 charges for mortgage insurance and such service charges
12 and fees as may be approved by the Commissioner; and

13 “(3) contain such terms and provisions with respect
14 to protection of the security, payment of taxes, delin-
15 quency charges, prepayment, additional and secondary 16 liens, and other matters as the Commissioner may in his
17 discretion prescribe.

18 “(e) A property or project to be financed by a mort-
19 gage insured under this title shall—

20 “(1) represent a good mortgage insurance risk;
21 and

22 “(2) involve improvements that comply with all
23 applicable State and local governmental requirements
24 and with minimum standards approved by the Com-
25 missioner.

1 "LAND PLANNING

2 "SEC. 1003. (a) The land development covered by a
3 mortgage insured under this title shall be undertaken pur-
4 suant to a schedule, conforming to such requirements and
5 procedures as the Commissioner may prescribe, that will
6 assure the use of the land for the purposes for which it is to
7 be developed within the shortest reasonable period consistent
8 with the objectives of sound and economic community growth
9 or urban development.

10 "(b) The land development shall be undertaken in
11 accordance with an overall development plan, appropriate
12 to the scope and character of the undertaking, which—

13 "(1) has received all governmental approvals re-
14 quired by State or local law or by the Commissioner;

15 "(2) is acceptable to the Commissioner as provid-
16 ing reasonable assurance that the land development will
17 contribute to good living conditions in the area being 18 developed, which area (i) will have a sound economic 19 base and a long economic life, (ii) will be characterized 20 by sound land-use patterns, and (iii) will include or be
21 served by such shopping, school, recreational, transpor-
22 tation, and other facilities as the Commissioner deems
23 adequate or necessary; and

24 "(3) is consistent with a comprehensive plan which

1 covers, or with comprehensive planning being carried
2 on for, the area in which the land is situated, and which
3 meets criteria established by the Housing and Home
4 Finance Administrator for such plans or planning.

5 "ENCOURAGEMENT OF SMALL BUILDERS AND MODERATE
6 COST HOUSING

7 "SEC. 1004. The Commissioner shall adopt such re-
8 quirements as he deems necessary in land development cov-
9 ered by mortgages insured under this title to encourage the 10 maintenance of a diversified local homebuilding industry,
11 broad participation by builders, and the inclusion of a proper
12 balance of housing for families of moderate or low income.

13 "WATER AND SEWERAGE FACILITIES

14 "SEC. 1005. After development of the land it shall be 15 served by public systems for water and sewerage which 16 are consistent with other existing or prospective systems
17 within the area, except that the Commissioner may approve 18 an adequate privately or cooperatively owned system which 19 will be regulated in a manner acceptable to him with respect
20 to user rates and charges, capital structure, methods of 21 operation, rate of return, and conditions and terms of any 22 sale or transfer.

23 "RELEASES

24 "SEC. 1006. The Commissioner may, on such terms and
25 conditions as he may prescribe, consent to the release or

1 subordination of a part or parts of the mortgaged property
2 from the lien of the mortgage.

3 "PREMIUMS AND FEES

4 "SEC. 1007. The Commissioner shall collect reasonable
5 premiums for the insurance of any mortgage under this title
6 and make such charges as he determines are reasonable for
7 the analysis of the land development plan and the appraisal
8 and inspection of the property and improvements. On or
9 before January 1, 1967, the Commissioner shall make a
10 report to the Congress concerning the premium rates and
11 other charges under this title that he estimates will be ade-
12 quate to provide income sufficient for a self-supporting pro-
13 gram.

14 "INSURANCE BENEFITS

15 "SEC. 1008. The provisions of subsections (e), (g),
16 (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 of this
17 Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured under this
18 title, except that as applied to such mortgages (1) any 19 reference therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to 20 this title, and (2) any reference to an annual premium shall
21 be deemed to refer to such premiums as the Commissioner
22 may designate under this title.

23 "INCONTESTABILITY PROVISIONS

24 "SEC. 1009. Any contract of insurance executed by the
25 Commissioner under this title shall be conclusive evidence of

1 the eligibility of the mortgage for insurance, and the validity
2 of any contract of insurance so executed shall be incontest-
3 able in the hands of an approved mortgagee from the date of
4 the execution of such contract, except for fraud or material
5 misrepresentation on the part of such approved mortgagee.

6 "RULES AND REGULATIONS

7 "SEC. 1010. The Commissioner is authorized to make
8 such rules and regulations and to require such agreements
9 as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the pro-
10 visions of this title.

11 "TAXATION PROVISIONS

12 "SEC. 1011. Nothing in this title shall be construed to
13 exempt any real property acquired and held by the Com-
14 missioner under this title from taxation by any State or 15 political subdivision thereof to the same extent, according
16 to its value, as other real property is taxed.

17 "COST CERTIFICATION

18 "SEC. 1012. (a) The Commissioner shall adopt such re-
19 quirements as he determines necessary to assure, at reason-
20 able intervals of time during land development and upon
21 completion of such development, that the amount of the
22 mortgage loan outstanding at each such interval does not
23 exceed with respect to that portion of the land remaining
24 under the lien of the mortgage (1) 50 per centum of the
25 Commissioner's estimate of the value of such remaining

1 land before development, plus (2) 90 per centum of the
2 actual costs of the development allocated by the Commis-
3 sioner to such remaining land.

4 “(b) From time to time during, and upon completion
5 of, the development, the Commissioner shall require the
6 mortgagor to certify as to the actual costs of development
7 of the land.

8 “(c) Certifications required pursuant to this section
9 shall be accompanied by such data and records as the Com-
10 missioner shall prescribe.

11 “(d) A mortgagor’s certification approved by the Com-
12 missioner shall be final and incontestable except for fraud
13 or material misrepresentation on the part of the mortgagor.

14 “(e) As used in this section, the term ‘actual costs’
15 means the costs (exclusive of kickbacks, rebates, or trade
16 discounts) to the mortgagor of the improvements involved.

17 These costs may include amounts paid for labor, materials,
18 construction contracts, land planning, engineers’ and archi-
19 tect’s fees, surveys, taxes, and interest during development,

20 organizational and legal expenses, such allocation of general
21 overhead expenses as are acceptable to the Commissioner,
22 and other items of expense incidental to development which
23 may be approved by the Commissioner. If the Commis-

24 sioner determines there is an identity of interest between
25 the mortgagor and the contractor, there may be included

1 an allowance for contractor's profit in an amount deemed
2 reasonable by the Commissioner.

3 "REPORT

4 "SEC. 1013. On or before January 1, 1968, the Admin-
5 istrator shall submit to the Congress a full report of opera-
6 tions under this title, together with his recommendations
7 with respect thereto."

8 (b)(1) Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is
9 amended by striking out "the term 'mortgages' " in the last
10 sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "the terms 'mortgages'
11 and 'home mortgages' ".

12 (2) The first paragraph of section 24 of the Federal
13 Reserve Act is amended by inserting before the next to last 14 sentence the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the
15 foregoing limitations and restrictions in this section, any na-
16 tional banking association may make loans for land develop-
17 ment which are secured by mortgages insured under title X
18 of the National Housing Act."

19 (3) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners Loan Act of 20 1933 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following
21 new paragraph:

22 "Without regard to any other provision of this sub-
23 section, any such association may, to such extent as the
24 Federal Home Loan Bank Board may by regulation permit,
25 invest in loans, and interests in loans, (1) secured by mortgages as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under title X of the National Housing Act or of a commitment or agreement for such insurance, or (2) guaranteed by the President under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. Investments under clause (1) of this paragraph shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection. Investments under clause (2) of this paragraph shall not exceed, in the case of any association, 1 per centum of the assets of such association."

(4) Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: "The provisions of this section shall also apply to insurance under title X with respect to laborers and mechanics employed in land development financed with the proceeds of any mortgage insured under that title."

19 SEC. 205. Section 220(d)(3)(A) of the National
 20 Housing Act is amended by—

21 (1) striking out the second proviso in clause (i);
 22 and

23 (2) striking out clause (ii) and inserting in lieu
 24 thereof the following:

25 “(ii) in a case where the mortgagor is not the

1 occupant of the property and the mortgagor intends to
2 hold the property for rental purposes, have a principal
3 obligation in an amount not to exceed 93 per centum
4 of the amount available to a mortgagor who is the 5 occupant of the property computed under the provisions
6 of clause (i);

7 “(iii) in a case where the mortgagor is not the
8 occupant of the property and intends to hold the prop-
9 erty for the purpose of sale, have a principal obligation
10 in an amount not to exceed 85 per centum of the amount
11 computed under the provisions of clause (i), or in the 12 alternative, in an amount computed under the provisions
13 of clause (i) if the mortgagor and mortgagee assume 14 responsibility in a manner satisfactory to the Com-
15 missioner for the reduction of the mortgage by an 16 amount not less than 15 per centum of the outstanding 17 principal amount thereof, or by such greater amount as 18 may be required to meet the limitations of clause (iv),
19 in the event the mortgaged property is not, prior to 20 the due date of the eighteenth amortization payment of 21 the mortgage, sold to a purchaser acceptable to the 22 Commissioner who is the occupant of the property and 23 who assumes and agrees to pay the mortgage indebted-24 ness; and

25 “(iv) in no case involving refinancing (except as provided in clause (iii), have a principal obligation in an amount exceeding the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Commissioner) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property or project and any existing indebtedness incurred in connection with improving, repairing, or rehabilitating the property; or”.

NONDWELLING FACILITIES FOR URBAN RENEWAL HOUSING

SEC. 206. Section 220(d)(3)(B) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out clause (iv) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

“(iv) include such nondwelling facilities as the Commissioner deems desirable and consistent with the urban renewal plan: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and the Commissioner shall find that any nondwelling facility included in the project is essential to the economic feasibility of the project, and that its financing under this section will not result in an unfair disadvantage to other business enterprises in the vicinity of the project.”

LARGER HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS IN HIGH COST AREAS

SEC. 207. (a) Section 220(h)(2)(i) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the semicolon

1 at the end thereof “: Provided, That the Commissioner may,
 2 by regulation, increase such amount by not to exceed 45 per
 3 centum in any geographical area where he finds that cost
 4 levels so require”.

5 (b) Section 220(h)(11) of such Act is amended by 6 inserting before the period at the end thereof “or such addi-
 7 tional amount as the Commissioner has by regulation pre-
 8 scribed in any geographical area where he finds cost levels
 9 so require pursuant to the authority vested in him by the 10 proviso in subsection (2)(i) of this section”.

 17 lieu thereof the following:

18 “(3) have a principal obligation equal to the sum
 19 of (i) 95 per centum of $20,000 of the appraised value 20 of the property (or such higher amount as may be 21 derived by applying the maximum ratio of loan to value
 22 prescribed in section 203(b)(2)), and (ii) 85 per 23 centum of such value in excess of $20,000; and”.

REFINANCING OF INSURED MORTGAGES

SEC. 209. Section 223(a)(7) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "section 608 of title VI prior to the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954 or under section 220, 221, 903, or section 908" and inserting in lieu thereof "this Act".

CONSOLIDATION OF FHA INSURANCE FUNDS

SEC. 210. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"ESTABLISHMENT OF GENERAL INSURANCE FUND

"SEC. 519. (a) There is hereby created a General Insurance Fund which shall be used by the Commissioner, on and after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as a revolving fund for carrying out all the insurance provisions of this Act with the exception of the provisions of sections 203(b), 203(h), and 203(i). All mortgages or loans insured under this Act pursuant to commitments issued on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those insured under sections 203(b), 203(h), and 203(i), and all loans reported for insurance under section 2 on and after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban

1 Development Act of 1965, shall be insured under the Gen-
2 eral Insurance Fund. The Commissioner shall transfer to the 3 General Insurance Fund—

4 “(1) the assets and liabilities of all insurance ac-
5 counts and funds, except the Mutual Mortgage Insurance
6 Fund, existing under this Act immediately prior to the
7 date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban De-
8 velopment Act of 1965;

9 “(2) all outstanding commitments for insurance
10 issued prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing
11 and Urban Development Act of 1965, except commit-
12 ments issued under sections 203(b), 203(h), and 13 203(i);

14 “(3) the insurance on all mortgages and loans in-
15 sured prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing
16 and Urban Development Act of 1965, except the in- 17 surance under sections 203(b), 203(h), and 203(i);
18 and

19 “(4) the insurance of loans made by approved
20 financial institutions pursuant to section 2 prior to the
21 date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban De-
22 velopment Act of 1965.

23 “(b) The general expenses of the operations of the 24 Federal Housing Administration relating to mortgages and

1 loans which are the obligation of the General Insurance
2 Fund may be charged to the General Insurance Fund.

3 “(c) Moneys in the General Insurance Fund not needed
4 for the current operations of the Federal Housing Admin-
5 istration with respect to mortgages and loans which are the
6 obligation of the General Insurance Fund shall be deposited
7 with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of such
8 Fund, or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in
9 bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and 10 interest by, the United States. The Commissioner may,
11 with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase
12 in the open market debentures issued as obligations of the 13 Fund created by this section or issued prior to the date of 14 enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 15 1965 under other provisions of this Act, except debentures
16 issued under the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund. Such 17 purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an 18 investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from 19 other investments authorized by this section. Debentures
20 so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued.

21 “(d) Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, and
22 appraisal and other fees received on account of the insurance
23 of any mortgage or loan which is the obligation of the Gen-
24 eral Insurance Fund, the receipts derived from the property

1 covered by such mortgages and loans and from the claims,
 2 debts, contracts, property, and security assigned to the Com-
 3 missioner in connection therewith, and all earnings on the
 4 assets of such Fund shall be credited to the General Insurance
 5 Fund. The principal of, and interest paid and to be paid on,
 6 debentures which are the obligation of such Fund, cash in-
 7 surance payments and adjustments, and expenses incurred in 8 the handling, management, renovation, and disposal of prop-
 9 erties acquired in connection with mortgages and loans which 10 are the obligation of such Fund, shall be charged to such 11 Fund."

12 OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

13 SEC. 211. Title V of the National Housing Act is
 14 amended by inserting after section 519 (added by section
 15 210 of this Act) a new section as follows:

16 "OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

17 "SEC. 520. Notwithstanding any other provision of 18 this Act with respect to the payment of insurance benefits,
 19 the Commissioner is authorized, in his discretion, to pay in 20 cash or in debentures any insurance claim or part thereof
 21 which is paid on or after the date of enactment of the Hous-
 22 ing and Urban Development Act of 1965 on a mortgage or a
 23 loan which was insured under any section of this Act either
 24 before or after such date. If payment is made in cash, it
 25 shall be in an amount equivalent to the face amount of

1 the debentures that would otherwise be issued plus an amount
 2 equivalent to the interest which the debentures would have
 3 earned, computed to a date to be established pursuant to regu-
 4 lations issued by the Commissioner."

5 APPROVAL OF TECHNICALLY SUITABLE MATERIALS

6 SEC. 212. Title V of the National Housing Act is
 7 amended by inserting after section 520 (added by section
 8 211 of this Act) a new section as follows:

9 "APPROVAL OF TECHNICALLY SUITABLE MATERIALS

10 "SEC. 521. The Commissioner shall adopt a uniform
 11 procedure for the acceptance of materials and products to be 12 used in structures approved for mortgages or loans insured
 13 under this Act. Under such procedure any material or 14 product which is technically suitable for the use proposed 15 shall be accepted."

16 WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES IN CONNECTION WITH 17 CERTAIN FEDERALLY ASSISTED HOUSING

18 SEC. 213. (a) Title V of the National Housing Act is 19 amended by inserting after section 521 (added by section
 20 212 of this Act) a new section as follows:

21 "WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

22 "SEC. 522. Notwithstanding any other provision of this
 23 Act, no mortgage which covers new construction shall be 24 approved for insurance under this Act (except pursuant to 25 a commitment made prior to the date of the enactment of

1 the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965) if the
2 mortgaged property includes housing which is not served by 3 a public or adequate community water and sewerage system:
4 Provided, That this limitation shall be applicable only to 5 property which is not served by a system approved by the 6 Commissioner pursuant to title X of this Act and which
7 is situated in an area certified by appropriate local officials
8 to be an area where the establishment of public or adequate
9 community water and sewerage systems is economically
10 feasible: Provided further, That for purposes of this section
11 the economic feasibility of establishing such public or ade-
12 quate community water and sewerage systems shall be 13 determined without regard to whether such establishment is 14 authorized by law or is subject to approval by one or more
15 local governments or public bodies.”

16 (b) Section 1804 of title 38, United States Code, is 17 amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as
18 follows:

19 “(c) No loan for the purchase or construction of new 20 residential property (other than property served by a water
21 and sewerage system approved by the Federal Housing
22 Commissioner pursuant to title X of the National Housing
23 Act) shall be financed through the assistance of this chap-
24 ter, except pursuant to a commitment made prior to the 25 date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development

1 Act of 1965, if such property is not served by a public or
 2 adequate community water and sewerage system and is
 3 located in an area where the appropriate local officials certify
 4 that the establishment of such systems is economically feasible.
 5 For purposes of this subsection, the economic feasibility of 6 establishing public or adequate community water and sewer-
 7 age systems shall be determined without regard to whether 8 such establishment is authorized by law or is subject to 9 approval by one or more local governments or public bodies."

10 HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS MADE BY FEDERAL CREDIT
 11 UNIONS

12 SEC. 214. The first sentence of section 8 of the Federal 13 Credit Union Act is amended by inserting after "except that"
 14 the following: "(1) any such loan with respect to which 15 insurance is granted under section 2 of the National Housing
 16 Act may have a maturity not in excess of the maximum 17 allowed by the Federal Housing Commissioner pursuant to 18 subsection (b)(2) of such section, and (2)".

19 MORTGAGE LIMITS FOR HOMES UNDER SECTION 203(b)

20 SEC. 215. Clause (iii) of section 203(b)(2) of the 21 National Housing Act is amended by striking out "75 per 22 centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "85 per centum".

23 FHA MORTGAGE FINANCING FOR VETERANS

24 SEC. 216. (a) Section 203(b)(2) of the National
 25 Housing Act is amended—

1 (1) by striking out "and not to exceed" and insert-
2 ing in lieu thereof "and (except as provided in the last
3 sentence of this paragraph) not to exceed"; and

4 (2) by adding at the end thereof the following new 5 sentences: "If the mortgagor is a veteran who has not 6 received any direct, guaranteed, or insured loan under 7 laws administered by the Veterans' Administration for 8 the purchase, construction, or repair of a dwelling (in-9 cluding a farm dwelling) which was to be owned and 10 occupied by him as his home, and the mortgage to be 11 insured under this section covers property upon which 12 there is located a dwelling designed principally for a 13 one-family residence, the principal obligation may be in 14 an amount equal to the sum of (i) 100 per centum of 15 $15,000 of the appraised value of the property as of the 16 date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, (ii) 90 per 17 centum of such value in excess of $15,000 but not in 18 excess of $20,000, and (iii) 85 per centum of such value
19 in excess of $20,000. As used herein, the term 'veteran'
20 means any person who served on active duty in the armed
21 forces of the United States on or after September 16, 22 1940, for a period of not less than ninety days (or if 23 less than ninety days such person is certified by the Sec-
24 retary of Defense as having performed extra hazardous service), and who was discharged or released therefrom under conditions other than dishonorable.”

(b) Section 203(b)(9) of such Act is amended by inserting after “on account of the property” the following: “(except in a case to which the last sentence of paragraph (2) applies)”.

STUDY OF CERTAIN FHA INSURANCE PROGRAMS

SEC. 217. The Federal Housing Commissioner shall undertake a study of existing programs for the insurance of mortgages secured by multifamily housing projects with a view to making recommendations for strengthening such programs and reducing losses thereunder. Findings and recommendations resulting from such study shall be reported to the Congress not later than January 1, 1966.

TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL

GENERAL NEIGHBORHOOD RENEWAL PLANS

SEC. 301. Section 102(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by—

(1) striking out the first sentence of the second paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

“In order to facilitate proper preliminary planning for the attainment of the urban renewal objectives of this title, the Administrator may also make advances of funds (in addition to those authorized above) to local public agencies for the preparation of General Neighborhood Renewal Plans (as herein defined). A General Neighborhood Renewal Plan may be prepared for an area consisting of an urban renewal area or areas, together with any adjoining areas having specially related problems, and which is of such size that the urban renewal activities in the urban renewal area or areas may have to be initiated in stages, consistent with the capacity and resources of the respective local public agency or agencies, over an estimated period of not more than eight years.”; and

(2) striking out the first numbered paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

“(1) in the interest of sound community planning, it is desirable that the urban renewal activities proposed for the area be planned in their entirety;”.

INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR CAPITAL GRANTS

SEC. 302. (a) Section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out “$4,725,000,000” and inserting in lieu thereof “$4,700,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $675,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, by $725,000,000 on July 1, 1966, and by $750,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1967 and 1968”.

(b) The first proviso in section 103(b) of such Act,

1 and the second sentence of section 6(b) of the Urban Mass
2 Transportation Act of 1964, are repealed.

3 (c) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator
4 shall undertake a study of the existing slum clearance and 5 urban renewal program under title I of the Housing Act of 6 1949 with a view to making recommendations for strength-
7 ening such program, or for establishing a new or alternative
8 program to assist the States and their communities in slum
9 clearance and urban renewal activities. Such study shall 10 include, among other relevant matters, a consideration of 11 ways in which (1) more effective assistance can be given to 12 meet the special problems of smaller communities undertak-
13 ing or proposing to undertake urban renewal projects, and 14 (2) the time required to complete urban renewal projects
15 can be shortened. Findings and recommendations resulting 16 from such study shall be reported to the President for sub-
17 mission to the Congress not later than two years after the 18 appropriation of funds for such study. Such sums as may be 19 necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection are 20 hereby authorized to be appropriated.

21 INCREASE IN NONRESIDENTIAL EXCEPTION

22 SEC. 303. The sixth sentence of section 110(c) of the 23 Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out the period
24 and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “: And provided

1 further, That the aggregate amount of capital grants avail-
2 able under this title with respect to such projects after the 3 date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Develop-
4 ment Act of 1965 (which amount shall not include any 5 amounts previously authorized for such projects) shall not
6 exceed 40 per centum of the amount of grants authorized
7 under this title by such Act.”

8 ELIGIBILITY OF CERTAIN EXPENSES TO PROJECTS

9 FINANCED ON THREE-FOURTHS GRANT BASIS

10 SEC. 304. (a) Clause (i) of the third sentence of sec-
11 tion 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by (1)
12 inserting “staff services in connection with programs of code
13 enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation and repair (includ-
14 ing community organization),” after “disposition of land,”;
15 and (2) inserting “(5),” after “(4),”.

16 (b) Section 110(e) of such Act is amended by striking
17 the comma and all that follows within the parentheses in the 18 fourth sentence thereof.

19 (c) Any contract for a capital grant under title I of 20 the Housing Act of 1949, executed prior to the effective
21 date of this Act, may be amended to incorporate the provi-
22 sions of subsections (a) and (b) as to costs incurred after 23 the effective date of this Act.

RELOCATION PAYMENTS

SEC. 305. (a) Section 114(b)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "$1,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$2,500".

(b) Section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Gross project cost may include the cost of payments made, pursuant to State or local law, to individuals and families displaced from an urban renewal area and relocated in decent, safe, and sanitary housing, if such payments are required by State or local law to be paid in every program of the State or locality, as the case may be, which results in the displacement of individuals and families."

(c) Section 15(8) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting immediately after the end thereof, the following: "A 'relocation payment' as used in this paragraph, may include, in addition to the payments described above, the cost of payments made, pursuant to State or local law, to individuals and families displaced from a low-rent housing project site as a result of the acquisition of real property by a public housing agency and relocated in decent, safe, and sanitary housing, if such payments are re-

1 quired by State or local law to be paid in every program of
 2 the State or locality, as the case may be, which results in the 3 displacement of individuals and families."

4 DEMOLITION OF UNSAFE STRUCTURES AND CODE
 5 ENFORCEMENT

6 SEC. 306. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is
 7 amended by inserting after section 115 (added by section
 8 103 of this Act) two new sections as follows:

9 "DEMOLITION

10 "SEC. 116. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of 11 this title, the Administrator is authorized to enter into con-
 12 tracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this sec-
 13 tion (payable from any grant funds provided under section 14 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties to assist 15 in financing the cost of demolishing structures which under 16 State or local law have been determined to be structurally
 17 unsound or unfit for human habitation, and which such city,
 18 municipality, or county has authority to demolish. The 19 amount of any grant under this section shall not exceed two-
 20 thirds of the cost of the demolition of such structures.

21 "(b) No grant shall be made under this section unless
 22 the structures to be demolished are located in an urban re-
 23 newal area, or, in the case of structures outside an urban
 24 renewal area, (1) the locality involved has an approved
 25 workable program for community improvement in accord-

1 ance with the requirements of section 101(c) of this title, as
2 determined by the Administrator, (2) the demolition to be
3 assisted will be on a planned neighborhood basis and will
4 further the over-all renewal objectives of such locality, (3)
5 there is in such locality a program of enforcement of existing 6 local housing and related codes, (4) the structures to be
7 demolished constitute a public nuisance and a serious hazard
8 to the public health or welfare, and (5) the governing body
9 of such locality has determined that other available legal pro-
10 cedures have been exhausted to secure remedial action by the 11 owner of the structures involved and that demolition by 12 governmental action is required.

13 “CODE ENFORCEMENT

14 “SEC. 117. Notwithstanding any other provision of this
15 title, the Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts
16 to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section
17 (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103 18 (b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the 19 purpose of assisting such localities in carrying out programs
20 of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deterior-
21 ating areas in which such enforcement, together with those 22 public improvements to be provided by the locality, may be 23 expected to arrest the decline of the area. Such grants shall 24 not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any

1 city, other municipality, or county having a population of
2 50,000 or less according to the most recent decennial
3 census) of the cost of planning and carrying out such pro-
4 grams which may include the provision and repair of neces-
5 sary streets, curbs, sidewalks, street lighting, tree planting,
6 and similar improvements within such areas. The Adminis-
7 trator shall not make any grant under this section unless he 8 has obtained adequate assurances (1) that the locality will 9 maintain during the period of the contract, in addition to its 10 expenditures for planning and carrying out any program
11 assisted under this section, a level of expenditures for code
12 enforcement activities at not less than its normal expendi-
13 tures for such activities prior to the execution of such con-
14 tract, and (2) that the locality has a satisfactory program
15 for the provision of all necessary public improvements for 16 such areas. The provisions of sections 101(c), 106, 114,
17 and 115 shall be applicable to the programs assisted under 18 this section."

19 (b) Section 110(c) of such Act is amended by—

20 (1) striking out "or a program of code enforce-21 ment in an urban renewal area," in the first sentence;
22 and

23 (2) striking out the proviso in paragraph (5).

24 (c) Section 220(d)(1)(A) of the National Housing
25 Act is amended by inserting before the first proviso the

1 following: “, or (iv) an area in which a program of con-
 2 centrated code enforcement activities is being carried out
 3 pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949”.

4 (d) Section 220(h)(1) of the National Housing Act
 5 is amended by inserting after “urban renewal project” in 6 the first sentence the following: “or in an area in which a 7 program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being 8 carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 9 1949”.

10 (e) Section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 1964 is 11 amended by inserting after “urban renewal area” in the first 12 sentence the following: “or an area in which a program of 13 concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out
 14 pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949”.

15 ELIGIBILITY OF CERTAIN LOCAL GRANTS-IN-AID

16 SEC. 307. (a) Notwithstanding the date of the com-
 17 mencement of construction of the Tanyard Creek collector
 18 sanitary sewer in Jasper, Alabama, local expenditures made 19 in connection with this collector sanitary sewer system shall,
 20 to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-
 21 in-aid to the downtown urban renewal project (Alabama 22 R-49) in accordance with the provisions of title I of the 23 Housing Act of 1949.

24 (b) Notwithstanding the date of the commencement of 25 construction of the East Side High School and the start of

1 construction of the improvements to Hickory Creek in Joliet,
2 Illinois, expenditures made in connection with such high
3 school and such creek improvements shall, to the extent
4 otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the 5 proposed south central urban renewal project in accordance 6 with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

7 (c) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of the 8 installation of certain underground electrical wiring in John-
9 son City, Tennessee, expenditures made in connection with 10 such installation shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be 11 counted as a local grant-in-aid to Johnson City's proposed 12 downtown urban renewal project (Tennessee R-80) in 13 accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act
14 of 1949.

15 (d) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 312 of 16 the Housing Act of 1954 or any request previously made
17 pursuant to such section, upon request of the local public
18 agency the eligibility of the local grants-in-aid for any proj-
19 ect in the city of New Brunswick, New Jersey, in connec-
20 tion with which the final capital grant payment has not been 21 made, shall be determined in accordance with the provisions
22 of section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949.

23 (e) Two thirds of all expenditures by the city of Saint
24 Louis, Missouri, in connection with its Downtown Sports
25 Stadium project, to the extent such expenditures would have

1 been eligible under the provisions of section 110(d) of the 2 Housing Act of 1949 to be counted as non-cash grants-in-
3 aid toward such project if it had received Federal assistance
4 as an urban renewal project pursuant to the provisions of 5 title I of such Act, shall be eligible to be counted as a grant-
6 in-aid toward any Federally-assisted urban renewal projects
7 in Saint Louis.

8 (f) Notwithstanding the extent to which the cultural and 9 convention center proposed to be built adjacent to Urban 10 Renewal Project Colorado R-15 (Skyline) in Denver,
11 Colorado, may benefit areas other than the urban renewal
12 area, expenses incurred by the city of Denver in constructing 13 such center shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted
14 as a grant-in-aid toward such project.

15 (g) Notwithstanding the extent to which the cultural 16 and convention center proposed to be built within Urban Re-
17 newal Project R-8 in Norfolk, Virginia, may benefit other
18 areas other than the urban renewal area, expenses incurred
19 by the city of Norfolk in constructing such center shall, to 20 the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a grant-in-aid
21 toward such project.

22 (h) Expenses incurred in the construction of the Glenn
23 Duncan Elementary School and the Fred W. Traner Junior 24 High School in Reno, Nevada, shall not be deemed to be 25 ineligible as a local grant-in-aid in connection with the North-

1 east Urban Renewal Project (Nevada R-2) because of any
2 change in the urban renewal plan for such project which is
3 determined by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator
4 to have resulted from the proposed location of a Federally-
5 aided highway within or adjacent to the urban renewal area
6 in which such project was undertaken. For the purpose of 7 computing the portion of the cost of such schools which may 8 be allowed as a local grant-in-aid, the degree of benefit of the 9 schools to such urban renewal area shall be based on the 10 latest estimate of benefit submitted by the local public agency
11 and accepted by the Administrator prior to such change in the 12 urban renewal plan.

13 (i) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 112(a) of 14 the Housing Act of 1949 expenditures in the amount of 15 $600,000 made by the Memorial Hospital of Michigan City
16 Foundation, Incorporated, for the purchase of certain land
17 and buildings on or about July 24, 1963, from Doctors Hos-
18 pital Realty Corporation shall, if otherwise eligible, be counted
19 as local grants-in-aid to the community center numbered 1
20 urban renewal project (Indiana R-46) in Michigan City,
21 Indiana, in accordance with the remaining provisions of title
22 I of that Act.

23 (j) The provisions of section 113(c) of the Housing Act
24 of 1949 shall be applicable to the Hobo Jungle Urban Re-
25 newal Project in Texarkana, Arkansas (Arkansas R-3).

1 (k) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of con-
 2 struction of the Pulaski, Showalter, and Smedley Junior High
 3 Schools, and the William Penn and Stetser Elementary
 4 Schools in Chester, Pennsylvania, local expenditures made
 5 in connection with such schools shall, to the extent otherwise
 6 eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid for federally
 7 assisted urban renewal projects in Chester that will be served
 8 by such schools.

9 AMENDMENT OF SECTION 316 OF THE HOUSING ACT

10 OF 1954

11 SEC. 308. The first full paragraph of section 316(2) of 12 the Housing Act of 1954 is amended by striking out the first
 13 parenthetical clause and inserting in lieu thereof the follow-
 14 ing: "(as such projects are now or may hereafter be defined
 15 in title I of the Housing Act of 1949, including but not 16 limited to projects authorized without regard to the resi-
 17 dential or nonresidential character or reuse of the urban 18 renewal area)".

19 REHABILITATION LOANS

20 SEC. 309. (a) Section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 21 1964 is amended by striking out "reasonable" in the second
 22 sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "comparable".

23 (b) Section 312(d) of such Act is amended by striking
 24 out "$50,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$100,000,- 25 000 for each fiscal year", and by adding at the end thereof

1 a new sentence as follows: "All moneys in such revolving
 2 fund shall be available for necessary expenses of servicing
 3 loans made pursuant to this section, including reimbursement
 4 or payment for services and facilities of the Federal National 5 Mortgage Association and of any public or private agency for 6 the servicing of such loans."

7 (c) Section 312 of such Act is further amended by
 8 adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

9 "(h) No loan shall be made under the authority of this
 10 section after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a contract,
 11 commitment, or other obligation entered into pursuant to
 12 this section before that date."

13 ELIGIBILITY OF COMMUNITIES IN DEPRESSED AREAS FOR
 14 URBAN RENEWAL ASSISTANCE

15 SEC. 310. (a) Subparagraph (B) of section 103(a)
 16 (2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as
 17 follows:

18 "(B) three-fourths of the aggregate net project costs
 19 of any such projects which are located in (i) a mu-
 20 nicipality having a population of fifty thousand or less
 21 according to the most recent decennial census, or (ii) a
 22 municipality situated in a labor market area which, at
 23 the time the contract or contracts involved are entered
 24 into or at such earlier time as the Administrator may 25 specify in order to avoid hardship, is designated as a

1 redevelopment area under the second sentence of section
 2 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act or any other legis-
 3 lation enacted after the date of the enactment of the 4 Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 con-
 5 taining standards for designation as a redevelopment
 6 area generally comparable to those set forth in the second
 7 sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act,
 8 and”.

9 (b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply
 10 only with respect to urban renewal projects placed under 11 contract for capital grant on or after the date of the enact-
 12 ment of this Act; except that such amendment shall apply
 13 with respect to all urban renewal projects in the city of 14 Providence, Rhode Island, placed under contract for capital
 15 grant during the period Providence was designated as a
 16 redevelopment area under section 5(a) of the Area Redevel-
 17 opment Act (or at such earlier time as the Administrator 18 may specify in order to avoid hardship) and not completed
 19 prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

20 REDEVELOPMENT OF AREAS CONTAINING TEMPORARY WAR

21 HOUSING PROJECTS

22 SEC. 311. Notwithstanding any other provision of law,
 23 loan and grant assistance under title I of the Housing Act
 24 of 1949 for the renewal of any blighted, deteriorated, or 25 deteriorating area of a locality which consists primarily of

1 temporary war housing projects constructed under an Act
 2 entitled "An Act to expedite the provision of housing in
 3 connection with national defense, and for other purposes",
 4 approved October 14, 1940, as amended (the so-called Lan-
 5 ham Act), may be extended in the same manner and to the 6 same extent as in the case of any other urban renewal area,
 7 if—

8 (1) such locality has at no time since the acquisition
 9 of such housing from the United States received from it
 10 any net income, substantially all income therefrom hav-
 11 ing been utilized for the maintenance and operation of 12 such housing for the benefit of persons of low or moderate
 13 incomes;

14 (2) there are included in such area at least 1,200
 15 dwelling units of such housing at the time an urban 16 renewal plan for such area is submitted; and

17 (3) the urban renewal plan for such area provides 18 for a predominance (exclusive of public facilities and 19 open spaces) of housing for persons of low or moderate
 20 incomes.

21 LOCAL GRANT-IN-AID CREDIT FOR CERTAIN COAL

22 ROYALTIES

23 SEC. 312. (a) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 24 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following
 25 new paragraph:

1 “Where a project in any municipality includes an area
2 affected by an underground mine fire or by a coal mine
3 subsidence and where it is necessary in such project to remove
4 any underlying coal deposits in order to stabilize the soil
5 or to control the underground mine fire, then any royalties
6 received by the project from the removal and sale of such
7 coal deposits shall be credited to the project as a local grant-
8 in-aid made by such municipality.”

9 (b) Any contract under title I of the Housing Act of
10 1949 executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act
11 shall, at the request of the municipality involved, be amended
12 to reflect the amendment made by subsection (a).

13 MODIFICATION OF WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT
14 AS APPLIED TO INDIANS

15 SEC. 313. Section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949
16 is amended by adding the following sentence at the end thereof:
17 “Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in the case
18 of a contract with an Indian tribe, band, or nation (or a 19 public housing or other public agency for such tribe, band,
20 or nation established under State or tribal law), the workable
21 program and minimum standards housing code, referred 22 to in the preceding sentence, may be presented to the Admin-
23 istrator by such tribe, band, or nation, and it shall be sub-
24 ject to the requirements of law with respect to such program
25 and code only to the extent that such tribe, band, or nation

1 has the legal jurisdiction and power to carry out such
 2 requirements.”

3 PRESERVATION OF HISTORIC STRUCTURES

4 SEC. 314. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of
 5 1949 is amended by—

6 (1) striking out “and” at the end of paragraph
 7 (7);

8 (2) striking out the period at the end of paragraph
 9 (8) and inserting in lieu thereof “; and”;

10 (3) inserting a new paragraph (9) as follows:

11 “(9) relocating within the project area a structure
 12 which the local public agency determines to be of historic 13 value and which will be disposed of to a public body or 14 a private nonprofit organization which will renovate
 15 and maintain such structure for historic purposes.”;
 16 and

17 (4) striking out “paragraphs (7) and (8)” in the 18 third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “paragraphs
 19 (7), (8), and (9)”.

20 (b) Section 110(e) of such Act is amended by striking
 21 out “and (8)” in clause (i) and inserting in lieu thereof
 22 “(8), and (9)”.

23 URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT REQUIREMENT

24 SEC. 315. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 25 1949 is amended by striking out the third sentence and in-

1 serting in lieu thereof the following: "For the purposes of
 2 this title, the term 'project' shall not include (except as pro-
 3 vided in paragraph (7) above) (A) the construction or 4 improvement of any building, or (B) the acquisition, dis-
 5 position, or demolition of any building other than a sub-
 6 standard building. The term 'redevelopment' and derivations
 7 thereof shall mean development as well as redevelopment."

8 (b) Section 110 of such Act is further amended by 9 adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

10 "(1) 'Substandard building' means any building other
 11 than a building (1) which can be economically improved
 12 or modified to meet requirements reasonably established by 13 the local public agency for integration into an urban renewal
 14 plan, and (2) whose owner or lessee agrees within thirty days
 15 from date notice is received from the agency, and presents
 16 satisfactory evidence that he is willing and able, to make such 17 improvements or modifications within a reasonable time limit
 18 set by the local public agency."

19 TITLE IV—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

20 ACCEPTANCE OF LOCAL CERTIFICATION OF EQUIVALENT

21 ELIMINATION

22 SEC. 401. The fourth sentence of section 10(a) of the 23 United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting
 24 immediately before the comma after the word "elimination",

1 where the word first appears, the following: “, as certified
2 by the local governing body”.

3 GREATER USE OF EXISTING HOUSING

4 SEC. 402. Section 10(c) of the United States Housing
5 Act of 1937 is amended by striking out “And provided”
6 and inserting in lieu thereof “Provided”, and by inserting a
7 colon and the following proviso before the period at the end
8 thereof: “And provided further, That the amount of the fixed
9 annual contribution which would be established under this
10 Act for a newly constructed project by a public housing
11 agency designed to accommodate a number of families of 12 a given size and kind may be established, as a maximum
13 annual contribution in lieu of any other guaranteed con-
14 tribution authorized under this section, for a project by such 15 public housing agency which would provide housing for the 16 comparable number, sizes and kinds of families through the 17 acquisition, acquisition and rehabilitation, or use under lease
18 of existing structures which are suitable for low-rent housing
19 use and obtainable in the local market”.

20 INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR ANNUAL
21 CONTRIBUTIONS

22 SEC. 403. (a) Section 10(e) of the United States Hous-
23 ing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting immediately follow-
24 ing “per annum”, the following: “, which limit shall be in-25 creased by $47,000,000 on the date of enactment of the

1 Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and by fur-
2 ther amounts of $47,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years
3 1966, 1967, and 1968, respectively,".

4 (b) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator
5 shall undertake a study of the existing low-rent public hous-
6 ing program with a view to making recommendations for 7 strengthening such program, or for establishing a new or
8 alternative program to assist the States and their localities
9 in providing housing for low-income families. Such study
10 shall give special consideration to ways in which the re-
11 sources of private enterprise may be utilized more effectively
12 in meeting the needs for housing of such families. Findings
13 and recommendations resulting from such study shall be 14 reported to the President for submission to the Congress not 15 later than two years after the appropriation of funds for such 16 study. Such sums as may be necessary to carry out the 17 provisions of this subsection are hereby authorized to be 18 appropriated.

19 REALLOCATION OF UNITS

20 SEC. 404. Section 10(c) of the United States Housing
21 Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "Provided," and 22 inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Provided, That 23 subject to any contractual obligation outstanding on the date .
24 of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act

1 contract is entered into) of the dwelling unit, in not more
2 than forty years: Provided, That the public housing agency
3 may, under terms and conditions to be prescribed by it,
4 permit a purchaser to apply an amount equal to the net
5 rent paid for his dwelling unit, over a period not exceeding
6 three years prior to the entering into of any such contract,
7 toward the purchase price of such unit;

8 “(B) The interest rate shall be fixed at not less than 9 the average interest cost of loans outstanding on the project,
10 except that in the case of a project on which bonds are not 11 outstanding the interest rate shall be fixed at not less than 12 the going Federal rate applicable to such project;

13 “(C) The principal payments shall be not less than 14 one-half of 1 per centum per annum of the sales price during 15 the first five years after purchase, 1 per centum per annum
16 during the next five years, $1\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per annum during 17 the third five years, and thereafter not less than the principal 18 payments resulting from a level debt service of interest and 19 principal over the balance of the payment period; and 20 “(D) If at any time (i) a purchaser fails to carry out

21 his contract with the public housing agency and if no mem-
22 ber of his family who resides in the dwelling assumes such 23 contract, or (ii) if the purchaser or a member of his family

1 who assumes the contract does not reside in the dwelling, the
 2 public housing agency shall have an option to acquire his
 3 interest under such contract upon payment to him or his
 4 estate of an amount equal to his aggregate principal pay-
 5 ments plus the value to the public housing agency of any 6 improvements made by him, less an amount equal to $2\frac{1}{2}$ per 7 centum of the sales price."

8 (b) Such Act is further amended—

9 (1) by inserting in the parenthetical phrase in sec-
 10 tion 10(h) after the words "exclusive of" the following:
 11 "any part thereof covered by a contract or conveyed
 12 pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15, and exclusive
 13 of";

14 (2) by inserting after "may be made" in section
 15 10(l) the following: " , subject to any outstanding con-
 16 tracts made pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15,";

17 (3) by inserting after "acquisition", the first place
 18 it appears in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section
 19 15, the following: "(except pursuant to paragraph (9)
 20 of section 15)"; and

21 (4) by inserting before the semicolon at the end
 22 of paragraph (1) of section 22(a) a colon and the 23 following: "Provided, That such conveyance or delivery

1 of title shall be subject to the rights of third parties
2 vested pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15".

3 TITLE V—COLLEGE HOUSING

4 INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR COLLEGE HOUSING

5 LOANS

6 SEC. 501. Section 401(d) of the Housing Act of 1950
7 is amended to read as follows:

8 "(d) To obtain funds for loans under subsection (a)
9 of this section, the Administrator may issue and have out-
10 standing at any one time notes and obligations for purchase
11 by the Secretary of the Treasury in an amount not to ex-
12 ceed $2,985,000,000, which amount shall be increased by 13 $285,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1966 and 14 1967, and by $275,000,000 on July 1, 1968: Provided,
15 That the amount outstanding for other educational facilities,
16 as defined herein, shall not exceed $295,000,000, which 17 limit shall be increased by $30,000,000 on July 1 in each
18 of the years 1965 through 1968: Provided further, That 19 the amount outstanding for hospitals, referred to in clause
20 (2) of section 404(b) of this title, shall not exceed 21 $220,000,000, which limit shall be increased by $15,000,000
22 on July 1 in each of the years 1965 through 1968."

1 PARTICIPATION BY NEW COLLEGES AND CERTAIN PUBLIC
2 VOCATIONAL AND TECHNICAL INSTITUTIONS

3 SEC. 502. Clause (1) of section 404(b) of the Hous-
4 ing Act of 1950 is amended to read as follows: “(1)(A) any
5 educational institution which offers, or provides satisfactory
6 assurance to the Administrator that it will offer within a
7 reasonable time after completion of a facility for which
8 assistance is requested under this title, at least a two-year
9 program acceptable for full credit toward a baccalaureate 10 degree (including any public educational institution, or 11 any private educational institution no part of the net earnings
12 of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or 13 individual), or (B) any public educational institution which 14 (i) is administered by a college or university which is ac-
15 credited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or 16 association, (ii) offers technical or vocational instruction,
17 and (iii) provides residential facilities for some or all of 18 the students receiving such instruction,”.

19 TECHNICAL AMENDMENT

20 SEC. 503. The second paragraph of section 404(b) of 21 the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by inserting after 22 “would provide housing,” the following: “or to a student

1 housing cooperative corporation described in clause (5) of
 2 this subsection,”.

3 TITLE VI—GRANTS FOR BASIC PUBLIC
 4 WORKS, NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES, AND
 5 THE ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

6 PURPOSE

7 SEC. 601. The purpose of this title is to assist and en-
 8 courage the communities of the Nation fully to meet the needs
 9 of their citizens by making it possible, with Federal grant
 10 assistance, for their governmental bodies (1) to construct 11 adequate basic water and sewer facilities needed to promote 12 the efficient and orderly growth and development of our com-
 13 munities, (2) to construct neighborhood facilities needed to 14 enable them to carry on programs of necessary social serv-
 15 ices, and (3) to acquire, in a planned and orderly fashion,
 16 land to be utilized in connection with the future construction
 17 of public works and facilities.

18 GRANTS FOR BASIC WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

19 SEC. 602. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Ad-
 20 ministrator (hereinafter in this title referred to as the “Ad-
 21 ministrator”) is authorized to make grants to local public
 22 bodies and agencies to finance specific projects for basic 23 public water facilities (including works for the storage, treat- 24 ment, purification, and distribution of water), and for basic 25 public sewer facilities (other than “treatment works” as

1 defined in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act): Pro-
2 vided, That no grant shall be made under this section for
3 any sewer facilities unless the Secretary of Health, Educa-
4 tion, and Welfare certifies to the Administrator that any
5 waste material carried by such facilities will be adequately
6 treated before it is discharged into any public waterway so
7 as to meet applicable Federal, State, interstate, or local
8 water quality standards.

9 (b) The amount of any grant made under the authority
10 of this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the develop-
11 ment cost of the project: Provided, That in the case of a
12 community having a population of less than ten thousand,
13 according to the most recent decennial census, which is 14 situated within a metropolitan area, the Administrator may 15 increase the amount of a grant for a basic public sewer 16 facility assisted under this section to not more than 90 per 17 centum of the development cost of such facility, if the com-
18 munity is unable to finance the construction of such facility
19 without the increased grant authorized under this subsection,
20 and if in such community (1) there does not exist a public
21 or other adequate sewer facility which serves a substantial 22 portion of the inhabitants of the community, and (2) the 23 rate of unemployment is, and has been continuously for 24 the preceding calendar year, 100 per centum above the 25 national average: And provided further, That the limitations

1 and restrictions contained in subsection (c) of this section
2 shall not be applicable to any community applying for an
3 increased grant under this subsection.

4 (c) No grant shall be made under this section in con-
5 nection with any project unless the Administrator determines 6 that the project is necessary to provide adequate water or 7 sewer facilities for, and will contribute to the improvement
8 of the health or living standards of, the people in the com-
9 munity to be served, and that the project is (1) designed so
10 that an adequate capacity will be available to serve the rea-
11 sonably foreseeable growth needs of the area; (2) consistent
12 with a program meeting criteria, established by the Admin-
13 istrator, for a unified or officially coordinated areawide water
14 or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively
15 planned development of the area, except that prior to July 1, 16 1968, grants may, in the discretion of the Administrator, be 17 made under this section when such a program for an area-
18 wide water and sewer facilities system is under active prepa-
19 ration, although not yet completed, if the facility or facilities
20 for which assistance is sought can reasonably be expected
21 to be required as a part of such program, and there is urgent
22 need for the facility or facilities; and (3) necessary to 23 orderly community development.

GRANTS FOR NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES

SEC. 603. (a) In accordance with the provisions of this section, the Administrator is authorized to make grants to any local public body or agency to assist in financing specific projects for neighborhood facilities. Any such project may be undertaken by such body or agency directly or through a nonprofit organization approved by it: Provided, That no grant shall be provided under this section for any project to be undertaken through a nonprofit organization unless the Administrator determines (1) that such organization has or will have the legal, financial, and technical capacity to carry out the project, and (2) that the public body or agency to which the grant is made will have satisfactory continuing control over the use of the proposed facilities.

(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed $66\frac{2}{3}$ per centum of the development cost of the project for which the grant is made (or 75 per centum of such cost in the case of a project located in an area which at the time the grant is made is designated as a redevelopment area under the Area Redevelopment Act or any Act supplementary thereto.

(c) No grant shall be made under this section for any project unless the Administrator determines that the project

1 will provide a neighborhood facility which is (1) necessary
2 for carrying out a program of health, recreational, social, or
3 similar community service (including a community action
4 program approved under title II of the Economic Opportu-
5 nity Act of 1964) in the area, (2) consistent with compre-
6 hensive planning for the development of the community, and
7 (3) so located as to be available for use by a significant por-
8 tion (or number in the case of large urban places) of the 9 area's low- or moderate-income residents.

10 (d) For a period of twenty years after a grant has been 11 made under this section for a neighborhood facility, such 12 facility shall not, without the approval of the Administrator,
13 be converted to uses other than those proposed by the ap-
14 plicant in its application for a grant. The Administrator
15 shall not approve any conversion in the use of such a neigh-
16 borhood facility during such twenty-year period unless he 17 finds that such conversion is in accordance with the then
18 applicable program of health, recreational, social, or similar
19 community services in the area and consistent with com-
20 prehensive planning for the development of the community
21 in which the facility is located. In approving any such 22 conversion, the Administrator may impose such additional 23 conditions and requirements as he deems necessary.

24 (e) The Administrator shall give priority to applica-
25 tions for projects designed primarily to benefit members of

1 low-income families or otherwise substantially further the
2 objectives of a community action program approved under
3 title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

4 ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

5 SEC. 604. (a) In order to encourage and assist in the 6 timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in connection
7 with the future construction of public works or facilities, the 8 Administrator is authorized to make grants to local public
9 bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of 10 a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

11 (b) The amount of any grant made under the authority
12 of this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of 13 reasonable interest charges on the loan or other financial 14 obligation incurred to finance the acquisition of such land
15 for a period not exceeding the lesser of (1) five years
16 from the date such loan was made or such financial obliga-
17 tion was incurred, or (2) the period of time between the 18 date such loan was made or such financial obligation was 19 incurred and the date construction is begun on the public
20 work or facility for which the land acquired was planned
21 to be utilized.

22 (c) No grant shall be made under this section for any
23 project for the acquisition of land unless the Administrator
24 determines that the public work or facility for which such

1 land is to be utilized is planned to be constructed or initiated
2 within a reasonable period of time (not to exceed five years
3 after a contract to make such grant is entered into) and
4 that construction of such public work or facility will contrib-
5 ute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned
6 development of the area.

7 (d) As a condition to providing assistance under this
8 section, the Administrator may, under terms and conditions
9 prescribed by him, require an applicant to agree to repay
10 such assistance, if (1) the land purchased with such assist-
11 ance is not utilized within five years after the agreement
12 is entered into in connection with the construction of the 13 public work or facility for which such land was acquired or 14 (2) such land is diverted to other uses.

15 GENERAL PROVISIONS

16 SEC. 605. (a) In the performance of, and with respect
17 to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this
18 title, the Administrator shall (in addition to any authority
19 otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and
20 duties set forth in section 402, except subsections (a), (c)
21 (2), and (f) of the Housing Act of 1950.

22 (b) The Administrator is authorized, notwithstanding
23 the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, to 24 make advance or progress payments on account of any grant
25 made pursuant to this title. No part of any grant authorized

1 to be made by the provisions of this title shall be used for the 2 payment of ordinary governmental operating expenses.

3 DEFINITIONS

4 SEC. 606. As used in this title—

5 (a) The term “State” means the several States, the Dis-
6 trict of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and 7 the territories and possessions of the United States.

8 (b) The term “local public bodies and agencies” in-
9 cludes public corporate bodies or political subdivisions; public
10 agencies or instrumentalities of one or more States, munici-
11 palities, or political subdivisions of one or more States (in-
12 cluding public agencies and instrumentalities of one or more
13 municipalities or other political subdivisions of one or more
14 States); Indian tribes; and boards or commissions estab-
15 lished under the laws of any State to finance specific capital
16 improvement projects.

17 (c) The term “development cost” means the cost of 18 constructing the facility and of acquiring the land on which 19 it is located, including necessary site improvements to permit
20 its use as a site for the facility.

21 LABOR STANDARDS

22 SEC. 607. All laborers and mechanics employed by con-
23 tractors or subcontractors on projects assisted under sections.
24 602 and 603 shall be paid wages at rates not less
25 than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality

1 as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance
2 with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—
3 276a-5). No such project shall be approved without first 4 obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will
5 be maintained upon the construction work. The Secretary
6 of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards speci-
7 fied in this section, the authority and functions set forth
8 in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (15 F.R.
9 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 133z-15), and section 2
10 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 948;
11 40 U.S.C. 276c).

 18 and by $525,000,000 on July 1, 1968”.

19 (b) Section 305(f) of such Act is amended by inserting
 20 before the period at the end thereof the following: “:
 21 Provided further, That any portion of the total amount
 22 of authority set forth in the first proviso of this subsection,
 23 which (1) is not required under the second proviso of this
 24 subsection to be kept available for purchases and commit-

1 ments with respect to mortgages insured under section 809,
 2 and (2), on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban
 3 Development Act of 1965 and on each July 1 thereafter,
 4 would otherwise be available for making new purchases and
 5 commitments pursuant to this subsection, shall be transferred
 6 to and merged with the authority granted by subsection (a)
 7 and added to the amount of such authority which is available,
 8 as of the date of the transfer, for purchases and commitments
 9 under subsection (c); and the total amount of authority as 10 set forth in the first proviso of this subsection shall pro-
 11 gressively be reduced by the amount of each such transfer”.

12 PURCHASE OF MORTGAGES HELD BY FEDERAL

13 INSTRUMENTALITIES

14 SEC. 702. (a) Section 302 of the National Housing

2 gages" in the last sentence of subsection (c).

3 (b) Section 306(e) of such Act is amended to read
4 as follows:

5 “(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the 6 Association is authorized, under the aforesaid separate ac-
7 countability, to make commitments to purchase, and to pur-
8 chase, service, or sell any obligations offered to it by the 9 Housing and Home Finance Agency or its Administrator, or 10 by such Agency’s constituent units or agencies or the heads
11 thereof, or any mortgages covering residential property
12 offered to it by any Federal instrumentality, or the head
13 thereof. There shall be excluded from the total amounts 14 set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any obligations or 15 mortgages purchased by the Association pursuant to this
16 subsection.”

17 PURCHASE OF BELOW-MARKET INTEREST RATE MORT-18 GAGES COVERING PROPERTIES LOCATED IN URBAN

7 (1) by inserting “and development” after “acqui-
 8 sition” the first place it appears; and

9 (2) by inserting before the period the following:
 10 “, and the development, for open-space uses, of land
 11 acquired under this title”.

12 (b) Section 702(c) of such Act is amended by strik-
 13 ing out “development costs or”.

14 (c) Section 706 of such Act is amended by adding at 15 the end thereof the following:

16 “(4) The term ‘open-space uses’ means any use
 17 of open-space land for (A) park and recreational pur-
 18 poses, (B) conservation of land and other natural re-
 19 sources, or (C) historic or scenic purposes.”

20 INCREASED GRANT LEVEL FOR PRESERVATION AND DEVEL-
 21 OPMENT OF OPEN-SPACE LAND

22 SEC. 803. The second sentence of section 702(a) of the 23 Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: “The 24 amount of any such grant shall not exceed 50 per centum

1 of the total cost, as approved by the Administrator, of such
2 acquisition and development."

3 CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION

4 SEC. 804. Section 702(b) of the Housing Act of 1961
5 is amended by striking out "$75,000,000" and inserting in 6 lieu thereof the following: "$310,000,000: Provided, That
7 of such sum the Administrator may contract to make grants
8 under section 705 aggregating not to exceed $64,000,000,
9 and grants under section 706 aggregating not to exceed 10 $36,000,000".

11 OPEN-SPACE PLANNING AND PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

12 SEC. 805. Section 703(a) of the Housing Act of 1961
13 is amended to read as follows:

14 "SEC. 703. (a) The Administrator shall enter into con-
15 tracts to make grants under sections 702 and 705 of this title
16 only if he finds that such assistance is needed for carrying out
17 a unified or officially coordinated program, meeting criteria
18 established by him, for the provision and development of 19 open-space land as part of the comprehensively planned
20 development of the urban area."

21 GRANTS FOR PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT- 22 UP URBAN AREAS AND FOR URBAN BEAUTIFICATION 23 AND IMPROVEMENT

24 SEC. 806. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is
25 amended by redesignating sections 705 and 706 as sections

1 708 and 709, respectively, and by inserting after section 704
2 two new sections as follows:

3 “GRANTS FOR PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT-
4 UP URBAN AREAS

5 “SEC. 705. (a) The Administrator is further authorized
6 to enter into contracts to make grants to States and local 7 public bodies to help finance the acquisition of title to, or 8 other permanent interests in, developed land in built-up
9 portions of urban areas to be cleared and used as permanent
10 open-space land. The Administrator shall make such grants
11 only where the local governing body determines that ade-
12 quate open-space land cannot effectively be provided through
13 the use of existing undeveloped or predominantly undevel-
14 oped land. Grants under this section shall not exceed 50
15 per centum of the cost of acquiring such interests and of 16 necessary demolition and removal of improvements.

17 “(b) Financial assistance extended to any project under 18 this title may include grants for relocation payments, as 19 herein defined. Such grants may be in addition to other
20 financial assistance under this title, and no part of the 21 amount of such relocation payments shall be required to be
22 contributed as a local grant. The term ‘relocation payments’
23 means payments by the applicant which are (1) made to 24 an individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organi-
25 zation displaced, after March 4, 1965, by a project assisted

1 under this title; (2) not otherwise authorized under any
2 Federal law; and (3) made only on such terms and condi-
3 tions and subject to such limitations (to the extent appli-
4 cable, but not including the date of displacement) as are
5 provided for relocation payments, at the time such payments
6 are approved, by sections 114 (b) and (c) of the Housing
7 Act of 1949. Relocation payments authorized by this sub-
8 section shall be made subject to such rules and regulations
9 as may be prescribed by the Administrator.

10 "GRANTS FOR URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

11 "SEC. 706. The Administrator is authorized to enter 12 into contracts to make grants, as herein provided, to 13 States and local public bodies to assist in carrying out
14 local programs for the greater use and enjoyment of 15 open-space and other public land in urban areas. The 16 Administrator shall establish criteria for such programs
17 to assure that each program (1) represents significant 18 and effective efforts, involving all available public and 19 private resources, for the beautification of such land and 20 its improvement for open-space uses; and (2) is important
21 to the comprehensively planned development of the locality.
22 Grants made under this section shall not exceed 50 per 23 centum of the amount by which the cost of the activities
24 carried on by an applicant during a fiscal year under an 25 approved program exceeds its usual expenditures for com-

1 parable activities: Provided, That, notwithstanding any
2 other provision of this section, the Administrator may use
3 not to exceed $5,000,000 of the sum authorized for contracts
4 under this section for the purpose of entering into contracts to 5 make grants in amounts not to exceed two-thirds of the cost
6 of activities which he determines have special value in devel-
7 oping and demonstrating new and improved methods and 8 materials for use in carrying out the purposes of this section."

9 LABOR STANDARDS

10 SEC. 807. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is 11 further amended by inserting after section 706 (as added
12 by section 806 of this Act) the following new section:

13 "LABOR STANDARDS

14 "SEC. 707. (a) The Administrator shall take such action
15 as may be necessary to insure that all laborers and mechanics
16 employed by contractors or subcontractors in the performance
17 of construction work financed with the assistance of grants
18 under this title shall be paid wages at rates not less than those 19 prevailing on similar construction in the locality as deter-
20 mined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the 21 Davis-Bacon Act, as amended. The Administrator shall 22 not approve any such grant without first obtaining adequate
23 assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon 24 the construction work.

25 "(b) The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect

1 to the labor standards specified in subsection (a), the author-
 2 ity and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered
 3 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C.
 4 133z-15), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as 5 amended (48 Stat. 948; 40 U.S.C. 276c)."

6 USE OF FUNDS FOR STUDIES AND PUBLICATION

7 SEC. 808. The second sentence of section 708 of the 8 Housing Act of 1961 (as redesignated by section 806 of 9 this Act) is amended to read as follows: "The Administra-
 10 tor is authorized to use during any fiscal year not to exceed 11 $50,000 of the funds available for grants under this title to 12 undertake such studies and publish such information."

13 CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

14 SEC. 809. (a) The heading of section 702 of the Hous-
 15 ing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: "GRANTS
 16 FOR PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF OPEN-SPACE
 17 LAND".

18 (b) Section 702(a) of such Act is amended by striking
 19 out "acceptable to the Administrator as capable of carrying 20 out the provisions of this title".

21 (c) Section 702(e) of such Act is amended by striking
 22 out in the second sentence "served by the open-space land
 23 acquired" and inserting in lieu thereof "assisted".

24 (d) Section 704 of such Act is amended by striking

1 out in the first sentence “for which” and inserting in lieu
2 thereof “for the acquisition of which”.

3 TITLE IX—RURAL HOUSING

4 LOANS FOR PREVIOUSLY OCCUPIED BUILDINGS AND

5 MINIMUM SITE ACQUISITION

6 SEC. 901. (a) Section 501(a) of the Housing Act of
7 1949 is amended by—

8 (1) inserting after “their farms” in clause (1)
9 the following: “and to purchase previously occupied
10 buildings and land constituting a minimum adequate 11 site, in order”; and

12 (2) inserting after “rural areas” in clause (2) the 13 following: “for the construction, improvement, altera-
14 tion, or repair of dwellings, related facilities, and farm
15 buildings and to rural residents for the same purposes
16 and for the purchase of previously occupied buildings
17 and the purchase of land constituting a minimum ade-
18 quate site, in order”.

19 (b) Section 501(c) of such Act is amended by insert-
20 ing after “rural area”, the first place it appears in clause
21 (1), the following: “or is a rural resident”.

22 INTEREST RATE ON DIRECT RURAL HOUSING LOANS

23 SEC. 902. Section 502(a) of the Housing Act of 1949
24 is amended by striking out “with interest at a rate not to

1 exceed 4 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of 2 principal” and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “with
 3 interest, in the case of applicants described in clauses (1)
 4 and (2) of section 501(a), at a rate not to exceed 5 per 5 centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, and,
 6 in the case of applicants described in clause (3) of section
 7 501(a) and applicants under sections 503 and 504, at a
 8 rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on such unpaid
 9 balance. Loans made or insured under this title shall be 10 conditioned on the borrower paying such fees and other 11 charges as the Secretary may require”.

12 INSURED RURAL HOUSING LOANS

13 SEC. 903. (a) Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is
 14 amended by adding at the end thereof the following new
 15 sections:

16 “INSURED RURAL HOUSING LOANS

17 “SEC. 517. (a) The Secretary may insure loans meeting
 18 the requirements of section 502, and may make loans in 19 accordance with the requirements of such section to be sold
 20 and insured; except that such loans shall—

21 “(1) if the borrowers are persons of low or mod-
 22 erate income (as defined by the Secretary), (A) not
 23 exceed amounts necessary to provide adequate housing,
 24 modest in size, design, and cost (as determined by the 25 Secretary), (B) bear interest at a rate not to exceed

1 5 per centum per annum, and (C) not exceed in the 2 aggregate $300,000,000 of new loans made or insured
3 in any one fiscal year; and

4 “(2) if the borrowers are persons other than those 5 described in clause (1), bear interest and provide for 6 insurance or service charges at rates comparable to the 7 combined rate of interest and premium charges in effect
8 under section 203 of the National Housing Act, as deter-
9 mined by the Secretary.

10 “(b) The Secretary may insure loans in accordance with 11 the requirements of sections 514 (exclusive of subsections
12 (a)(3), (a)(5), and (b)) and 515 (exclusive of subsec-
13 tions (a) and (b)(4)), and may make loans meeting such 14 requirements to be sold and insured. Upon the expiration of 15 ninety days after the original capitalization of the Rural 16 Housing Insurance Fund, created by subsection (e) of this
17 section, no new loans shall be made or insured under section
18 514 or 515(b), except in conformity with this section.

19 “(c) The Secretary may use the Rural Housing In-
20 surance Fund for the purpose of making loans to be sold
21 and insured under this section, but the aggregate of such 22 loans which are held by the Secretary at any one time shall 23 not exceed $100,000,000.

24 “(d) The Secretary may, in conformity with subsec-

1 tions (a) and (b), insure the payment of principal and in-
2 terest as it becomes due on loans made by lenders other
3 than the United States, and on loans made from the Rural
4 Housing Insurance Fund which are sold by the Secretary.
5 Any contract of insurance executed by the Secretary here-
6 under shall be an obligation supported by the full faith and 7 credit of the United States, and shall be incontestable except 8 for fraud or misrepresentation of which the holder has actual
9 knowledge. In connection with loans insured under this sec-
10 tion, the Secretary may take liens running to the United 11 States notwithstanding the fact that the notes evidencing such 12 loans may be held by lenders other than the United States.
13 Notes evidencing such loans shall be freely assignable, but 14 the Secretary shall not be bound by any such assignment
15 until notice thereof is given to and acknowledged by him.
16 “(e) There is hereby created the Rural Housing In-
17 surance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the ‘Fund’) which 18 shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carry-
19 ing out the provisions of this section. There are authorized
20 to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be
21 necessary for the purposes of the Fund.
22 “(f) Money in the Fund not needed for current opera-
23 tions shall be invested in direct obligations of the United
24 States or obligations guaranteed by the United States.
25 “(g) All funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and

1 property acquired by the Secretary under this section, and
2 all collections and proceeds therefrom, shall constitute assets
3 of the Fund; and all liabilities and obligations of such assets
4 shall be liabilities and obligations of the Fund. Loans may
5 be held in the Fund and collected in accordance with their
6 terms or may be sold by the Secretary with or without agree-
7 ments for insurance thereof. The Secretary is authorized to 8 make agreements with respect to servicing loans held or in-
9 sured by him under this section and purchasing such insured
10 loans on such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

11 “(h) The Secretary is authorized to issue notes to the
12 Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds necessary for
13 discharging obligations under this section and for author-
14 ized expenditures out of the Fund, but, except as may be 15 authorized in appropriation Acts, not for the original or 16 any additional capital of the Fund. Such notes shall be 17 in such form and denominations and have such maturities
18 and be subject to such terms and conditions as may be pre-
19 scribed by the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary
20 of the Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at the average
21 rate, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, pay-
22 able by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations
23 outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such 24 note is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemp-
25 tion for fifteen years from their date of issue. The Secretary

1 of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any
2 notes of the Secretary issued hereunder, and for that purpose
3 the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public
4 debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities
5 issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and
6 the purposes for which such securities may be issued under
7 such Act are extended to include purchases of notes issued by 8 the Secretary. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the 9 Secretary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated as 10 public debt transactions of the United States. The notes
11 issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury
12 shall constitute obligations of the Fund.

13 “(i) The Secretary may retain out of interest payments
14 by the borrower an annual charge in an amount specified
15 in the insurance or sale agreement applicable to the loan.
16 Of the charges retained by the Secretary, if any, not to 17 exceed 1 per centum per annum of the unpaid balance of the 18 loan shall be deposited in the Fund. Any retained charges
19 not deposited in the Fund shall be available for administrative 20 expenses in carrying out the provisions of this title, to be 21 transferred annually and become merged with any appro-
22 priation for administrative expenses of the Farmers Home
23 Administration, when and in such amounts as may be 24 authorized in appropriation Acts.

25 “(j) The Secretary may also utilize the Fund—

1 “(1) to pay amounts to which the holder of the
 2 note is entitled in accordance with an insurance or sale
 3 agreement under this section accruing between the date
 4 of any prepayment by the borrower to the Secretary and
 5 the date of transmittal of any such prepayments to the 6 holder of the note; and in the discretion of the Secretary,
 7 prepayments other than final payments need not be 8 remitted to the holder until due;

9 “(2) to pay the holder of any note insured under 10 this section any defaulted installment or, upon assign-
 11 ment of the note to the Secretary at the Secretary's 12 request, or pursuant to a purchase agreement, the entire 13 balance outstanding on the note; and

14 “(3) to pay taxes, insurance, prior liens, expenses
 15 necessary to make fiscal adjustments in connection with 16 the application and transmittal of collections, and other
 17 expenses and advances to protect the security for loans
 18 which are insured under this section or held in the Fund,
 19 and to acquire such security property at foreclosure sale
 20 or otherwise.

21 “RURAL HOUSING DIRECT LOAN ACCOUNT

22 “SEC. 518. (a) There is hereby created the Rural Hous-
 23 ing Direct Loan Account (hereinafter referred to as the 24 ‘Account’) which shall be used by the Secretary for carry-

1 ing out the provisions of this section. There are authorized
2 to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be
3 necessary for the purposes of the Account.

4 “(b) There are transferred to the Account (1) all
5 funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and property,
6 and all collections and proceeds therefrom, held by the
7 Secretary under the direct loan provisions of this title, in-
8 cluding those securing notes issued by the Secretary to the
9 Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 and any un-
10 expended balance of amounts borrowed upon such notes,
11 and (2) all unexpended balances of appropriations for direct
12 loans under this title, including the fund authorized by sec-
13 tion 515(a). All amounts hereafter borrowed by the
14 Secretary from the Secretary of the Treasury under section
15 511 shall be deposited in the Account. All collections and
16 proceeds from assets acquired by the Account shall be
17 deposited in the Account.

18 “(c) When and in such amounts as may be authorized
19 in appropriation Acts, the Secretary may issue notes to the
20 Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds to be deposited in 21 the Account. The form, denominations, maturities, and other
22 terms and conditions of such notes shall be prescribed by
23 the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary of the 24 Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at the average rate
25 determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the

1 Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding
 2 at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note is is-
 3 sued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for 4 fifteen years from their date of issue. The Secretary of the 5 Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes of 6 the Secretary issued hereunder, and for that purpose the 7 Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public
 8 debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities
 9 issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and
 10 the purposes for which such securities may be issued under 11 such Act are extended to include the purchase of notes issued
 12 by the Secretary. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by 13 the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated
 14 as public debt transactions of the United States.

15 “(d) The Account shall remain available to the Secre-
 16 tary for the payment of interest and principal on notes issued
 17 by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury under sec-
 18 tion 511 or this section, and for direct loans and related ad-
 19 vances under this title in such amounts as are now author-
 20 ized by law and in such further amounts as shall be authorized
 21 in appropriation Acts. Amounts so authorized for such loans
 22 and advances shall remain available until expended.”

23 (b) Section 511 of such Act is amended by—

24 (1) striking out the first sentence and inserting in

1 lieu thereof "The Secretary may issue notes and other
 2 obligations for purchase by the Secretary of the Treas-
 3 ury for the purpose of making direct loans under this
 4 title.";

5 (2) striking out the second sentence and inserting
 6 in lieu thereof "The total principal amount of such
 7 notes and obligations issued pursuant to this section dur-
 8 ing the period beginning July 1, 1956, and ending
 9 October 1, 1969, shall not exceed $850,000,000."; and

10 (3) striking out the fifth sentence and inserting in 11 lieu thereof the following "Each such note or other 12 obligation shall bear interest at the average rate, as 13 determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable 14 by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations
 15 outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which 16 such note or other obligation is issued, which are neither 17 due nor callable for redemption for 15 years from their 18 date of issue."

19 PURCHASE OF RURAL HOUSING LOANS BY THE FEDERAL
 20 NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

21 SEC. 904. Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act
 22 is amended by inserting in the last sentence before the

1 period the following: "or title V of the Housing Act of 2 1949".

3 EXTENSION OF RURAL HOUSING AUTHORIZATIONS

4 SEC. 905. (a) Section 512 of the Housing Act of 1949
5 is amended by striking out "September 30, 1965" and in-
6 serting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

7 (b) Section 513 of such Act is amended by—

8 (1) striking out "September 30, 1965" in clause
9 (b) and inserting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969";

10 (2) striking out "$10,000,000" and "September
11 30, 1965" in clause (c) and inserting in lieu thereof
12 "$50,000,000" and "October 1, 1969", respectively;
13 and

14 (3) striking out "September 30, 1965" in clause
15 (d) and inserting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

16 (c) Section 515(b)(5) of such Act is amended by 17 striking out "September 30, 1965" and inserting in lieu
18 thereof "October 1, 1969".

19 (d) Section 506(a) of such Act is amended by strik-
20 ing out "sections 501 to 504, inclusive, and sections 514-
21 516", each place it occurs, and inserting in lieu thereof "this 22 title".

1 SUMS EXCESS TO THE NEEDS OF THE RURAL HOUSING
 2 INSURANCE FUND OR THE RURAL HOUSING DIRECT
 3 LOAN ACCOUNT

4 SEC. 906. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is
 5 amended by adding after section 518 (added by section 903
 6 of this Act) a new section as follows:

7 "SUMS EXCESS TO THE NEEDS OF THE RURAL HOUSING
 8 INSURANCE FUND OR THE RURAL HOUSING DIRECT
 9 LOAN ACCOUNT

10 "SEC. 519. Any sums in the Rural Housing Insurance
 11 Fund or the Rural Housing Direct Loan Account which the 12 Secretary determines are in excess of amounts needed to 13 meet the obligations and carry out the purposes of such Fund
 14 or Account shall be returned to miscellaneous receipts of the 15 Treasury."

16 TITLE X—MISCELLANEOUS

17 URBAN PLANNING GRANTS

18 SEC. 1001. (a) The fifth sentence of section 701(b)
 19 of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended by striking out
 20 "$105,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$230,000,- 21 000".

22 (b) Section 701(b) of such Act is amended by striking
 23 out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof the 24 following: " : Provided, That not to exceed 5 per centum
 25 of any funds so appropriated may be used by the Adminis-

1 trator for studies, research, and demonstration projects for
2 the development and improvement of techniques and meth-
3 ods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of 4 the purposes of this section."

5 (c)(1) Section 701 of such Act is amended by adding
6 at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

7 "(g) In addition to the planning grants authorized by 8 subsection (a), the Administrator is further authorized to 9 make grants to organizations composed of elected officials
10 whom he finds to be representative of the political jurisdic-
11 tions within a metropolitan area or urban region for the 12 purpose of assisting such organizations to undertake studies,
13 collect data, develop regional plans and programs, and en-
14 gage in such other activities as the Administrator finds nec-
15 essary or desirable for the solution of the metropolitan or 16 regional problems in such areas or regions. To the maxi-
17 mum extent feasible, all grants under this subsection shall 18 be for activities relating to all the developmental aspects of 19 the total metropolitan area or urban region, including, but 20 not limited to, land use, transportation, housing, economic 21 development, natural resources development, community fa-
22 cilities, and the general improvement of living environments.
23 A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of 24 the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made."

1 (2) Section 701(b) of such Act is amended by strik-
2 ing out “planning” in the fourth sentence.

3 AUTHORIZATION FOR FEDERAL-STATE TRAINING
4 PROGRAMS

9 “TITLE IV—LEASE GUARANTEES”

10 "AUTHORITY OF THE ADMINISTRATION

11 “SEC. 401. (a) The Administration may, whenever it
12 determines such action to be necessary or desirable, and upon
13 such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, guarantee
14 the payment of rentals under leases of commercial and in-
15 dustrial property entered into by small business concerns
16 that are (1) eligible for loans under section 7(b)(3) of 17 the Small Business Act, or (2) eligible for loans under title
18 IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, to enable such 19 concerns to obtain such leases. Any such guarantee may be 20 made or effected either directly or in cooperation with any 21 qualified surety company or other qualified company through 22 a participation agreement with such company. The fore-
23 going powers shall be subject, however, to the following
24 restrictions and limitations:

25 “(1) No guarantee shall be issued by the Adminis-
26 tration (A) if a guarantee meeting the requirements

1 of the applicant is otherwise available on reasonable
2 terms, and (B) unless the Administration determines
3 that there exists a reasonable expectation that the small 4 business concern in behalf of which the guarantee is 5 issued will perform the covenants and conditions of the 6 lease.

7 “(2) The Administration shall, to the greatest ex-
8 tent practicable, exercise the powers conferred by this 9 section in cooperation with qualified surety or other
10 companies on a participation basis.

11 “(b) The Administration shall fix a uniform annual fee
12 for its share of any guarantee under this section which shall 13 be payable in advance at such time as may be prescribed by 14 the Administrator. The amount of any such fee shall be 15 determined in accordance with sound actuarial practices and 16 procedures, to the extent practicable, but in no case shall 17 such amount exceed, on the Administration's share of any 18 guarantee made under this title, $2\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per annum of 19 the minimum annual guaranteed rental payable under any 20 guaranteed lease: Provided, That the Administration shall 21 fix the lowest fee that experience under the program estab-
22 lished hereby has shown to be justified. The Administration
23 may also fix such uniform fees for the processing of applica-
24 tions for guarantees under this section as the Administrator
25 determines are reasonable and necessary to pay the adminis-
26 trative expenses that are incurred in connection therewith.

1 “(c) In connection with the guarantee of rentals under
2 any lease pursuant to authority conferred by this section, the 3 Administrator may require, in order to minimize the finan-
4 cial risk assumed under such guarantee—

5 “(1) that the lessee pay an amount, not to exceed 6 one-fourth of the minimum guaranteed annual rental
7 required under the lease, which shall be held in escrow
8 and shall be available (A) to meet rental charges accru-
9 ing in any month for which the lessee is in default, or 10 (B) if no default occurs during the term of the lease, for 11 application (with accrued interest) toward final pay-
12 ments of rental charges under the lease;

13 “(2) that upon occurrence of a default under the 14 lease, the lessor shall, as a condition precedent to enforc-
15 ing any claim under the lease guarantee, utilize the 16 entire period, for which there are funds available in 17 escrow for payment of rentals, in reasonably diligent 18 efforts to eliminate or minimize losses, by releasing the 19 commercial or industrial property covered by the lease
20 to another qualified tenant, and no claim shall be made
21 or paid under the guarantee until such effort has been 22 made and such escrow funds have been exhausted;

23 “(3) that any guarantor of the lease will become a 24 successor of the lessor for the purpose of collecting from 25 a lessee in default rentals which are in arrears and with

1 respect to which the lessor has received payment under
2 a guarantee made pursuant to this section; and

3 “(4) such other provisions, not inconsistent with 4 the purposes of this title, as the Administrator may in 5 his discretion require.

6 “POWERS

7 “SEC. 402. Without limiting the authority conferred
8 upon the Administrator and the Administration by section
9 201 of this Act, the Administrator and the Administration
10 shall have, in the performance of and with respect to the 11 functions, powers, and duties conferred by this title, all the 12 authority and be subject to the same conditions prescribed
13 in section 5(b) of the Small Business Act with respect to 14 loans, including the authority to execute subleases, assign-
15 ments of lease and new leases with any person, firm, orga-
16 nization, or other entity, in order to aid in the liquidation of 17 obligations of the Administration hereunder.

18 “FUND

19 “SEC. 403. There is hereby established a revolving fund
20 for use by the Administration in carrying out the provisions
21 of this title. Initial capital for such fund shall consist of not 22 to exceed $5,000,000 transferred from the fund established
23 under section 4(c) of the Small Business Act: Provided,
24 That the last sentence of such section 4(c) shall not apply

1 to any amounts so transferred. Into the fund established by
2 this section there shall be deposited all receipts from the guar-
3 antee program authorized by this title. Moneys in such 4 fund not needed for the payment of current operating ex-
5 penses or for the payment of claims arising under such pro-
6 gram may be invested in bonds or other obligations of, or 7 bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and in-
8 terest by, the United States; except that moneys provided as 9 initial capital for such fund shall be returned to the fund
10 established by section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, in 11 such amounts and at such times as the Administration deter-
12 mines to be appropriate, whenever the level of the fund
13 herein established is sufficiently high to permit the return of 14 such moneys without danger to the solvency of the program
15 under this title."

16 (b) Section 201 of such Act is amended by striking
17 out the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the fol-
18 lowing: "The powers conferred by this Act upon the Ad-
19 ministration and upon the Administrator, with the exception
20 of those conferred by titles IV and V hereof, shall be exer-
21 cised through the Small Business Investment Division and 22 through the Deputy Administrator appointed hereunder.
23 The powers conferred by this Act upon the Administration
24 and upon the Administrator by titles IV and V hereof shall

1 be exercised through such division, section, or other personnel
 2 as the Administrator in his discretion shall determine."

3 (c) The table of contents of such Act is amended by 4 inserting after the analysis of title III the following:

15 "(h) (1) Each insured institution shall make such de-
16 posits in the Corporation as may from time to time be re-
17 quired by call of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.
18 Any such call shall be calculated by applying a specified
19 percentage, which shall be the same for all insured institu-
20 tions, to the total amount of all withdrawable or repurchas-
21 able shares, investment certificates, and deposits in each 22 insured institution. No such call shall be made unless such 23 Board determines that the total amount of such call, plus 24 the outstanding deposits previously made pursuant to such

1 calls, does not exceed 1 per centum of the total amount of
2 all withdrawable or repurchasable shares, investment cer-
3 tificates, and deposits in all insured institutions. For the 4 purposes of this subsection, the total amounts hereinabove
5 referred to shall be determined or estimated by such Board
6 or in such manner as it may prescribe.

7 “(2) The Corporation, in accordance with such regula-
8 tions as it may prescribe, shall credit as of the close of each
9 calendar year, to each deposit outstanding at such close, a 10 return on the outstanding balance, as determined by the 11 Corporation, of such deposit during such calendar year, at 12 a rate equal to the average annual rate of return, as deter-
13 mined by the Corporation, to the Corporation during the 14 year ending at the close of November 30 of such calendar
15 year, on the investments held by the Corporation in obliga-
16 tions of, or guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the 17 United States.

18 “(3) The Corporation in its discretion may at any time
19 repay all such deposits, or repay pro rata a portion of each
20 of such deposits, in such manner and under such procedure
21 as the Corporation may prescribe by regulation or other-
22 wise. Any procedure for such pro rata repayment may pro-
23 vide for total repayment of any deposit, if total repayment

1 of any and all deposits of equal or smaller amount is like-
2 wise provided for.

3 “(4) The provisions of subsection (f) of this section
4 and of the last sentence of subsection (e) of this section
5 shall be applicable to deposits under this subsection, and 6 for the purposes of this subsection the references in such sub-
7 section (f) and such last sentence to the prepayments and 8 the pro rata shares therein mentioned shall be deemed instead
9 to be references respectively to the deposits under this sub-
10 section and the pro rata shares of the holders thereof, and 11 the references in such subsection (f) to that subsection (ex-12 cept the last such reference) and to subsection (d) of this 13 section shall be deemed instead to be references to this sub-
14 section.”

HIGHLIGHTS: Sen. Harris criticized fees established under Land and Water Conservation Fund. Sen. Kuchel urged increased production of "quality" cotton to compete with synthetics. Rep. Ashbrook criticized alleged "partisan policies" to promote passage of farm bill. Rep. Purcell urged passage of farm bill.

SENATE

1. FORESTRY. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee reported with amendments S. 1764, to authorize the acquisition of certain lands within the boundaries of the Unita National Forest, Utah (S. Rept. 467). p. 16743
2. VETERANS' BENEFITS. By a vote of 69 to 17, passed as reported S. 9, to give cold war veterans educational and home-loan benefits similar to those of World War II and Korean conflict veterans, including institutional on-farm training and home and farm loan assistance by the Veterans Administration. pp. 16672-4, 16676-7, 16679-82, 16684-724

3. LANDS. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) S. 625, with amendment, to authorize the sale of certain or disconnected tracts of land, and S. 1190, to provide that certain limitations shall not apply to certain land patented to Alaska for the use of the University of Alaska. p. D665
 4. RECLAMATION. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) S. 34, with amendment, to make certain provisions in connection with construction of the Garrison diversion unit, Missouri River Basin project. p. D665
 5. RESEARCH. Passed as reported S. 949, to authorize a 5-year program of matching grants to the States by the Commerce Department in a cooperative effort to promote the wider diffusion and more effective application of the findings of science and technology throughout commerce and industry. pp. 16728-32
 6. HEALTH. Conferees were appointed on S. 510, to extend and amend certain expiring provisions of the Public Health Service Act relating to community health services (p. 16672). House conferees have already been appointed.
 7. USER CHARGES; CONSERVATION. Sen. Harris criticized user charges established under the Land and Water Conservation Fund, urged enactment of legislation to give Congress veto power over any fees established by Federal agencies, and inserted an Okla. Legislature resolution in support of his position. p. 16645
 8. COTTON. Sen. Kuchel urged increased production of "quality" cotton to compete more effectively with synthetics, expressed opposition to payment of price supports "on cotton that is not of sufficiently high quality to be used in our high-speed and efficient modern textile mills," and inserted a letter from the president of the Western Cotton Growers Assoc. in support of his position. p. 16657
 9. HOUSING LOANS. Conferees were appointed by both Houses on H. R. 7984, the housing and urban development bill. pp. 16555, 16700
Sen. Byrd, W. Va., inserted an article by Vice President Humphrey reviewing and commending the housing and urban development bill. pp. 16660-1
 10. PUBLIC WORKS; FLOOD CONTROL. The Public Works Committee reported an original bill, S. 2300, to authorize the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, and other purposes (S. Rept. 464). p. 16646
 11. DISASTER RELIEF. Passed over, at the request of Sen. Inouye, S. 1861, to provide additional assistance for areas suffering a major disaster. p. 16644
- HOUSE
12. LEGISLATIVE BRANCH APPROPRIATION BILL, 1966. Conferees were appointed on this bill, H. R. 8775, which includes items for the Government Printing Office and the Library of Congress (pp. 16553-5). Senate conferees have already been appointed.
 13. SALINE-WATER; RESEARCH. Conferees were appointed on S. 24, to expand, extend, and accelerate the saline water conversion program conducted by Interior (p. 16555). Senate conferees have already been appointed.

There are one or two others. They are all set out in the bill and explained in the committee report.

Mr. REIFEL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for an observation?

Mr. GEORGE W. ANDREWS. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. REIFEL. Under the rule of comity, the other body may decide what its expenditures will be and propose them in this bill, and we are also permitted to do the same thing here in the House. Is that correct?

Mr. GEORGE W. ANDREWS. That has been the practice in these annual legislative appropriation bills, I might say to the gentleman.

Mr. REIFEL. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, there is one significant difference in the procedure of handling the so-called housekeeping bill on the part of the other body and the House. The House lays before the other body its requests and asks them to approve, but we seldom on this side have an opportunity to know what the other body is doing. Yet we are called upon to put our stamp of approval upon what they do. Insofar as the House is concerned and what we do, they have this laid out before them.

While I appreciate the fact that the gentleman from Alabama has given us some insight into what the other body is doing, I still hope that somehow or other, at some distant day in the future, we may have the opportunity really to go into what the other body presents to us and which they ask us to approve.

Insofar as the rule of comity is concerned, I have looked long and hard in the rule book to find the rule of comity, and I do not believe it exists, certainly not under that title.

Mr. GEORGE W. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendments referred to were concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. GEORGE W. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House disagree to the remainder of the amendments of the Senate to the bill H.R. 8775 and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama? The Chair hears none and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. GEORGE W. ANDREWS, STEED, KIRWAN, SLACK, FLYNT, MAHON, LANGEN, REIFEL, and JONAS.

PERMISSION TO FILE CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 8775

Mr. GEORGE W. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the managers on the part of the House on the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill (H.R. 8775) making appropriations for the legislative branch for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1966, and for other purposes, may have until midnight tomorrow night to file a conference report.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

SALINE WATER CONSERVATION PROGRAM

Mr. ASPINALL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill S. 24, to expand, extend, and accelerate the saline water conversion program conducted by the Secretary of the Interior, and for other purposes, with a House amendment thereto, insist on the House amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Colorado? The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. ASPINALL, O'BRIEN, ROGERS of Texas, SAYLOR, and REINECKE.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H.R. 7984, to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and request a conference with the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

The Chair hears none and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. PATMAN, MULTER, BARRETT, Mrs. SULLIVAN, and Messrs. REUSS, ASHLEY, WIDNALL, FINO, and Mrs. DWYER.

SUBCOMMITTEE NO. 4 OF SMALL BUSINESS COMMITTEE

Mr. EVINS of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that Subcommittee No. 4 of the Small Business Committee have permission to sit during general debate this afternoon.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There is no objection.

SUBCOMMITTEE NO. 1 OF COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that Subcommittee No. 1 of the Committee on the Judiciary have permission to sit during general debate today.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, is that the Committee on Immigration?

Mr. ALBERT. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I object.

CONSENT CALENDAR

The SPEAKER. This is Consent Calendar Day. The Clerk will call the first bill on the Consent Calendar.

AMENDING TITLES 10 AND 14, UNITED STATES CODE, AND THE MILITARY PERSONNEL AND CIVILIAN EMPLOYEES' CLAIMS ACT OF 1964, WITH RESPECT TO THE SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS AGAINST THE UNITED STATES BY MEMBERS OF THE UNIFORMED SERVICES AND CIVILIAN OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES OF THE UNITED STATES FOR DAMAGE TO, OR LOSS OF, PERSONAL PROPERTY INCIDENT TO THEIR SERVICE, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

The Clerk called the bill (H.R. 5024) to amend titles 10 and 14, United States Code, and the Military Personnel and Civilian Employees' Claims Act of 1964, with respect to the settlement of claims against the United States by members of the uniformed services and civilian officers and employees of the United States for damage to, or loss of, personal property incident to their service, and for other purposes.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be passed over without prejudice.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

PROVIDING THAT THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR SHALL CONVEY CERTAIN REAL PROPERTY TO THE COMMONWEALTH OF PUERTO RICO

The Clerk called the bill (H.R. 3433) to provide that the Secretary of the Interior shall convey certain real property to the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, in view of the colloquy last week, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be passed over without prejudice.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

AUTHORIZING LANGUAGE TRAINING FOR MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES

The Clerk called the bill (H.R. 5519) to amend title 10, United States Code, to authorize language training to be given to a dependent of a member of the Army, Navy, Air Force, or Marine Corps under certain circumstances.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 5519

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That chapter 101 of title 10, United States Code, is amended as follows:

(1) By adding the following new section:

"§ 2002. Dependents of members of Army, Navy, Air Force, or Marine Corps: language training

"(a) Notwithstanding section 1041 of title 22 or any other provision of law, and under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, language training may be provided in—

"(1) a facility of the Department of Defense;

"(2) a facility of the Foreign Service Institute established under section 1041 of title 22; or

"(3) a civilian educational institution; to a dependent of a member of the Army, Navy, Air Force, or Marine Corps in anticipation of the member's assignment to permanent duty outside the United States or while the dependent is accompanying the member outside the United States as a result of the member's assignment to that duty.

"(b) For the purposes of this section, the word 'dependent' has the same meaning that it has under section 401 of title 37".

(2) By inserting the following item in the analysis:

"2002. Dependents of members of Army, Navy, Air Force, or Marine Corps: language training."

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. PHILBIN. Mr. Speaker, this bill authorizes language training to the dependents of members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps in anticipation of their sponsors' assignment to permanent duty outside the United States, or while they are accompanying members outside the United States as a result of the members' assignment to such duty.

NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Dependents of members of our military forces perform an important role in projecting a true image of the United States abroad. Their ability to speak the language of the country increases the effectiveness of their military sponsors and generates inestimable good will for the United States.

Congress recognized the contributions wives can make when it amended section 701 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 (22 U.S.C. 1041) to permit the Secretary of State to provide appropriate orientation and language training to members of the families of officers and employees of the Government in anticipation of their sponsors' assignment abroad or while abroad.

Although section 701 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 specifically established the Foreign Service Institute and as amended authorizes language training for dependents of military personnel, it limits such training to that which is accomplished at the Foreign Service Institute of the Department of State. The facilities of the Foreign Service Institute, in the United States, are located only in Washington, D.C. On the other hand, facilities of the Department of Defense are located in various places in the United States including the Defense Language Institute West Coast Branch at Monterey, Calif., and at other Department of Defense education centers. These facilities provide language training to members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps in anticipation of their assignment to duty outside the United States. So far as the Department of Defense is concerned, the requirement that dependents may be provided training only at the Foreign Service Institute would cause greater transportation costs than those resulting from having a number of locations, including the Foreign Service Institute, to which members and their dependents may go for training.

In those instances in which it may not be possible to provide language training to dependents in the United States, but in which such training is desirable, the proposed legislation would authorize the training to be given outside of the United States.

COST

In providing foreign language training under the proposed legislation, priority will be accorded to the wives of attaches, military assistance advisory group and mission personnel, and the personnel of international headquarters. It is estimated that the average annual input into this program will be 750 trainees. The first year cost of operation will be approximately $200,000, and it is considered that the annual recurring cost will not exceed this amount.

DEPARTMENTAL POSITION

The Department of Defense recommends enactment of this legislation.

COMMITTEE POSITION

The House Armed Services Committee unanimously approved this legislation.

I am pleased that the House has enacted this measure.

SALE OF UNIFORM CLOTHING TO THE NAVAL SEA CADET CORPS AND STATE AND FEDERAL MARITIME ACADEMIES

The Clerk called the bill (S. 1856) to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to sell uniform clothing to the Naval Sea Cadet Corps.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

S. 1856

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That chapter 647 of title 10, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by inserting the following new section after section 7541:

"§ 7541a. Uniform clothing: sale to Naval Sea Cadet Corps

"Subject to regulations under section 486 of title 40, the Secretary of the Navy, under regulations prescribed by him, may sell any item of enlisted naval uniform clothing that may be spared, at a price representing its fair value, to the Naval Sea Cadet Corps for the sea cadets. The cost of transportation and delivery of items sold under this section shall be charged to the Naval Sea Cadet Corps."; and

(2) by inserting the following new item in the analysis:

"7541a. Uniform clothing: sale to Naval Sea Cadet Corps."

With the following committee amendments:

Page 2, line 1, insert after the word "cadets" the following words: "and to any Federal or State maritime academy having a department of naval science for the maritime cadets and midshipmen".

Page 2, line 3, insert after the word "Corps" the following words: "and to such Federal and State maritime academies".

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CITY OF CLINTON BRIDGE COMMISSION

The Clerk called the bill (H.R. 3788) to revive and reenact as amended the act entitled "An act creating the City of Clinton Bridge Commission and authorizing said commission and its successors to acquire by purchase or condemnation and to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge or bridges across the Mississippi River at or near Clinton, Iowa, and at or near Fulton, Ill.," approved December 21, 1944.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I should like to inquire if this is the customary commission agreed to on any navigable stream between the two States involved?

Mr. BLATNIK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALL. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. BLATNIK. The gentleman from Missouri asks if this is customary?

Mr. HALL. Is this the regular and established precedent for such commissions, which must be established?

Mr. BLATNIK. In this instance it is. This bill is identical with the bill passed by this body last year. This is necessary. The original authorization was back in 1944, and a subsequent bill was passed in 1946, the General Bridge Act of 1946.

Mr. HALL. This will merely continue the same Commission?

Mr. BLATNIK. That is correct.

Mr. HALL. It is without any authorization or appropriation or expense to the Government, but merely authorizes this and establishes the Commission therefor?

Mr. BLATNIK. That is correct. It extends the life of the Commission.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALL. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. This likely will be a toll bridge, is that not correct?

Mr. BLATNIK. That is correct.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of culty of administration would be insuperable. Practically all who participated in the colloquy agreed.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Mr. President, I have yielded myself only 3 minutes. I shall yield in a moment.

The amendment which has been offered is indeed an anomaly, for, on the one hand, it admits to the need for readjustment benefits, but, on the other it sets up a standard that indeed has absolutely no causal connection, rational relation, or bearing at all on the reason why these readjustment benefits should be provided to our cold war veterans.

If a need for readjustment benefits exists for a veteran who has to go into hazardous areas, then it also exists for any veteran.

Were I to vote for this amendment that was offered today, I would be saying to those men who are victims of frostbite in the polar regions, to those soldiers who so valiantly patrol the 38th parallel in Korea, and the valiant men in Berlin—yes, a vote for this amendment tells all these veterans that they just did not do enough for their country because they were not shot at.

I cannot believe that any of us here today are going to tell a veteran who has given of his time to defend our security that he did not do enough because he was not facing the right peril, or perhaps the right rifle was not pointed at him. It has always been my feeling—and, indeed, I think the Department of Defense views it this way—that our entire defense system was a team effort. All of our soldiers had a place in our defense, and we did not set up standards whereby a soldier was not as good as another. Especially when it is based on such unsound reasons that one veteran was not shot at and, therefore, he does not need to fulfill his intellectual capacities. I fail to see the reasoning for such a view. We have not been presented with a sound reason why this bill should be so limited.

Nor did we see such a fallacious proposal adopted in the past under other GI bills. Not once did we tell the veterans of World War II and Korea that they could not have the GI bill benefits because they just did not do enough in our war effort.

In further corroboration of what was stated, there has never been a distinction between veterans who have served overseas and those who have served at home. During the Korean war, a great majority of our men in the military services never went overseas. Thirty-four percent of the Army never went overseas in the Korean conflict. Seventy-nine percent of the Navy never went into the combat zone in Korea. Sixty-one percent of the Marine Corps never went there. Sixty-one percent of the Air Force never went there. A majority of all our armed services during the Korean conflict never went to Korea from any branch of the service. Yet we realize that our defense effort was a team effort. We did not cut it in two and say to the half that did not participate in Korea, "You were not a part of this effort." It was a team effort. We did not discriminate on such an artificial basis in relation to the veterans of the Korean war as we would under the proposal of the senior Senator from Massachusetts.

In addition, the actual hostilities in Korea ceased on July 7, 1953, and yet any veteran who entered the service up to and through the 31st of January 1955 was eligible for readjustment benefits—almost a year and a half later. It was not a case of limiting readjustment benefits either to hostile areas, or even to periods of hostility. For about a year and a half after the so-called Korean conflict was absolutely over people who entered the service still drew benefits. It is a misnomer to say that there has been no cold war period in our history when readjustment benefits were granted.

The need for readjustment benefits has no relation to the type of military duty that a man performs. Rising costs of education do not bear a lighter burden on a veteran who has walked beside the Berlin wall than on one who is in Saigon. The bill is not a combat soldiers' pay bill; it is a veterans' readjustment bill. It provides benefits to the veteran after he leaves the armed services.

The purpose of the bill, as is the purpose of all other GI bills, is to allow servicemen to readjust to civilian life, not to reward them for their military duty. It is more than short sighted to say that only veterans who served in areas of hostility need education; it is a complete avoidance of the purposes of the bill and of our national interest.

The correct way to reward combat is through advantages enjoyed while in the military service. This is being done to a limited extent through extra combat pay and by exempting those men from the income tax. Also, a bill is now pending to give soldiers serving in combat zones special indemnity insurance and to provide them with educational and readjustment benefits, too. But such benefits should not be refused to all other veterans.

What possible logic can be used to say that only veterans of hostile areas need readjustment benefits? If it is the mental strain, why not give benefits to those in military service who have stood guard all night? The argument is no more ludicrous than that offered by this amendment today.

Unless the purpose of the amendment is to cripple readjustment benefits entirely, I suggest that its proponents re-examine the purpose of previous GI bills.

Section 1610(c) of title 38 of the United States Code states:

(c) The Congress of the United States hereby declares that the veterans' education and training program created by this chapter is for the purpose of providing vocational readjustment and restoring lost educational opportunities to those service men and women whose educational or vocational ambitions have been interrupted or impeded by reason of active duty.

This was the purpose of the World War II GI bill; it was the purpose of the Korean war GI bill. It is the purpose of the bill now being considered. "Interruption or impeded" educational or vocational ambitions do not bear relation to where a soldier serves, but to the fact that he or she does serve.

The bill follows our experience with 16 million veterans of World War II and 4,750,000 veterans of the Korean war.

The amendment offered by the Senator from Massachusetts is indeed not a minor change in the bill, but a complete reversal of purpose. Its proponents are trying to use the bill to reward certain soldiers. I agree that they should be rewarded for their risks, but that should be done in a manner consistent with our defense policies of the past, by combat pay or other means, but not discriminating against other members of our defense team.

The basis of the bill is education; and the American view is that any person should be afforded an opportunity to accomplish his educational goals if he has the capacity. The basis of the amendment is reward—the idea that something extra should be given to soldiers who are engaged in hazardous duties. But the reasoning of the amendment bears no relation to education, for education affects every veteran.

I strongly urge the rejection of the amendment as being inconsistent with the purposes of the bill, which is a veterans' readjustment bill. The amendment would result in the perpetuation of injustice on the majority of veterans. It is not in the national interest to discriminate against veterans who are drafted and who serve where they are sent. Soldiers have no control over where they are ordered to duty.

In answer to the proponents of the amendment, who say that only 10 percent of such veterans were considered drafted, I ask, Where are the draftees in the front lines this morning? Sixty percent of the first division unit under fire were draftees. Every veteran ought to receive benefits, whether he served in a hostile area or not. Many veterans of World War II and the Korean war did not serve in hostile areas; yet readjustment benefits are provided to all those veterans, wherever they served, whether in America or overseas, whether they were shot at or not. The company records do not disclose whether a man was shot at or not. Readjustment benefits should be provided on a basis of the period of service. The pending bill is based on the period of service.

I submit that the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts should be rejected.

Mr. GRUENING. Mr. President, will the Senator from Texas yield?

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Alaska.

Mr. GRUENING. Mr. President, I share the view of the distinguished sponsor of the bill, which I have supported from the very beginning, that the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts would nullify the purpose of the bill. We cannot afford to have two or more classes of veterans, which is precisely what the amendment would create. Once a man is called to the colors, and goes where he is sent, there is no justification whatever for making arbitrary classifications which, as has been pointed out, would be almost impossible to enforce. What would be a combat zone today would cease to be such a zone tomorrow, and vice versa. Therefore, I hope the amendment will be rejected.

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Mr. President, I congratulate the distinguished Senator from Alaska for his powers of analysis and for so clearly pointing out the administrative difficulties and the basic unfairness of the amendment.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. May I have 3 minutes?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield 3 minutes to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I shall support the amendment offered by the distinguished senior Senator from Massachusetts. I shall do so because I believe that the principle upon which the amendment is built is sound.

I cannot dismiss from my mind the fact that the President, the Department of Defense, and the Veterans' Administration do not support the proposal offered by the Senator from Texas. The President and his Cabinet have uniformly supported practically every measure that has come before this body contemplating the promotion of educational opportunity. I should like to enumerate those programs, but I do not have them immediately at my command. However, I do not know of a single one that has not had the ardent support of the President.

No one can make me believe that if the argument of the proponents of the bill were sound, the bill would not have the support of the White House, the Veterans' Administration, and the Department of Defense.

I am a veteran of World War I. I join in the expressions made on the floor of the Senate that the training received in the military cannot be dismissed as an idle piece of work. I know of no training that I ever had in my life that was of greater help to me than that which I received in the military service. I learned to appreciate the attribute of punctiliousness. I knew what it meant, as a member of the military, to apply myself to my work. I do not want to join those who say that service under the flag of our country is the rendition of something that one ought not to give except upon the receipt of extraordinary compensation. In my judgment, if that were the attitude back in 1776, this country would not exist today.

Moreover, I point out that nations have suffered demise when they reached the point where their youth were unwilling to serve except upon the granting of liberal extraordinary compensation. Take whatever country we will, and we will find that the beginning of the collapse was when it was no longer possible to induce the youth, on a voluntary basis, to stand up in support of the banner of their country.

I am glad to support the amendment. I shall support the granting of every type of aid to those who are engaged in what are called the perilous problems of war. But the bill is intended to give to 2.6 million awards supposedly connected with the rendition of dangerous service, when in fact there are only two areas where such real peril exists.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, on my amendment, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were not ordered.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I suggest the absence of a quorum. I ask unanimous consent, together with the Senator from Texas, that the time consumed for the quorum call not be charged to either side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HOUSING ACT OF 1965

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives on H.R. 7984.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives announcing its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7984) to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. MANSFIELD. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendment and agree to the request of the House for a conference, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. SPARKMAN, Mr. DOUGLAS, Mr. PROXMIRE, Mr. WILLIAMS of New Jersey, Mr. MUSKIE, Mr. BENNETT, and Mr. TOWER conferees on the part of the Senate.

COLD WAR VETERANS' READJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE ACT

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 9) to provide readjustment assistance to veterans who serve in the Armed Forces during the induction period.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as remains.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, we are all proud of our servicemen. We are proud of the men who are giving their time today in the Armed Forces. However, especially do we need to give special benefits to those who are actively risking their lives.

The situation today is that our servicemen who are serving under warlike conditions are not receiving wartime benefits.

I and my colleagues who join me in sponsoring the substitute measure believe that the situation should be corrected. The fact that members of the armed services are subject to special risks and dangers should be recognized by the law as it is beginning to be recognized by this administration, which recently granted special tax exemption for the men serving in Vietnam and which, by a declaration of the Department of Defense, declared that an area of hostilities existed in that area of the world.

The distinction between my substitute measure and the bill of the Senator from Texas is that the men who are serving in an area of hostilities receive the same benefits as do the men who served in Korea, and almost the same benefits as did the men who served in World War II—not quite the same as the World War II veterans, but the same as the Korean veterans.

In my judgment, the men who serve in an area of hostilities are entitled to those benefits.

That is the simple difference between the two measures.

I hope that my substitute amendment will be agreed to.

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the junior Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I am honored to support the bill introduced and so ably handled by the distinguished Senator from Texas [Mr. YARBOROUGH]. I am against the pending amendment.

In this chaotic day in which we live, how can it be said that the lives and the bodies of some servicemen in any part of the world are any less in jeopardy than those who are actually engaged in what has been termed hostilities in this amendment? All can be called on a moment's notice to a crisis area.

I believe the United States of America owes the same kind and character of responsibility to all its servicemen, wherever they serve.

I hope that the bill of the Senator from Texas will be passed and that the amendment offered by the Senator from Massachusetts will not be agreed to.

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Massachusetts. On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. I announce that the Senator from Maryland [Mr. BREWSTER], the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. ERVIN], the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. JORDAN], and the Senator from Oregon [Mrs. NEUBERGER], are absent on official business.

I also announce that the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD], the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS], the Senator from HIGHLIGHTS: Senate committee reported the following bills: rural water facilities; diversion payments on acreage affected by disaster; implementation of International Wheat Agreement; Spruce Knob-Seneca Rocks recreation area; lease of tobacco allotments; and USDA administrative omnibus bill. Senate passed disaster relief bill. House passed bill to expand poverty program. Rep. Purcell defended wheat provisions of farm bill. Rep. Cooley praised USDA cotton and wool research programs.

HOUSE

1. POVERTY. Passed with amendments, 245 to 158, H. R. 8283, to expand the war on poverty and enhance the effectiveness of programs under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (pp. 17270-321, 17345-6). Rejected, 176 to 227, a motion by Rep. Quie to recommit the bill to committee (pp. 17319-20). The bill amends title III (Special Programs to Combat Poverty in Rural Areas) of the Economic Opportunity Act so as to make clear that the prohibition against loans to cooperatives organized for manufacturing purposes does not prevent loans to cooperatives processing dairy products or similar edible farm products; to clarify the authority granted with respect to the types and scope of assistance and the institutions through which assistance may be extended to migrant workers and their families; and to authorize the appropriation of $70 million for fiscal year 1966 for carrying out the purposes of title III.

Rejected the following amendments:

By Rep. Quie, to provide that all functions under title III (relating to rural areas) shall be transferred to the Secretary of Agriculture.

p. 17318

By Rep. Ayres, 150 to 155, which he stated would retain the existing veto power of State Governors over work-training projects and community action projects. pp. 17272-81

By Rep. Andrews, to bar political activity, threats, or favoritism from the community action programs. pp. 17289-91

By Rep. Quie, to provide that the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity shall hold no other Federal position concurrently.

pp. 17300-1

A point of order was sustained against a proposed amendment by Rep. Sickles to extend from June 30, 1965 to June 30, 1967, authorization for indemnity payments to dairy farmers whose milk has been barred from the market because of residues of pesticides which had been approved by the Government.

pp. 17298-9

2. HOUSING. The "Daily Digest" states that conferees agreed to file a report on H. R. 7984, the housing and urban development bill (p. D689). At the request of Rep. Patman, unanimous consent was granted to file the conference report by midnight, July 23 (p. 17269).
3. FARM PROGRAM. Rep. Purcell defended the wheat provisions of the farm bill, and stated that increased wheat prices to farmers would permit them to purchase additional farm machinery and equipment which would benefit U. S. industry. pp. 17351-2
4. FOREIGN AID; PUBLIC LAW 480. Rep. Halpern stated that he has "called upon the President to rescind his authorization to renew the remaining portion of our agricultural assistance program to the United Arab Republic." p. 17323
5. CCC. Both Houses received from the President the report of the Commodity Credit Corporation in which he reviewed accomplishments of CCC during the past 30 years. pp. 17269-70, 17163
6. RESEARCH. At the request of Rep. Harris, H. R. 9743, to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to regulate the transportation, sale, and handling of dogs and cats intended to be used for purposes of research or experimentation, was re-referred from the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee to the Agriculture Committee. p. 17325
7. LAND REVIEW COMMISSION. Rep. Aspinall resigned from, and Rep. Rogers, Tex., was appointed a member of, the Public Land Law Review Commission. p. 17269
8. LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM. Rep. Albert announced that the conference reports on the housing bill and the medicare bill will be considered on Tues., and a continuing appropriations resolution will be considered on Wed. p. 17324
9. ADJOURNED until Mon., July 26. p. 17359

by Congressman ARENDS. I know that my brother and my family still feel deep gratitude for his consideration.

I am pleased to say that my experience with him since it has been my privilege to serve in the Congress has been a happy one. I am very grateful for the help he has rendered, as a former constituent of his on this side of the aisle.

His long and distinguished tenure in this body might be accepted by some unkind person as a major reason why I left Bloomington, Ind., and moved to Oregon, but I assure you that is not so, and I assure you that my parents are grateful for the distinguished service he has rendered to my former district over the years.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPRINGER. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. HAYS. I should like to join the tributes to LES ARENDS. He has been a member of the NATO Parliamentarians Committee, of which I have had the honor to be chairman for a number of years. He has made a signal contribution to better understanding with our NATO allies. He is always genial and gracious on the floor. I am proud to have him for a friend.

I believe that a good part of his success in life he can attribute to his beautiful, gracious, and lovely wife, who came originally from my district. I am proud that we in eastern Ohio have been able to make that contribution to LES ARENDS.

GENERAL LEAVE TO EXTEND

Mr. SPRINGER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to extend their remarks in the RECORD respecting LES ARENDS.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

CORRECTION OF ROLLCALL

Mr. DUNCAN of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 144 and rollcall No. 170, quorum calls, I have just learned from the Clerk of the House of Representatives that I am recorded as absent.

I was present for these rollcalls, and in fact I am recorded on these same dates as being present and voting on other legislative matters.

I ask unanimous consent that the permanent RECORD and Journal be corrected accordingly.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY

Mr. FEIGHAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Immigration and Nationality of the Committee on the Judiciary have permission to sit in executive session today during general debate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I object.

ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY AMENDMENTS OF 1965

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 8283) to expand the war on poverty and enhance the effectiveness of programs under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. PELLY. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Evidently a quorum is not present.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

A call of the House was ordered.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

[Roll No. 195]

Arends	Mailliard	Rumsfeld
Ashley	Martin, Mass.	Scott
Bonner	Murray	Shipley
Bow	Pepper	Teague, Tex.
Evins, Tenn.	Pool	Toll
Halleck	Powell	Waggonner
Harvey, Ind.	Reid, N.Y.	White, Idaho
Karth	Rivers, Alaska
Keogh	Roncalio

The SPEAKER. On this rollcall 407 Members have answered to their names, a quorum.

By unanimous consent, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

THE HOUSING BILL

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the conferees on H.R. 7984, the housing bill, have until midnight to file a report thereon.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY

Mr. FEIGHAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Immigration and Nationality of the Committee on the Judiciary have permission to sit this afternoon during general debate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

RESIGNATION OF MEMBER OF PUBLIC LAND REVIEW COMMISSION

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following resignation from the Public Land Law Review Commission:

COMMITTEE ON INTERIOR AND INSULAR AFFAIRS,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D.C., July 22, 1965.

HON. JOHN W. MCCORMACK,
Speaker,
House of Representatives.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: I have been elected as Chairman of the Public Land Law Review Commission. Under the provisions of Public Law 88-606, the Chairman is the 19th member, selected by the 18 members whose composition is set forth in section 3(b), paragraphs (i), (ii), and (iii) of the law. I am therefore resigning as a member of the Commission from the House of Representatives appointed by you, effective July 22, 1965.

Sincerely yours,
WAYNE N. ASPINALL,
Chairman.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the resignation will be accepted.
There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT OF MEMBER TO PUBLIC LAND LAW REVIEW COMMISSION

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to the provisions of section 3, Public Law 88-606, the Chair appoints as a member of the Public Land Law Review Commission the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ROGERS] to fill an existing vacancy thereon.

REPORT OF THE COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDED JUNE 30, 1964—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency:

To the Congress of the United States:

Thirty years ago, the Congress brought into being the Commodity Credit Corporation. In transmitting the report of this agency for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1964, as provided by section 13 of Public Law 806, 80th Congress, I feel it is appropriate to view, in summary, the three decades of the Corporation operations.

Over the past 30 years, the Commodity Credit Corporation has:

First. Enabled farmers to hold their crops for fair market prices.

Second. Minimized the depressing effect of surpluses by holding them off the market.

Third. Assured a stable flow of food to consumers, deterring inflationary pressures.

Fourth. Created a sound base for banks and other lending institutions which supply the credit needs of farmers.

Fifth. Provided in wartime the means of supplying our allies with food and fiber, and in the postwar period became the instrument which insured that food could also help keep the peace.

Sixth. Acted as the mechanism for executing the food-for-peace program, the International Wheat Agreement, and other similar international programs.

Seventh. Supported the rapid expansion of agricultural exports.

During fiscal 1964, the Commodity Credit Corporation reduced its investment in farm commodity inventories by more than $380 million. The wheat inventory was reduced by about 275 million bushels, and the supplies of dairy products were brought down to manageable levels.

The Commodity Credit Corporation is a creature of legislation. Its ability to fulfill our objectives for the future is no greater than the strength of legislation enacted by the Congress. It can function best when farm commodity programs are responsive to the conditions which exist in the agricultural economy. If these programs are in tune with the times, the Commodity Credit Corporation can perform its proper functions for farmers and for the public.

The legislation which I proposed this year, and which is now before the Congress, will help the Corporation to carry forward the objectives it should fulfill in the coming decade. These objectives are:

To continue the financial progress of our farmers;

To further reduce the Corporation's costs by bringing stocks of farm commodities down to more manageable levels;

To assure an abundant supply of high-quality, reasonably priced foods without fear of severe price fluctuations for our consumers;

To cushion the forces of the revolution in farm productivity which enable output to far exceed our capacity for use by balancing the growth in farm output with our ever-expanding food and fiber requirements;

To use our abundance as a force for peace and progress;

To rely more upon the marketplace as the primary source of fair farm returns.

Instruments of public policy can weight the scales of economic justice on the side of those who are disadvantaged, but they should enhance—not supplant—the equal opportunity for each person to obtain a decent livelihood from our economic system.

The Commodity Credit Corporation has an important place among the instruments of public policy:

Without the programs for which it acts as fiscal agent, the income netted by farmers would decline by half.

Without adequate income, the family farm system which dominates our agriculture would die.

Without family farms, the vast abundance of food and fiber we all have come to expect as a natural condition of a highly productive economy would no longer be assured.

The Commodity Credit Corporation, as a visible expression of our commitment to abundance, continues to be a servant of all people. What began 30 years ago as an experiment to provide economic justice for the farmer has now become a tested instrument in the continuing experiment each generation performs to demonstrate the vitality of our democracy.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, July 22, 1965.

ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY AMENDMENTS OF 1965

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 8283 with Mr. ROONEY of New York in the Chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee rose on yesterday, the Clerk had read through section 7 under line 18, page 4 of the bill.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 5 additional minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this bill. Before commenting on the bill, I think it is appropriate to recognize the fine job that the great Committee on Education and Labor has performed in managing this bill and bringing it to the floor. I congratulate its distinguished chairman and other members. Mr. Chairman, we who have served in the House a long time are always reassured by the fact that whenever the occasion arises and duty calls, new Members rise to responsibilities of leadership in tune with the highest tradition of the House. I think all Members will join me in commending the distinguished gentleman from Florida [Mr. GIBBONS], for the competent and dedicated management he has given to this legislation.

Mr. Chairman, in my opinion, the debate on this bill has been good. For the most part it has been constructive.

I do feel, however, that most of the criticism has related either to exceptional cases or to mistakes in administration.

We have heard that at one center a number of women got drunk and were dismissed. Of course, we did not hear about the thousands of young women who are using this program to further their education and to give themselves an additional chance in life. We heard, probably with some degree of humor, that someone was told, when calling somebody in the administration, that he or she should relax. Such an answer was perhaps uncalled for, but it certainly does not go to the question of the merits of this important legislation. I think my good friend from Minnesota talked yesterday about a telephone directory, whether the administration had one and if it had one, whether it was a good one. I am for telephone directories, I am for good telephone directories, but I really do not think that goes to the merits of this issue.

In my opinion, from what I know of this program, and I have examined it in my district and in my State, no program has done more in less time for humanity than the antipoverty program which we passed only a few months ago. This program is under the direction of one of the greatest and finest administrators in the Federal Government. He has proved that in his administration of the Peace Corps program. He had to put this program on the track before he had set up his office establishment. Before he had organized his staff, he was receiving calls from thousands of people, from hundreds of communities across the land. That has been inevitable because it is a human relations program.

It is a program that goes to every part of the country and in which many, many citizens are interested. Give the Honorable Sargeant Shriver a chance, and I sincerely believe that when we come back here next year we will find this one of the best administered programs in the country. I think the affirmative side of this issue completely overshadows any mistakes that may have been made in administration.

The big thing about this program is that in the first year of its operation, several millions of our most unfortunate fellow citizens have been touched and have been given new hope—3,000 American communities have responded to the challenge to assist their poor.

Over 300,000 boys and girls have sought a new chance through the Job Corps and the job centers. Over 10,000 Americans have already been given this chance.

Over 1 million teenagers are already working through neighborhood youth centers.

Over 20,000 Americans have applied to participate in VISTA which is the American home variety of the Peace Corps. Hundreds of thousands of low income children are already enrolled in the Head Start program.

Over 10,000 American groups and individuals under the auspices of this program are creating new jobs and new businesses for the American poor.

In 9 months of operation, I have been advised that this program has helped nearly 6 million Americans in some aspect of their lives—and this is only the beginning.

I do not believe, Mr. Chairman, that I am speaking in pious platitudes when I say that this issue has a moral origin. I think the work that can be done through this bill, even if we attain only half of our goals, will be worth twice the money. I think it will strengthen American homes and American family life. I think it will help us to lift up individual American citizens. I think it is in line with the highest traditions and practices of our country. Certainly, it was that spirit—that emphasis on the individual and his dignity, that caused our forefathers to write the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and the Emancipation Proclamation. It was in that same spirit that we enacted last year the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It is in the same spirit that we come here today. We believe that the great educational programs sponsored by President Johnson and supported in many instances on both sides of the aisle will help uplift individual Americans and will help to give dignity to the individual man. This it seems to me is the great thrust of the 89th Congress. If we do nothing more than to help those who need help the most to become self-respecting and self-support-

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

July 23, 1965.—Ordered to be printed

MR. PATMAN, from the committee of conference, submitted the following

CONFERENCE REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 7984]

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7984) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: That this Act may be cited as the "Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965".

TITLE I—SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO ENABLE CERTAIN PRIVATE HOUSING TO BE AVAILABLE FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES WHO ARE ELDERLY, HANDICAPPED, DISPLACED, VICTIMS OF A NATURAL DISASTER, OR OCCUPANTS OF SUBSTANDARD HOUSING

SEC. 101. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator (hereinafter referred to as the "Administrator") is authorized to make, and contract to make, annual payments to a "housing owner" on behalf of "qualified tenants", as those terms are defined herein, in such amounts and under such circumstances as are prescribed in or pursuant to this section. In no case shall a contract provide for such payments with respect to any housing for a period exceeding forty years. The aggregate amount of the contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $30,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1966, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $35,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $40,000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by $45,000,000 on July 1, 1968.

(b) As used in this section, the term "housing owner" means a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act and which, after the enactment of this section, has been approved for mortgage insurance thereunder and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That, except as provided in subsection (j), no payments under this section may be made with respect to any property financed with a mortgage receiving the benefits of the interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of that Act. Subject to the limitations provided in subsection (j), the term "housing owner" also has the meaning prescribed in such subsection.

(c) As used in this section, the term "qualified tenant" means any individual or family who has, pursuant to criteria and procedures established by the Administrator, been determined—

(1) to have an income below the maximum amount which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public housing dwellings; and

(2) to be one of the following—

(A) displaced by governmental action;

(B) sixty-two years of age or older (or, in the case of a family to have a head who is, or whose spouse is, sixty-two years of age or over);

(C) physically handicapped (or, in the case of a family, to have a head who is, or whose spouse is, physically handicapped);

(D) occupying substandard housing; or

(E) an occupant or former occupant of a dwelling which is (or was) situated in an area determined by the Small Business Administration, subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected by a natural disaster, and which has been extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of such disaster.

The terms "qualified tenant" and "tenant" include a member of a cooperative who satisfies the foregoing requirements and who, upon resale of his membership to the cooperative, will not be reimbursed for any equity increment accumulated through payments under this section. With respect to members of a cooperative, the terms "rental" and "rental charges" mean the charges under the occupancy agreements between such members and the cooperative.

(d) The amount of the annual payment with respect to any dwelling unit shall not exceed the amount by which the fair market rental for such unit exceeds one-fourth of the tenant's income as determined by the Administrator pursuant to procedures and regulations established by him.

(e)(1) For purposes of carrying out the provisions of this section, the Administrator shall establish criteria and procedures for determining the eligibility of occupants and rental charges, including criteria and procedures with respect to periodic review of tenant incomes and periodic adjustment of rental charges. The Administrator shall issue, upon the request of a housing owner, certificates as to the following facts concerning the individuals and families applying for admission to, or residing in, dwellings of such owner:

(A) the income of the individual or family; and

(B) whether the individual or family was displaced by governmental action, is elderly, is physically handicapped, or is (or was) occupying substandard housing or housing extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of a natural disaster.

(2) Procedures adopted by the Administrator hereunder shall provide for recertifications of the incomes of occupants, except the elderly, at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals in cases where the Administrator may deem it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting rental charges and annual payments on the basis of occupants' incomes, but in no event shall rental charges adjusted under this section for any dwelling exceed the fair market rental of the dwelling.

(3) The Administrator may enter into agreements, or authorize housing owners to enter into agreements, with public or private agencies for services required in the selection of qualified tenants, including those who may be approved, on the basis of the probability of future increases in their incomes, as lessees under an option to purchase (which will give such approved qualified tenants an exclusive right to purchase at a price established or determined as provided in the option) dwellings, and in the establishment of rentals. The Administrator is authorized (without limiting his authority under any other provision of law) to delegate to any such public or private agency his authority to issue certificates pursuant to this subsection.

(4) No payments under this section may be made with respect to any property for which the costs of operation (including wages and salaries) are determined by the Administrator to be greater than similar costs of operation of similar housing in the community where the property is situated.

(f) Section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting "(i)" after "a mortgage under" in the first proviso and by inserting immediately before the colon at the end of such proviso the following: ", or (ii) section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act if payments with respect to the mortgaged property are made or are to be made under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except that no such mortgage shall be insured, and no commitment to insure such a mortgage shall be issued, with respect to property in any community for which a workable program for community improvement was required and in effect at the time a contract for a loan or capital grant was entered into under this title, or a contract for annual contributions or capital grants was entered into pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937, unless there is a workable program for community improvement which meets the requirements of this subsection in effect in such community at the time of such insurance or commitment".

(g) The Administrator is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section. Nothing contained in this section shall affect the authority of (1) the Federal Housing Commissioner with respect to any housing assisted under this section and under sections 221(d)(3) and 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act, or (2) the Housing and Home Finance Administrator with respect to any housing assisted under this section and under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, including the authority to prescribe occupancy requirements under other provisions of law or to determine the portion of any such housing which may be occupied by qualified tenants.

(h) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including, but not limited to, such sums as may be necessary to make annual payments as prescribed in this section, pay for services provided under (or pursuant to agreements entered into under) subsection (e), and provide administrative expenses.

(i) Section 114(c)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting before the colon at the end of the first proviso the following: “, or a dwelling unit assisted under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965”.

(j)(1) For the purpose of assisting housing under this section on an experimental basis, subject to the limitations of this subsection, the term “housing owner” (in addition to the meaning prescribed in subsection

(b)) includes—

(A) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under a mortgage which receives the benefits of the interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of the National Housing Act and which, after the date of the enactment of this Act, has been approved for mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section;

(B) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity which is a mortgagor under a mortgage insured under section 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act and which, after the date of the enactment of this Act, has obtained final endorsement of such mortgage for mortgage insurance and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section; and

(C) a private nonprofit corporation, a public body or agency, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a borrower under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That, with respect to properties financed with loans under such section made on or before the date of the enactment of this Act, payments shall not be made with respect to more than 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any property so financed.

(2) Of the amounts approved in appropriation Acts pursuant to subsection (a) for payments under this section in any year, not more than 5 per centum in the aggregate shall be paid with respect to properties of housing owners as defined in paragraph (1)(A) of this subsection, and not more than 5 per centum in the aggregate shall be paid with respect to properties of housing owners as defined in paragraphs (1)(B) and (1)(C) of this subsection.

EXTENSION OF FHA SECTION 221 PROGRAMS; MODIFICATION OF INTEREST RATE; POOLING OF MORTGAGES FOR SALE

SEC. 102. (a) The fifth sentence of section 221(f) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out “subsection (d)(2) or (d)(4) after September 30, 1965, or under subsection (d)(3) after September 30, 1965,” and inserting in lieu thereof “this section after October 1, 1969,”.

(b) The proviso in section 221(d)(5) of such Act is amended by striking out "not less than the annual rate of interest determined" and inserting in lieu thereof "not less than the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or (B) the annual rate of interest determined".

(c) The third sentence of section 212(a) of such Act is amended by striking out "described in subsection (d)(3)" and all that follows and inserting in lieu thereof "described in subsection (d)(3) or (d)(4)."

(d) Section 302(c) of such Act is amended by inserting before the last sentence thereof the following: "If there shall be included within one or more of the trusts or other agencies created pursuant to the authority of this subsection any mortgages bearing a below-market interest rate and insured under section 221(d)(3) after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, there are authorized to be appropriated from time to time such amounts as may be necessary to reimburse the Association for the amount of the differential (including interest, other costs, and a fair proportion of administrative expense) between (1) the total outlay with respect to outstanding participations or other instruments which, at the time of issuance, were predicated upon or otherwise related to such below-market interest rate mortgages, and (2) the total receipts from such mortgages."

LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 103. (a) The United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by redesignating section 23 as section 24, and by adding after section 22 the following new section:

"LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

"SEC. 23. (a)(1) For the purpose of providing a supplementary form of low-rent housing which will aid in assuring a decent place to live for every citizen and promote efficiency and economy in the program under this Act by taking full advantage of vacancies or potential vacancies in the private housing market, each public housing agency shall, to the maximum extent consistent with the achievement of the objectives of this Act, provide low-rent housing under this Act in the form of low-rent housing in private accommodations in accordance with this section where such housing in private accommodations can be provided at a cost equal to or less than housing in projects assisted under other provisions of this Act.

"(2) The provisions of this section shall not apply to any locality unless the governing body of the locality has by resolution approved the application of such provisions to such locality.

"(3) As used in this section, the term 'low-rent housing in private accommodations' means dwelling units in an existing structure, leased from a private owner, which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and related facilities effectively supplementing the accommodations and facilities in low-rent housing assisted under the other provisions of this Act in a manner calculated to meet the total housing needs of the community in which they are located; and the term 'owner' means any person or entity having the legal right to lease or sublease property containing one or more dwelling units as described in this section.

"(b) Beginning as soon as practicable after the date of the enactment of this section, each public housing agency shall conduct a continuing survey and listing of the available dwelling units within the community or communities under its jurisdiction which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and related facilities and are, or may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section.

“(c) Each public housing agency, by notification to the owners of housing listed under subsection (b), or by publication or advertisement, or otherwise, shall from time to time make known to the public in the community or communities under its jurisdiction the anticipated need for dwelling units in such community or communities to be used as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, inviting the owners of such dwelling units to make available for purposes of this section one or more of such units (not exceeding 10 per centum of the units in any single structure except to the extent that the agency, because of the limited number of units in the structure or for any other reason, determines that such limit should not be applied). The public housing agency shall conduct appropriate inspections of the units offered to be made available in any residential structure by the owner thereof in response to such invitation, and if—

“(1) it finds that such units are, or may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations within the meaning of subsection (a)(3), and

“(2) the rentals to be charged for such units, as negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner of the structure in a manner consistent with subsection (d)(2), are within the financial range of families of low income,

such agency may approve such units for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations in accordance with (and subject to the applicable limitations contained in) this section. Each public housing agency shall maintain and keep current a list of units approved by it under this subsection, including such information with respect to each such unit as it may consider necessary or appropriate.

“(d) To the extent of contracts for annual contributions entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency under section 10(e), such agency may enter into contracts with the owners of structures containing dwelling units approved under subsection (c) for the use of such units in accordance with this section. Each such contract with an owner shall provide (with respect to any unit) that—

“(1) the selection of tenants for such unit shall be the function of the owner, subject to the provisions of the contract between the Authority and the agency;

“(2) the rental and other charges to be received by the owner shall be negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner, and the rental and other charges to be paid by the tenant shall be determined in accordance with the standards applicable to units in low-rent housing projects assisted under the other provisions of this Act;

“(3) the agency shall have the sole right to give notice to vacate, with the owner having the right to make representations to the agency for termination of a tenancy;

“(4) maintenance and replacements (including redecoration) shall be in accordance with the standard practice for the building concerned, as established by the owner and agreed to by the agency; and

“(5) the agency and the owner shall carry out such other appropriate terms and conditions as may be mutually agreed to by them. Each contract between a public housing agency and an owner entered into under this subsection shall be for a term of not less than twelve months nor more than thirty-six months, and shall be renewable by such agency and owner at the expiration of such term.

“(e) The annual contribution under this Act for a project of a public housing agency for low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section in lieu of any other guaranteed contribution authorized by section 10 shall not exceed the amount of the fixed annual contribution which would be established under this Act for a newly constructed project by such public housing agency designed to accommodate the comparable number, sizes, and kinds of families. The period over which payments will be made to a public housing agency for a project of low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, and the aggregate amount of such payments, under a contract for annual contributions, shall be determined on the basis of the number of units in the community or communities under the jurisdiction of such agency which are in use (or can reasonably be expected to be placed in use) as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, taking into account the terms of the leases under which such units are (or will be) so used. In addition, contracts for financial assistance entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency pursuant to this section shall provide for reimbursement of reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by such agency in conducting surveys, listings, and inspections described in subsections (b) and (c).

“(f) The provisions of sections 10(h) and 15(7) of this Act, and the workable program requirement in section 10(e) of this Act and section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949, shall not apply to low-rent housing in private accommodations provided under this section.”

(b) The last sentence of section 2(1) of such Act is amended by striking out “Income limits for occupancy and rents” and inserting in lieu thereof “Except as otherwise provided in section 23, income limits for occupancy and rents”.

PARITY OF TREATMENT FOR THE HANDICAPPED AND ELDERLY IN PUBLIC HOUSING

SEC. 104. Section 2(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended to read as follows:

“(2) The term ‘families of low income’ means families (including elderly and displaced families) who are in the lowest income group and who cannot afford to pay enough to cause private enterprise in their locality or metropolitan area to build an adequate supply of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for their use. The term ‘families’ includes families consisting of a single person in the case of elderly families and displaced families, and includes the remaining member of a tenant family. The term ‘elderly families’ means families whose heads (or their spouses), or whose sole members, have attained the age at which an individual may elect to receive an old-age benefit under title II of the Social Security Act, or are under a disability as defined in section 223 of that Act, or are handicapped within the meaning of section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959. The term ‘displaced families’ means families displaced by urban renewal or other governmental action, or families whose present or former dwellings are situated in areas determined by the Small Business Administration, subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected by a natural disaster, and which have been extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of such disaster.”

DIRECT LOANS TO PROVIDE HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED

SEC. 105. (a) Section 202(a)(4) of the Housing Act of 1959 is amended by striking out "$350,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$500,000,000".

(b) Effective with respect to loans made on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, section 202(a)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out "the higher of (A) $2\frac{3}{4}$ per centum per annum, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or".

REHABILITATION GRANTS TO HOMEOWNERS IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 106. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"REHABILITATION GRANTS

"SEC. 115. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator may authorize a local public agency to make grants (and the urban renewal project may include the making of such grants) as prescribed in this section. Any such grant may be made only to an individual or family, as described in subsection (b), who owns and occupies a structure in an urban renewal area, and only for the purpose of covering the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make such structure conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable codes or other requirements of the urban renewal plan for the area. Any contract for financial assistance under this title shall provide that the capital grant otherwise payable for the project shall be increased by an amount equal to the total amount of the grants under this section and that no part of the total amount of such grants shall be required to be contributed as part of the local grant-in-aid.

"(b) A grant authorized by this section may be made to an individual or family whose income does not exceed $3,000 a year, and such grant may be in the amount which does not exceed the lesser of (1) the actual (and approved) cost of the repairs and improvements involved, or (2) $1,500. In case the income of the individual or family exceeds $3,000 a year, a grant may be made under this section, subject to the limitations specified in clauses (1) and (2) of the preceding sentence, but only in an amount not to exceed that portion of the cost of the repairs and improvements which cannot be paid for with any available loan that can be amortized as part of such individual's or family's monthly housing expense without requiring such monthly housing expense to exceed 25 per centum of such individual's or family's monthly income."

(b) Any contract with a local public agency which was executed under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 before the date of enactment of this Act may be amended to provide for grants authorized by section 115 of the Housing Act of 1949.

MORTGAGE RELIEF FOR HOMEOWNERS WHO ARE UNEMPLOYED AS THE RESULT OF THE CLOSING OF A FEDERAL INSTALLATION

SEC. 107. (a) For the purposes of this section—

(1) The term "mortgage" means a mortgage which (A) is insured under the National Housing Act, or (B) secures a home loan guaranteed or insured under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code.

(2) The term "Federal mortgage agency" means—

(A) the Federal Housing Commissioner when used in connection with mortgages insured under the National Housing Act, and

(B) the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs when used in connection with mortgages securing home loans guaranteed or insured under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code.

(3) The term "distressed mortgagor" means an individual who—

(A) is unemployed, although willing to work, as the result of the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, and

(B) is the owner-occupant of a dwelling upon which there is a mortgage securing a loan which is in default because of the inability of such individual to make payments of principal and/or interest under such mortgage.

(b)(1) Any distressed mortgagor, for the purpose of avoiding foreclosure of his mortgage, may apply to the appropriate Federal mortgage agency for a determination that suspension of his obligation to make payments of principal and/or interest under such mortgage during a temporary period is necessary in order to avoid such foreclosure.

(2) Upon receipt of an application made under this subsection by a distressed mortgagor, the Federal mortgage agency shall issue to such mortgagor a certificate of moratorium if it determines, after consultation with the interested mortgagee, that—

(A) the mortgagor is not in default with respect to any condition or covenant of the mortgage other than that requiring the payment of installments of principal and/or interest under the mortgage, and

(B) such action is the only available means whereby a foreclosure of such mortgage can be avoided.

(3) Prior to the issuance to any distressed mortgagor of a certificate of moratorium under paragraph (2), the Federal mortgage agency shall require such mortgagor to enter into a binding agreement under which he will be required to make payments to such agency, after the expiration of such certificate, in an aggregate amount equal to the amount paid by such agency on behalf of such mortgagor as provided in subsection (c). The manner and time in which such payments shall be made shall be determined by the Federal mortgage agency having due regard to the purposes sought to be achieved by this section.

(4) Any certificate of moratorium issued under this subsection shall expire on whichever of the following dates is the earliest—

(A) one year from the date on which such certificate is issued;

(B) thirty days after the date on which the mortgagor to whom such certificate is issued ceases to be a distressed mortgagor as defined in subsection (a); or

(C) the date on which such mortgagor becomes in default with respect to any condition or covenant in his mortgage other than that requiring the payment by him of installments of principal and/or interest under the mortgage.

(c)(1) Whenever a Federal mortgage agency issues a certificate of moratorium to any distressed mortgagor with respect to any mortgage, it shall transmit to the mortgagee a copy of such certificate, together with a notice stating that, while such certificate is in effect, such agency will assume the obligation of such mortgagor to make payments of principal, and, if so specified in the certificate, of interest, under the mortgage.

(2) Payments made by any Federal mortgage agency pursuant to a certificate of moratorium issued under this section with respect to the mortgage of any distressed mortgagor shall include, in addition to the payments referred to in paragraph (1), an amount equal to the unpaid principal and interest charges which had accrued under such mortgage prior to the issuance of such certificate and subsequent to the date on which such mortgagor became a distressed mortgagor as defined in subsection (a).

(3) While any certificate of moratorium issued under this section is in effect with respect to the mortgage of any distressed mortgagor, no further payments of principal, and, if so specified in the certificate, of interest, under the mortgage shall be required of such mortgagor, and no action (legal or otherwise) shall be taken or maintained by the mortgagee to enforce or collect such payments. Upon the expiration of such certificate, the mortgagor shall again be liable for the payment of all amounts due under the mortgage in accordance with its terms.

(4) Each Federal mortgage agency shall give prompt notice in writing to the interested mortgagor and mortgagee of the expiration of any certificate of moratorium issued by it under this section.

(d) The Federal mortgage agencies are authorized to issue such individual and joint regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section and to insure the uniform administration thereof.

(e) There shall be in the Treasury (1) a fund which shall be available to the Federal Housing Commissioner for the purpose of extending financial assistance in behalf of distressed mortgagors as provided in subsection (c), and (2) a fund which shall be available to the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs for the same purpose. The capital of each such fund shall consist of such sums as may, from time to time, be appropriated thereto, and any sums so appropriated shall remain available until expended. Receipts arising from the programs of assistance under subsection (c) shall be credited to the fund from which such assistance was extended. Moneys in either of such funds not needed for current operations, as determined by the Federal Housing Commissioner, or the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, as the case may be, shall be invested in bonds or other obligations of the United States, or paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

(f) Section 1816 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by inserting "(a)" before the text of such section, and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(b) With respect to any loan made under section 1811 which has not been sold as provided in subsection (g) of such section, if the Administrator finds, after there has been a default in the payment of any installment of principal or interest owing on such loan, that the default was due to the fact that the veteran who is obligated under the loan has become unemployed as the result of the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, he shall (1) extend the time for curing the default to such time as he determines is necessary and desirable to enable such veteran to complete payments on such loan, including an extension of time beyond the stated maturity thereof, or (2) modify the terms of such loan for the purpose of changing the amortization provisions thereof by recasting, over the remaining term of the loan, or over such longer period as he may determine, the total unpaid amount then due with the modification to become effective currently or upon the termination of an agreed-upon extension of the period for curing the default."

ACQUISITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTIES SITUATED AT OR NEAR MILITARY BASES WHICH HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO BE CLOSED

SEC. 108. (a) The Secretary of Defense is authorized to acquire title to any property, improved with a one- or two-family dwelling, which is situated at or near a military base or installation which the Department of Defense has, subsequent to November 1, 1964, ordered to be closed in whole or in part, if he determines—

(1) that the owner of such property is, or has been, employed or performing military service at such base or installation;

(2) that the closing of such base or installation, in whole or in part, has required or will require the termination of such owner's employment or service at such base or installation; and

(3) that as the result of the actual or pending closing of such base or installation there is no present market for the sale of such property upon reasonable terms and conditions.

(b) The purchase price of any property which is situated at or near a military base or installation and is acquired under this section shall be equal to an amount determined by the Secretary of Defense to be the average price at which properties, similar in size, construction, condition, and location to that of the property to be acquired, were sold during a representative period, as determined by the Secretary, prior to the announcement of the intention of the Department of Defense to close all or part of such base or installation.

(c) The title to any property acquired under this section shall be free and clear of any outstanding liens or encumbrances and shall conform to such requirements as the Secretary of Defense shall by regulation require. Such regulations shall also prescribe the terms and conditions under which payments may be made under this section, and decisions by the Secretary regarding such payments, and the terms and conditions under which the same are approved or disapproved, shall be final and conclusive and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(d) Properties acquired under this section shall be transferred to the Federal Housing Commissioner, and the Federal Housing Commissioner shall have power to deal with, rent, renovate, or sell for cash or credit any properties so transferred. Receipts from the management or sale of any such properties may be utilized by the Commissioner to defray expenses arising in connection with the management of such properties, and any part of such receipts not required for such expenses shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

(e) Section 223(a) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (7) and inserting in lieu thereof “; or”; and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (7) a new paragraph as follows:

“(8) executed in connection with the sale by the Commissioner of any housing acquired pursuant to section 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.”

(f) Such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section are hereby authorized to be appropriated, and any sums so appropriated shall remain available until expended.

TITLE II—FHA INSURANCE OPERATIONS

LAND DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 201. (a) The National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 1001. As used in this title—

"(a) the term 'mortgage' means a lien or liens on real estate in fee simple, or on a leasehold (1) under a lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renewable, or (2) under a lease having a period of not less than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was executed;

"(b) the term 'first mortgage' includes such classes of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances (including but not limited to advances during construction) on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate under the laws of the State in which the real estate is located, together with the credit instrument or instruments, if any, secured thereby, and may be in the form of trust mortgages or mortgage indentures or deeds of trusts securing notes, bonds, or other credit instruments;

"(c) the terms 'mortgage', 'mortgagor', and 'State' have the same meaning as in section 207 of this Act;

"(d) the term 'improvements' means waterlines and water supply installations, sewerlines and sewerage disposal installations, roads, streets, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, storm drainage facilities, and other installations or work, whether on or off the site, which the Commissioner deems necessary or desirable to prepare land primarily for residential and related uses or to provide facilities for public or common use; but such term shall not include any building unless it is (1) a building which is needed in connection with a water supply or sewage disposal installation, or (2) a building, other than a school, which is to be owned and maintained jointly by the property owners; and

"(e) the term 'land development' means the process of making, installing, or constructing improvements.

"BASIC CONDITIONS FOR INSURANCE

"SEC. 1002. (a) The Commissioner is authorized (1) to insure, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, any first mortgage (including advances on such mortgage) in accordance with the provisions of this title, and (2) to make a commitment for the insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of execution of such mortgage or prior to the date of disbursement of the mortgage proceeds. No mortgage shall be insured under this title after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment to insure issued before such date.

"(b) The mortgage shall—

"(1) be executed by a mortgagor, other than a public body, approved by the Commissioner;

"(2) be made to and held by a mortgagee approved by the Commissioner; and

"(3) cover the land to be developed and the improvements to be made with the assistance of the mortgage insurance under this title, except facilities intended for public use and in public ownership.

"(c) The principal obligation of the mortgage shall (1) not exceed 75 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of the property upon completion of the land development, and (2) not exceed the sum of 50 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of the land before development and 90 per centum of his estimate of the cost of such development. The outstanding principal obligations of mortgages involving a single land development undertaking, as defined by the Commissioner, shall at no time exceed $10,000,000.

"(d) The mortgage shall—

"(1) have a maturity not to exceed seven years or such longer maturity as the Commissioner deems reasonable in the case of a privately owned system for water or sewerage, and contain repayment provisions satisfactory to the Commissioner;

"(2) bear interest at a rate satisfactory to the Commissioner, and such interest shall be exclusive of premium charges for mortgage insurance and such service charges and fees as may be approved by the Commissioner; and

"(3) contain such terms and provisions with respect to protection of the security, payment of taxes, delinquency charges, prepayment, additional and secondary liens, and other matters as the Commissioner may in his discretion prescribe.

"(e) A property or project to be financed by a mortgage insured under this title shall—

"(1) represent a good mortgage insurance risk; and

"(2) involve improvements that comply with all applicable State and local governmental requirements and with minimum standards approved by the Commissioner.

"LAND PLANNING

"SEC. 1003. (a) The land development covered by a mortgage insured under this title shall be undertaken pursuant to a schedule, conforming to such requirements and procedures as the Commissioner may prescribe, that will assure the use of the land for the purposes for which it is to be developed within the shortest reasonable period consistent with the objectives of sound and economic community growth or urban development.

"(b) The land development shall be undertaken in accordance with an overall development plan, appropriate to the scope and character of the undertaking, which—

"(1) has received all governmental approvals required by State or local law or by the Commissioner;

"(2) is acceptable to the Commissioner as providing reasonable assurance that the land development will contribute to good living conditions in the area being developed, which area (A) will have a sound economic base and a long economic life, (B) will be characterized by sound land-use patterns, and (C) will include or be served by such shopping, school, recreational, transportation, and other facilities as the Commissioner deems adequate or necessary; and

"(3) is consistent with a comprehensive plan which covers, or with comprehensive planning being carried on for, the area in which the land is situated, and which meets criteria established by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator for such plans or planning.

"ENCOURAGEMENT OF SMALL BUILDERS AND MODERATE COST HOUSING

"SEC. 1004. The Commissioner shall adopt such requirements as he deems necessary in land development covered by mortgages insured under this title to encourage the maintenance of a diversified local homebuilding industry, broad participation by builders, and the inclusion of a proper balance of housing for families of moderate or low income.

"WATER AND SEWERAGE FACILITIES

"SEC. 1005. After development of the land it shall be served by public systems for water and sewerage which are consistent with other existing or prospective systems within the area, except that the Commissioner may approve an adequate privately or cooperatively owned system which will be regulated in a manner acceptable to him with respect to user rates and charges, capital structure, methods of operation, rate of return, and conditions and terms of any sale or transfer.

"RELEASES

"SEC. 1006. The Commissioner may, on such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, consent to the release or subordination of a part or parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the mortgage.

"PREMIUMS AND FEES

"SEC. 1007. The Commissioner shall collect reasonable premiums for the insurance of any mortgage under this title and make such charges as he determines are reasonable for the analysis of the land development plan and the appraisal and inspection of the property and improvements. On or before January 1, 1967, the Commissioner shall make a report to the Congress concerning the premium rates and other charges under this title that he estimates will be adequate to provide income sufficient for a self-supporting program.

"INSURANCE BENEFITS

"SEC. 1008. The provisions of subsections (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 of this Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured under this title, except that as applied to such mortgages (1) any reference therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to this title, and (2) any reference to an annual premium shall be deemed to refer to such premiums as the Commissioner may designate under this title.

"INCONTESTABILITY PROVISIONS

"SEC. 1009. Any contract of insurance executed by the Commissioner under this title shall be conclusive evidence of the eligibility of the mortgage for insurance, and the validity of any contract of insurance so executed shall be incontestable in the hands of an approved mortgagee from the date of the execution of such contract, except for fraud or material misrepresentation on the part of such approved mortgagee.

"RULES AND REGULATIONS

"SEC. 1010. The Commissioner is authorized to make such rules and regulations and to require such agreements as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this title.

"TAXATION PROVISIONS

"SEC. 1011. Nothing in this title shall be construed to exempt any real property acquired and held by the Commissioner under this title from taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

"COST CERTIFICATION

"SEC. 1012. (a) The Commissioner shall adopt such requirements as he determines necessary to assure, at reasonable intervals of time during land development and upon completion of such development, that the amount of the mortgage loan outstanding at each such interval does not exceed with respect to that portion of the land remaining under the lien of the mortgage (1) 50 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of such remaining land before development, plus (2) 90 per centum of the actual costs of the development allocated by the Commissioner to such remaining land.

"(b) From time to time during, and upon completion of, the development, the Commissioner shall require the mortgagor to certify as to the actual costs of development of the land.

"(c) Certifications required pursuant to this section shall be accompanied by such data and records as the Commissioner shall prescribe.

"(d) A mortgagor's certification approved by the Commissioner shall be final and incontestable except for fraud or material misrepresentation on the part of the mortgagor.

"(e) As used in this section, the term 'actual costs' means the costs (exclusive of kickbacks, rebates, or trade discounts) to the mortgagor of the improvements involved. These costs may include amounts paid for labor, materials, construction contracts, land planning, engineers' and architect's fees, surveys, taxes, and interest during development, organizational and legal expenses, such allocation of general overhead expenses as are acceptable to the Commissioner, and other items of expense incidental to development which may be approved by the Commissioner. If the Commissioner determines there is an identity of interest between the mortgagor and the contractor, there may be included an allowance for contractor's profit in an amount deemed reasonable by the Commissioner."

(b)(1) Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "the term 'mortgages' " in the last sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "the terms 'mortgages' and 'home mortgages' ".

(2) The first paragraph of section 24 of the Federal Reserve Act is amended by inserting before the next to last sentence the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the foregoing limitations and restrictions in this section, any national banking association may make loans for land development which are secured by mortgages insured under title X of the National Housing Act."

(3) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, any such association may, to such extent as the Federal Home Loan Bank Board may by regulation permit, invest in loans, and interests in loans, (1) secured by mortgages as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under title X of the National Housing Act or of a commitment or agreement for such insurance, or (2) guaranteed by the President under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. Investments under clause (1) of this paragraph shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection. Investments under clause (2) of this paragraph shall not exceed, in the case of any association, 1 per centum of the assets of such association."

(4) Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: "The provisions of this section shall also apply to insurance under title X with respect to laborers and mechanics employed in land development financed with the proceeds of any mortgage insured under that title."

EXTENSION OF INSURANCE AUTHORIZATIONS

SEC. 202. (a) Section 2(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "October 1, 1965" and inserting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

(b) Section 217 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "title VIII" and inserting in lieu thereof "title VIII, or title X", and

(2) by striking out "October 1, 1965" and inserting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

(c) The second sentences of sections 809(f) and 810(k) of such Act are each amended by striking out "October 1, 1965" and inserting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

MORTGAGE LIMITS FOR HOMES UNDER SECTION 203(b)

SEC. 203. Clause (iii) of section 203(b)(2) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "75 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "80 per centum".

DOWNPAYMENT REQUIREMENT IN CASE OF LOW-INCOME HOUSING DEMONSTRATION HOMES

SEC. 204. Section 203(b)(9) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after "a mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (i) of this section," the following: "or with respect to a mortgage covering a single-family home being purchased under the low-income housing demonstration project assisted pursuant to section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961,".

MORTGAGE LIMIT FOR HOMES IN OUTLYING AREAS UNDER FHA SECTION 203(i) PROGRAM

SEC. 205. Section 203(i) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "$11,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$12,500".

FHA MORTGAGE FINANCING FOR VETERANS

SEC. 206. (a) Section 203(b)(2) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “and not to exceed” and inserting in lieu thereof “and (except as provided in the next to the last sentence of this paragraph) not to exceed”; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentences: “If the mortgagor is a veteran who has not received any direct, guaranteed, or insured loan under laws administered by the Veterans’ Administration for the purchase, construction, or repair of a dwelling (including a farm dwelling) which was to be owned and occupied by him as his home, and the mortgage to be insured under this section covers property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a one-family residence, the principal obligation may be in an amount equal to the sum of (i) 100 per centum of $15,000 of the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, (ii) 90 per centum of such value in excess of $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and (iii) 85 per centum of such value in excess of $20,000. As used herein, the term ‘veteran’ means any person who served on active duty in the armed forces of the United States for a period of not less than ninety days (or is certified by the Secretary of Defense as having performed extra-hazardous service), and who was discharged or released therefrom under conditions other than dishonorable.”

(b) Section 203(b)(9) of such Act is amended by inserting after “on account of the property” the following: “(except in a case to which the next to the last sentence of paragraph (2) applies)”.

MULTIFAMILY MORTGAGE LIMITS FOR FOUR OR MORE BEDROOM UNITS

SEC. 207. (a) Section 207(c)(3) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “and $18,500 per family unit with three or more bedrooms” and inserting in lieu thereof “$18,500 per family unit with three bedrooms, and $21,000 per family unit with four or more bedrooms,”; and

(2) by striking out “and $22,500 per family unit with three or more bedrooms” and inserting in lieu thereof “$22,500 per family unit with three bedrooms, and $25,500 per family unit with four or more bedrooms”.

(b) (1) Section 213(b)(2) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking out “and $18,500 per family unit with three or more bedrooms” and inserting in lieu thereof “$18,500 per family unit with three bedrooms, and $21,000 per family unit with four or more bedrooms”; and

(B) by striking out “and $22,500 per family unit with three or more bedrooms” and inserting in lieu thereof “$22,500 per family unit with three bedrooms, and $25,500 per family unit with four or more bedrooms”.

(2) Section 213(c) of such Act is amended by striking out “and not to exceed” and all that follows and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “and not to exceed a sum computed on the basis of a separate mortgage for each single-family dwelling (irrespective of whether such dwelling has a party wall or is otherwise physically connected with another dwelling or dwellings) comprising the property or project, equal to the total of each of the maximum principal obligations of such mortgages which would meet the requirements of section 203(b)(2) if the mortgagor were the owner and occupant who had made any required payment on account of the property prescribed in such paragraph."

(c) Section 220(d)(3)(B)(iii) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and $18,500 per family unit with three or more bedrooms" and inserting in lieu thereof "$18,500 per family unit with three bedrooms, and $21,000 per family unit with four or more bedrooms"; and

(2) by striking out "and $22,500 per family unit with three or more bedrooms" and inserting in lieu thereof "$22,500 per family unit with three bedrooms, and $25,500 per family unit with four or more bedrooms".

MUTUALITY FOR MANAGEMENT-TYPE COOPERATIVES

SEC. 208. (a) Section 213 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsections:

"(k) There is hereby created a Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the 'Management Fund'). The Management Fund shall be used by the Commissioner as a revolving fund for carrying out the provisions of this section with respect to mortgages or loans insured, on or after the date of the enactment of this subsection, under subsections (a)(1), (a)(3) (if the project is acquired by a cooperative corporation), (i), and (j). The Management Fund shall also be used as a revolving fund for mortgages, loans, and commitments transferred to it pursuant to subsection (m). The Commissioner is directed to transfer to the Management Fund from the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to section 519 such amount as the Commissioner determines to be necessary and appropriate. General expenses of operation of the Federal Housing Administration relating to mortgages or loans which are the obligation of the Management Fund may be charged to the Management Fund.

"(l) The Commissioner shall establish in the Management Fund, as of the date of the enactment of this subsection, a General Surplus Account and a Participating Reserve Account. The aggregate net income thereafter received or any net loss thereafter sustained by the Management Fund, in any semiannual period, shall be credited or charged to the General Surplus Account or the Participating Reserve Account or both in such manner and amounts as the Commissioner may determine to be in accord with sound actuarial and accounting practice. Upon termination of the insurance obligation of the Management Fund by payment of any mortgage or loan insured under this section, and at such time or times prior to such termination as the Commissioner may determine, the Commissioner is authorized to distribute to the mortgagor or borrower a share of the Participating Reserve Account in such manner and amount as the Commissioner shall determine to be equitable and in accordance with sound actuarial and accounting practice: Provided, That in no event shall the amount of the distributable share exceed the aggregate scheduled annual premiums of the mortgagor or borrower to the year of payment of the share less the total amount of any share or shares previously distributed by the Commissioner to the mortgagor or borrower: And provided further, That in no event may a distributable share be distributed until any funds transferred from the General Insurance Fund to the Management Fund pursuant to subsection (k) or (o) have been repaid in full to the General Insurance Fund. No mortgagor, mortgagee, borrower, or lender shall have any vested right in a credit balance in any such account or be subject to any liability arising out of the mutuality of the Management Fund. The determination of the Commissioner as to the amount to be paid by him to any mortgagor or borrower shall be final and conclusive.

"(m) The Commissioner is authorized to transfer to the Management Fund commitments for insurance issued under subsections (a)(1), (i), and (j) prior to the date of the enactment of this subsection, and to transfer to the Management Fund the insurance of any mortgage or loan insured prior to the date of the enactment of this subsection under subsection (a)(1), (a)(3) (if the project is acquired by a cooperative corporation), (i), or (j), but only in cases where the consent of the mortgagee or lender to the transfer is obtained or a request by the mortgagee or lender for the transfer is received by the Commissioner within such period of time after the date of the enactment of this subsection as the Commissioner shall prescribe: Provided, That the insurance of any mortgage or loan shall not be transferred under the provisions of this subsection if on the date of the enactment of this subsection the mortgage or loan is in default and the mortgagee or lender has notified the Commissioner in writing of its intention to file an insurance claim. Any insurance or commitment not so transferred shall continue to be an obligation of the General Insurance Fund.

"(n) Notwithstanding the limitations contained in other provisions of this Act, premium charges for mortgages or loans insured under this section and sections 207, 231, and 232 may be payable in debentures issued in connection with mortgages or loans transferred to the Management Fund or in connection with mortgages or loans insured pursuant to commitments transferred to the Management Fund, as provided in subsection (m) of this section.

“(o) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Commissioner is authorized to transfer funds between the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund and the General Insurance Fund in such amounts and at such times as he may determine, taking into consideration the requirements of each such Fund, to assist in carrying out effectively the insurance programs for which such Funds were respectively established.”

(b) Section 213 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by inserting before the period at the end of subsection (a) the following: “: Provided, That as applied to mortgages the mortgage insurance for which is the obligation of the Management Fund, the reference to the General Insurance Fund in section 207(b) (2) shall be construed to refer to the Management Fund”; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of subsection (e) the following: “: Provided, That as applied to mortgages or loans the insurance for which is the obligation of the Management Fund (1) all references to the General Insurance Fund shall be construed to refer to the Management Fund, and (2) all references to section 207 shall be construed to refer to subsections (a) (1), (a) (3) (if the project involved is acquired by a cooperative corporation), (i), and (j) of this section”.

REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 209. Section 220(d)(3)(A) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out the second proviso in clause (i); and

(2) by striking out clause (ii) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

“(ii) in a case where the mortgagor is not the occupant of the property and intends to hold the property for rental purposes, have a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed 93 per centum of the amount computed under the provisions of clause (i);

“(iii) in a case where the mortgagor is not the occupant of the property and intends to hold the property for the purpose of sale, have a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed 85 per centum of the amount computed under the provisions of clause (i), or in the alternative, in an amount equal to the amount computed under the provisions of clause (i) if the mortgagor and mortgagee assume responsibility in a manner satisfactory to the Commissioner for the reduction of the mortgage by an amount not less than 15 per centum of the outstanding principal amount thereof, or by such greater amount as may be required to meet the limitations of clause (iv), in the event the mortgaged property is not, prior to the due date of the eighteenth amortization payment of the mortgage, sold to a purchaser acceptable to the Commissioner who is the occupant of the property and who assumes and agrees to pay the mortgage indebtedness; and

“(iv) in no case involving refinancing (except as provided in clause (iii)) have a principal obligation in an amount exceeding the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Commissioner) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property or project, plus any existing indebtedness incurred in connection with improving, repairing, or rehabilitating the property; or”.

NONDWELLING FACILITIES FOR URBAN RENEWAL HOUSING

SEC. 210. Section 220(d)(3)(B) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out clause (iv) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

“(iv) include such nondwelling facilities as the Commissioner deems desirable and consistent with the urban renewal plan: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage shall be found by the Commissioner to contribute to the economic feasibility of the project, and the Commissioner shall give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community.”

LARGER HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS IN HIGH COST AREAS

SEC. 211. (a) Section 220(h)(2)(i) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof “: Provided, That the Commissioner may, by regulation, increase such amount by not to exceed 45 per centum in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require”.

(b) Section 220(h)(11) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof “or such additional amount as the Commissioner has by regulation prescribed in any geographical area where he finds cost levels so require pursuant to the authority vested in him by the proviso in paragraph (2)(i) of this subsection”.

LARGER INSURED MORTGAGES FOR SERVICEMEN

SEC. 212. Section 222(b) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “$20,000” in paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof “$30,000”; and

(2) by striking out paragraph (3) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

“(3) have a principal obligation not in excess of the sum of (i) 97 per centum of $15,000 of the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, (ii) 90 per centum of such value in excess of $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and (iii) 85 per centum of such value in excess of $20,000; and”.

REFINANCING OF INSURED MORTGAGES

SEC. 213. Section 223(a)(7) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out “section 608 of title VI prior to the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954 or under section 220, 221, 903, or section 908” and inserting in lieu thereof “this Act”.

CONSOLIDATION OF FHA INSURANCE FUNDS

SEC. 214. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

“ESTABLISHMENT OF GENERAL INSURANCE FUND

“SEC. 519. (a) There is hereby created a General Insurance Fund which shall be used by the Commissioner, on and after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as a revolving fund for carrying out all the insurance provisions of this Act with the exception of those specified in subsection (e). All mortgages or loans insured under this Act pursuant to commitments issued on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in subsection (e), and all loans reported for insurance under section 2 on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, shall be insured under the General Insurance Fund. The Commissioner shall transfer to the General Insurance Fund—

“(1) the assets and liabilities of all insurance accounts and funds, except the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund, existing under this Act immediately prior to the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

“(2) all outstanding commitments for insurance issued prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in subsection (e);

“(3) the insurance on all mortgages and loans insured prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except insurance specified in subsection (e); and

“(4) the insurance of all loans made by approved financial institutions pursuant to section 2 prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

“(b) The general expenses of the operations of the Federal Housing Administration relating to mortgages and loans which are the obligation of the General Insurance Fund may be charged to the General Insurance Fund.

“(c) Moneys in the General Insurance Fund not needed for the current operations of the Federal Housing Administration with respect to mortgages and loans which are the obligation of the General Insurance Fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of such Fund, or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States. The Commissioner may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in the open market debentures issued as obligations of the General Insurance Fund or issued prior to the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 under other provisions of this Act, except debentures issued under the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from other investments authorized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued.

“(d) Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, and appraisal and other fees received on account of the insurance of any mortgage or loan which is the obligation of the General Insurance Fund, the receipts derived from the property covered by such mortgages and loans and from the claims, debts, contracts, property, and security assigned to the Commissioner in connection therewith, and all earnings on the assets of the Fund shall be credited to the General Insurance Fund. The principal of, and interest paid and to be paid on, debentures which are the obligation of such Fund, cash insurance payments and adjustments, and expenses incurred in the handling, management, renovation, and disposal of properties acquired, in connection with mortgages and loans which are the obligation of such Fund, shall be charged to such Fund.

"(e) The General Insurance Fund shall not be used for carrying out the provisions of sections 203(b), 203(h), and 203(i), or the provisions of section 213 to the extent that they involve mortgages the insurance for which is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund created by section 213(k); and nothing in this section shall apply to or affect any mortgages, loans, commitments, or insurance under such provisions."

OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

SEC. 215. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 214 of this Act) the following new section:

"OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

"SEC. 520. (a) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act with respect to the payment of insurance benefits, the Commissioner is authorized, in his discretion, to pay in cash or in debentures any insurance claim or part thereof which is paid on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 on a mortgage or a loan which was insured under any section of this Act either before or after such date. If payment is made in cash, it shall be in an amount equivalent to the face amount of the debentures that would otherwise be issued plus an amount equivalent to the interest which the debentures would have earned, computed to a date to be established pursuant to regulations issued by the Commissioner.

"(b) The Commissioner is authorized to borrow from the Treasury from time to time such amounts as the Commissioner shall determine are necessary to make payments in cash (in lieu of issuing debentures guaranteed by the United States, as provided in this Act) pursuant to the provisions of this section. Notes or other obligations issued by the Commissioner in borrowing under this subsection shall be subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. Each sum borrowed pursuant to this subsection shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States of comparable maturities during the month preceding the issuance of such notes or other obligations."

APPROVAL OF TECHNICALLY SUITABLE MATERIALS

SEC. 216. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after section 520 (added by section 215 of this Act) a new section as follows:

"APPROVAL OF TECHNICALLY SUITABLE MATERIALS

"SEC. 521. The Commissioner shall adopt a uniform procedure for the acceptance of materials and products to be used in structures approved for mortgages or loans insured under this Act. Under such procedure any material or product which the Commissioner finds is technically suitable for the use proposed shall be accepted. Acceptance of a material or product as technically suitable shall not be deemed to restrict the discretion of the Commissioner to determine that a structure, with respect to which a mortgage is executed, is economically sound or an acceptable risk."

WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES IN CONNECTION WITH CERTAIN FED-ERALLY ASSISTED HOUSING

SEC. 217. (a) Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after section 521 (added by section 216 of this Act) a new section as follows:

"WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

"SEC. 522. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, no mortgage which covers new construction shall be approved for insurance under this Act (except pursuant to a commitment made prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965) if the mortgaged property includes housing which is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system: Provided, That this limitation shall be applicable only to property which is not served by a system approved by the Commissioner pursuant to title X of this Act and which is situated in an area certified by appropriate local officials to be an area where the establishment of public or adequate community water and sewerage systems is economically feasible: Provided further, That for purposes of this section the economic feasibility of establishing such public or adequate community water and sewerage systems shall be determined without regard to whether such establishment is authorized by law or is subject to approval by one or more local governments or public bodies."

(b) Section 1804 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(e) No loan for the purchase or construction of new residential property (other than property served by a water and sewerage system approved by the Federal Housing Commissioner pursuant to title X of the National Housing Act) shall be financed through the assistance of this chapter, except pursuant to a commitment made prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, if such property is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system and is located in an area where the appropriate local officials certify that the establishment of such systems is economically feasible. For purposes of this subsection, the economic feasibility of establishing public or adequate community water and sewerage systems shall be determined without regard to whether such establishment is authorized by law or is subject to approval by one or more local governments or public bodies."

TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL

STUDY OF HOUSING AND BUILDING CODES, ZONING, TAX POLICIES, AND DEVELOPMENT STANDARDS

SEC. 301. (a) The Congress finds that the general welfare of the Nation requires that local authorities be encouraged and aided to prevent slums, blight, and sprawl, preserve natural beauty, and provide for decent, dur- able housing so that the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family may be realized as soon as feasible. The Congress further finds that there is a need to study housing and building codes, zoning, tax policies, and development standards in order to determine how (1) local property owners and private enterprise can be encouraged to serve as large a part as they can of the total housing and building need, and (2) Federal, State, and local governmental assistance can be so directed as to place greater reliance on local property owners and private enterprise and enable them to serve a greater share of the total housing and building need. The Housing and Home Finance Administrator is therefore directed to study the structure of (1) State and local urban and suburban housing and building laws, standards, codes, and regulations and their impact on housing and building costs, how they can be simplified, improved, and enforced, at the local level, and what methods might be adopted to promote more uniform building codes and the acceptance of technical innovations including new building practices and materials; (2) State and local zoning and land use laws, codes, and regulations, to find ways by which States and localities may improve and utilize them in order to obtain further growth and development; and (3) Federal, State, and local tax policies with respect to their effect on land and property cost and on incentives to build housing and make improvements in existing structures.

(b) The Administrator shall submit a report based on such study to the President and to the Congress within 18 months after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 or the appropriation of funds for the study, whichever is later.

(c) There are authorized to be appropriated such funds as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section. Any funds so appropriated shall remain available until expended.

WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT

SEC. 302. (a)(1) Section 101 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(e) No loan or grant contract may be entered into by the Administrator for an urban renewal project unless he determines that (1) the workable program for community improvement presented by the locality pursuant to subsection (c) is of sufficient scope and content to furnish a basis for evaluation of the need for the urban renewal project; and (2) such project is in accord with the program.”

(2) The requirements imposed by the amendment made by paragraph (1) shall not be applicable to any project which received Federal recognition prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) Section 101(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: “Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in the case of a contract with an Indian tribe, band, or nation (or a public housing or other public agency for such tribe, band, or nation established under State or tribal law), the workable program and minimum standards housing code, referred to in the preceding sentence, may be presented to the Administrator by such tribe, band, or nation, and it shall be subject to the requirements of law with respect to such program and code only to the extent that such tribe, band, or nation has the legal jurisdiction and power to carry out such requirements.”

SEC. 303. Section 102(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out the first sentence of the second paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

“In order to facilitate proper preliminary planning for the attainment of the urban renewal objectives of this title, the Administrator may also make advances of funds (in addition to those authorized above) to local public agencies for the preparation of General Neighborhood Renewal Plans (as herein defined). A General Neighborhood Renewal Plan may be prepared for an area consisting of an urban renewal area or areas, together with any adjoining areas having specially related problems, and which is of such size that the urban renewal activities in the urban renewal area or areas may have to be initiated in stages, consistent with the capacity and resources of the respective local public agency or agencies, over an estimated period of not more than eight years.”; and

(2) by striking out the first numbered paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

“(1) in the interest of sound community planning, it is desirable that the urban renewal activities proposed for the area be planned in their entirety.”.

INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR CAPITAL GRANTS

SEC. 304. (a) The first sentence of section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out “$4,725,000,000” and inserting in lieu thereof “$4,700,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $675,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, by $725,000,000 on July 1, 1966, and by $750,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1967 and 1968”.

(b) The proviso in the first sentence of section 103(b) of such Act, and the second sentence of section 6(b) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, are repealed.

RELOCATION OF DISPLACED FROM URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

“(c)(1) There shall be a feasible method for the temporary relocation of individuals and families displaced from the urban renewal area, and there are or are being provided, in the urban renewal area or in other areas not generally less desirable in regard to public utilities and public and commercial facilities and at rents or prices within the financial means of the individuals and families displaced from the urban renewal area, decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings equal in number to the number of and available to such displaced individuals and families and reasonably accessible to their places of employment. The Administrator shall issue rules and regulations to aid in implementing the requirements of this subsection and in otherwise achieving the objectives of this title. Such rules and regulations shall require that there be established, at the earliest practicable time, for each urban renewal project involving the displacement of individuals, families, and business concerns occupying property in the urban renewal area, a relocation assistance program which shall include such measures, facilities, and services as may be necessary or appropriate in order (A) to determine the needs of such individuals, families, and business concerns for relocation assistance; (B) to provide information and assistance to aid in relocation and otherwise minimize the hardships of displacement, including information as to real estate agencies, brokers, and boards in or near the urban renewal area which deal in residential or business property that might be appropriate for the relocating of displaced individuals, families, and business concerns; and (C) to assure the necessary coordination of relocation activities with other project activities and other planned or proposed governmental actions in the community which may affect the carrying out of the relocation program, particularly planned or proposed low-rent housing projects to be constructed in or near the urban renewal area.

"(2) As a condition to further assistance after the enactment of this paragraph with respect to each urban renewal project involving the displacement of individuals and families, the Administrator shall require, within a reasonable time prior to actual displacement, satisfactory assurance by the local public agency that decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings as required by the first sentence of this subsection are available for the relocation of each such individual or family."

(b) Clause (iii) in the second proviso of section 101(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "section 105(c)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 105(c)(1)".

(c) The requirements imposed by the amendment made by subsection (a) of this section shall not be applicable to any project which received Federal recognition prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

REDEVELOPMENT IN ACCORDANCE WITH URBAN RENEWAL PLAN

SEC. 306. Section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, no contract shall be entered into for any loan or capital grant under this title with any local public agency unless the local public agency establishes, by evidence satisfactory to the Administrator, that any urban renewal project with respect to which such local public agency has received a loan or capital grant under this title has been, or will be, undertaken and carried out in substantial accordance with the urban renewal plan, and any amendments thereto, approved with respect to such project, and the terms of the contract for loan or capital grant covering such project."

USE OF GRANT OR LOAN FUNDS IN CODE ENFORCEMENT AND REHABILITATION PROJECTS

SEC. 307. The first unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs in section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by inserting "(A)" before "no contract"; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of the paragraph the following: ", and (B) not less than 10 per centum of the aggregate amount of (i) grants authorized to be contracted for under this title by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and subsequent Acts, and (ii) loans authorized to be made under section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964, shall be available for projects assisted with such grants or loans which involve primarily code enforcement and rehabilitation".

INCREASE IN NONRESIDENTIAL EXCEPTION

SEC. 308. The third unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs in section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out the period and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "And provided further, That the aggregate amount of capital grants made available under this title with respect to such projects after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 may be in an amount not to exceed (in addition to amounts previously available for such projects) 35 per centum of the amount of additional capital grants authorized under this title by such Act."

PRESERVATION OF HISTORIC STRUCTURES

SEC. 309. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

- (1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (7);
- (2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (8) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and";

- (3) by inserting a new paragraph (9) as follows:

"(9) relocating within the project area a structure which the local public agency determines to be of historic value and which will be disposed of to a public body or a private nonprofit organization which will renovate and maintain such structure for historic purposes."; and

- (4) by striking out "paragraphs (7) and (8)" in the second unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraphs (7), (8), and (9)".

(b) Section 110(e) of such Act is amended by striking out "and (8)" in clause (i) and inserting in lieu thereof "(8), and (9)".

ELIGIBILITY OF CERTAIN EXPENSES OF PROJECTS FINANCED ON THREE-FOURTHS GRANT BASIS

SEC. 310. (a) Clause (i) of the third sentence of section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by (1) inserting "staff services in connection with programs of code enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation and repair (including community organization)," after "disposition of land,"; and (2) inserting "(5)," after "(4),".

(b) Any contract for a capital grant under title I of the Housing Act of 1949, executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act, may be amended to incorporate the provisions of subsection (a) as to costs incurred on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

DEMOLITION OF UNSAFE STRUCTURES; CODE ENFORCEMENT

SEC. 311. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after section 115 (added by section 106 of this Act) two new sections as follows:

"DEMOLITION

"SEC. 116. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties to assist in financing the cost of demolishing structures which under State or local law have been determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation, and which such city, municipality, or county has authority to demolish. The amount of any grant under this section shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the demolition of such structures.

"(b) No grant shall be made under this section unless the structures to be demolished are located in an urban renewal area, or, in the case of structures outside an urban renewal area, (1) the locality involved has an approved workable program for community improvement in accordance with the requirements of section 101(c), as determined by the Administrator, (2) the demolition to be assisted will be on a planned neighborhood basis and will further the over-all renewal objectives of such locality, (3) there is in such locality a program of enforcement of existing local housing and related codes, (4) the structures to be demolished constitute a public nuisance and a serious hazard to the public health or welfare, and (5) the governing body of such locality has determined that other available legal procedures have been exhausted to secure remedial action by the owner of the structures involved and that demolition by governmental action is required.

"CODE ENFORCEMENT

"SEC. 117. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the purpose of assisting such localities in carrying out programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas in which such enforcement, together with those public improvements to be provided by the locality, may be expected to arrest the decline of the area. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any city, other municipality, or county having a population of 50,000 or less according to the most recent decennial census) of the cost of planning and carrying out such programs which may include the provision and repair of necessary streets, curbs, sidewalks, street lighting, tree planting, and similar improvements within such areas. The Administrator shall not make any grant under this section unless he has obtained adequate assurances (1) that the locality will maintain during the period of the contract, in addition to its expenditures for planning and carrying out any program assisted under this section, a level of expenditures for code enforcement activities at not less than its normal expenditures for such activities prior to the execution of such contract, and (2) that the locality has a satisfactory program for the provision of all necessary public improvements for such areas. The provisions of sections 101(c), 106, 114, and 115 shall be applicable to activities and undertakings assisted under this section to the same extent as if such activities and undertakings were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project."

(b) Section 110(c) of such Act is amended by—

(1) striking out "or a program of code enforcement in an urban renewal area," in the first sentence; and

(2) striking out the proviso in paragraph (5).

(c) Section 220(d)(1)(A) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the first proviso the following: " , or (iv) an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949".

(d) Section 220(h)(1) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after "urban renewal project" in the first sentence the following: "or in an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949".

(e) Section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended by inserting after "urban renewal area" in the first sentence the following: "or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949".

REHABILITATION LOANS

SEC. 312. (a) Section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended by striking out "reasonable" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "comparable".

(b) Section 312(d) of such Act is amended by striking out "$50,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$100,000,000 for each fiscal year", and by adding at the end thereof a new sentence as follows: "All moneys in such revolving fund shall be available for necessary expenses of servicing loans made pursuant to this section, including reimbursement or payment for services and facilities of the Federal National Mortgage Association and of any public or private agency for the servicing of such loans."

(c) Section 312 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) No loan shall be made under the authority of this section after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a contract, commitment, or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date."

ELIGIBILITY OF COMMUNITIES IN DEPRESSED AREAS FOR URBAN RENEWAL ASSISTANCE

SEC. 313. (a) Subparagraph (B) of section 103(a)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"(B) three-fourths of the aggregate net project costs of any such projects which are located in (i) a municipality having a population of fifty thousand or less according to the most recent decennial census, or (ii) a municipality situated in a labor market area which, at the time the contract or contracts involved are entered into or at such earlier time as the Administrator may specify in order to avoid hardship, is designated as a redevelopment area under the second sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act or any other legislation enacted after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 containing standards for designation as a redevelopment area generally comparable to those set forth in the second sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act, and".

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply only with respect to urban renewal projects placed under contract for capital grant on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, except that such amendment shall apply with respect to all urban renewal projects in the city of Providence, Rhode Island, placed under contract for capital grant during the period Providence was designated as a redevelopment area under section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act (or at such earlier time as the Administrator may specify in order to avoid hardship) and not completed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

LOCAL GRANT-IN-AID CREDIT FOR CERTAIN COAL ROYALTIES

SEC. 314. (a) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Where a project in any municipality includes an area affected by an underground mine fire or by a coal mine subsidence and where it is necessary in such project to remove any underlying coal deposits in order to stabilize the soil or to control the underground mine fire, then any royalties received by the project from the removal and sale of such coal deposits shall be credited to the project as a local grant-in-aid made by such municipality."

(b) Any contract under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act shall, at the request of the municipality involved, be amended to reflect the amendment made by subsection (a).

SPECIFIC URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS

SEC. 315. (a)(1) Notwithstanding the date of the commencement of construction of the Tanyard Creek collector sanitary sewer in Jasper, Alabama, local expenditures made in connection with this collector sanitary sewer system shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the downtown urban renewal project (Alabama R-49) in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

(2) Notwithstanding the date of the commencement of construction of the East Side High School and the start of construction of the improvements to Hickory Creek in Joliet, Illinois, expenditures made in connections with such high school and such creek improvements shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the proposed south central urban renewal project in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

(3) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of the installation of certain underground electrical wiring in Johnson City, Tennessee, expenditures made in connection with such installation shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to Johnson City's proposed downtown urban renewal project (Tennessee R-80) in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

(4) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 312 of the Housing Act of 1954 or any request previously made pursuant to such section, upon request of the local public agency the eligibility of the local grants-in-aid for any project in the city of New Brunswick, New Jersey, in connection with which the final capital grant payment has not been made, shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949.

(5) Two-thirds of all expenditures by the city of Saint Louis, Missouri, in connection with its Downtown Sports Stadium project, to the extent such expenditures would have been eligible under the provisions of section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 to be counted as non-cash grants-in-aid toward such project if it had received Federal assistance as an urban renewal project pursuant to the provisions of title I of such Act, shall be eligible to be counted as a grant-in-aid toward any federally-assisted urban renewal projects in Saint Louis.

(6) Notwithstanding the extent to which the cultural and convention center proposed to be built adjacent to Urban Renewal Project Colorado R-15 (Skyline) in Denver, Colorado, may benefit areas other than the urban renewal area, expenses incurred by the city of Denver in constructing such center shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a grant-in-aid toward such project.

(7) Notwithstanding the extent to which the cultural and convention center proposed to be built within Urban Renewal Project R-8 in Norfolk, Virginia, may benefit areas other than the urban renewal area, expenses incurred by the city of Norfolk in constructing such center shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a grant-in-aid toward such project.

(8) Expenses incurred in the construction of the Glenn Duncan Elementary School and the Fred W. Traner Junior High School in Reno, Nevada, shall not be deemed to be ineligible as a local grant-in-aid in connection with the Northeast Urban Renewal Project (Nevada R-2) because of any change in the urban renewal plan for such project which is determined by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator to have resulted from the proposed location of a federally-aided highway within or adjacent to the urban renewal area in which such project was undertaken. For the purpose of computing the portion of the cost of such schools which may be allowed as a local grant-in-aid, the degree of benefit of the schools to such urban renewal area shall be based on the latest estimate of benefit submitted by the local public agency and accepted by the Administrator prior to such change in the urban renewal plan.

(9) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 112(a) of the Housing Act of 1949, expenditures in the amount of $600,000 made by the Memorial Hospital of Michigan City Foundation, Incorporated, for the purchase of certain land and buildings on or about July 24, 1963, from Doctors Hospital Realty Corporation shall, if otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid to the community center numbered 1 urban renewal project (Indiana R-46) in Michigan City, Indiana, in accordance with the remaining provisions of title I of that Act.

(10) The provisions of section 113(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 shall be applicable to the Hobo Jungle Urban Renewal Project in Texarkana, Arkansas (Arkansas R-3).

(11) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Pulaski, Showalter, and Smedley Junior High Schools, and the William Penn and Stetser Elementary Schools in Chester, Pennsylvania, local expenditures made in connection with such schools shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid for federally-assisted urban renewal projects in Chester that will be served by such schools.

(12) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, moneys heretofore expended by the University of Pennsylvania and Wilkes College for land (and related expenditures for demolition and relocation) included in the overall development plans proposed by such institutions and utilized, or to be utilized, in connection with new facilities of such institutions within one mile of urban renewal projects Pennsylvania 5-3 (University City) and Pennsylvania R-149 (Wright Street), respectively, shall, if otherwise eligible, be allowed as local grants-in-aid for such projects.

(13) Notwithstanding the June, 1956, commencement of certain flood control work in Ottumwa, Iowa, local expenditures in connection with such flood control work shall, to the extent otherwise eligible be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the Marina Gateway urban renewal project (Iowa

R-12) in accordance with the provisions of Title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

(b)(1) Notwithstanding the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949 and the United States Housing Act of 1937, the Housing and Home Finance Administrator and the Public Housing Commissioner are authorized and directed to consent to the transfer by the Housing Authority of the City of Macon, Georgia, to the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon, Georgia, of all property acquired by the Housing Authority for low-rent housing project numbered Georgia 7-8, on condition that (A) an amount which, together with any funds of the Housing Authority available for the purpose, is sufficient to pay and discharge all obligations incurred by the Housing Authority in connection with such low-rent housing project and owing at the time of transfer, will be paid by the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon to the Public Housing Administration to be applied in satisfaction of the Housing Authority's obligations which it cannot meet with its own funds available for the purpose, and (B) the total amount so paid by the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon will be included in the gross project cost of its Coliseum Urban Renewal Project, Georgia R-95.

(2) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator and the Public Housing Commissioner are authorized to modify any contracts heretofore entered into and to take any other appropriate action necessary to carry out the provisions of paragraph (1).

(c)(1) Notwithstanding any provision of the Housing Act of 1949 or any other provision of law, the urban renewal project in Savannah, Georgia, known as Project "J" in the General Neighborhood Renewal Plan for the Broad Street-Canal Urban Renewal Area adopted by resolution of the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Savannah on November 18, 1958, may include the donation by Housing Authority of Savannah, by a suitable instrument of conveyance, of the right, title, and interest of the Authority in and to all or any portion of the land included within the boundaries of such Project "J" in the City of Savannah, Chatham County, Georgia, the area of such Project "J" being generally bounded on the North by properties of the Central of Georgia Railway Company, on the East by West Broad Street, on the South by the right-of-way for Interstate Highway No. I-16, and on the West by the Savannah and Ogeechee Canal and West Boundary Street.

(2) The conveyance authorized to be included in the urban renewal project under paragraph (1) shall be made only if the donee represents, and furnishes such assurances as may be required by Housing Authority of Savannah, that such donee will develop, preserve, and operate such property on a nonprofit basis as a historical site or monument.

LEASE GUARANTEES FOR CERTAIN SMALL BUSINESS CONCERNS

SEC. 316. (a) The Small Business Investment Act of 1958 is amended by adding after title III a new title as follows:

"TITLE IV—LEASE GUARANTEES

"AUTHORITY OF THE ADMINISTRATION

"SEC. 401. (a) The Administration may, whenever it determines such action to be necessary or desirable, and upon such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, guarantee the payment of rentals under leases of commercial and industrial property entered into by small business concerns that are (1) eligible for loans under section 7(b)(3) of the Small Business Act, or (2) eligible for loans under title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, to enable such concerns to obtain such leases. Any such guarantee may be made or effected either directly or in cooperation with any qualified surety company or other qualified company through a participation agreement with such company. The foregoing powers shall be subject, however, to the following restrictions and limitations:

"(1) No guarantee shall be issued by the Administration (A) if a guarantee meeting the requirements of the applicant is otherwise available on reasonable terms, and (B) unless the Administration determines that there exists a reasonable expectation that the small business concern in behalf of which the guarantee is issued will perform the covenants and conditions of the lease.

"(2) The Administration shall, to the greatest extent practicable, exercise the powers conferred by this section in cooperation with qualified surety or other companies on a participation basis.

"(b) The Administration shall fix a uniform annual fee for its share of any guarantee under this section which shall be payable in advance at such time as may be prescribed by the Administrator. The amount of any such fee shall be determined in accordance with sound actuarial practices and procedures, to the extent practicable, but in no case shall such amount exceed, on the Administration's share of any guarantee made under this title, 2½ per centum per annum of the minimum annual guaranteed rental payable under any guaranteed lease: Provided, That the Administration shall fix the lowest fee that experience under the program established hereby has shown to be justified. The Administration may also fix such uniform fees for the processing of applications for guarantees under this section as the Administrator determines are reasonable and necessary to pay the administrative expenses that are incurred in connection therewith.

"(c) In connection with the guarantee of rentals under any lease pursuant to authority conferred by this section, the Administrator may require, in order to minimize the financial risk assumed under such guarantee—

"(1) that the lessee pay an amount, not to exceed one-fourth of the minimum guaranteed annual rental required under the lease, which shall be held in escrow and shall be available (A) to meet rental charges accruing in any month for which the lessee is in default, or (B) if no default occurs during the term of the lease, for application (with accrued interest) toward final payments of rental charges under the lease;

"(2) that upon occurrence of a default under the lease, the lessor shall, as a condition precedent to enforcing any claim under the lease guarantee, utilize the entire period, for which there are funds available in escrow for payment of rentals, in reasonably diligent efforts to eliminate or minimize losses, by releasing the commercial or industrial property covered by the lease to another qualified tenant, and no claim shall be made or paid under the guarantee until such effort has been made and such escrow funds have been exhausted;

"(3) that any guarantor of the lease will become a successor of the lessor for the purpose of collecting from a lessee in default rentals which are in arrears and with respect to which the lessor has received payment under a guarantee made pursuant to this section; and

"(4) such other provisions, not inconsistent with the purposes of this title, as the Administrator may in his discretion require.

"POWERS

"SEC. 402. Without limiting the authority conferred upon the Administrator and the Administration by section 201 of this Act, the Administrator and the Administration shall have, in the performance of and with respect to the functions, powers, and duties conferred by this title, all the authority and be subject to the same conditions prescribed in section 5(b) of the Small Business Act with respect to loans, including the authority to execute subleases, assignments of lease and new leases with any person, firm, organization, or other entity, in order to aid in the liquidation of obligations of the Administration hereunder.

"FUND

"SEC. 403. There is hereby established a revolving fund for use by the Administration in carrying out the provisions of this title. Initial capital for such fund shall consist of not to exceed $5,000,000 transferred from the fund established under section 4(c) of the Small Business Act: Provided, That the last sentence of such section 4(c) shall not apply to any amounts so transferred. Into the fund established by this section there shall be deposited all receipts from the guarantee program authorized by this title. Moneys in such fund not needed for the payment of current operating expenses or for the payment of claims arising under such program may be invested in bonds or other obligations of, or bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States; except that moneys provided as initial capital for such fund shall be returned to the fund established by section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, in such amounts and at such times as the Administration determines to be appropriate, whenever the level of the fund herein established is sufficiently high to permit the return of such moneys without danger to the solvency of the program under this title."

(b) Section 201 of such Act is amended by striking out the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The powers conferred by this Act upon the Administration and upon the Administrator, with the exception of those conferred by titles IV and V hereof, shall be exercised through the Small Business Investment Division and through the Deputy Administrator appointed hereunder. The powers conferred by this Act upon the Administration and upon the Administrator by titles IV and V hereof shall be exercised through such division, section, or other personnel as the Administrator in his discretion shall determine."

(c) The table of contents of such Act is amended by inserting after the analysis of title III the following:

"TITLE IV—LEASE GUARANTEES"Sec. 401. Authority of the Administration."Sec. 402. Powers."Sec. 403. Fund."(d) Section 4(c) of the Small Business Act is amended—(1) by striking out "$1,716,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$1,721,000,000,"; and(2) by striking out the period at the end of the fifth sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: " : Provided, That such limitation shall not apply to functions under title IV thereof."AMENDMENT OF SECTION 316 OF THE HOUSING ACT OF 1954SEC. 317. The first full paragraph of section 316(2) of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended by striking out the first parenthetical clause and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "(as such projects are now or may hereafter be defined in title I of the Housing Act of 1949, including but not limited to projects authorized without regard to the residential or nonresidential character or reuse of the urban renewal area)".TITLE IV—COMPENSATION OF CONDEMNEEESDEFINITIONSSEC. 401. For the purposes of this title—(1) the term "development program" means any program established by or conducted under any of the following provisions of law:(A) the United States Housing Act of 1937;(B) title I of the Housing Act of 1949;(C) the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964;(D) title II of the Housing Amendments of 1955;(E) title VII of the Housing Act of 1961; and(F) title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;(2) the term "Federal assistance" means a grant, loan, contract of guaranty, annual contribution, or other assistance provided by the United States;(3) the term "applicant" means any public body or other agency authorized to receive Federal assistance under a development program;(4) the term "real property" means any land, or any interest in land, and (A) any building, structure, or other improvements embedded in or affixed to land, and any article so affixed or attached to such building, structure, or improvement as to be an essential or integral part thereof; (B) any article affixed or attached to such real property in such manner that it cannot be removed without material injury to itself or the real property; and (C) any article so designed, constructed, or specially adapted to the purpose for which such real property is used that (i) it is an essential accessory or part of such real property, (ii) it is not capable of use elsewhere, and (iii) it would lose substantially all its value if removed from the real property; and(5) the term "Administrator" means the Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

LAND ACQUISITION POLICY

SEC. 402. As a condition of eligibility for Federal assistance pursuant to a development program, each applicant for such assistance shall satisfy the Administrator that the following policies will be followed in connection with the acquisition of real property by eminent domain in the course of such program—

(1) the applicant shall make every reasonable effort to acquire the real property by negotiated purchase;

(2) no owner shall be required to surrender possession of real property before the applicant pays to the owner (A) the agreed purchase price arrived at by negotiation, or (B) in any case where only the amount of the payment to the owner is in dispute, not less than 75 per centum of the appraised fair value of such property as approved by the applicant; and

(3) the construction or development of any public improvements shall be so scheduled that no person lawfully occupying the real property shall be required to surrender possession on account of such construction or development without at least 90 days' written notice from the applicant of the date on which such construction or development is scheduled to begin.

FUNDS FOR CERTAIN PAYMENTS IN EMINENT DOMAIN

SEC. 403. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, financial assistance under any federally assisted development program may include amounts necessary for financing, in the same manner that other costs of a project assisted under such program are financed, the payments described in paragraph (2)(B) of section 402 of this Act.

RELOCATION PAYMENTS UNDER FEDERALLY ASSISTED DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

SEC. 404. (a) To the extent not otherwise authorized under any Federal law, financial assistance extended to an applicant under any federally assisted development program may include grants for relocation payments, as herein defined. Such grants may be in addition to other financial assistance under such federally assisted development programs, and may cover the full amount of such relocation payments. Any funds available for any such program may be used for such grants. The term "relocation payments" means payments by the applicant, to a displaced individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organization, which are made on such terms and conditions and subject to such limitations (to the extent applicable, but not including the date of displacement) as are provided for relocation payments, at the time such payments are approved, by sections 114 (b), (c), and (d) of the Housing Act of 1949 with respect to projects assisted under title I thereof. Relocation payments authorized by this subsection shall be made subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Administrator.

(b) Section 114(b)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "$1,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$2,500".

(c)(1) Section 114 of such Act is further amended by redesignating subsection (d) as subsection (e) and by inserting after subsection (c) the following new subsection:

"(d) In addition to payments authorized to be made under subsections (b) and (c), a local public agency may pay to any displaced individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organization reasonable and necessary expenses incurred for (1) recording fees, transfer taxes, and similar expenses incidental to conveying real property to a project assisted under this title, (2) penalty costs for prepayment of any mortgage encumbering such real property, and (3) the pro rata portion of real property taxes allocable to a period subsequent to the date of vesting of title or the effective date of the acquisition of such real property by such agency, whichever is earlier."

(2) Section 15(8) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "section 114 (b) or (c)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 114 (b), (c), and (d)".

(d) Subsection (a) shall not be applicable with respect to any displacement occurring prior to the date of the enactment of this Act (or prior to March 4, 1965, in the case of the programs specified in subparagraphs (C) and (E) of section 401(1)).

TITLE V—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

ACCEPTANCE OF LOCAL CERTIFICATION OF EQUIVALENT ELIMINATION

SEC. 501. The fourth sentence of section 10(a) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting immediately after "elimination", where it first appears, the following: ", as certified by the local governing body".

GREATER USE OF EXISTING HOUSING

SEC. 502. Section 10(c) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "And provided" and inserting in lieu thereof "Provided", and by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ": And provided further, That the amount of the fixed annual contribution which would be established under this Act for a newly constructed project by a public housing agency designed to accommodate a number of families of a given size and kind may be established, as a maximum annual contribution in lieu of any other guaranteed contribution authorized under this section, for a project by such public housing agency which would provide housing for the comparable number, sizes, and kinds of families through the acquisition, acquisition and rehabilitation, or use under lease of existing structures which are suitable for low-rent housing use and obtainable in the local market".

INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR ANNUAL CONTRIBUTIONS

SEC. 503. (a) Section 10(e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting immediately following "per annum" the following: ", which limit shall be increased by $47,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and by further amounts of $47,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1966, 1967, and 1968, respectively".

REALLOCATION OF UNITS

SEC. 504. Section 10(e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "Provided," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Provided, That subject to any contractual obligation outstanding on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, any units not under construction within five years from the date they were reserved to a public housing agency may be reserved, allocated, or placed under contract for annual contributions in any State without limitation as to the aggregate amount of units which may be placed under contract for annual contributions in any one State: Provided further,".

SALE OF FEDERALLY-OWNED PROJECTS TO PRIVATE PURCHASERS

SEC. 505. The first sentence of section 12(c) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended to read as follows: "The Authority may sell a Federal project only to a public housing agency or to a nonprofit body for use as low-rent housing."

INCREASE IN PER ROOM LIMITATIONS

SEC. 506. Paragraph (5) of section 15 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended—

(1) by striking out "$2,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$2,400";

(2) by striking out "$3,000", each place it appears, and inserting in lieu thereof "$3,500"; and

(3) by striking out "$3,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$4,000".

PURCHASE OF UNITS BY TENANTS

SEC. 507. (a) Section 15 of the United States Housing Act is amended by adding after paragraph (8) a new paragraph as follows:

"(9) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, but subject to the provisions of any contract with the Authority, any public housing agency may permit any member of a tenant family to enter into a contract (either individually or as a member of a group) for the acquisition of a dwelling unit in any project of the public housing agency which is suitable by reason of its detached or semidetached construction for sale and for occupancy by such purchaser or a member or members of his family, upon the following terms:

"(A) The purchaser shall pay at least (i) a pro rata share cost of any services furnished him by the public agency, including but not limited to, administration, maintenance, repairs, utilities, insurance, provision of reserves, and other expenses, (ii) local taxes on his dwelling unit, and (iii) monthly payments of interest and principal sufficient to amortize a sales price, equal to the greater of the unamortized debt or the appraised value (at the time such purchase contract is entered into) of the dwelling unit, in not more than forty years: Provided, That the public housing agency may, under terms and conditions to be prescribed by it, permit a purchaser to apply an amount equal to the net rent paid for his dwelling unit, over a period not exceeding three years prior to the entering into of any such contract, toward the purchase price of such unit;

"(B) The interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the average interest cost of loans outstanding on the project, except that in the case of a project on which bonds are not outstanding the interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the going Federal rate applicable to such project;

"(C) The principal payments shall be not less than one-half of 1 per centum per annum of the sales price during the first five years after purchase, 1 per centum per annum during the next five years, $1\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per annum during the third five years, and thereafter not less than the principal payments resulting from a level debt service of interest and principal over the balance of the payment period; and

"(D) If at any time (i) a purchaser fails to carry out his contract with the public housing agency and if no member of his family who resides in the dwelling assumes such contract, or (ii) the purchaser or a member of his family who assumes the contract does not reside in the dwelling, the public housing agency shall have an option to acquire his interest under such contract upon payment to him or his estate of an amount equal to his aggregate principal payments plus the value to the public housing agency of any improvements made by him, less an amount equal to $2\frac{1}{2}$ per centum of the sales price."

(b) Such Act is further amended—

(1) by inserting in the parenthetical phrase in section 10(h) after the words "exclusive of" the following: "any part thereof covered by a contract or conveyed pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15, and exclusive of";

(2) by inserting after "may be made" in section 10(l) the following: ", subject to any outstanding contracts made pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15,";

(3) by inserting after "acquisition", the first place it appears in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 15, the following: "(except pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15)"; and

(4) by inserting before the semicolon at the end of paragraph (1) of section 22(a) a colon and the following: "Provided, That such conveyance or delivery of title shall be subject to the rights of third parties vested pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15".

TITLE VI—COLLEGE HOUSING

INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR COLLEGE HOUSING LOANS

SEC. 601. Section 401(d) of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by striking out "through 1964", each place it appears, and inserting in lieu thereof "through 1968".

INTEREST RATE ON COLLEGE HOUSING LOANS

SEC. 602. (a) Effective with respect to loan contracts entered into after the date of the enactment of this Act, section 401(c) of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by striking out "the higher of (1) $2\frac{3}{4}$ per centum per annum, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "the lower of (1) 3 per centum per annum, or".

(b) Effective with respect to notes or other obligations financing loan contracts entered into after the date of the enactment of this Act, section 401(e) of such Act is amended by striking out "the higher of (1) $2\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per annum, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "the lower of (1) $2\frac{3}{4}$ per centum per annum, or".

PARTICIPATION BY NEW COLLEGES AND CERTAIN PUBLIC VOCATIONAL AND TECHNICAL INSTITUTIONS

SEC. 603. Clause (1) of section 404(b) of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended to read as follows: "(1)(A) any educational institution which offers, or provides satisfactory assurance to the Administrator that it will offer within a reasonable time after completion of a facility for which assistance is requested under this title, at least a two-year program acceptable for full credit toward a baccalaureate degree (including any public educational institution, or any private educational institution no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual), or (B) any public educational institution which (i) is administered by a college or university which is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association, (ii) offers technical or vocational instruction, and (iii) provides residential facilities for some or all of the students receiving such instruction,".

TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

SEC. 604. (a) The second paragraph of section 404(b) of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by inserting after "would provide housing," the following: "or to a student housing cooperative corporation described in clause (5) of this subsection,".

(b) Section 401(g) of such Act is amended by striking out "In the case" and inserting in lieu thereof "Except as otherwise provided in the second paragraph of section 404(b), in the case".

TITLE VII—COMMUNITY FACILITIES

PURPOSE

SEC. 701. The purpose of this title is to assist and encourage the communities of the Nation fully to meet the needs of their citizens by making it possible, with Federal grant assistance, for their governmental bodies (1) to construct adequate basic water and sewer facilities needed to promote the efficient and orderly growth and development of our communities, (2) to construct neighborhood facilities needed to enable them to carry on programs of necessary social services, and (3) to acquire, in a planned and orderly fashion, land to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities.

GRANTS FOR BASIC WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

SEC. 702. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "Administrator") is authorized to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to finance specific projects for basic public water facilities (including works for the storage, treatment, purification, and distribution of water), and for basic public sewer facilities (other than "treatment works" as defined in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act): Provided, That no grant shall be made under this section for any sewer facilities unless the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare certifies to the Administrator that any waste material carried by such facilities will be adequately treated before it is discharged into any public waterway so as to meet applicable Federal, State, interstate, or local water quality standards.

(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the development cost of the project: Provided, That in the case of a community having a population of less than ten thousand, according to the most recent decennial census, which is situated within a metropolitan area, the Administrator may increase the amount of a grant for a basic public sewer facility assisted under this section to not more than 90 per centum of the development cost of such facility, if the community is unable to finance the construction of such facility without the increased grant authorized under this subsection, and if in such community (1) there does not exist a public or other adequate sewer facility which serves a substantial portion of the inhabitants of the community, and (2) the rate of unemployment is, and has been continuously for the preceding calendar year, 100 per centum above the national average: And provided further, That the limitations and restrictions contained in subsection (c) of this section shall not be applicable to any community applying for an increased grant under this subsection.

(c) No grant shall be made under this section in connection with any project unless the Administrator determines that the project is necessary to provide adequate water or sewer facilities for, and will contribute to the improvement of the health or living standards of, the people in the community to be served, and that the project is (1) designed so that an adequate capacity will be available to serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area; (2) consistent with a program meeting criteria, established by the Administrator, for a unified or officially coordinated areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area, except that prior to July 1, 1968, grants may, in the discretion of the Administrator, be made under this section when such a program for an areawide water and sewer facilities system is under active preparation, although not yet completed, if the facility or facilities for which assistance is sought can reasonably be expected to be required as a part of such program, and there is urgent need for the facility or facilities; and (3) necessary to orderly community development.

GRANTS FOR NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES

Sec. 703. (a) In accordance with the provisions of this section, the Administrator is authorized to make grants to any local public body or agency to assist in financing specific projects for neighborhood facilities. Any such project may be undertaken by such body or agency directly or through a nonprofit organization approved by it: Provided, That no grant shall be provided under this section for any project to be undertaken through a nonprofit organization unless the Administrator determines (1) that such organization has or will have the legal, financial, and technical capacity to carry out the project, and (2) that the public body or agency to which the grant is made will have satisfactory continuing control over the use of the proposed facilities.

(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed 66⅔ per centum of the development cost of the project for which the grant is made (or 75 per centum of such cost in the case of a project located in an area which at the time the grant is made is designated as a redevelopment area under the Area Redevelopment Act or any Act supplementary thereto).

(c) No grant shall be made under this section for any project unless the Administrator determines that the project will provide a neighborhood

facility which is (1) necessary for carrying out a program of health, recreational, social, or similar community service (including a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964) in the area, (2) consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community, and (3) so located as to be available for use by a significant portion (or number in the case of large urban places) of the area's low- or moderate-income residents.

(d) For a period of twenty years after a grant has been made under this section for a neighborhood facility, such facility shall not, without the approval of the Administrator, be converted to uses other than those proposed by the applicant in its application for a grant. The Administrator shall not approve any conversion in the use of such a neighborhood facility during such twenty-year period unless he finds that such conversion is in accordance with the then applicable program of health, recreational, social, or similar community services in the area and consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community in which the facility is located. In approving any such conversion, the Administrator may impose such additional conditions and requirements as he deems necessary.

(e) The Administrator shall give priority to applications for projects designed primarily to benefit members of low-income families or otherwise substantially further the objectives of a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist in the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works or facilities, the Administrator is authorized to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loan or other financial obligation incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not exceeding the lesser of (1) five years from the date such loan was made or such financial obligation was incurred, or (2) the period of time between the date such loan was made or such financial obligation was incurred and the date construction is begun on the public work or facility for which the land acquired was planned to be utilized.

(c) No grant shall be made under this section for any project for the acquisition of land unless the Administrator determines that the public work or facility for which such land is to be utilized is planned to be constructed or initiated within a reasonable period of time (not to exceed five years after a contract to make such grant is entered into) and that construction of such public work or facility will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area.

(d) As a condition to providing assistance under this section, the Administrator may, under terms and conditions prescribed by him, require an applicant to agree to repay such assistance, if (1) the land purchased with such assistance is not utilized within five years after the agreement is entered into in connection with the construction of the public work or facility for which such land was acquired, or (2) such land is diverted to other uses.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 705. (a) In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Administrator shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties set forth in section 402, except subsections (a), (c) (2), and (f) of the Housing Act of 1950.

(b) The Administrator is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made pursuant to this title. No part of any grant authorized to be made by the provisions of this title shall be used for the payment of ordinary governmental operating expenses.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 706. As used in this title—

(a) The term "State" means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the territories and possessions of the United States.

(b) The term "local public bodies and agencies" includes public corporate bodies or political subdivisions; public agencies or instrumentalities of one or more States, municipalities, or political subdivisions of one or more States (including public agencies and instrumentalities of one or more municipalities or other political subdivisions of one or more States); Indian tribes; and boards or commissions established under the laws of any State to finance specific capital improvement projects.

(c) The term "development cost" means the cost of constructing the facility and of acquiring the land on which it is located, including necessary site improvements to permit its use as a site for the facility.

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 707. All laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors on projects assisted under sections 702 and 703 shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a-5). No such project shall be approved without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work. The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in this section, the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 1332-15), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 948; 40 U.S.C. 276c).

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 708. (a) There are authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1965, and ending prior to July 1, 1969, not to exceed (1) $200,000,000 for grants under section 702, (2) $50,000,000 for grants under section 703, and (3) $25,000,000 for grants under section 704.

(b) Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1969.

TITLE VIII—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

INCREASE IN SPECIAL ASSISTANCE AUTHORITY

SEC. 801. (a) Section 305(c) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: “, which limit shall be increased by $100,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, by $450,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $550,000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by $525,000,000 on July 1, 1968”.

(b) Section 305(f) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: “: Provided further, That any portion of the total amount of authority set forth in the first proviso of this subsection, which (1) is not required under the second proviso of this subsection to be kept available for purchases and commitments with respect to mortgages insured under section 809, and (2), on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and on each July 1 thereafter, would otherwise be available for making new purchases and commitments pursuant to this subsection, shall be transferred to and merged with the authority granted by subsection (a) and added to the amount of such authority which is available, as of the date of the transfer, for purchases and commitments under subsection (c); and the total amount of authority as set forth in the first proviso of this subsection shall progressively be reduced by the amount of each such transfer”.

PURCHASE OF MORTGAGES HELD BY FEDERAL INSTRUMENTALITIES

SEC. 802. (a) Section 302 of the National Housing Act is amended by—

- (1) striking out “Federal,” in clause (2) in subsection (b);
- (2) inserting before “first mortgages” in the first sentence of subsection (c) the following: “obligations offered to it by the Housing and Home Finance Agency or its Administrator, or by such Agency’s constituent units or agencies or the heads thereof, or any”; and
- (3) inserting “and other obligations” after “mortgages” in the last sentence of subsection (c).

(b) Section 306(e) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

“(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Association is authorized, under the aforesaid separate accountability, to make commitments to purchase, and to purchase, service, or sell any obligations offered to it by the Housing and Home Finance Agency or its Administrator, or by such Agency’s constituent units or agencies or the heads thereof, or any mortgages covering residential property offered to it by any Federal instrumentality, or the head thereof. There shall be excluded from the total amounts set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any obligations or mortgages purchased by the Association pursuant to this subsection.”

PURCHASE OF BELOW-MARKET INTEREST RATE MORTGAGES

SEC. 803. Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: “Notwithstanding the provisions of clause (3) in the preceding sentence, the Association may purchase a mortgage under section 305 with an original principal obligation that exceeds $17,500 per dwelling unit if the mortgage (1) is a below-market interest rate mortgage insured under section 221

(d)(3), and (2) covers property which has the benefit of local tax abatement in an amount determined by the Federal Housing Commissioner to be sufficient to make possible rentals not in excess of those that would be approved by the Commissioner if the mortgage amount did not exceed $17,500 per dwelling unit and if local tax abatement were not provided."

INCREASE IN LIMITATION ON MORTGAGES FOR DWELLING UNITS HAVING
FOUR OR MORE BEDROOMS

SEC. 804. Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: "(plus an additional $2,500 for each such family residence or dwelling unit which has four or more bedrooms)".

TITLE IX—OPEN-SPACE LAND AND URBAN
BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

CHANGE IN NAME OF PROGRAM; FINDINGS AND PURPOSE

SEC. 901. (a) The heading of title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE VII—OPEN-SPACE LAND AND URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT"

(b) Section 701 of such Act is amended by redesignating subsection (b) as subsection (c) and inserting after subsection (a) a new subsection as follows:

"(b) The Congress further finds that there is an urgent need both for the additional provision of parks and other open-space areas in the developed portions of the Nation's urban areas and for greater and better coordinated local efforts to beautify and improve open space and other public land throughout urban areas to facilitate their increased use and enjoyment by the Nation's urban population."

(c) Section 701(c) of such Act (as redesignated by subsection (b) of this section) is amended—

(1) by striking out "preserve" and inserting in lieu thereof "(1) provide, preserve, and develop"; and

(2) by striking out "purposes." and inserting in lieu thereof "uses, and (2) beautify and improve open space and other public urban land, in accordance with programs to encourage and coordinate local public and private efforts toward this end."

DEVELOPMENT GRANTS FOR OPEN-SPACE USES

SEC. 902. (a) The first sentence of section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended—

(1) by inserting "and development" after "acquisition" the first place it appears; and

(2) by inserting before the period the following: ", and the development, for open-space uses, of land acquired under this title".

(b) Section 702(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "development costs or".

(c) Section 709 of such Act (as redesignated by section 906 of this Act) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(4) The term 'open-space uses' means any use of open-space land for (A) park and recreational purposes, (B) conservation of land and other natural resources, or (C) historic or scenic purposes."

INCREASED GRANT LEVEL FOR PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF OPEN-SPACE LAND

SEC. 903. The second sentence of section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: "The amount of any such grant shall not exceed 50 per centum of the total cost, as approved by the Administrator, of such acquisition and development."

CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 904. Section 702(b) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by striking out "$75,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$310,000,000: Provided, That of such sum the Administrator may contract to make grants under section 705 aggregating not to exceed $64,000,000, and grants under section 706 aggregating not to exceed $36,000,000".

OPEN-SPACE PLANNING AND PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 905. Section 703(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows:

"(a) The Administrator shall enter into contracts to make grants under sections 702 and 705 of this title only if he finds that such assistance is needed for carrying out a unified or officially coordinated program, meeting criteria established by him, for the provision and development of open-space land as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area."

GRANTS FOR PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT-UP URBAN AREAS AND FOR URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

SEC. 906. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by redesignating sections 705 and 706 as sections 708 and 709, respectively, and by inserting after section 704 two new sections as follows:

"GRANTS FOR PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT-UP URBAN AREAS

"SEC. 705. The Administrator is further authorized to enter into contracts to make grants to States and local public bodies to help finance the acquisition of title to, or other permanent interests in, developed land in built-up portions of urban areas to be cleared and used as permanent open-space land. The Administrator shall make such grants only where the local governing body determines that adequate open-space land cannot effectively be provided through the use of existing undeveloped or predominantly undeveloped land. Grants under this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the cost of acquiring such interests and of necessary demolition and removal of improvements.

"GRANTS FOR URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

"SEC. 706. The Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make grants, as herein provided, to States and local public bodies to assist in carrying out local programs for the greater use and enjoyment of open-space and other public land in urban areas. The Administrator shall establish criteria for such programs to assure that each program (1) represents significant and effective efforts, involving all available public and private resources, for the beautification of such land and its improvement for open-space uses; and (2) is important to the comprehensively planned development of the locality. Grants made under this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the amount by which the cost of the activities carried on by an applicant during a fiscal year under an approved program exceeds its usual expenditures for comparable activities: Provided, That, notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Administrator may use not to exceed $5,000,000 of the sum authorized for contracts under this section for the purpose of entering into contracts to make grants in amounts not to exceed 90 per centum of the cost of activities which he determines have special value in developing and demonstrating new and improved methods and materials for use in carrying out the purposes of this section."

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 907. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is further amended by inserting after section 706 (as added by section 906 of this Act) the following new section:

"LABOR STANDARDS

"SEC. 707. (a) The Administrator shall take such action as may be necessary to insure that all laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors in the performance of construction work financed with the assistance of grants under this title shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended. The Administrator shall not approve any such grant without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work.

"(b) The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in subsection (a), the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 1332-15), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 948; 40 U.S.C. 276c)."

USE OF FUNDS FOR STUDIES AND PUBLICATION

SEC. 908. The second sentence of section 708 of the Housing Act of 1961 (as redesignated by section 906 of this Act) is amended to read as follows: "The Administrator is authorized to use during any fiscal year not to exceed $50,000 of the funds available for grants under this title to undertake such studies and publish such information."

CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

SEC. 909. (a) The heading of section 702 of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: "GRANTS FOR PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF OPEN-SPACE LAND".

(b) Section 702(a) of such Act is amended by striking out "acceptable to the Administrator as capable of carrying out the provisions of this title".

(c) Section 702(e) of such Act is amended by striking out in the second sentence "served by the open-space land acquired" and inserting in lieu thereof "assisted".

(d) Section 704 of such Act is amended by striking out in the first sentence "for which" and inserting in lieu thereof "for the acquisition of which".

TITLE X—RURAL HOUSING

LOANS FOR PREVIOUSLY OCCUPIED BUILDINGS AND MINIMUM SITE ACQUISITION

SEC. 1001. (a) Section 501(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by inserting after "their farms," in clause (1) the following: "and to purchase previously occupied buildings and land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order"; and

(2) by inserting after "rural areas" in clause (2) the following: "for the construction, improvement, alteration, or repair of dwellings, related facilities, and farm buildings and to rural residents for such purposes and for the purchase of previously occupied buildings and the purchase of land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order".

(b) Section 501(c) of such Act is amended by inserting "or a rural resident" in clause (1) after "or that he is the owner of other real estate in a rural area".

INTEREST RATE ON DIRECT RURAL HOUSING LOANS

SEC. 1002. Section 502(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "with interest at a rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "with interest, in the case of applicants described in clauses (1) and (2) of section 501(a), at a rate not to exceed 5 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, and, in the case of applicants described in clause (3) of section 501(a) and applicants under sections 503 and 504, at a rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on such unpaid balance. Loans made or insured under this title shall be conditioned on the borrower paying such fees and other charges as the Secretary may require".

INSURED RURAL HOUSING LOANS

SEC. 1003. (a) Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sections:

"INSURED RURAL HOUSING LOANS

"SEC. 517. (a) The Secretary may insure loans meeting the requirements of section 502, and may make loans in accordance with the requirements of such section to be sold and insured; except that such loans shall—

"(1) if the borrowers are persons of low or moderate income (as defined by the Secretary), (A) not exceed amounts necessary to provide adequate housing, modest in size, design, and cost (as determined by the Secretary), (B) bear interest at a rate not to exceed 5 per centum per annum, and (C) not exceed in the aggregate $300,000,000 of new loans made or insured in any one fiscal year; and

"(2) if the borrowers are persons other than those described in clause (1), bear interest and provide for insurance or service charges at rates comparable to the combined rate of interest and premium charges in effect under section 203 of the National Housing Act, as determined by the Secretary.

"(b) The Secretary may insure loans in accordance with the requirements of sections 514 (exclusive of subsections (a)(3), (a)(5), and (b)) and 515 (exclusive of subsections (a) and (b)(4)), and may make loans meeting such requirements to be sold and insured. Upon the expiration of ninety days after the original capitalization of the Rural Housing Insurance Fund, created by subsection (e) of this section, no new loans shall be made or insured under section 514 or 515(b), except in conformity with this section.

"(c) The Secretary may use the Rural Housing Insurance Fund for the purpose of making loans to be sold and insured under this section, but the aggregate of such loans which are held by the Secretary at any one time shall not exceed $100,000,000.

"(d) The Secretary may, in conformity with subsections (a) and (b), insure the payment of principal and interest as it becomes due on loans made by lenders other than the United States, and on loans made from the Rural Housing Insurance Fund which are sold by the Secretary. Any contract of insurance executed by the Secretary hereunder shall be an obligation supported by the full faith and credit of the United States, and shall be incontestable except for fraud or material misrepresentation of which the holder has actual knowledge. In connection with loans insured under this section, the Secretary may take liens running to the United States notwithstanding the fact that the notes evidencing such loans may be held by lenders other than the United States. Notes evidencing such loans shall be freely assignable, but the Secretary shall not be bound by any such assignment until notice thereof is given to and acknowledged by him.

"(e) There is hereby created the Rural Housing Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the 'Fund') which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the provisions of this section. There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the purposes of the Fund.

"(f) Money in the Fund not needed for current operations shall be invested in direct obligations of the United States or obligations guaranteed by the United States.

"(g) All funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and property acquired by the Secretary under this section, and all collections and proceeds therefrom, shall constitute assets of the Fund; and all liabilities and obligations of such assets shall be liabilities and obligations of the Fund.

Loans may be held in the Fund and collected in accordance with their terms or may be sold by the Secretary with or without agreements for insurance thereof. The Secretary is authorized to make agreements with respect to servicing loans held or insured by him under this section and purchasing such insured loans on such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

“(h) The Secretary is authorized to issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds necessary for discharging obligations under this section and for authorized expenditures out of the Fund, but, except as may be authorized in appropriation Acts, not for the original or any additional capital of the Fund. Such notes shall be in such form and denominations and have such maturities and be subject to such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at the average rate, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for fifteen years from their date of issue. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes of the Secretary issued hereunder, and for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which such securities may be issued under such Act are extended to include purchases of notes issued by the Secretary. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States. The notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury shall constitute obligations of the Fund.

“(i) The Secretary may retain out of interest payments by the borrower an annual charge in an amount specified in the insurance or sale agreement applicable to the loan. Of the charges retained by the Secretary, if any, not to exceed 1 per centum per annum of the unpaid balance of the loan shall be deposited in the Fund. Any retained charges not deposited in the Fund shall be available for administrative expenses in carrying out the provisions of this title, to be transferred annually, and become merged with any appropriation for administrative expenses of the Farmers Home Administration, when and in such amounts as may be authorized in appropriation Acts.

“(j) The Secretary may also utilize the Fund—

“(1) to pay amounts to which the holder of the note is entitled in accordance with an insurance or sale agreement under this section accruing between the date of any prepayment by the borrower to the Secretary and the date of transmittal of any such prepayments to the holder of the note; and in the discretion of the Secretary, prepayments other than final payments need not be remitted to the holder until due;

“(2) to pay the holder of any note insured under this section any defaulted installment or, upon assignment of the note to the Secretary at the Secretary's request, or pursuant to a purchase agreement, the entire balance outstanding on the note; and

“(3) to pay taxes, insurance, prior liens, expenses necessary to make fiscal adjustments in connection with the application and transmittal of collections, and other expenses and advances to protect the security for loans which are insured under this section or held in the Fund, and to acquire such security property at foreclosure sale or otherwise.

"RURAL HOUSING DIRECT LOAN ACCOUNT

"SEC. 518. (a) There is hereby created the Rural Housing Direct Loan Account (hereinafter referred to as the 'Account') which shall be used by the Secretary for carrying out the provisions of this section. There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the purposes of the Account.

"(b) There are transferred to the Account (1) all funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and property, and all collections and proceeds therefrom, held by the Secretary under the direct loan provisions of this title, including those securing notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 and any unexpended balance of amounts borrowed upon such notes, and (2) all unexpended balances of appropriations for direct loans under this title, including the fund authorized by section 515(a). All amounts hereafter borrowed by the Secretary from the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 shall be deposited in the Account. All collections and proceeds from assets acquired by the Account shall be deposited in the Account.

"(c) When and in such amounts as may be authorized in appropriation Acts, the Secretary may issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds to be deposited in the Account. The form, denominations, maturities, and other terms and conditions of such notes shall be prescribed by the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at the average rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for fifteen years from their date of issue. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes of the Secretary issued hereunder, and for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which such securities may be issued under such Act are extended to include the purchase of notes issued by the Secretary. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States.

"(d) The Account shall remain available to the Secretary for the payment of interest and principal on notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 or this section, and for direct loans and related advances under this title in such amounts as are now authorized by law and in such further amounts as shall be authorized in appropriation Acts. Amounts so authorized for such loans and advances shall remain available until expended."

(b) Section 511 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "The Secretary may issue notes and other obligations for purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury for the purpose of making direct loans under this title.";

(2) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "The total principal amount of such notes and obligations issued pursuant to this section during the period beginning July 1, 1956, and ending October 1, 1969, shall not exceed $850,000,000."; and

payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note or other obligation is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for 15 years from their date of issue."

FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION SECONDARY MARKET OPERATIONS FOR INSURED RURAL HOUSING LOANS

SEC. 1004. (a) Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by inserting immediately after "which are insured under the National Housing Act" the following: "or title V of the Housing Act of 1949";

(2) by inserting after "any mortgage" in clause (2) of the proviso the following: "except a mortgage insured under title V of the Housing Act of 1949"; and

(3) by inserting before the period in the last sentence the following: "or title V of the Housing Act of 1949".

(b) Section 303(b) of such Act is amended by inserting "and other" after "private" in the first sentence.

- (1) by striking out "the Armed Services Housing Mortgage Insurance Fund" each place it appears in subsections (b)(1), (b)(2), (e), (f), and (g) and inserting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund"; and
- (2) by striking out subsection (h) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:
- "(h) The provisions of section 207(k) and section 207(l) of this Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured under this title and to property acquired by the Commissioner hereunder, except that, as applied to such mortgages and property, the reference in section 207(k) to subsection (g) shall be construed to refer to subsection (d) of this section."

(v) Section 809 of such Act is amended by striking out "the Armed Services Housing Mortgage Insurance Fund" each place it appears in subsections (b), (e), and (g) and inserting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund".

(w) Section 810 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "the Armed Services Housing Mortgage Insurance Fund" in subsection (e) and inserting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund";

(2) by striking out "(l), (m), (n), and (p)" in subsection (j) and inserting in lieu thereof "(l), and (n)"; and

(3) by striking out the proviso in subsection (j) and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Provided, That wherever the words 'Fund' or 'Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund' appear in section 204, such reference shall refer to the General Insurance Fund with respect to mortgages insured under this section".

(x) Section 903 of such Act is amended by striking out "the National Defense Housing Insurance Fund" each place it appears in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund".

(y) Section 904 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "the National Defense Housing Insurance Fund" each place it appears in subsections (c) and (d) and inserting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund"; and

(2) by striking out all of subsection (e) which follows "of this Act" and inserting in lieu thereof a period.

(z) Section 908 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "the National Defense Housing Insurance Fund" in subsection (b)(1) and inserting in lieu thereof "the General Insurance Fund";

(2) by striking out all of subsection (d) which follows "of this Act" and inserting in lieu thereof a period; and

(3) by striking out subsection (f) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(f) The provisions of section 207(k) and section 207(l) of this Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured under this section and to property acquired by the Commissioner hereunder, except that, as applied to such mortgages and property, the reference therein to subsection (g) shall be construed to refer to subsection (c) of this section."

(aa) Sections 219, 602, 605, 710, 802, 804, 902, and 905 of such Act are repealed.

(bb) Section 1 of such Act is amended by striking out "titles II, III, VI, VII, VIII, and IX", each place it appears, and inserting in lieu thereof "titles II, III, V, VI, VII, VIII, IX, and X".

REPEAL OF SPECIAL PROVISION IN URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION ACT

SEC. 1109. Section 9 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 is amended by striking out subsection (c) and redesignating subsections (d), (e), and (f) as subsections (c), (d), and (e), respectively.

SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

SEC. 1110. (a) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended by adding at the end of the first paragraph a new sentence as follows: "Structures or parts thereof designed or used as fraternity or sorority houses which include sleeping accommodations for students of a college or university, or designed or used principally for the provision of living accommodations for persons who are students, employees, or members of the staff of a college, university, or hospital, shall be considered, subject to such regulations as the Board may prescribe, 'other dwelling units' for the purposes of this subsection."

(b) The ninth paragraph of section 5(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "fifteen years" and inserting in lieu thereof "ten years".

(c) Section 5(c) of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new paragraph added by section 201(b)(3) of this Act) the following new paragraph:

"No building and loan association incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia or organized in such District or doing business in such District shall establish any branch or move its principal office or any branch without the prior written approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and no other building and loan association shall establish any branch in such District or move its principal office or any branch in such District without such approval. As used in the sentence next preceding, 'branch' means any office, place of business, or facility, other than the principal office as defined by the Board, of a building and loan association at which accounts are opened or payments thereon are received or withdrawals therefrom are paid, or any other office, place of business, or facility of a building and loan association defined by the Board as a branch within the meaning of such sentence, and as used in such sentence and in this sentence 'building and loan association' means any incorporated or unincorporated building, building or loan, building and loan, savings and loan, or homestead association or cooperative bank."

(d) Section 404 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h)(1) Each insured institution shall make such deposits in the Corporation as may from time to time be required by call of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Any such call shall be calculated by applying a specified percentage, which shall be the same for all insured institutions, to the total amount of all withdrawable or repurchasable shares, investment certificates, and deposits in each insured institution. No such call shall be made unless such Board determines that the total amount of such call, plus the outstanding deposits previously made pursuant to such calls, does not exceed 1 per centum of the total amount of all withdrawable or repurchasable shares, investment certificates, and deposits in all insured institutions. For the purposes of this subsection, the total amounts hereinabove referred to shall be determined or estimated by such Board or in such manner as it may prescribe.

"(2) The Corporation, in accordance with such regulations as it may prescribe, shall credit as of the close of each calendar year, to each deposit outstanding at such close, a return on the outstanding balance, as determined by the Corporation, of such deposit during such calendar year, at a rate equal to the average annual rate of return, as determined by the Corporation, to the Corporation during the year ending at the close of November 30 of such calendar year, on the investments held by the Corporation in obligations of, or guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States.

"(3) The Corporation in its discretion may at any time repay all such deposits, or repay pro rata a portion of each of such deposits, in such manner and under such procedure as the Corporation may prescribe by regulation or otherwise. Any procedure for such pro rata repayment may provide for total repayment of any deposit, if total repayment of any and all deposits of equal or smaller amount is likewise provided for.

"(4) The provisions of subsection (f) of this section and of the last sentence of subsection (e) of this section shall be applicable to deposits under this subsection, and for the purposes of this subsection the references in such subsection (f) and such last sentence to the prepayments and the pro rata shares therein mentioned shall be deemed instead to be references respectively to the deposits under this subsection and the pro rata shares of the holders thereof, and the references in such subsection (f) to that subsection (except the last such reference) and to subsection (d) of this section shall be deemed instead to be references to this subsection."

FEDERAL RESERVE ACT

SEC. 1111. Section 24 of the Federal Reserve Act is amended by striking out "eighteen months", wherever it appears in the third paragraph, and inserting in lieu thereof "twenty-four months".

REPAYMENT OF CERTAIN PLANNING GRANTS

SEC. 1112. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no advance made under section 501 of Public Law 458, Seventy-eighth Congress; Public Law 352, Eighty-first Congress; or section 702, Housing Act of 1954, Public Law 560, Eighty-third Congress, for the planning of any public works project shall be required to be repaid if construction of such project has been heretofore or is hereafter initiated as a result of a grant-in-aid made from an allocation made by the President under the Public Works Acceleration Act.

STUDY CONCERNING RELIEF OF HOMEOWNERS IN PROXIMITY TO AIRPORTS

SEC. 1113. The Housing and Home Finance Administrator shall undertake a study to determine feasible methods of reducing the economic loss and hardship suffered by homeowners as the result of the depreciation in the value of their properties following the construction of airports in the vicinity of their homes, including a study of feasible methods of insulating such homes from the noise of aircraft. Findings and recommendations resulting from such study shall be reported to the President for transmission to the Congress at the earliest practicable date, but in no event later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT OF THE MANAGERS ON THE PART OF THE HOUSE

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7984) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute amendment. The committee of conference has agreed to a substitute for both the House bill and the Senate amendment. Except for technical, clarifying, and conforming changes, the following statement explains the differences between the House bill and the substitute agreed to in conference.

TITLE I—PROVISIONS FOR DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

Housing eligible for rent supplements on experimental basis

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill making rent supplements (subject to a limit of 10 percent of amounts appropriated) available to housing under the section 221(d)(3) below-market rate program (new units), the section 231 program of mortgage insurance for the elderly (new units and those not finally endorsed for insurance), and the section 202 program of direct loans for the elderly (existing and new units), on an experimental basis, for up to 20 percent of the dwelling units in any property.

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision but the 20-percent dwelling unit limitation is restricted to existing projects and, in addition, 50 percent of the funds for experimental projects is earmarked for newly constructed section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate projects in order to assure the equitable allocation of funds as between these projects and projects designed to serve the elderly exclusively.

Operating costs limit

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill limiting the operating costs of any property aided under the rent supplement program to amounts for similar housing in the community. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Eligibility for rent supplements

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill making eligible for rent supplement payments those persons (meeting the income test) whose dwellings are extensively damaged or destroyed in a disaster area after April 1, 1965. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Below-market mortgages not yet endorsed for insurance

It is the intent of the committee that in cases where commitments have been issued at a higher rate of interest than 3 percent, and the mortgages have not been finally endorsed for insurance, the lower interest rate should be made available whenever practicable.

Low-rent housing in private accommodations

The House bill contained a provision not in the Senate amendment authorizing local housing authorities to use as low-rent housing up to 10 percent of the units in an existing privately owned structure, and to make annual contributions to the owner in amounts not exceeding the amounts that would be payable for units in a newly constructed low-rent project. Contracts with owners would be for 12 to 36 months, renewable. Tenants would be selected by owners, subject to the contracts between local authorities and PHA. Rentals would be determined under standards applicable to conventional public housing.

The conference substitute contains the House provision with an amendment stating that the provisions of the new program shall not apply to any locality unless the governing body of the locality has by resolution approved the application of such provisions to such locality.

Rehabilitation grants

The House bill contained a provision authorizing grants for the full cost of necessary repairs (up to $1,500) to homeowners in urban renewal areas with annual incomes of $2,000 or less; in the case of owners with larger incomes, grants would be limited to the portion of cost which cannot be financed without increasing housing expense to more than 25 percent of income.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision except that the income limit for the full cost of repairs was $3,000. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Direct loans for housing for the elderly or handicapped

The House bill removed the existing $350,000,000 ceiling and terminated the program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply increased the existing ceiling from $350,000,000 to $500,000,000. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Mortgage moratorium

The House bill contained a provision providing a moratorium of up to 3 years on payments under FHA or VA mortgages in the case of a mortgagor unemployed due to closing of a Federal installation. The Senate amendment contained the same provision except that the moratorium period is limited to 1 year. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

TITLE II—FHA INSURANCE OPERATIONS

Land development mortgage insurance

The House bill authorized a maximum of $12,500,000 on the aggregate amount of outstanding mortgages involving a single land development undertaking. The Senate amendment provided a maximum of $10,000,000, and the conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Maximum mortgage term

The House bill limited the maturity of land development mortgages to 7 years. The Senate amendment contained a provision permitting a longer maturity (as determined by the Commissioner) to the extent a mortgage is secured by private water and sewer systems. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Water and sewer facilities

The House bill contained a provision requiring a public water and sewerage system after the land is developed under the new FHA program, except that if public ownership is found not feasible an adequately regulated private system may be approved upon assurances of eventual transfer to public ownership. The comparable provision in the Senate amendment permitted either a public system or an adequately regulated private one. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Downpayment for low-income housing demonstration homes

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting a downpayment under section 203(b) to be made by a person other than the mortgagor on the purchase of a home under the low-income housing demonstration program. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Nondwelling facilities in urban renewal housing

The House bill contained a provision permitting nondwelling facilities to be included in a section 220 mortgage if the Commissioner finds that they contribute to the economic feasibility of the project. The Senate amendment contained a similar provision except that the Commissioner must find that the facilities are essential to the economic feasibility of the project and that the financing will not result in unfair disadvantage to other business enterprises in the vicinity.

The conference substitute conforms to the House language with respect to the finding that the facilities contribute to the economic feasibility of the project and requires the Commissioner to give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community.

Home improvement loans in high-cost areas

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing an increase in the amount of loans under sections 220(h), 203(k), and 312 by up to 45 percent when cost levels so require. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Mortgages for servicemen

The House bill contained a provision providing minimum downpayments under section 222 the same as the regular section 203(b) program (3 percent of the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent of the next $5,000, and 25 percent of all over $20,000). The Senate amendment contained a provision providing a minimum downpayment of 5 percent of the first $20,000 (or the amount under the sec. 203(b) program if less) plus 15 percent of all over $20,000.

The conference substitute provides a minimum downpayment of 3 percent on the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent on the next $5,000, and 15 percent on all over $20,000.

Optional cash payment of insurance benefits

The House bill contained a provision authorizing the FHA Commissioner in his discretion to pay benefits under any FHA program either in cash or in debentures, and authorized Treasury borrowing for cash payments as the Commissioner deems necessary. The Senate amendment contained the same provision except it did not authorize Treasury borrowing.

The Senate receded from its position and accepted the House provision which authorizes the Federal Housing Commissioner to borrow from the Treasury in connection with the making of optional cash payments of insurance benefits rather than the issuance of debentures. The conferees want to make clear that this Treasury borrowing authority is to be used prudently and only if receipts accruing to the insurance fund are inadequate to support continuation of payments in cash and only where such payments would represent a savings to the Government.

FHA loans for veterans

The House bill contained a provision authorizing section 203(b) mortgage insurance for veterans who have not received benefits under the VA program with no downpayment required on the first $20,000 and 15 percent on all above that amount. The term "veteran" was defined as a person who served in the Armed Forces and was not dishonorably discharged.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision providing no downpayment on the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent between $15,000 and $20,000, and 15 percent of all over $20,000. The term "veteran" was defined as a person who served in the Armed Forces on or after September 16, 1940, for at least 90 days (or is certified by the Secretary of Defense as having performed extrahazardous service) and was not dishonorably discharged.

The conference substitute provides for no downpayment on the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent between $15,000 and $20,000, and 15 percent above $20,000. The definition of "veteran" is the same as the Senate provision except that the limiting eligibility date of September 16, 1940, is deleted.

Refinancing of housing for elderly projects

The House bill contained a provision permitting refinancing of housing projects for the elderly under FHA's section 231 program. The Senate amendment contained no similar provision and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Approval of technically suitable materials

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill directing the FHA Commissioner to adopt uniform procedure for acceptance of, and to accept, technically suitable materials and products to be used in structures approved for FHA insurance. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision but with an amendment making it clear that the decision that a material or product is technically suitable must still be subject to the financial decision of the Commissioner that it is within the scope of underwriting requirements for mortgage insurance and that he must find that the use of the material or product is consistent with "economic soundness" or "acceptable risk," as the case may be, under the several FHA programs.

The conference substitute language is not intended to lessen the responsibility of the Commissioner to approve products or materials which are shown by acceptable research, testing, or performance to be technically suitable. It should also be clear that if a material or product is shown to be technically suitable and widely accepted in housing financed by conventional mortgage lenders, as being economically sound, these facts should be persuasive upon the Commissioner that such material or product is an acceptable risk for FHA-financed housing.

The conferees expect both Committees on Banking and Currency to observe carefully the actions taken by the FHA Commissioner under the intent of this section and further expect that the FHA Commissioner will exercise extra effort to keep abreast of technological advances and the use of new products where suitable, and that he should bend every effort to minimize the long delays which have often been experienced before technically suitable materials are determined to be acceptable.

Water and sewer facilities

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill prohibiting FHA insurance or a VA loan for new housing which is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system, if local officials certify that such a system is economically feasible. The conference substitute contains this provision.

Downpayment requirement under section 203(b)

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill reducing from 25 to 15 percent the required downpayment on that part of the value of insured property which exceeds $20,000. The conference substitute reduces the downpayment requirement to 20 percent of that part of the value in excess of $20,000.

TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL

General neighborhood renewal plans

The House bill contained a provision permitting general neighborhood renewal plans to cover adjoining areas as well as the urban renewal area. The Senate amendment contained a similar provision but required that adjoining areas have "specially related problems." Also, the provision in the Senate amendment provided that all projects in the plan area need only be initiated in 8 years (rather than completed in 10 years). The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Increase of nonresidential exception

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill increasing from 30 to 40 percent the existing exception to the "predominantly residential" requirement (but only with respect to the new capital grant authority provided by the bill). The conference substitute provides for an increase in the nonresidential exception to 35 percent, making it clear that the 35-percent factor applies only to the new money authorized in the bill. It also makes it clear that this is in addition to amounts previously available (and still unused) for such projects.

Projects financed on three-fourths grant basis

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill including as gross project costs for projects financed on a three-fourths basis certain expenses incurred for staff services in connection with code enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation programs. It also would have given credit for certain tax losses in case of projects financed on a three-fourths grant basis in the same way as such losses are now credited to projects on a two-thirds grant basis.

The conference substitute contains that part of the provision including expenses for staff services but deletes that part of the provision giving credit for certain tax losses.

Demolition of unsafe structures

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing grants (up to two-thirds of cost) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the demolition of unsafe structures located in urban renewal areas or located in other areas which have workable programs and meet specified conditions. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Concentrated code enforcement program

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing grants (up to two-thirds of cost, or three-fourths of cost in the case of cities of less than 50,000) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas (rather than only in urban renewal project areas as in existing law). These programs may include the provision and repair of specified public improvements. The locality would be required to maintain its own code enforcement expenditures at normal levels and to have a satisfactory public improvements program. FHA section 220 housing, and rehabilitation loans under section 312 of the 1964 act, would be available in these areas. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Rehabilitation loan program

The House bill contained a provision eliminating the present $50,000,000 ceiling on the rehabilitation loan authorization under section 312 of the 1964 act, and terminating the program October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment contained a provision substituting a $100,000,000 per year ceiling for the existing total $50,000,000 ceiling, and terminating the program October 1, 1969.

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill making rehabilitation loans available where the funds needed are not available on "comparable" (rather than "reasonable") terms and conditions and making the revolving fund available for loan servicing expenses (including those incurred by FNMA or other agencies). The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Workable program requirement and Indian tribes

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill providing that the workable program requirement shall be applicable to any Indian tribe, band, or nation only to the extent it has legal jurisdiction and power to carry out the requirement. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Lease guarantees for small business concerns

The House bill contained a provision amending the Small Business Act to authorize SBA to insure the lessor of property to a small business concern displaced by urban renewal against losses resulting from concern's failure to perform the lease. The maximum term of the lease would have been 10 years. The bill would have established an insurance fund with initial capital of $5 million from SBA's revolving fund. A maximum insurance premium of 1 percent of annual rental payments was authorized.

The Senate amendment contained a provision amending the Small Business Investment Act to authorize SBA to guarantee payment of rentals under leases entered into by small business concerns displaced by any Federal action and concerns eligible for loans under the Anti-poverty Act. The SBA fee for the guarantee could not exceed 2½ percent of the minimum annual guaranteed rental. The amendment established a revolving fund with initial capital of $5 million from SBA's general fund (and increased the authorization for the latter fund by an equal amount).

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Parking facilities

The House bill contained a provision providing that publicly owned parking facilities provided in redevelopment can be counted as local grants-in-aid under the urban renewal program only to the extent that the cost is not anticipated to be recovered from revenues. No comparable provision was contained in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Local grants-in-aid

The Senate amendment contained provisions not in the House bill relating to local grants-in-aid for specific urban renewal projects in Jasper, Ala., Joliet, Ill., New Brunswick, N.J., St. Louis, Mo., Norfolk, Va., Reno, Nev., Michigan City, Ind., and Chester, Pa. The conference substitute contains the Senate provisions.

The conferees were unanimous in their concern over the potential danger of amendments offered on the floor to provide special benefits to specific urban renewal projects. Such procedure does not give the committees sufficient opportunity to study the merits and implications of the proposals. In the future such proposals should be made to the committee early enough so that proper study can be made of each request. By so doing, the proponents of these amendments will protect themselves from the persuasive criticism that they have not been adequately studied and therefore should be rejected.

Waiver of prompt redevelopment requirement

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill waiving the prompt redevelopment requirement with respect to the sale for industrial purposes of certain land included in an urban renewal project in Texarkana, Ark. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Urban renewal in the District of Columbia

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill amending the Housing Act of 1954 to authorize the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency to undertake nonresidential projects as contemplated by title I of the 1949 act. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Historic structures

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing an urban renewal project to include the cost of relocating historic structures within the area of the project. It is the understanding of the conferees that this provision, which is included in the conference substitute, is meant to apply only to the costs of moving such structures and not to their acquisition or renovation.

TITLE IV—COMPENSATION OF CONDEMNED

The House bill contained provisions not in the Senate amendment establishing a uniform Federal land acquisition policy for real property taken under certain federally assisted housing and urban development programs. Continued Federal assistance under these programs was conditioned on certain specified standards of fair treatment for owners whose property is taken by eminent domain. The conference substitute contains the House provisions with amendments (1) adding the urban mass transit program and the new community facilities programs authorized by title VII to the federally assisted programs to which the new provisions would apply, and eliminating the college housing and housing for the elderly programs (because condemnation of property in these programs is so seldom used); and (2) limiting the specified standards under which Federal assistance would be conditioned. Under the standards specified in the conference substitute, every reasonable effort would have to be made to acquire the property by negotiated purchase; no owner could be required to surrender possession of his property before being paid the purchase price agreed to by negotiation, or 75 percent of the appraised value of the property if only the purchase price is in dispute; and the occupant of the property could not be required to surrender possession without 90 day's written notice.

The House bill also broadened and increased the amount of the relocation payments authorized to be paid under certain federally assisted housing and urban development programs and extended these payments to additional federally assisted housing and urban development programs. The conference substitute contains the House provisions with technical and conforming changes.

TITLE V—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

Equivalent elimination

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting PHA to accept local certification that there has been equivalent elimination of slum housing. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Reallocation of units

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting PHA (subject to contractual obligations) to reallocate units not under construction within 5 years from the date reserved, without regard to the 15-percent State limit. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Sale of federally owned projects

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting the PHA to sell a federally owned public housing project to a nonprofit local group (as well as to a local public housing agency), and requires that the sale of such a project be for continued use as low-rent housing. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Per room limitations

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill increasing the basic per room limit from $2,000 to $2,400 (from $3,000 to $3,500 in Alaska), and the special per room limit for the elderly from $3,000 to $3,500 (from $3,500 to $4,000 in Alaska). The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Public housing rental gap

The House bill contained a provision eliminating the requirement of 20-percent gap between upper rental limits for admission to public housing and lowest private rents. The provision in the Senate amendment did not eliminate the rental gap requirement but exempted from such requirement, as "displaced families," those whose dwellings are extensively damaged or destroyed in disaster areas after April 1, 1965. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Purchase by tenants

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting tenants to purchase public housing units (in the case of units which are detached, semidetached, or row housing) on specified terms and conditions. The conference substitute permits such a purchase only in the case of detached and semidetached housing.

TITLE VI—COLLEGE HOUSING

Eligible institutions

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill making it clear that new colleges are eligible for loans upon providing assurances that they will offer the requisite degree within a reasonable time. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Vocational institutions

The Senate amendment contains a provision not in the House bill making a public educational institution offering technical or vocational instruction eligible for college housing loans, if it is administered by an accredited college or university and provides housing for all or part of its students. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Parking facilities

The House bill contained a provision making parking facilities for faculty and students eligible for loans. No similar provision was contained in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Cosignature of note

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting waiver of cosignature of the note by an educational institution in the case of a student cooperative when State law prohibits the institution from cosigning the note. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

TITLE VII—COMMUNITY FACILITIES

Grants for basic water and sewer facilities

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing grants up to 90 percent for a sewer facility in the case of a small community where no such facility exists and unemployment is high. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

The Senate amendment also contained a provision not in the House bill specifying that grants for sewers cannot include "treatment works" which are eligible for assistance under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Neighborhood facilities

The provisions in the House bill and the Senate amendment authorizing grants for neighborhood facilities were identical, except that the Senate amendment authorized a local public body receiving such a grant to utilize a nonprofit organization to provide the facilities if the local public body maintains continuing control. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Advance acquisition of land

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist in the acquisition of land for future construction of public works or facilities. The maximum grant would be determined by aggregate interest charges over a 5-year period. The grantee must initiate construction within 5 years or may be required to repay grant. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Authorization of appropriations

The House bill contained a provision authorizing appropriations without dollar amount for the new programs of grants for water and sewer facilities and neighborhood centers and terminating the programs on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment authorized appropriations as follows:

[In millions of dollars]

	Fiscal years
	1966	1967	1968	1969
For water and sewer grants.....	$100	$200	$200	$200
For neighborhood facilities.....	50	50	50	50
For advance land acquisition.....	25	25	25	25

NOTE.—Amounts authorized for any year remain available to June 30, 1969.

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision except that the authorization for water and sewer grants in 1966 is increased to $200,000,000.

TITLE VIII—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

FNMA special assistance authority

Both the Senate amendment and the House bill contained a provision increasing FNMA's special assistance authority by a total of $1,625,000,000 over a 4-year period and transferring certain unused amounts available for title VIII housing. The provision in the House bill also transferred the amount (approximately $59,000,000) reserved for section 809 military, NASA, or AEC housing; no similar provision is contained in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Mortgage amount for below-market mortgages

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill excepting section 221(d)(3) below-market mortgages from the $17,500 per unit limit on purchasable mortgages under FNMA's special assistance authority. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision with an amendment authorizing the exemption only in cases where local tax abatement is granted in an amount sufficient to keep rentals at the level where they would be if the mortgage amount did not exceed $17,500 per dwelling unit.

Mortgages held by Federal instrumentalities

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing FNMA to purchase mortgages covering residential property offered by other Federal agencies and other obligations offered by HHFA. It also authorized FNMA in its fiduciary capacity to deal in any HHFA obligations. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

TITLE IX—OPEN SPACE LAND AND URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT*Increased grant level*

The House bill contained a provision increasing the maximum grant under the open space program from 20 to 30 percent of cost (and from 30 to 40 percent where applicant exercises open space responsibility for all or a substantial portion of the urban area). The provision in the Senate amendment increased the maximum grant for open space projects to 50 percent of cost and the conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Grant authorization

The Senate amendment contained a provision increasing the existing authorization for grants under the open space and urban beautification program from the present $75,000,000 to $310,000,000 and limiting the share of these funds which can be used for the new open space program in built-up areas to $64,000,000 and the amount for the new program of urban beautification to $36,000,000. The House bill would have authorized appropriations without dollar limit for this program. The conference report conforms to the Senate provisions.

Development grants for open space uses

The Senate amendment contained a provision, not in the House bill, authorizing grants to assist development, for open space uses (i.e., use for park and recreational purposes, conservation, or historic or scenic purposes), of land acquired with open space grant assistance. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Open space land in built-up areas

The House bill contained a provision authorizing grants up to $500,000 per project or 40 percent of cost, whichever is less, to assist in providing open space land in built-up urban areas. The Senate amendment contained a provision providing for grants up to 50 percent of cost without dollar limit on individual projects. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Urban beautification and improvement

The House bill contained a provision authorizing grants up to 40 percent of a community's increased expenditures for urban beautification and improvement, except that up to $5,000,000 can be used in making 100-percent grants for demonstrations. The Senate amendment contained a similar provision except that the grant limit would be 50 percent for the basic grants and 66⅔ percent for demonstration grants. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment with respect to the 50-percent maximum for basic grants, but in the case of demonstration grants the maximum is 90 percent.

Open space planning

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill, permitting grants to be made only if needed for a unified or officially coordinated open space land program to be carried out as part of comprehensive planning for the area (existing law requires only that there be comprehensive planning to which the proposed land use is important). The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Use of funds for studies

The House bill contained a provision permitting up to $100,000 a year of grant funds to be used for studies and publications, while under the Senate amendment these studies would be limited to $50,000 a year. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

TITLE X—RURAL HOUSING

Insurance of rural housing loans

The House bill contained a provision, not in the Senate amendment, requiring a minimum period of 5 years from the date of the note before the insured holder could require the Secretary to repurchase the insured loan under a repurchase agreement. There was no similar provision in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

The House bill contained provisions, not in the Senate amendment, authorizing the sale of insured loans at market prices, authorizing use of the insurance fund to pay fees and charges in connection with such sales, requiring that reimbursement of the insurance fund for the amount of losses from sales at less than par plus related fees and charges paid be made by annual appropriation and prohibiting borrowing from the Treasury to make such reimbursement. There were no similar provisions in the Senate amendment and none are contained in the conference substitute. It is the view of the conferees that by exercise of the authority to use repurchase agreements with minimum periods fixed by the Secretary in accordance with prevailing market conditions, the Secretary will be able to sell the insured loans without loss, and that sales at a loss should not be made.

Interest on Treasury borrowing

The House bill contained a formula for computing interest on loan funds borrowed from the Treasury based on current market yields of Treasury securities while the Senate formula was based on the rate of interest actually paid by the Treasury. The conference substitute contains the Senate formula.

Payment of interest to Treasury

The House bill contained a provision requiring the Secretary to pay interest on future appropriations for making rural housing loans. The Senate amendment contained no similar provision and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Definition of rural area

The House bill contained a provision defining a rural area as a place with a population of 5,500 or less which is not a part of or associated with an urban area. There was no similar provision in the Senate amendment. The conference substitute defines a rural area as a place which is not part of or associated with an urban area, and which (1) has a population not in excess of 2,500, or (2) has a population between 2,500 and 5,500 if it is rural in character. While emphasizing that a place with a population in excess of 2,500 but not in excess of 5,500 must be rural in character, the conferees do not intend to suggest any change in the present administrative rules for determining whether a place with a population of 2,500 or less is a rural area.

TITLE XI—MISCELLANEOUS

Studies of housing programs

The Senate amendment included provisions not in the House bill requiring special reports on the rent supplement program, public housing, FHA land insurance, urban renewal, community facilities, and the open-space and urban beautification program. In lieu of these, the conference substitute amended section 802 of the Housing Act of 1954, which requires the Housing and Home Finance Agency to make annual reports on all its programs and operations, to accomplish the purpose of the Senate provisions. It is the understanding of the conferees that HHFA and its constituent agencies should give special attention in its annual report to the new programs authorized by this act.

Urban planning grants

The House bill contained a provision authorizing appropriations as needed for the urban planning grant program and terminating the program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply raised the existing authorization from $105,000,000 to $230,000,000. In addition, the Senate amendment contained a provision permitting up to 5 percent of the funds appropriated to be used in developing and improving planning techniques, and also authorized grants to organizations of elected officials in metropolitan areas to assist in studies, collection of data, and development of plans and programs. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision with a modification.

The term "elected official" as contained in the original Senate text was changed to read "public official". While the amendment is directed at making eligible organizations of local elected officials, the term "public official" was required to make it clear that the Metropolitan Councils of Governments for Washington and certain other areas are eligible for these grants even through their members may not be elected. For example, the Washington Council has representatives from the Board of Commissioners of the Government of the District of Columbia. These Commissioners are not elected but are appointed by the President.

Federal-State training programs

The House bill contained a provision eliminating the ceiling on the authorization for appropriations for the Federal-State training program and terminating that program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply increased the authorization from the existing $10,000,000 limit to $30,000,000.

The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Public works planning advances

The House bill contained a provision removing the ceiling on the amount which can be appropriated for public works planning advances and terminated the program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply increased the authorization for appropriation from $20,000,000 to $70,000,000. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Low income housing demonstration program

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill increasing the authorization for low income housing demonstration grants from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Public facility loans

The House bill contained a provision permitting public facility loans to nonprofit corporations to provide water or sewer facilities for smaller municipalities which are unable to provide them. The Senate amendment contained the same provision except it made it clear that rural areas were included. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting public facility loans to communities where NASA installations are located without regard to population (the limitation in present law for such communities is 150,000). The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Mass Transportation Act

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill repealing the requirement in the Urban Mass Transportation Act that facilities and equipment used under the program be U.S. manufactured. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Federal Reserve Act

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill which would have authorized national banks to purchase participations in loans secured by real estate and, in addition, would have increased the maximum maturity of industrial, commercial, and residential construction loans from 18 to 30 months. It was felt that further study of the authorization for the purchase of participations is needed, and this authority is not included in the conference substitute. It is the intention of the Committee on Banking and Currency to call hearings as soon as possible to study this proposal. The conference substitute does include a provision extending to 24 months the maximum maturity of industrial, commercial, and residential construction loans.

Savings and loan association loans on leaseholds

The House bill contained a provision not in the Senate amendment authorizing savings and loan associations to make loans secured by leaseholds which extend at least 10 years beyond loan maturity in areas where a substantial part of residential land is available only on a leasehold basis.

In place of this the conference substitute amends existing law to permit savings and loan associations generally to make loans on leaseholds which extend or are renewable for at least 10 years beyond the loan maturity. (Present law requires 15 years.) It is the intention of the conferees that where the leasehold is renewable, precautions be taken that it be renewable under terms which do not adversely affect the mortgage security.

District of Columbia savings and loan associations

The House bill provided that associations in the District of Columbia shall have the same investment powers as Federal associations. No similar provision was contained in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Deposits in FSLIC

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill requiring insured institutions to make deposits in FSLIC as required by call of FHLBB. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Investments by Federal savings and loan associations

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing Federal associations to invest up to 1 percent of their assets in loans (for Latin American housing) guaranteed by AID under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Proximity to airports

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing HHFA to study methods of reducing loss and hardship to homeowners whose property has been depreciated by the proximity of airports. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 678)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2985) to authorize assistance in meeting the initial cost of professional and technical personnel for comprehensive community mental health centers, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 3: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 3, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

"Sec. 4. Subsection (a) of section 302 of the Mental Retardation Facilities and Community Mental Health Centers Construction Act of 1963 (Public Law 88-164) is amended by striking out 'There is authorized to be appropriated for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1964, and each of the next two fiscal years the sum of $2,000,000' and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 'There is authorized to be appropriated $6,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1966; $9,000,000 for fiscal year ending June 30, 1967; $12,000,000 for fiscal year ending June 30, 1968; and $14,000,000 for fiscal year ending June 30, 1969.'"

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 11: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 11, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

"SEC. 8. Section 7 of the Act of September 6, 1958 (Public Law 85-926) as amended (20 U.S.C. 617), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 7. There are authorized to be appropriated for carrying out this Act $19,500,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1966; $29,500,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1967; $34,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968; and $37,500,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment to title:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the title of the bill.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2985) to authorize assistance in meeting the initial cost of professional and technical personnel for comprehensive community mental health centers, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

Amendment No. 1: This amendment changes the short title of the bill to conform to changes in the text. The House recedes.

Amendment No. 2: Under the House bill, authority was given to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to make grants to community mental health centers to finance a portion of the costs of staffing these centers, with assistance to be furnished to any one center for a total period of 51 months. The House bill authorized the Secretary to commence such grants at any time during the 3 fiscal years 1966, 1967, and 1968, and authorized appropriations for those 3 fiscal years and the succeeding fiscal year.

The Senate amendment made no change in the 3-year period during which the grants could be commenced, and authorized appropriations for the next 4 fiscal years, so as to permit completion of the payment of the Federal share with respect to each center for the full 51 months.

The House recedes.

Amendment No. 3: Senate amendment No. 3 amends section 302 of the Mental Retardation Facilities and Community Mental Health Centers Construction Act of 1963 (Public Law 88-164) to continue for 5 additional years the program of research and demonstration projects in the training of handicapped children, and increased the authorization for the current fiscal year to $6,000,000. Additional appropriations authorized under the Senate amendment for the following 5 years would aggregate $78,000,000.

The House receded with an amendment, increasing the authorization for the current fiscal year to $6,000,000 and limiting the extension of the program to 3 additional years, with the same authorization for these years as was contained in the Senate amendment: $9,000,000 for fiscal year 1967, $12,000,000 for fiscal year 1968, and $14,000,000 for fiscal year 1969.

Amendments Nos. 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8: These amendments add four new subsections to section 302 of Public Law 88-164, which expand and clarify the program under this section.

The proposed new subsection (f) would add authority for construction, equipment, and operation of facilities for research, research training, surveys, or demonstrations to aid children who are mentally retarded, hard of hearing, deaf, speech impaired, visually handicapped, seriously emotionally disturbed, crippled, or otherwise health impaired who require special education, or the dissemination of information derived therefrom, or all of such activities, including experimental schools.

The proposed new subsection (g) is the usual provision requiring conformance with Davis-Bacon Act standards in the construction program. Subsections (h) and (i) contain definitions.

The House recedes.

Amendment No. 9: This amendment would permit the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to deposit in a special account on the books of the Treasury all or part of any grant awarded by the Secretary, and to make payments from this account from time to time to the extent needed to carry out the purposes of the grant.

This amendment provides needed authority for the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to prevent the disbursement of sums to recipients before the time they are actually needed, and thereby prevent the accumulation of large sums of Federal funds by grantees.

The House recedes.

Amendment No. 10: This amendment extends the application of the act of September 6, 1958 (Public Law 85-926) which relates to the training of teachers of handicapped children to the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, the District of Columbia, Guam, and American Samoa.

The House recedes.

Amendment No. 11: Senate amendment No. 11 provided a 5-year extension of the program under the act of September 6, 1958, with additional appropriations aggregating $186,000,000 over the current fiscal year and the 5 additional fiscal years. The House conferees receded with an amendment, limiting appropriations for the current fiscal year to the existing $19,500,000 level, and authorizing appropriations for 3 additional years, with $29,500,000 authorized for fiscal year 1967, $34,000,000 for fiscal year 1968, and $37,500,000 for fiscal year 1969.

Amendment to title: The Senate amended the title of the bill to conform to changes in the text.

The House recedes.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

Pursuant to an order of the House on Thursday, July 22, 1965, the conference report on the bill (H.R. 7984) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities, is herewith printed, as follows:

[Submitted by Mr. PATMAN]

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 679)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7984) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommended to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: "That this Act may be cited as the 'Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965'."

"TITLE I—SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

"Financial assistance to enable certain private housing to be available for lower income families who are elderly, handicapped, displaced, victims of a natural disaster, or occupants of substandard housing

"SEC. 101. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator (hereinafter referred to as the 'Administrator') is authorized to make, and contract to make annual payments to a 'housing owner' on behalf of 'qualified tenants,' as those terms are defined herein, in such amounts and under such circumstances as are prescribed in or pursuant to this section. In no case shall a contract provide for such payments with respect to any housing for a period exceeding forty years. The aggregate amount of the contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $30,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1966, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $35,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $40,000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by $45,000,000 on July 1, 1968.

"(b) As used in this section, the term 'housing owner' means a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act and which, after the enactment of this section, has been approved for mortgage insurance thereunder and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That, except as provided in subsection (j), no payments under this section may be made with respect to any property financed with a mortgage receiving the benefits of the interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of that Act. Subject to the limitations provided in subsection (j), the term 'housing owner' also has the meaning prescribed in such subsection.

"(c) As used in this section, the term 'qualified tenant' means any individual or family who has, pursuant to criteria and procedures established by the Administrator, been determined—

"(1) to have an income below the maximum amount which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public housing dwellings; and

"(2) to be one of the following—

"(A) displaced by governmental action;

"(B) sixty-two years of age or older (or, in the case of a family to have a head who is, or whose spouse is, sixty-two years of age or over);

"(C) physically handicapped (or, in the case of a family, to have a head who is, or whose spouse is, physically handicapped);

"(D) occupying substandard housing; or

"(E) an occupant or former occupant of a dwelling which is (or was) situated in an area determined by the Small Business Administration, subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected by a natural disaster, and which has been extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of such disaster.

The terms 'qualified tenant' and 'tenant' include a member of a cooperative who satisfies the foregoing requirements and who, upon resale of his membership to the cooperative, will not be reimbursed for any equity increment accumulated through payments under this section. With respect to members of a cooperative, the terms 'rental' and 'rental charges' mean the charges under the occupancy agreements between such members and the cooperative.

"(d) The amount of the annual payment with respect to any dwelling unit shall not exceed the amount by which the fair market rental for such unit exceeds one-fourth of the tenant's income as determined by the Administrator pursuant to procedures and regulations established by him.

"(e) (1) For purposes of carrying out the provisions of this section, the Administrator shall establish criteria and procedures for determining the eligibility of occupants and rental charges, including criteria and procedures with respect to periodic review of tenant incomes and periodic adjustment of rental charges. The Administrator shall issue, upon the request of a housing owner, certificates as to the following facts concerning the individuals and families applying for admission to, or residing in, dwellings of such owner:

"(A) the income of the individual or family; and

"(B) whether the individual or family was displaced by governmental action, is elderly, is physically handicapped, or is (or was) occupying substandard housing or housing extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of a natural disaster.

"(2) Procedures adopted by the Administrator hereunder shall provide for recertifications of the incomes of occupants, except the elderly, at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals in cases where the Administrator may deem it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting rental charges and annual payments on the basis of occupants' incomes, but in no event shall rental charges adjusted under this section for any dwelling exceed the fair market rental of the dwelling.

"(3) The Administrator may enter into agreements, or authorized housing owners to enter into agreements, with public or private agencies for services required in the selection of qualified tenants, including those who may be approved, on the basis of the probability of future increases in their incomes as lessees under an option to purchase (which will give such approval qualified tenants an exclusive right to purchase at a price established or determined as provided in the option) dwellings, and in the establishment of rentals. The Administrator is authorized (without limiting his authority under any other provision of law) to delegate to any such public or private agency his authority to issue certificates pursuant to this subsection.

"(4) No payments under this section may be made with respect to any property for which the costs of operation (including wages and salaries) are determined by the Administrator to be greater than similar costs of operation of similar housing in the community where the property is situated.

"(f) Section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting '(i)' after 'a mortgage under' in the first proviso and by inserting immediately before the colon at the end of such proviso the following: ', or (ii) section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act if payments with respect to the mortgaged property are made or are to be made under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except that no such mortgage shall be insured, and no commitment to insure such a mortgage shall be issued, with respect to property in any community for which a workable program for community improvement was required and in effect at the time a contract for a loan or capital grant was entered into under this title, or a contract for annual contributions or capital grants was entered into pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937, unless there is a workable program for community improvement which meets the requirements of this subsection in effect in such community at the time of such insurance or commitment'.

"(g) The Administrator is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section. Nothing contained in this section shall affect the authority of (1) the Federal Housing Commissioner with respect to any housing assisted under this section and under sections 221(d)(3) and 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act, or (2) the Housing and Home Finance Administrator with respect to any housing assisted under this section and under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, including the authority to prescribe occupancy requirements under other provisions of law or to determine the portion of any such housing which may be occupied by qualified tenants.

"(h) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including, but not limited to, such sums as may be necessary to make annual payments as prescribed in this section, pay for services provided under (or pursuant to agreements entered into under) subsection (e), and provide administrative expenses.

"(i) Section 114(c)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting before the colon at the end of the first proviso the following: ', or a dwelling unit assisted under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965'.

"(j) (1) For the purpose of assisting housing under this section on an experimental basis, subject to the limitations of this subsection, the term 'housing owner' (in addition to the meaning prescribed in subsection (b)) includes—

"(A) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under a mortgage which receives the benefits of the interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of the National Housing Act and which, after the date of the enactment of this Act, has been approved for mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section;

"(B) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity which is a mortgagor under a mortgage insured under section 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act and which, after the date of the enactment of this Act, has obtained final endorsement of such mortgage for mortgage insurance and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section; and

"(C) a private nonprofit corporation, a public body or agency, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a borrower under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That, with respect to properties financed with loans under such section made on or before the date of the enactment of this Act, payments shall not be made with respect to more than 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any property so financed.

"(2) Of the amounts approved in appropriation Acts pursuant to subsection (a) for payments under this section in any year, not more than 5 per centum in the aggregate shall be paid with respect to properties of housing owners as defined in paragraph (1)(A) of this subsection, and not more than 5 per centum in the aggregate shall be paid with respect to properties of housing owners as defined in paragraphs (1)(B) and (1)(C) of this subsection.

"Extension of FHA section 221 programs; modification of interest rate; pooling of mortgages for sale

"SEC. 102. (a) The fifth sentence of section 221(f) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out 'subsection (d)(2) or (d)(4) after September 30, 1965, or under subsection (d)(3) after September 30, 1965,' and inserting in lieu thereof 'this section after October 1, 1969.'

"(b) The proviso in section 221(d)(5) of such Act is amended by striking out 'not less than the annual rate of interest determined' and inserting in lieu thereof 'not less than the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or (B) the annual rate of interest determined'.

"(c) The third sentence of section 212(a) of such Act is amended by striking out 'described in subsection (d)(3)' and all that follows and inserting in lieu thereof 'described in subsection (d)(3) or (d)(4).'

"(d) Section 302(c) of such Act is amended by inserting before the last sentence thereof the following: 'If there shall be included within one or more of the trusts or other agencies created pursuant to the authority of this subsection any mortgages bearing a below-market interest rate and insured under section 221(d)(3) after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, there are authorized to be appropriated from time to time such amounts as may be necessary to reimburse the Association for the amount of the differential (including interest, other costs, and a fair proportion of administrative expense) between (1) the total outlay with respect to outstanding participations or other instruments which, at the time of issuance, were predicated upon or otherwise related to such below-market interest rate mortgages, and (2) the total receipts from such mortgages.

"Low-rent housing in private accommodations"

"SEC. 103. (a) The United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by redesignating section 23 as section 24, and by adding after section 22 the following new section:

"Low-rent housing in private accommodations"

"SEC. 23. (a) (1) For the purpose of providing a supplementary form of low-rent housing which will aid in assuring a decent place to live for every citizen and promote efficiency and economy in the program under this Act by taking full advantage of vacancies or potential vacancies in the private housing market, each public housing agency shall, to the maximum extent consistent with the achievement of the objectives of this Act, provide low-rent housing under this Act in the form of low-rent housing in private accommodations in accordance with this section where such housing in private accommodations can be provided at a cost equal to or less than housing in projects assisted under other provisions of this Act.

"(2) The provisions of this section shall not apply to any locality unless the governing body of the locality has by resolution approved the application of such provisions to such locality.

"(3) As used in this section, the term 'low-rent housing in private accommodations' means dwelling units in an existing structure, leased from a private owner, which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and related facilities effectively supplementing the accommodations and facilities in low-rent housing assisted under the other provisions of this Act in a manner calculated to meet the total housing needs of the community in which they are located; and the term 'owner' means any person or entity having the legal right to lease or sublease property containing one or more dwelling units as described in this section.

"(b) Beginning as soon as practicable after the date of the enactment of this section, each public housing agency shall conduct a continuing survey and listing of the available dwelling units within the community or communities under its jurisdiction which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and related facilities and are, or may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section.

"(c) Each public housing agency, by notification to the owners of housing listed under subsection (b), or by publication or advertisement, or otherwise, shall from time to time make known to the public in the community or communities under its jurisdiction the anticipated need for dwelling units in such community or communities to be used as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, inviting the owners of such dwelling units to make available for purposes of this section one or more of such units (not exceeding 10 per centum of the units in any single structure except to the extent that the agency, because of the limited number of units in the structure or for any other reason, determines that such limit should not be applied). The public housing agency shall conduct appropriate inspections of the units offered to be made available in any residential structure by the owner thereof in response to such invitation, and if—

"(1) it finds that such units are, or may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations within the meaning of subsection (a) (3), and

"(2) the rentals to be charged for such units, as negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner of the structure in a manner consistent with subsection (d) (2), are within the financial range of families of low income,

such agency may approve such units for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations in accordance with (and subject to the applicable limitations contained in) this section. Each public housing agency shall maintain and keep current a list of units approved by it under this subsection, including such information with respect to each such unit as it may consider necessary or appropriate.

"(d) To the extent of contracts for annual contributions entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency under section 10(e), such agency may enter into contracts with the owners of structures containing dwelling units approved under subsection (c) for the use of such units in accordance with this section. Each such contract with an owner shall provide (with respect to any unit) that—

"(1) the selection of tenants for such unit shall be the function of the owner, subject to the provisions of the contract between the Authority and the agency;

"(2) the rental and other charges to be received by the owner shall be negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner, and the rental and other charges to be paid by the tenant shall be determined in accordance with the standards applicable to units in low-rent housing projects assisted under the other provisions of this Act;

"(3) the agency shall have the sole right to give notice to vacate, with the owner having the right to make representations to the agency for termination of a tenancy;

"(4) maintenance and replacements (including redecoration) shall be in accordance with the standard practice for the building concerned, as established by the owner and agreed to by the agency; and

"(5) the agency and the owner shall carry out such other appropriate terms and conditions as may be mutually agreed to by them. Each contract between a public housing agency and an owner entered into under this subsection shall be for a term of not less than twelve months nor more than thirty-six months, and shall be renewable by such agency and owner at the expiration of such term.

"(e) The annual contribution under this Act for a project of a public housing agency for low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section in lieu of any other guaranteed contribution authorized by section 10 shall not exceed the amount of the fixed annual contribution which would be established under this Act for a newly constructed project by such public housing agency designed to accommodate the comparable number, sizes, and kinds of families. The period over which payments will be made to a public housing agency for a project of low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, and the aggregate amount of such payments, under a contract for annual contributions, shall be determined on the basis of the number of units in the community or communities under the jurisdiction of such agency which are in use (or can reasonably be expected to be placed in use) as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, taking into account the terms of the leases under which such units are (or will be) so used. In addition, contracts for financial assistance entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency pursuant to this section shall provide for reimbursement of reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by such agency in conducting surveys, listings, and inspections described in subsections (b) and (c).

"(f) The provisions of sections 10(h) and 15(7) of this Act, and the workable program requirement in section 10(e) of this Act and section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949, shall not apply to low-rent housing in private accommodations provided under this section."

"(b) The last sentence of section 2(1) of such Act is amended by striking out 'Income limits for occupancy and rents' and inserting in lieu thereof 'Except as otherwise provided in section 23, income limits for occupancy and rents'.

"Parity of treatment for the handicapped and elderly in public housing"

"SEC. 104. Section 2(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended to read as follows:

"(2) The term 'families of low income' means families (including elderly and displaced families) who are in the lowest income group and who cannot afford to pay enough to cause private enterprise in their locality or metropolitan area to build an adequate supply of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for their use. The term 'families' includes families consisting of a single person in the case of elderly families and displaced families, and includes the remaining member of a tenant family. The term 'elderly families' means families whose heads (or their spouses), or whose sole members, have attained the age at which an individual may elect to receive an old-age benefit under title II of the Social Security Act, or are under a disability as defined in section 223 of that Act, or are handicapped within the meaning of section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959. The term 'displaced families' means families displaced by urban renewal or other governmental action, or families whose present or former dwellings are situated in areas determined by the Small Business Administration, subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected by a natural disaster, and which have been extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of such disaster."

"Direct loans to provide housing for the elderly or handicapped"

"SEC. 105. (a) Section 202(a)(4) of the Housing Act of 1959 is amended by striking out '$350,000,000' and inserting in lieu thereof '$500,000,000'.

"(b) Effective with respect to loans made on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, section 202(a)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out 'the higher of (A) 2½ per centum per annum, or' and inserting in lieu thereof 'the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or'.

"Rehabilitation grants to homeowners in urban renewal areas"

"SEC. 106. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Rehabilitation grants"

"SEC. 115. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator may authorize a local public agency to make grants (and the urban renewal project may include the making of such grants) as prescribed in this section. Any such grant may be made only to an individual or family, as described in subsection (b), who owns and occupies a structure in an urban renewal area, and only for the purpose of covering the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make such structure conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable codes or other requirements of the urban renewal plan for the area. Any contract for financial assistance under this title shall provide that the capital grant otherwise payable for the project shall be increased by an amount equal to the total amount of the grants under this section and that no part of the total amount of such grants shall be required to be contributed as part of the local grant-in-aid.

"(b) A grant authorized by this section may be made to an individual or family whose income does not exceed $3,000 a year, and such grant may be in the amount which does not exceed the lesser of (1) the actual (and approved) cost of the repairs and improvements involved, or (2) $1,500. In case the income of the individual or family exceeds $3,000 a year, a grant may be made under this section, subject to the limitations specified in clauses (1) and (2) of the preceding sentence, but only in an amount not to exceed that portion of the cost of the repairs and improvements which cannot be paid for with any available loan that can be amortized as part of such individual's or family's monthly housing expense without requiring such monthly housing expense to exceed 25 per centum of such individual's or family's monthly income."

"(b) Any contract with a local public agency which was executed under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 before the date of enactment of this Act may be amended to provide for grants authorized by section 115 of the Housing Act of 1949.

"Mortgage relief for homeowners who are unemployed as the result of the closing of a Federal installation"

"Sec. 107. (a) For the purposes of this section—

"(1) The term 'mortgage' means a mortgage which (A) is insured under the National Housing Act, or (B) secures a home loan guaranteed or insured under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code.

"(2) The term 'Federal mortgage agency' means—

"(A) the Federal Housing Commissioner when used in connection with mortgages insured under the National Housing Act, and

"(B) the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs when used in connection with mortgages securing home loans guaranteed or insured under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code.

"(3) The term 'distressed mortgagor' means an individual who—

"(A) is unemployed, although willing to work, as the result of the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, and

"(B) is the owner-occupant of a dwelling upon which there is a mortgage securing a loan which is in default because of the inability of such individual to make payments of principal and/or interest under such mortgage.

"(b) (1) Any distressed mortgagor, for the purpose of avoiding foreclosure of his mortgage, may apply to the appropriate Federal mortgage agency for a determination that suspension of his obligation to make payments of principal and/or interest under such mortgage during a temporary period is necessary in order to avoid such foreclosure.

"(2) Upon receipt of an application made under this subsection by a distressed mortgagor, the Federal mortgage agency shall issue to such mortgagor a certificate of moratorium if it determines, after consultation with the interested mortgagee, that—

"(A) the mortgagor is not in default with respect to any condition or covenant of the mortgage other than that requiring the payment of installments of principal and/or interest under the mortgage, and

"(B) such action is the only available means whereby a foreclosure of such mortgage can be avoided.

"(3) Prior to the issuance to any distressed mortgagor of a certificate of moratorium under paragraph (2), the Federal mortgage agency shall require such mortgagor to enter into a binding agreement under which he will be required to make payments to such agency, after the expiration of such certificate, in an aggregate amount equal to the amount paid by such agency on behalf of such mortgagor as provided in subsection (c). The manner and time in which such payments shall be made shall be determined by the Federal mortgage agency having due regard to the purposes sought to be achieved by this section.

"(4) Any certificate of moratorium issued under this subsection shall expire on whichever of the following dates is the earliest—

"(A) one year from the date on which such certificate is issued;

"(B) thirty days after the date on which the mortgagor to whom such certificate is issued ceases to be a distressed mortgagor as defined in subsection (a); or

"(C) the date on which such mortgagor becomes in default with respect to any condition or covenant in his mortgage other than that requiring the payment by him of installments of principal and/or interest under the mortgage.

"(c) (1) Whenever a Federal mortgage agency issues a certificate of moratorium to any distressed mortgagor with respect to any mortgage, it shall transmit to the mortgagee a copy of such certificate, together with a notice stating that, while such certificate is in effect, such agency will assume the obligation of such mortgagor to make payments of principal, and, if so specified in the certificate, of interest, under the mortgage.

"(2) Payments made by any Federal mortgage agency pursuant to a certificate of moratorium issued under this section with respect to the mortgage of any distressed mortgagor shall include, in addition to the payments referred to in paragraph (1), an amount equal to the unpaid principal and interest charges which had accrued under such mortgage prior to the issuance of such certificate and subsequent to the date on which such mortgagor became a distressed mortgagor as defined in subsection (a).

"(3) While any certificate of moratorium issued under this section is in effect with respect to the mortgage of any distressed mortgagor, no further payments of principal, and, if so specified in the certificate, of interest, under the mortgage shall be required of such mortgagor, and no action (legal or otherwise) shall be taken or maintained by the mortgagee to enforce or collect such payments. Upon the expiration of such certificate, the mortgagor shall again be liable for the payment of all amounts due under the mortgage in accordance with its terms.

"(4) Each Federal mortgage agency shall give prompt notice in writing to the interested mortgagor and mortgagee of the expiration of any certificate of moratorium issued by it under this section.

"(d) The Federal mortgage agencies are authorized to issue such individual and joint regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section and to insure the uniform administration thereof.

"(e) There shall be in the Treasury (1) a fund which shall be available to the Federal Housing Commissioner for the purpose of extending financial assistance in behalf of distressed mortgagors as provided in subsection (c), and (2) a fund which shall be available to the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs for the same purpose. The capital of each such fund shall consist of such sums as may, from time to time, be appropriated thereto, and any sums so appropriated shall remain available until expended. Receipts arising from the programs of assistance under subsection (c) shall be credited to the fund from which such assistance was extended. Moneys in either of such funds not needed for current operations, as determined by the Federal Housing Commissioner, or the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, as the case may be, shall be invested in bonds or other obligations of the United States, or paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

"(f) Section 1816 of title 38, United States Code is amended by inserting '(a)' before the text of such section, and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(b) With respect to any loan made under section 1811 which has not been sold as provided in subsection (g) of such section, if the Administrator finds, after there has been a default in the payment of any installment of principal or interest owing on such loan, that the default was due to the fact that the veteran who is obligated under the loan has become unemployed as the result of the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, he shall (1) extend the time for curing the default to such time as he determines is necessary and desirable to enable such veteran to complete payments on such loan, including an extension of time beyond the stated maturity thereof, or (2) modify the terms of such loan for the purpose of changing the amortization provisions thereof by recasting, over the remaining term of the loan, or over such longer period as he may determine, the total unpaid amount then due with the modification to become effective currently or upon the termination of an agreed-upon extension of the period for curing the default."

"Acquisition of certain properties situated at or near military bases which have been ordered to be closed"

"Sec. 108. (a) The Secretary of Defense is authorized to acquire title to any property, improved with a one- or two-family dwelling, which is situated at or near a military base or installation which the Department of Defense has, subsequent to November 1, 1964, ordered to be closed in whole or in part, if he determines—

"(1) that the owner of such property is, or has been, employed or performing military service, at such base or installation;

"(2) that the closing of such base or installation, in whole or in part, has required or will require the termination of such owner's employment or service at such base or installation; and

"(3) that as the result of the actual or pending closing of such base or installation there is no present market for the sale of such property upon reasonable terms and conditions.

"(b) The purchase price of any property which is situated at or near a military base or installation and is acquired under this section shall be equal to an amount determined by the Secretary of Defense to be the average price at which properties, similar in size, construction, condition, and location to that of the property to be acquired, were sold during a representative period, as determined by the Secretary, prior to the announcement of the intention of the Department of Defense to close all or part of such base or installation.

"(c) The title to any property acquired under this section shall be free and clear of any outstanding liens or encumbrances and shall conform to such requirements as the Secretary of Defense shall by regulation require. Such regulations shall also prescribe the terms and conditions under which payments may be made under this section, and decisions by the Secretary regarding such payments, and the terms and conditions under which the same are approved or disapproved, shall be final and conclusive and shall not be subject to judicial review.

"(d) Properties acquired under this section shall be transferred to the Federal Housing Commissioner, and the Federal Housing Commissioner shall have power to deal with, rent, renovate, or sell for cash or credit any properties so transferred. Receipts from the management or sale of any such properties may be utilized by the Commissioner to defray expenses arising in connection with the management of such properties, and any part of such receipts not required for such expenses shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

"(e) Section 223(a) of the National Housing Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (7) and inserting in lieu thereof "; or "; and

"(2) by inserting after paragraph (7) a new paragraph as follows:

"(8) executed in connection with the sale by the Commissioner of any housing acquired pursuant to section 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965."

"(f) Such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section are hereby authorized to be appropriated, and any sums so appropriated shall remain available until expended.

"TITLE II—FHA INSURANCE OPERATIONS

"Land development

"SEC. 201. (a) The National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

"TITLE X—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR LAND DEVELOPMENT

"Definitions

"SEC. 1001. As used in this title—

"(a) the term "mortgage" means a lien or liens on real estate in fee simple, or on a leasehold (1) under a lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renewable, or (2) under a lease having a period of not less than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was executed;

"(b) the term "first mortgage" includes such classes of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances (including but not limited to advances during construction) on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate under the laws of the State in which the real estate is located, together with the credit instrument or instruments, if any, secured thereby, and may be in the form of trust mortgages or mortgage indentures or deeds of trusts securing notes, bonds, or other credit instruments;

"(c) the terms "mortgage", "mortgagor", and "State" have the same meaning as in section 207 of this Act;

"(d) the term "improvements" means waterlines and water supply installations, sewerlines and sewerage disposal installations, roads, streets, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, storm drainage facilities, and other installations or work, whether on or off the site, which the Commissioner deems necessary or desirable to prepare land primarily for residential and related uses or to provide facilities for public or common use; but such term shall not include any building unless it is (1) a building which is needed in connection with a water supply or sewage disposal installation, or (2) a building, other than a school, which is to be owned and maintained jointly by the property owners; and

"(e) the term "land development" means the process of making, installing, or constructing improvements.

"Basic conditions for insurance

"SEC. 1002. (a) The Commissioner is authorized (1) to insure, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, any first mortgage (including advances on such mortgage) in accordance with the provisions of this title, and (2) to make a commitment for the insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of execution of such mortgage or prior to the date of disbursement of the mortgage proceeds. No mortgage shall be insured under this title after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment to insure issued before such date.

"(b) The mortgage shall—

"(1) be executed by a mortgagor, other than a public body, approved by the Commissioner;

"(2) be made to and held by a mortgagee approved by the Commissioner; and

"(3) cover the land to be developed and the improvements to be made with the assistance of the mortgage insurance under this title, except facilities intended for public use and in public ownership.

"(c) The principal obligation of the mortgage shall (1) not exceed 75 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of the property upon completion of the land development, and (2) not exceed the sum of 50 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of the land before development and 90 per centum of his estimate of the cost of such development. The outstanding principal obligations of mortgages involving a single land development undertaking, as defined by the Commissioner, shall at no time exceed $10,000,000.

"(d) The mortgage shall—

"(1) have a maturity not to exceed seven years or such longer maturity as the Commissioner deems reasonable in the case of a privately owned system for water or sewerage, and contain repayment provisions satisfactory to the Commissioner;

"(2) bear interest at a rate satisfactory to the Commissioner, and such interest shall be exclusive of premium charges for mortgage insurance and such service charges and fees as may be approved by the Commissioner; and

"(3) contain such terms and provisions with respect to protection of the security, payment of taxes, delinquency charges, prepayment, additional and secondary liens, and other matters as the Commissioner may in his discretion prescribe.

"(e) A property or project to be financed by a mortgage insured under this title shall—

"(1) represent a good mortgage insurance risk; and

"(2) involve improvements that comply with all applicable State and local governmental requirements and with minimum standards approved by the Commissioner.

"Land planning

"SEC. 1003. (a) The land development covered by a mortgage insured under this title shall be undertaken pursuant to a schedule, conforming to such requirements and procedures as the Commissioner may prescribe, that will assure the use of the land for the purposes for which it is to be developed within the shortest reasonable period consistent with the objectives of sound and economic community growth or urban development.

"(b) The land development shall be undertaken in accordance with an overall development plan, appropriate to the scope and character of the undertaking, which—

"(2) is acceptable to the Commissioner as providing reasonable assurance that the land development will contribute to good living conditions in the area being developed, which area (A) will have a sound economic base and a long economic life, (B) will be characterized by sound land-use patterns, and (C) will include or be served by such shopping, school, recreational, transportation, and other facilities as the Commissioner deems adequate or necessary; and

"(3) is consistent with a comprehensive plan which covers, or with comprehensive planning being carried on for, the area in which the land is situated, and which meets criteria established by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator for such plans or planning.

"Encouragement of small builders and moderate cost housing

"SEC. 1004. The Commissioner shall adopt such requirements as he deems necessary in land development covered by mortgages insured under this title to encourage the maintenance of a diversified local homebuilding industry, broad participation by builders, and the inclusion of a proper balance of housing for families of moderate or low income.

"Water and sewerage facilities

"SEC. 1005. After development of the land it shall be served by public systems for water and sewerage which are consistent with other existing or prospective systems within the area, except that the Commissioner may approve an adequate privately or cooperatively owned system which will be regulated in a manner acceptable to him with respect to user rates and charges, capital structure, methods of operation, rate of return, and conditions and terms of any sale or transfer.

"Releases

"SEC. 1006. The Commissioner may, on such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, consent to the release or subordination of a part or parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the mortgage.

"Premiums and fees

"SEC. 1007. The commissioner shall collect reasonable premiums for the insurance of any mortgage under this title and make such charges as he determines are reasonable for the analysis of the land development plan and the appraisal and inspection of the property and improvements. On or before January 1, 1967, the Commissioner shall make a report to the Congress concerning the premium rates and other charges under this title that he estimates will be adequate to provide income sufficient for a self-supporting program.

"Insurance benefits

"SEC. 1008. The provisions of subsections (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 of this Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured under this title, except that as applied to such mortgages (1) any reference therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to this title, and (2) any reference to an annual premium shall be deemed to refer to such premiums as the Commissioner may designate under this title.

"Incontestability provisions

"SEC. 1009. Any contract of insurance executed by the Commissioner under this title shall be conclusive evidence of the eligibility of the mortgage for insurance, and the validity of any contract of insurance so executed shall be incontestable in the hands of an approved mortgagee from the date of the execution of such contract, except for fraud or material misrepresentation on the part of such approved mortgagee.

"Rules and regulations

"SEC. 1010. The Commissioner is authorized to make such rules and regulations and to require such agreements as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this title.

"Taxation provisions

"SEC. 1011. Nothing in this title shall be construed to exempt any real property acquired and held by the Commissioner under this title from taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

"Cost certification

"SEC. 1012. (a) The Commissioner shall adopt such requirements as he determines necessary to assure, at reasonable intervals of time during land development and upon completion of such development, that the amount of the mortgage loan outstanding at each such interval does not exceed with respect to that portion of the land remaining under the lien of the mortgage (1) 50 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of such remaining land before development, plus (2) 90 per centum of the actual costs of the development allocated by the Commissioner to such remaining land.

"(b) From time to time during, and upon completion of, the development, the Commissioner shall require the mortgagor to certify as to the actual costs of development of the land.

"(c) Certifications required pursuant to this section shall be accompanied by such data and records as the Commissioner shall prescribe.

"(d) A mortgagor's certification approved by the Commissioner shall be final and incontestable except for fraud or material misrepresentation on the part of the mortgagor.

"(e) As used in this section, the term 'actual costs' means the costs (exclusive of kickbacks, rebates, or trade discounts) to the mortgagor of the improvements involved. These costs may include amounts paid for labor, materials, construction contracts, land planning, engineers' and architect's fees, surveys, taxes, and interest during development, organizational and legal expenses, such allocation of general overhead expenses as are acceptable to the Commissioner, and other items of expense incidental to development which may be approved by the Commissioner. If the Commissioner determines there is an identity of interest between the mortgagor and the contractor, there may be included an allowance for contractor's profit in an amount deemed reasonable by the Commissioner."

"(b) (1) Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out 'the term "mortgages"' in the last sentence and inserting in lieu thereof 'the terms "mortgages" and "home mortgages" '.

"(2) The first paragraph of section 24 of the Federal Reserve Act is amended by inserting before the next to last sentence the following new sentence: 'Notwithstanding the foregoing limitations and restrictions in this section, any national banking association may make loans for land development which are secured by mortgages insured under title X of the National Housing Act.'

"(3) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, any such association may, to such extent as the Federal Home Loan Bank Board may by regulation permit, invest in loans, and interests in loans, (1) secured by mortgages as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under title X of the National Housing Act or of a commitment or agreement for such insurance, or (2) guaranteed by the President under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. Investments under clause (1) of this paragraph shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection. Investments under clause (2) of this paragraph shall not exceed, in the case of any association, 1 per centum of the assets of such association."

"(4) Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: 'The provisions of this section shall also apply to insurance under title X with respect to laborers and mechanics employed in land development financed with the proceeds of any mortgage insured under that title.'

Extension of insurance authorizations

"SEC. 202. (a) Section 2(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out 'October 1, 1965,' and inserting in lieu thereof 'October 1, 1969'.

"(b) Section 217 of such Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'title VIII' and inserting in lieu thereof 'title VIII, or title X', and

"(2) by striking out 'October 1, 1965' and inserting in lieu thereof 'October 1, 1969'.

"(c) The second sentences of sections 809(f) and 810(k) of such Act are each amended by striking out 'October 1, 1965' and inserting in lieu thereof 'October 1, 1969'.

"Mortgage limits for homes under section 203(b)"

"SEC. 203. Clause (iii) of section 203(b) (2) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out '75 per centum' and inserting in lieu thereof '80 per centum'.

"Downpayment requirement in case of low-income housing demonstration homes"

"SEC. 204. Section 203(b) (9) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after 'a mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (i) of this section,' the following: 'or with respect to a mortgage covering a single-family home being purchased under the low-income housing demonstration project assisted pursuant to section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961,'.

"Mortgage limit for homes in outlying areas under FHA section 203(i) program"

"SEC. 205. Section 203(i) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out '$11,000' and inserting in lieu thereof '$12,500'.

"FHA mortgage financing for veterans"

"SEC. 206. (a) Section 203(b) (2) of the National Housing Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'and not to exceed' and inserting in lieu thereof 'and (except as provided in the next to the last sentence of this paragraph) not to exceed'; and

"(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentences: 'If the mortgagor is a veteran who has not received any direct, guaranteed, or insured loan under laws administered by the Veterans' Administration for the purchase, construction, or repair of a dwelling (including a farm dwelling) which was to be owned and occupied by him as his home, and the mortgage to be insured under this section covers property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a one-family residence, the principal obligation may be in an amount equal to the sum of (i) 100 per centum of $15,000 of the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, (ii) 90 per centum of such value in excess of $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and (iii) 85 per centum of such value in excess of $20,000. As used herein, the term "veteran" means any person who served on active duty in the armed forces of the United States for a period of not less than ninety days (or is certified by the Secretary of Defense as having performed extraordinary service), and who was discharged or released therefrom under conditions other than dishonorable.'

"(b) Section 203(b) (9) of such Act is amended by inserting after 'on account of the property' the following: '(except in a case to which the next to the last sentence of paragraph (2) applies)'.

"Multifamily mortgage limits for four or more bedroom units"

"SEC. 207. (a) Section 307(c) (3) of the National Housing Act is amended—

"Mutuality for management-type cooperatives"

"SEC. 208. (a) Section 213 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsections:

"(k) There is hereby created a Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the "Management Fund"). The Management Fund shall be used by the Commissioner as a revolving fund for carrying out the provisions of this section with respect to mortgages or loans insured, on or after the date of the enactment of this subsection, under subsections (a) (1), (a) (3) (If the project is acquired by a cooperative corporation), (i), and (j). The Management Fund shall also be used as a revolving fund for mortgages, loans, and commitments transferred to it pursuant to subsection (m). The Commissioner is directed to transfer to the Management Fund from the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to section 519 such amount as the Commissioner determines to be necessary and appropriate. General expenses of operation of the Federal Housing Administration relating to mortgages or loans which are the obligation of the Management Fund may be charged to the Management Fund.

"(l) The Commissioner shall establish in the Management Fund, as of the date of the enactment of this subsection, a General Surplus Account and a Participating Reserve Account. The aggregate net income thereafter received or any net loss thereafter sustained by the Management Fund, in any semiannual period, shall be credited or charged to the General Surplus Account or the Participating Reserve Account or both in such manner and amounts as the Commissioner may determine to be in accord with sound actuarial and accounting practice. Upon termination of the insurance obligation of the Management Fund by payment of any mortgage or loan insured under this section, and at such time or times prior to such termination as the Commissioner may determine, the Commissioner is authorized to distribute to the mortgagor or borrower a share of the Participating Reserve Account in such manner and amount as the Commissioner shall determine to be equitable and in accordance with sound actuarial and accounting practice: Provided, That in no event shall the amount of the distributable share exceed the aggregate scheduled annual premiums of the mortgagor or borrower to the year of payment of the share less the total amount of any share or shares previously distributed by the Commissioner to the mortgagor or borrower: And provided further, That in no event may a distributable share be distributed until any funds transferred from the General Insurance Fund to the Management Fund pursuant to subsection (k) or (o) have been repaid in full to the General Insurance Fund. No mortgagor, mortgagee, borrower, or lender shall have any vested right in a credit balance in any such account or be subject to any liability arising out of the mutuality of the Management Fund. The determination of the Commissioner as to the amount to be paid by him to any mortgagor or borrower shall be final and conclusive.

"(m) The Commissioner is authorized to transfer to the Management Fund commitments for insurance issued under subsections (a) (1), (1), and (j) prior to the date of the enactment of this subsection, and to transfer to the Management Fund the insurance of any mortgage or loan insured prior to the date of the enactment of this subsection under subsection (a) (1), (a) (3) (if the project is acquired by a cooperative corporation), (1), or (j), but only in cases where the consent of the mortgagee or lender to the transfer is obtained or a request by the mortgagee or lender for the transfer is received by the Commissioner within such period of time after the date of the enactment of this subsection as the Commissioner shall prescribe: Provided, That the insurance of any mortgage or loan shall not be transferred under the provisions of this subsection if on the date of the enactment of this subsection the mortgage or loan is in default and the mortgagee or lender has notified the Commissioner in writing of its intention to file an insurance claim. Any insurance or commitment not so transferred shall continue to be an obligation of the General Insurance Fund.

"(n) Notwithstanding the limitations contained in other provisions of this Act, premium charges for mortgages or loans insured under this section and sections 207, 231, and 232 may be payable in debentures issued in connection with mortgages or loans transferred to the Management Fund or in connection with mortgages or loans insured pursuant to commitments transferred to the Management Fund, as provided in subsection (m) of this section.

"(o) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Commissioner is authorized to transfer funds between the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund and the General Insurance Fund in such amounts and at such times as he may determine, taking into consideration the requirements of each such Fund, to assist in carrying out effectively the insurance programs for which such Funds were respectively established."

"(b) Section 213 of such Act is further amended—

"(1) by inserting before the period at the end of subsection (a) the following: 'Provided, That as applied to mortgages the mortgage insurance for which is the obligation of the Management Fund, the reference to the General Insurance Fund in section 207(b) (2) shall be construed to refer to the Management Fund'; and

"(2) by inserting before the period at the end of subsection (e) the following: 'Provided, That as applied to mortgages or loans the insurance for which is the obligation of the Management Fund (1) all references to the General Insurance Fund shall be construed to refer to the Management Fund, and (2) all references to section 207 shall be construed to refer to subsections (a) (1), (a) (3), (if the project involved is acquired by a cooperative corporation, (1), and (j) of this section'."

"Rehabilitation in urban renewal areas"

"Sec. 209. Section 220(d) (3) (A) of the National Housing Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out the second proviso in clause (i); and

"(2) by striking out clause (ii) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(i) in a case where the mortgagor is not the occupant of the property and intends to hold the property for rental purposes, have a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed 93 per centum of the amount computed under the provisions of clause (i);

"(iii) in a case where the mortgagor is not the occupant of the property and intends to hold the property for the purpose of sale, have a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed 85 per centum of the amount computed under the provisions of clause (1), or in the alternative, in an amount equal to the amount computed under the provisions of clause (1) if the mortgagor and mortgagee assume responsibility in a manner satisfactory to the Commissioner for the reduction of the mortgage by an amount not less than 15 per centum of the outstanding principal amount thereof, or by such greater amount as may be required to meet the limitations of clause (iv), in the event the mortgaged property is not, prior to the due date of the mortgage, sold to a purchaser acceptable to the Commissioner who is the occupant of the property and who assumes and agrees to pay the mortgage indebtedness; and

"(iv) in no case involving refinancing (except as provided in clause (iii)) have a principal obligation in an amount exceeding the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Commissioner) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property or project, plus any existing indebtedness incurred in connection with improving, repairing, or rehabilitating the property; or."

"Nondwelling facilities for urban renewal housing"

"Sec. 210. Section 220(d) (3) (B) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out clause (iv) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(iv) include such nondwelling facilities as the Commissioner deems desirable and consistent with the urban renewal plan: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage shall be found by the Commissioner to contribute to the economic feasibility of the project, and the Commissioner shall give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community."

"Larger home improvement loans in high cost areas"

"Sec. 211. (a) Section 220(h) (2) (1) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof: 'Provided, That the Commissioner may, by regulation, increase such amount by not to exceed 45 per centum in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require'."

"(b) Section 220(h) (11) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof 'or such additional amount as the Commissioner has by regulation prescribed in any geographical area where he finds cost levels so require pursuant to the authority vested in him by the proviso in paragraph (2) (i) of this subsection'."

"Larger insured mortgages for servicemen"

"Sec. 212. Section 222(b) of the National Housing Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out '$20,000' in paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof '$30,000'; and

"(2) by striking out paragraph (3) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(3) have a principal obligation not in excess of the sum of (i) 97 per centum of $15,000 of the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, (ii) 90 per centum of such value in excess of $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and (iii) 85 per centum of such value in excess of $20,000; and."

"Refinancing of insured mortgages"

"Sec. 213. Section 223(a) (7) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out 'section 608 of title VI prior to the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954 or under section 220, 221, 903, or section 908' and inserting in lieu thereof 'this Act'."

"Consolidation of FHA insurance funds"

"Sec. 214. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Establishment of general insurance fund"

"Sec. 519. (a) There is hereby created a General Insurance Fund which shall be used by the Commissioner on and after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as a revolving fund for carrying out all the insurance provisions of this Act with the exception of those specified in subsection (e). All mortgages or loans insured under this Act pursuant to commitments issued on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in subsection (e), and all loans reported for insurance under section 2 on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, shall be insured under the General Insurance Fund. The Commissioner shall transfer to the General Insurance Fund—

"(1) the assets and liabilities of all insurance accounts and funds, except the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund, existing under this Act immediately prior to the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

"(2) all outstanding commitments for insurance issued prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in subsection (e);

"(3) the insurance on all mortgages and loans insured prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except insurance specified in subsection (e); and

"(4) the insurance of all loans made by approved financial institutions pursuant to section 2 prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

"(b) The general expenses of the operations of the Federal Housing Administration relating to mortgages and loans which are the obligation of the General Insurance Fund may be charged to the General Insurance Fund.

"(c) Moneys in the General Insurance Fund not needed for the current operations of the Federal Housing Administration with respect to mortgages and loans which are the obligation of the General Insurance Fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of such Fund, or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States. The Commissioner may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in the open market debentures issued as obligations of the General Insurance Fund or issued prior to the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 under other provisions of this Act, except debentures issued under the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from other investments authorized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued.

"(d) Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, and appraisal and other fees received on account of the insurance of any mortgage or loan which is the obligation of the General Insurance Fund, the receipts derived from the property covered by such mortgages and loans and from the claims, debts, contracts, property, and security assigned to the Commissioner in connection therewith, and all earnings on the assets of the Fund shall be credited to the General Insurance Fund. The principal of, and interest paid and to be paid on, debentures which are the obligation of such Fund, cash insurance payments and adjustments, and expenses incurred in the handling, management, renovation, and disposal of properties acquired, in connection with mortgages and loans which are the obligation of such Fund, shall be charged to such Fund.

"(e) The General Insurance Fund shall not be used for carrying out the provisions of sections 203(b), 203(h), and 203(i), or the provisions of section 213 to the extent that they involve mortgages the insurance for which is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund created by section 213(k); and nothing in this section shall apply to or affect any mortgages, loans, commitments, or insurance under such provisions."

"Optional cash payment of insurance benefits"

"SEC. 215. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 214 of this Act) the following new section:

"Optional cash payment of insurance benefits"

"SEC. 520. (a) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act with respect to the payment of insurance benefits, the Commissioner is authorized, in his discretion, to pay in cash or in debentures any insurance claim or part thereof which is paid on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 on a mortgage or a loan which was insured under any section of this Act either before or after such date. If payment is made in cash, it shall be in an amount equivalent to the face amount of the debentures that would otherwise be issued plus an amount equivalent to the interest which the debentures would have earned, computed to a date to be established pursuant to regulations issued by the Commissioner.

"(b) The Commissioner is authorized to borrow from the Treasury from time to time such amounts as the Commissioner shall determine are necessary to make payments in cash (in lieu of issuing debentures guaranteed by the United States, as provided in this Act) pursuant to the provisions of this section. Notes or other obligations issued by the Commissioner in borrowing under this subsection shall be subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. Each sum borrowed pursuant to this subsection shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States of comparable maturities during the month preceding the issuance of such notes or other obligations."

"Approval of technically suitable materials"

"SEC. 216. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after section 520 (added by section 215 of this Act) a new section as follows:

"Approval of technically suitable materials"

"SEC. 521. The Commissioner shall adopt a uniform procedure for the acceptance of materials and products to be used in structures approved for mortgages or loans insured under this Act. Under such procedure any material or product which the Commissioner finds is technically suitable for the use proposed shall be accepted. Acceptance of a material or product as technically suitable shall not be deemed to restrict the discretion of the Commissioner to determine that a structure, with respect to which a mortgage is executed, is economically sound or an acceptable risk."

"Water and sewer facilities in connection with certain federally assisted housing"

"SEC. 217. (a) Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after section 521 (added by section 216 of this Act) a new section as follows:

"Water and sewer facilities"

"SEC. 522. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, no mortgage which covers new construction shall be approved for insurance under this Act (except pursuant to a commitment made prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965) if the mortgaged property includes housing which is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system: Provided, That this limitation shall be applicable only to property which is not served by a system approved by the Commissioner pursuant to title X of this Act and which is situated in an area certified by appropriate local officials to be an area where the establishment of public or adequate community water and sewerage systems is economically feasible: Provided further, That for purposes of this section the economic feasibility of establishing such public or adequate community water and sewerage systems shall be determined without regard to whether such establishment is authorized by law or is subject to approval by one or more local governments or public bodies."

"(b) Section 1804 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(e) No loan for the purchase or construction of new residential property (other than property served by a water and sewerage system approved by the Federal Housing Commissioner pursuant to title X of the National Housing Act) shall be financed through the assistance of this chapter, except pursuant to a commitment made prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, if such property is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system and is located in an area where the appropriate local officials certify that the establishment of such systems is economically feasible. For purposes of this subsection, the economic feasibility of establishing public or adequate community water and sewerage systems shall be determined without regard to whether such establishment is authorized by law or is subject to approval by one or more local governments or public bodies."

"TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL"

"Study of housing and building codes, zoning, tax policies, and development standards"

"SEC. 301. (a) The Congress finds that the general welfare of the Nation requires that local authorities be encouraged and aided to prevent slums, blight, and sprawl, preserve natural beauty, and provide for decent, durable housing so that the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family may be realized as soon as feasible. The Congress further finds that there is a need to study housing and building codes, zoning, tax policies, and development standards in order to determine how (1) local property owners and private enterprise can be encouraged to serve as large a part as they can of the total housing and building need, and (2) Federal, State, and local governmental assistance can be so directed as to place greater reliance on local property owners and private enterprise and enable them to serve a greater share of the total housing and building need. The Housing and Home Finance Administrator is therefore directed to study the structure of (1) State and local urban and suburban housing and building laws, standards, codes, and regulations and their impact on housing and building costs, how they can be simplified, improved, and enforced, at the local level, and what methods might be adopted to promote more uniform building codes and the acceptance of technical innovations including new building practices and materials; (2) State and local zoning and land use laws, codes, and regulations, to find ways by which States and localities may improve and utilize them in order to obtain further growth and development; and (3) Federal, State, and local tax policies with respect to their effect on land and property cost and on incentives to build housing and make improvements in existing structures.

(b) The Administrator shall submit a report based on such study to the President and to the Congress within 18 months after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 or the appropriation of funds for the study, whichever is later.

"(c) There are authorized to be appropriated such funds as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section. Any funds so appropriated shall remain available until expended.

"Workable program requirement"

"SEC. 302. (a) (1) Section 101 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(e) No loan or grant contract may be entered into by the Administrator for an urban renewal project unless he determines that (1) the workable program for community improvement presented by the locality pursuant to subsection (c) is of sufficient scope and content to furnish a basis for evaluation of the need for the urban renewal project; and (2) such project is in accord with the program."

"(2) The requirements imposed by the amendment made by paragraph (1) shall not be applicable to any project which received Federal recognition prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

"(b) Section 101(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: 'Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in the case of a contract with an Indian tribe, band, or nation (or a public housing or other public agency for such tribe, band, or nation established under State or tribal law), the workable program and minimum standards housing code, referred to in the preceding sentence, may be presented to the Administrator by such tribe, band, or nation, and it shall be subject to the requirements of law with respect to such program and code only to the extent that such tribe, band, or nation has the legal jurisdiction and power to carry out such requirements.'

"General neighborhood renewal plans"

"SEC. 303. Section 102(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

"(1) by striking out the first sentence of the second paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"'In order to facilitate proper preliminary planning for the attainment of the urban renewal objectives of this title, the Administrator may also make advances of funds (in addition to those authorized above) to local public agencies for the preparation of General Neighborhood Renewal Plans (as herein defined). A General Neighborhood Renewal Plan may be prepared for an area consisting of an urban renewal area or areas, together with any adjoining areas having specially related problems, and which is of such size that the urban renewal activities in the urban renewal area or areas may have to be initiated in stages, consistent with the capacity and resources of the respective local public agency or agencies, over an estimated period of not more than eight years.'; and

"(2) by striking out the first numbered paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"'(1) in the interest of sound community planning, it is desirable that the urban renewal activities proposed for the area be planned in their entirety.'"

"Increase in authorization for capital grants"

"SEC. 304. (a) The first sentence of section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out '$4,725,000,000' and inserting in lieu thereof '$4,700,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $675,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, by $725,000,000 on July 1, 1966, and by $750,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1967 and 1968'.

"(b) The proviso in the first sentence of section 103(b) of such Act, and the second sentence of section 6(b) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, are repealed.

"Relocation of displacees from urban renewal areas"

"SEC. 305. (a) Section 105(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"'(c) (1) There shall be a feasible method for the temporary relocation of individuals and families displaced from the urban renewal area, and there are or are being provided, in the urban renewal area or in other areas not generally less desirable in regard to public utilities and public and commercial facilities and at rents or prices within the financial means of the individuals and families displaced from the urban renewal area, decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings equal in number to the number of and available to such displaced individuals and families and reasonably accessible to their places of employment. The Administrator shall issue rules and regulations to aid in implementing the requirements of this subsection and in otherwise achieving the objectives of this title. Such rules and regulations shall require that there be established, at the earliest practicable time, for each urban renewal project involving the displacement of individuals, families, and business concerns occupying property in the urban renewal area, a relocation assistance program which shall include such measures, facilities, and services as may be necessary or appropriate in order (A) to determine the needs of such individuals, families, and business concerns for relocation assistance; (B) to provide information and assistance to aid in relocation and otherwise minimize the hardships of displacement, including information as to real estate agencies, brokers, and boards in or near the urban renewal area which deal in residential or business property that might be appropriate for the relocating of displaced individuals, families, and business concerns; and (C) to assure the necessary coordination of relocation activities with other project activities and other planned or proposed governmental actions in the community which may affect the carrying out of the relocation program, particularly planned or proposed low-rent housing projects to be constructed in or near the urban renewal area.

"(2) As a condition to further assistance after the enactment of this paragraph with respect to each urban renewal project involving the displacement of individuals and families, the Administrator shall require, within a reasonable time prior to actual displacement, satisfactory assurance by the local public agency that decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings as required by the first sentence of this subsection are available for the relocation of each individual or family."

"(b) Clause (iii) in the second proviso of section 101(c) of such Act is amended by striking out 'section 105(c)' and inserting in lieu thereof 'section 105(c)(1)'.

"(c) The requirements imposed by the amendment made by subsection (a) of this section shall not be applicable to any project which received Federal recognition prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

"Redevelopment in accordance with urban renewal plan"

"SEC. 306. Section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"'(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, no contract shall be entered into for any loan or capital grant under this title with any local public agency unless the local public agency establishes, by evidence satisfactory to the Administrator, that any urban renewal project with respect to which such local public agency has received a loan or capital grant under this title has been, or will be, undertaken and carried out in substantial accordance with the urban renewal plan, and any amendments thereto, approved with respect to such project, and the terms of the contract for loan or capital grant covering such project.'

"Use of grant for loan funds in code enforcement and rehabilitation projects"

"SEC. 307. The first unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs in section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

"(1) by inserting '(A)' before 'no contract'; and

"(2) by inserting before the period at the end of the paragraph the following: ', and (B) not less than 10 per centum of the aggregate amount of (i) grants authorized to be contracted for under this title by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and subsequent Acts, and (ii) loans authorized to be made under section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964, shall be available for projects assisted with such grants or loans which involve primarily code enforcement and rehabilitation'.

"Increase in nonresidential exception"

"SEC. 308. The third unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs in section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out the period and inserting in lieu thereof the following: ': And provided further, That the aggregate amount of capital grants made available under this title with respect to such projects after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 may be in an amount not to exceed (in addition to amounts previously available for such projects) 35 per centum of the amount of additional capital grants authorized under this title by such Act.'

"Preservation of historic structures"

"SEC. 309. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'and' at the end of paragraph (7);

"(2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (8) and inserting in lieu thereof 'and';

"(3) by inserting a new paragraph (9) as follows:

"'(9) relocating within the project area a structure which the local public agency determines to be of historic value and which will be disposed of to a public body or a private nonprofit organization which will renovate and maintain such structure for historic purposes.'; and

"(4) by striking out 'paragraphs (7) and (8)' in the second unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs and inserting in lieu thereof 'paragraphs (7), (8), and (9)'.

"(b) Section 110(e) of such Act is amended by striking out 'and (8)' in clause (i) and inserting in lieu thereof '(8), and (9)'.

"Eligibility of certain expenses of projects financed on three-fourths grant basis"

"SEC. 310. (a) Clause (i) of the third sentence of section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by (1) inserting 'staff services in connection with programs of code enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation and repair (including community organization),' after disposition of land,'; and (2) inserting '(5),' after '(4)'.

"(b) Any contract for a capital grant under title I of the Housing Act of 1949, executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act, may be amended to incorporate the provisions of subsection (a) as to costs incurred on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

"Demolition of unsafe structures; code enforcement"

"SEC. 311. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after section 115 (added by section 106 of this Act) two new sections as follows:

"Demolition"

"'SEC. 116. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties to assist in financing the cost of demolishing structures which under State or local law have been determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation, and which such city, municipality, or county has authority to demolish. The amount of any grant under this section shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the demolition of such structures.

"'(b) No grant shall be made under this section unless the structures to be demolished are located in an urban renewal area, or, in the case of structures outside an urban renewal area, (1) the locality involved has an approved workable program for community improvement in accordance with the requirements of section 101(c), as determined by the Administrator, (2) the demolition to be assisted will be on a planned neighborhood basis and will further the over-all renewal objectives of such locality, (3) there is in such locality a program of enforcement of existing local housing and related codes, (4) the structures to be demolished constitute a public nuisance and a serious hazard to the public health or welfare, and (5) the governing body of such locality has determined that other available legal procedures have been exhausted to secure remedial action by the owner of the structures involved and that demolition by governmental action is required.

"Code enforcement"

"Sec. 117. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the purpose of assisting such localities in carrying out programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas in which such enforcement, together with those public improvements to be provided by the locality, may be expected to arrest the decline of the area. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any city, other municipality, or county having a population of 50,000 or less according to the most recent decennial census) of the cost of planning and carrying out such programs which may include the provision and repair of necessary streets, curbs, sidewalks, street lighting, tree planting, and similar improvements within such areas. The Administrator shall not make any grant under this section unless he has obtained adequate assurances (1) that the locality will maintain during the period of the contract, in addition to its expenditures for planning and carrying out any program assisted under this section, a level of expenditures for code enforcement activities at not less than its normal expenditures for such activities prior to the execution of such contract, and (2) that the locality has a satisfactory program for the provision of all necessary public improvements for such areas. The provisions of sections 101(c), 106, 114, and 115 shall be applicable to activities and undertakings assisted under this section to the same extent as if such activities and undertakings were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project."

"(b) Section 110(c) of such Act is amended by—

"(1) striking out 'or a program of code enforcement in an urban renewal area,' in the first sentence; and

"(2) striking out the proviso in paragraph (5).

"(c) Section 220(d) (1) (A) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the first proviso the following: ', or (iv) an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949'.

"(d) Section 220(h) (1) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after 'urban renewal project' in the first sentence the following: 'or in an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949'.

"(e) Section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended by inserting after 'urban renewal area' in the first sentence the following: 'or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949'.

"Rehabilitation loans"

"Sec. 312. (a) Section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended by striking out 'reasonable' in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof 'comparable'.

"(b) Section 312(d) of such Act is amended by striking out '$50,000,000' and inserting in lieu thereof '$100,000,000 for each fiscal year', and by adding at the end thereof a new sentence as follows: 'All moneys in such revolving fund shall be available for necessary expenses of servicing loans made pursuant to this section, including reimbursement or payment for services and facilities of the Federal National Mortgage Association and of any public or private agency for the servicing of such loans.'

"(c) Section 312 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) No loan shall be made under the authority of this section after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a contract, commitment, or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date."

"Eligibility of communities in depressed areas for urban renewal assistance"

"Sec. 313. (a) Subparagraph (B) of section 103(a) (2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"(B) three-fourths of the aggregate net project costs of any such projects which are located in (i) a municipality having a population of fifty thousand or less according to the most recent decennial census, or (ii) a municipality situated in a labor market area which, at the time the contract or contracts involved are entered into or at such earlier time as the Administrator may specify in order to avoid hardship, is designated as a redevelopment area under the second sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act or any other legislation enacted after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 containing standards for designation as a redevelopment area generally comparable to those set forth in the second sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act, and."

"(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply only with respect to urban renewal projects placed under contract for capital grant on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, except that such amendment shall apply with respect to all urban renewal projects in the city of Providence, Rhode Island, placed under contract for capital grant during the period Providence was designated as a redevelopment area under section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act (or at such earlier time as the Administrator may specify in order to avoid hardship) and not completed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

"Local grant-in-aid credit for certain coal royalties"

"Sec. 314. (a) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Where a project in any municipality includes an area affected by an underground mine fire or by a coal mine subsidence and where it is necessary in such project to remove any underlying coal deposits in order to stabilize the soil or to control the underground mine fire, then any royalties received by the project from the removal and sale of such coal deposits shall be credited to the project as a local grant-in-aid made by such municipality."

"(b) Any contract under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act shall, at the request of the municipality involved, be amended to reflect the amendment made by subsection (a).

"Specific urban renewal projects"

"Sec. 315 (a) (1) Notwithstanding the date of the commencement of construction of the Tanyard Creek collector sanitary sewer in Jasper, Alabama, local expenditures made in connection with this collector sanitary sewer system shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the downtown urban renewal project (Alabama R-49) in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

"(2) Notwithstanding the date of the commencement of construction of the East Side High School and the start of construction of the improvements to Hickory Creek in Joliet, Illinois, expenditures made in connections with such high school and such creek improvements shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the proposed south central urban renewal project in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

"(3) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of the installation of certain underground electrical wiring in Johnson City, Tennessee, expenditures made in connection with such installation shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to Johnson City's proposed downtown urban renewal project (Tennessee R-80) in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

"(4) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 312 of the Housing Act of 1954 or any request previously made pursuant to such section, upon request of the local public agency the eligibility of the local grants-in-aid for any project in the city of New Brunswick, New Jersey, in connection with which the final capital grant payment has not been made, shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949.

"(5) Two-thirds of all expenditures by the city of Saint Louis, Missouri, in connection with its Downtown Sports Stadium project, to the extent such expenditures would have been eligible under the provisions of section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 to be counted as non-cash grants-in-aid toward such project if it had received Federal assistance as an urban renewal project pursuant to the provisions of title I of such Act, shall be eligible to be counted as a grant-in-aid toward any federally-assisted urban renewal projects in Saint Louis.

"(6) Notwithstanding the extent to which the cultural and convention center proposed to be built adjacent to Urban Renewal Project Colorado R-15 (Skyline) in Denver, Colorado, may benefit areas other than the urban renewal area, expenses incurred by the city of Denver in constructing such center shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a grant-in-aid toward such project.

"(7) Notwithstanding the extent to which the cultural and convention center proposed to be built within Urban Renewal Project R-8 in Norfolk, Virginia, may benefit areas other than the urban renewal area, expenses incurred by the city of Norfolk in constructing such center shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a grant-in-aid toward such project.

"(8) Expenses incurred in the construction of the Glenn Duncan Elementary School and the Fred W. Traner Junior High School in Reno, Nevada, shall not be deemed to be ineligible as a local grant-in-aid in connection with the Northeast Urban Renewal Project (Nevada R-2) because of any change in the urban renewal plan for such project which is determined by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator to have resulted from the proposed location of a federally-aided highway within or adjacent to the urban renewal area in which such project was undertaken. For the purpose of computing the portion of the cost of such schools which may be allowed as a local grant-in-aid, the degree of benefit of the schools to such urban renewal area shall be based on the latest estimate of benefit submitted by the local public agency and accepted by the Administrator prior to such change in the urban renewal plan.

"(9) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 112(a) of the Housing Act of 1949, expenditures in the amount of $600,000 made by the Memorial Hospital of Michigan City Foundation, Incorporated, for the purchase of certain land and buildings on or about July 24, 1963, from Doctors Hospital Realty Corporation shall, if otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid to the community center numbered 1 urban renewal project (Indiana R-46) in Michigan City, Indiana, in accordance with the remaining provisions of title I of that Act.

"(10) The provisions of section 113(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 shall be applicable to the Hobo Jungle Urban Renewal Project in Texarkana, Arkansas (Arkansas R-3).

"(11) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Pulaski, Showalter, and Smedley Junior High Schools, and the William Penn and Stetser Elementary Schools in Chester, Pennsylvania, local expenditures made in connection with such schools shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid for federally-assisted urban renewal projects in Chester that will be served by such schools.

"(12) Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, moneys heretofore expended by the University of Pennsylvania and Wilkes College for land (and related expenditures for demolition and relocation) included in the overall development plans proposed by such institutions and utilized, or to be utilized, in connection with new facilities of such institutions within one mile of urban renewal projects Pennsylvania 5-3 (University City) and Pennsylvania R-149 (Wright Street), respectively, shall, if otherwise eligible, be allowed as local grants-in-aid for such projects.

"(13) Notwithstanding the June, 1956, commencement of certain flood control work in Ottumwa, Iowa, local expenditures in connection with such flood control work shall, to the extent otherwise eligible be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the Marina Gateway urban renewal project (Iowa R-12) in accordance with the provisions of Title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

"(b) (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949 and the United States Housing Act of 1937, the Housing and Home Finance Administrator and the Public Housing Commissioner are authorized and directed to consent to the transfer by the Housing Authority of the City of Macon, Georgia, to the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon, Georgia, of all property acquired by the Housing Authority for low-rent housing project numbered Georgia 7-8, on condition that (A) an amount which, together with any funds of the Housing Authority available for the purpose, is sufficient to pay and discharge all obligations incurred by the Housing Authority in connection with such low-rent housing project and owing at the time of transfer, will be paid by the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon to the Public Housing Administration to be applied in satisfaction of the Housing Authority's obligations which it cannot meet with its own funds available for the purpose, and (B) the total amount so paid by the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon will be included in the gross project cost of its Coliseum Urban Renewal Project, Georgia R-95.

"(2) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator and the Public Housing Commissioner are authorized to modify any contracts heretofore entered into and to take any other appropriate action necessary to carry out the provisions of paragraph (1).

"(c) (1) Notwithstanding any provision of the Housing Act of 1949 or any other provision of law, the urban renewal project in Savannah, Georgia, known as Project 'J' in the General Neighborhood Renewal Plan for the Broad Street-Canal Urban Renewal Area adopted by resolution of the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Savannah on November 18, 1958, may include the donation by Housing Authority of Savannah, by a suitable instrument of conveyance, of the right, title, and interest of the Authority in and to all or any portion of the land included within the boundaries of such Project 'J' in the City of Savannah, Chatham County, Georgia, the area of such Project 'J' being generally bounded on the North by properties of the Central of Georgia Railway Company, on the East by West Broad Street, on the South by the right-of-way for Interstate Highway No. I-16, and on the West by the Savannah and Ogeechee Canal and West Boundary Street.

"(2) The conveyance authorized to be included in the urban renewal project under paragraph (1) shall be made only if the donee represents, and furnishes such assurances as may be required by Housing Authority of Savannah, that such donee will develop, preserve, and operate such property on a nonprofit basis as a historical site or monument.

"Lease guarantees for certain small business concerns

"SEC. 316. (a) The Small Business Investment Act of 1958 is amended by adding after title III a new title as follows:

"TITLE IV—LEASE GUARANTEES

"Authority of the Administration

"SEC. 401. (a) The Administration may, whenever it determines such action to be necessary or desirable, and upon such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, guarantee the payment of rentals under leases of commercial and industrial property entered into by small business concerns that are (1) eligible for loans under section 7(b) (3) of the Small Business Act, or (2) eligible for loans under title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, to enable such concerns to obtain such leases. Any such guarantee may be made or effected either directly or in cooperation with any qualified surety company or other qualified company through a participation agreement with such company. The foregoing powers shall be subject, however, to the following restrictions and limitations:

"(1) No guarantee shall be issued by the Administration (A) if a guarantee meeting the requirements of the applicant is otherwise available on reasonable terms, and (B) unless the Administration determines that there exists a reasonable expectation that the small business concern in behalf of which the guarantee is issued will perform the covenants and conditions of the lease.

"(2) The Administration shall, to the greatest extent practicable, exercise the powers conferred by this section in cooperation with qualified surety or other companies on a participation basis.

"(b) The Administration shall fix a uniform annual fee for its share of any guarantee under this section which shall be payable in advance at such time as may be prescribed by the Administrator. The amount of any such fee shall be determined in accordance with sound actuarial practices and procedures, to the extent practicable, but in no case shall such amount exceed, on the Administration's share of any guarantee made under this title, 2½ per centum per annum of the minimum annual guaranteed rental payable under any guaranteed lease: Provided, That the Administration shall fix the lowest fee that experience under the program established hereby has shown to be justified. The Administration may also fix such uniform fees for the processing of applications for guarantees under this section as the Administrator determines are reasonable and necessary to pay the administrative expenses that are incurred in connection therewith.

"(c) In connection with the guarantee of rentals under any lease pursuant to authority conferred by this section, the Administrator may require, in order to minimize the financial risk assumed under such guarantee—

"(1) that the lessee pay an amount, not to exceed one-fourth of the minimum guaranteed annual rental required under the lease, which shall be held in escrow and shall be available (A) to meet rental charges accruing in any month for which the lessee is in default, or (B) if no default occurs during the term of the lease, for application (with accrued interest) toward final payments of rental charges under the lease;

"(2) that upon occurrence of a default under the lease, the lessor shall, as a condition precedent to enforcing any claim under the lease guarantee, utilize the entire period, for which there are funds available in escrow for payment of rentals, in reasonably diligent efforts to eliminate or minimize losses, by releasing the commercial or industrial property covered by the lease to another qualified tenant, and no claim shall be made or paid under the guarantee until such effort has been made and such escrow funds have been exhausted;

"(3) that any guarantor of the lease will become a successor of the lessor for the purpose of collecting from a lessee in default rentals which are in arrears and with respect to which the lessor has received payment under a guarantee made pursuant to this section; and

"(4) such other provisions, not inconsistent with the purposes of this title, as the Administrator may in his discretion require.

"Powers

"SEC. 402. Without limiting the authority conferred upon the Administrator and the Administration by section 201 of this Act, the Administrator and the Administration shall have, in the performance of and with respect to the functions, powers, and duties conferred by this title, all the authority and be subject to the same conditions prescribed in section 5(b) of the Small Business Act with respect to loans, including the authority to execute subleases, assignments of lease and new leases with any person, firm, organization, or other entity, in order to aid in the liquidation of obligations of the Administration hereunder.

"Fund

"SEC. 403. There is hereby established a revolving fund for use by the Administration in carrying out the provisions of this title. Initial capital for such fund shall consist of not to exceed $5,000,000 transferred from the fund established under section 4(c) of the Small Business Act: Provided, That the last sentence of such section 4(c) shall not apply to any amounts so transferred. Into the fund established by this section there shall be deposited all receipts from the guarantee program authorized by this title. Moneys in such fund not needed for the payment of current operating expenses or for the payment of claims arising under such program may be invested in bonds or other obligations of, or bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States; except that moneys provided as initial capital for such fund shall be returned to the fund established by section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, in such amounts and at such times as the Administration determines to be appropriate, whenever the level of the fund herein established is sufficiently high to permit the return of such moneys without danger to the solvency of the program under this title.

"(b) Section 201 of such Act is amended by striking out the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 'The powers conferred by this Act upon the Administration and upon the Administrator, with the exception of those conferred by titles IV and V hereof, shall be exercised through the Small Business Investment Division and through the Deputy Administrator appointed hereunder. The powers conferred by this Act upon the Administration and upon the Administrator by titles IV and V hereof shall be exercised through such division, section, or other personnel as the Administrator in his discretion shall determine."

"(c) The table of contents of such Act is amended by inserting after the analysis of title III the following:

"TITLE IV—LEASE GUARANTEES

"Sec. 401. Authority of the Administration.

"Sec. 402. Powers.

"Sec. 403. Fund."

"(d) Section 4(c) of the Small Business Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out '$1,716,000,000' and inserting in lieu thereof '$1,721,000,000'; and

"(2) by striking out the period at the end of the fifth sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 'Provided, That such limitation shall not apply to functions under title IV thereof.'

"AMENDMENT OF SECTION 316 OF THE HOUSING ACT OF 1954

"SEC. 317. The first full paragraph of section 316(2) of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended by striking out the first parenthetical clause and inserting in lieu thereof the following: '(as such projects are now or may hereafter be defined in title I of the Housing Act of 1949, including but not limited to projects authorized without regard to the residential or nonresidential character or reuse of the urban renewal area)'.

"TITLE IV—COMPENSATION OF CONDEMNNEES

"Definitions

"SEC. 401. For the purposes of this title—

"(1) the term 'development program' means any program established by or conducted under any of the following provisions of law:

"(A) the United States Housing Act of 1937;

"(B) title I of the Housing Act of 1949;

"(C) the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964;

"(D) title II of the Housing Amendments of 1955;

"(E) title VII of the Housing Act of 1961; and

"(F) title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

"(2) the term 'Federal assistance' means a grant, loan, contract of guaranty, annual contribution, or other assistance provided by the United States;

"(3) the term 'applicant' means any public body or other agency authorized to receive Federal assistance under a development program;

"(4) the term 'real property' means any land, or any interest in land, and (A) any building, structure, or other improvements embedded in or affixed to land, and any article so affixed or attached to such building, structure, or improvement as to be an essential or integral part thereof; (B) any article affixed or attached to such real property in such manner that it cannot be removed without material injury to itself or the real property; and (C) any article so designed, constructed, or specially adapted to the purpose for which such real property is used that (i) it is an essential accessory or part of such real property, (ii) it is not capable of use elsewhere, and (iii) it would lose substantially all its value if removed from the real property; and

"(5) the term 'Administrator' means the Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

"Land acquisition policy

"SEC. 402. As a condition of eligibility for Federal assistance pursuant to a development program, each applicant for such assistance shall satisfy the Administrator that the following policies will be followed in connection with the acquisition of real property by eminent domain in the course of such program—

"(1) the applicant shall make every reasonable effort to acquire the real property by negotiated purchase;

"(2) no owner shall be required to surrender possession of real property before the applicant pays to the owner (A) the agreed purchase price arrived at by negotiation, or (B) in any case where only the amount of the payment to the owner is in dispute, not less than 75 per centum of the appraised fair value of such property as approved by the applicant; and

"(3) the construction or development of any public improvements shall be so scheduled that no person lawfully occupying the real property shall be required to surrender possession on account of such construction or development without at least 90 days' written notice from the applicant of the date on which such construction or development is scheduled to begin.

"Funds for certain payments in eminent domain

"SEC. 403. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, financial assistance under any federally assisted development program may include amounts necessary for financing, in the same manner that other costs of a project assisted under such program are financed, the payments described in paragraph (2) (B) of section 402 of this Act.

"Relocation payments under federally assisted development programs

"SEC. 404. (a) To the extent not otherwise authorized under any Federal law, financial assistance extended to an applicant under any federally assisted development program may include grants for relocation payments, as herein defined. Such grants may be in addition to other financial assistance under such federally assisted development programs, and may cover the full amount of such relocation payments. Any funds available for any such program may be used for such grants. The term 'relocation payments' means payments by the applicant, to a displaced individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organization, which are made on such terms and conditions and subject to such limitations (to the extent applicable, but not including the date of displacement) as are provided for relocation payments, at the time such payments are approved, by sections 114(b), (c), and (d) of the Housing Act of 1949 with respect to projects assisted under title I thereof. Relocation payments authorized by this subsection shall be made subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Administrator.

"(b) Section 114(b) (2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out '$1,500' and inserting in lieu thereof '$2,500'.

"(c) (1) Section 114 of such Act is further amended by redesignating subsection (d) as subsection (e) and by inserting after subsection (c) the following new subsection:

"(d) In addition to payments authorized to be made under subsections (b) and (c), a local public agency may pay to any displaced individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organization reasonable and necessary expenses incurred for (1) recording fees, transfer taxes, and similar expenses incidental to conveying real property to a project assisted under this title, (2) penalty costs for prepayment of any mortgage encumbering such real property, and (3) the pro rata portion of real property taxes allocable to a period subsequent to the date of vesting of title or the effective date of the acquisition of such real property by such agency, whichever is earlier."

"(2) Section 15(8) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out 'section 114 (b) or (c)' and inserting in lieu thereof 'section 114 (b), (c), and (d)'.

"(d) Subsection (a) shall not be applicable with respect to any displacement occurring prior to the date of the enactment of this Act (or prior to March 4, 1965, in the case of the programs specified in subparagraphs (C) and (E) of section 401(1)).

"TITLE V—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

"Acceptance of local certification of equivalent elimination

"(3) by striking out '$3,500' and inserting in lieu thereof '$4,000'.

"Purchase of units by tenants

"SEC. 507. (a) Section 15 of the United States Housing Act is amended by adding after paragraph (8) a new paragraph as follows:

"(9) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, but subject to the provisions of any contract with the Authority, any public housing agency may permit any member of a tenant family to enter into a contract (either individually or as a member of a group) for the acquisition of a dwelling unit in any project of the public housing agency which is suitable by reason of its detached or semidetached construction for sale and for occupancy by such purchaser or a member or members of his family, upon the following terms:

"(A) The purchaser shall pay at least (1) a pro rata share cost of any services furnished him by the public agency, including but not limited to, administration, maintenance, repairs, utilities, insurance, provision of reserves, and other expenses, (ii) local taxes on his dwelling unit, and (iii) monthly payments of interest and principal sufficient to amortize a sales price, equal to the greater of the unamortized debt or the appraised value (at the time such purchase contract is entered into) of the dwelling unit, in not more than forty years: Provided, That the public housing agency may, under terms and conditions to be prescribed by it, permit a purchaser to apply an amount equal to the net rent paid for his dwelling unit, over a period not exceeding three years prior to the entering into of any such contract, toward the purchase price of such unit;

"(B) The interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the average interest cost of loans outstanding on the project, except that in the case of a project on which bonds are not outstanding the interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the going Federal rate applicable to such project;

"(C) The principal payments shall be not less than one-half of 1 per centum per annum of the sales price during the first five years after purchase, 1 per centum per annum during the next five years, 1½ per centum per annum during the third five years, and thereafter not less than the principal payments resulting from a level debt service of interest and principal over the balance of the payment period; and

"(D) If at any time (i) a purchaser fails to carry out his contract with the public housing agency and if no member of his family who resides in the dwelling assumes such contract, or (ii) the purchaser or a member of his family who assumes the contract does not reside in the dwelling, the public housing agency shall have an option to acquire his interest under such contract upon payment to him or his estate of an amount equal to his aggregate principal payments plus the value to the public housing agency of any improvements made by him, less an amount equal to 2½ per centum of the sales price."

"(b) Such Act is further amended—

"(1) by inserting in the parenthetical phrase in section 10(h) after the words 'exclusive of' the following: 'any part thereof covered by a contract or conveyed pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15, and exclusive of';

"(2) by inserting after 'may be made' in section 10(1) the following: 'subject to any outstanding contracts made pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15';

"(3) by inserting after 'acquisition', the first place it appears in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 15, the following: '(except pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15)'; and

"(4) by inserting before the semicolon at the end of paragraph (1) of section 22(a) a colon and the following: 'Provided, That such conveyance or delivery of title shall be subject to the rights of third parties vested pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15'.

"TITLE VII—COMMUNITY FACILITIES

"Purpose

"Sec. 701. The purpose of this title is to assist and encourage the communities of the Nation fully to meet the needs of their citizens by making it possible, with Federal grant assistance, for their governmental bodies (1) to construct adequate basic water and sewer facilities needed to promote the efficient and orderly growth and development of our communities, (2) to construct neighborhood facilities needed to enable them to carry on programs of necessary social services, and (3) to acquire, in a planned and orderly fashion, land to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities.

"Grants for basic water and sewer facilities

"Sec. 702. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator (hereinafter in this title referred to as the 'Administrator') is authorized to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to finance specific projects for basic public water facilities (including works for the storage, treatment, purification, and distribution of water), and for basic public sewer facilities (other than 'treatment works' as defined in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act): Provided, That no grant shall be made under this section for any sewer facilities unless the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare certifies to the Administrator that any waste material carried by such facilities will be adequately treated before it is discharged into any public waterway so as to meet applicable Federal, State, interstate, or local water quality standards.

"(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the development cost of the project: Provided, That in the case of a community having a population of less than ten thousand, according to the most recent decennial census, which is situated within a metropolitan area, the Administrator may increase the amount of a grant for a basic public sewer facility assisted under this section to not more than 90 per centum of the development cost of such facility, if the community is unable to finance the construction of such facility without the increased grant authorized under this subsection, and if in such community (1) there does not exist a public or other adequate sewer facility which serves a substantial portion of the inhabitants of the community, and (2) the rate of unemployment is; and has been continuously for the preceding calendar year, 100 per centum above the national average: And provided further, That the limitations and restrictions contained in subsection (c) of this section shall not be applicable to any community applying for an increased grant under this subsection.

"(c) No grant shall be made under this section in connection with any project unless the Administrator determines that the project is necessary to provide adequate water or sewer facilities for, and will contribute to the improvement of the health or living standards of, the people in the community to be served, and that the project is (1) designed so that an adequate capacity will be available to serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area; (2) consistent with a program meeting criteria, established by the Administrator, for a unified or officially coordinated areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area, except that prior to July 1, 1968, grants may, in the discretion of the Administrator, be made under this section when such a program for an areawide water and sewer facilities system is under active preparation, although not yet completed, if the facility or facilities for which assistance is sought can reasonably be expected to be required as a part of such program, and there is urgent need for the facility or facilities; and (3) necessary to orderly community development.

"Grants for neighborhood facilities

"Sec. 703. (a) In accordance with the provisions of this section, the Administrator is authorized to make grants to any local public body or agency to assist in financing specific projects for neighborhood facilities. Any such project may be undertaken by such body or agency directly or through a non-profit organization approved by it: Provided, That no grant shall be provided under this section for any project to be undertaken through a nonprofit organization unless the Administrator determines (1) that such organization has or will have the legal, financial, and technical capacity to carry out the project, and (2) that the public body or agency to which the grant is made will have satisfactory continuing control over the use of the proposed facilities.

"(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed 66⅔ per centum of the development cost of the project for which the grant is made (or 75 per centum of such cost in the case of a project located in an area which at the time the grant is made is designated as a redevelopment area under the Area Redevelopment Act or any Act supplementary thereto).

"(c) No grants shall be made under this section for any project unless the Administrator determines that the project will provide a neighborhood facility which is (1) necessary for carrying out a program of health, recreational, social, or similar community service (including a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964) in the area, (2) consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community, and (3) so located as to be available for use by a significant portion (or number in the case of large urban places) of the area's low- or moderate-income residents.

"(d) For a period of twenty years after a grant has been made under this section for a neighborhood facility, such facility shall not, without the approval of the Administrator, be converted to uses other than those proposed by the applicant in its application for a grant. The Administrator shall not approve any conversion in the use of such a neighborhood facility during such twenty-year period unless he finds that such conversion is in accordance with the then applicable program of health, recreational, social, or similar community services in the area and consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community in which the facility is located. In approving any such conversion, the Administrator may impose such additional conditions and requirements as he deems necessary.

"(e) The Administrator shall give priority to applications for projects designed primarily to benefit members of low-income families or otherwise substantially further the objectives of a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

"Advance acquisition of land"

"SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist in the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works or facilities, the Administrator is authorized to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

"(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loan or other financial obligation incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not exceeding the lesser of (1) five years from the date such loan was made or such financial obligation was incurred, or (2) the period of time between the date such loan was made or such financial obligation was incurred and the date construction is begun on the public work or facility for which the land acquired was planned to be utilized.

"(c) No grant shall be made under this section for any project for the acquisition of land unless the Administrator determines that the public work or facility for which such land is to be utilized is planned to be constructed or initiated within a reasonable period of time (not to exceed five years after a contract to make such grant is entered into) and that construction of such public work or facility will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area.

"(d) As a condition to providing assistance under this section, the Administrator may, under terms and conditions prescribed by him, require an applicant to agree to repay such assistance, if (1) the land purchased with such assistance is not utilized within five years after the agreement is entered into in connection with the construction of the public work or facility for which such land was acquired, or (2) such land is diverted to other uses.

"General provisions"

"SEC. 705. (a) In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Administrator shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties set forth in section 402, except subsections (a), (c) (2), and (f) of the Housing Act of 1950.

"(b) The Administrator is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made pursuant to this title. No part of any grant authorized to be made by the provisions of this title shall be used for the payment of ordinary governmental operating expenses.

"Definitions"

"SEC. 706. As used in this title—

"(a) The term 'State' means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the territories and possessions of the United States.

"(b) The term 'local public bodies and agencies' includes public corporate bodies or political subdivisions; public agencies or instrumentalities of one or more States, municipalities, or political subdivisions of one or more States (including public agencies and instrumentalities of one or more municipalities or other political subdivisions of one or more States); Indian tribes; and boards or commissions established under the laws of any State to finance specific capital improvement projects.

"(c) The term 'development cost' means the cost of constructing the facility and of acquiring the land on which it is located, including necessary site improvements to permit its use as a site for the facility.

"Labor standards"

"SEC. 707. All laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors on projects assisted under sections 702 and 703 shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a-5). No such project shall be approved without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work. The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in this section, the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 1332-15), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 948; 40 U.S.C. 276c).

"Appropriations"

"SEC. 708. (a) There are authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1965, and ending prior to July 1, 1969, not to exceed (1) $200,000,000 for grants under section 702, (2) $50,000,000 for grants under section 703, and (3) $25,000,000 for grants under section 704.

"(b) Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1969.

"TITLE VIII—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION"

"Increase in special assistance authority"

"SEC. 801. (a) Section 305(c) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ', which limit shall be increased by $100,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, by $450,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $550,000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by $525,000,000 on July 1, 1968'.

"(b) Section 305(f) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ': Provided further, That any portion of the total amount of authority set forth in the first proviso of this subsection, which (1) is not required under the second proviso of this subsection to be kept available for purchases and commitments with respect to mortgages insured under section 809, and (2), on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and on each July 1 thereafter, would otherwise be available for making new purchases and commitments pursuant to this subsection, shall be transferred to and merged with the authority granted by subsection (a) and added to the amount of such authority which is available, as of the date of the transfer, for purchases and commitments under subsection (c); and the total amount of authority as set forth in the first proviso of this subsection shall progressively be reduced by the amount of each such transfer'.

"Purchase of mortgages held by Federal instrumentalities"

"SEC. 802. (a) Section 302 of the National Housing Act is amended by—

"(1) striking out 'Federal,' in clause (2) in subsection (b);

"(2) inserting before 'first mortgages' in the first sentence of subsection (c) the following: 'obligations offered to it by the Housing and Home Finance Agency or its Administrator, or by such Agency's constituent units or agencies or the heads thereof, or any'; and

"(3) inserting 'and other obligations' after 'mortgages' in the last sentence of subsection (c).

"(b) Section 306(e) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Association is authorized, under the aforesaid separate accountability, to make commitments to purchase, and to purchase, service, or sell any obligations offered to it by the Housing and Home Finance Agency or its Administrator, or by such Agency's constituent units or agencies or the heads thereof, or any mortgages covering residential property offered to it by any Federal instrumentality, or the head thereof. There shall be excluded from the total amounts set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any obligations or mortgages purchased by the Association pursuant to this subsection.'

"Purchase of below-market interest rate mortgages"

"SEC. 803. Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: 'Notwithstanding the provisions of clause (3) in the preceding sentence, the Association may purchase a mortgage under section 305 with an original principal obligation that exceeds $17,500 per dwelling unit if the mortgage (1) is a below-market interest rate mortgage insured under section 221 (d)(3), and (2) covers property which has the benefit of local tax abatement in an amount determined by the Federal Housing Commissioner to be sufficient to make possible rentals not in excess of those that would be approved by the Commissioner if the mortgage amount did not exceed $17,500 per dwelling unit and if local tax abatement were not provided.'

"Increase in limitation on mortgages for dwelling units having four or more bedrooms"

"SEC. 804. Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: '(plus an additional $2,500 for each such family residence or dwelling unit which has four or more bedrooms).'

"TITLE IX—OPEN-SPACE LAND AND URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT"

"Change in name of program; findings and purpose"

"SEC. 901. (a) The heading of title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE VII—OPEN-SPACE LAND AND URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT"

"(b) Section 701 of such Act is amended by redesignating subsection (b) as subsection (c) and inserting after subsection (a) a new subsection as follows:

"(b) The Congress further finds that there is an urgent need both for the additional provision of parks and other open-space areas in the developed portions of the Nation's urban areas and for greater and better coordinated local efforts to beautify and improve open space and other public land throughout urban areas to facilitate their increased use and enjoyment by the Nation's urban population."

"(c) Section 701(c) of such Act (as redesignated by subsection (b) of this section) is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'preserve' and inserting in lieu thereof '(1) provide, preserve, and develop'; and

"(2) by striking out 'purposes,' and inserting in lieu thereof 'uses, and (2) beautify and improve open space and other public urban land, in accordance with programs to encourage and coordinate local public and private efforts toward this end.'

"Development grants for open-space uses"

"SEC. 902. (a) The first sentence of section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended—

"(1) by inserting 'and development' after 'acquisition' the first place it appears; and

"(2) by inserting before the period the following: ', and the development, for open-space uses, of land acquired under this title'.

"(b) Section 702(c) of such Act is amended by striking out 'development costs or'.

"(c) Section 709 of such Act (as redesignated by section 906 of this Act) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(4) The term 'open-space uses' means any use of open-space land for (A) park and recreational purposes, (B) conservation of land and other natural resources, or (C) historic or scenic purposes."

"Increased grant level for preservation and development of open-space land"

"SEC. 903. The second sentence of section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: 'The amount of any such grant shall not exceed 50 per centum of the total cost, as approved by the Administrator, of such acquisition and development.'

"Contract authorization"

"SEC. 904. Section 702(b) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by striking out '$75,000,000' and inserting in lieu thereof the following: '$310,000,000: Provided, That of such sum the Administrator may contract to make grants under section 705 aggregating not to exceed $64,000,000, and grants under section 706 aggregating not to exceed $36,000,000'.

"Open-space planning and program requirements"

"SEC. 905. Section 703(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows:

"(a) The Administrator shall enter into contracts to make grants under sections 702 and 705 of this title only if he finds that such assistance is needed for carrying out a unified or officially coordinated program, meeting criteria established by him, for the provision and development of open-space land as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area."

"Grants for provision of open-space land in built-up urban areas and for urban beautification and improvement"

"SEC. 906. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by redesignating sections 705 and 706 as sections 708 and 709, respectively, and by inserting after section 704 two new sections as follows:

"Grants for provision of open-space land in built-up urban areas"

"SEC. 705. The Administrator is further authorized to enter into contracts to make grants to States and local public bodies to help finance the acquisition of title to, or other permanent interests in, developed land in built-up portions of urban areas to be cleared and used as permanent open-space land. The Administrator shall make such grants only where the local governing body determines that adequate open-space land cannot effectively be provided through the use of existing undeveloped or predominantly undeveloped land. Grants under this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the cost of acquiring such interests and of necessary demolition and removal of improvements."

"Grants for urban beautification and improvement"

"SEC. 706. The Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make grants, as herein provided, to States and local public bodies to assist in carrying out local programs for the greater use and enjoyment of open-space and other public land in urban areas. The Administrator shall establish criteria for such programs to assure that each program (1) represents significant and effective efforts, involving all available public and private resources, for the beautification of such land and its improvement for open-space uses; and (2) is important to the comprehensively planned development of the locality. Grants made under this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the amount by which the cost of the activities carried on by an applicant during a fiscal year under an approved program exceeds its usual expenditures for comparable activities: Provided, That, notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Administrator may use not to exceed $5,000,000 of the sum authorized for contracts under this section for the purpose of entering into contracts to make grants in amounts not to exceed 90 per centum of the cost of activities which he determines have special value in developing and demonstrating new and improved methods and materials for use in carrying out the purposes of this section."

"Labor standards"

"SEC. 907. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is further amended by inserting after section 706 (as added by section 906 of this Act) the following new section:

"Labor standards"

"SEC. 707. (a) The Administrator shall take such action as may be necessary to insure that all laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors in the performance of construction work financed with the assistance of grants under this title shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended. The Administrator shall not approve any such grant without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work."

"(b) The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in subsection (a), the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 1332-15), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 948; 40 U.S.C. 276c)."

"Use of funds for studies and publication"

"SEC. 908. The second sentence of section 708 of the Housing Act of 1961 (as redesignated by section 906 of this Act) is amended to read as follows: 'The Administrator is authorized to use during any fiscal year not to exceed $50,000 of the funds available for grants under this title to undertake such studies and publish such information.'

"Conforming amendments"

"SEC. 909. (a) The heading of section 702 of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: 'GRANTS FOR PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF OPEN-SPACE LAND'.

"(b) Section 702(a) of such Act is amended by striking out 'acceptable to the Administrator as capable of carrying out the provisions of this title'.

"(c) Section 702(e) of such Act is amended by striking out in the second sentence 'served by the open-space land acquired' and inserting in lieu thereof 'assisted'.

"(d) Section 704 of such Act is amended by striking out in the first sentence 'for which' and inserting in lieu thereof 'for the acquisition of which'.

"TITLE X—RURAL HOUSING"

"Loans for previously occupied buildings and minimum site acquisition"

"SEC. 1001. (a) Section 501(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

"(1) by inserting after 'their farms,' in clause (1) the following: 'and to purchase previously occupied buildings and land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order'; and

"(2) by inserting after 'rural areas' in clause (2) the following: 'for the construction, improvement, alteration, or repair of dwellings, related facilities, and farm buildings and to rural residents for such purposes and for the purchase of previously occupied buildings and the purchase of land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order'.

"(b) Section 501(c) of such Act is amended by inserting 'or a rural resident' in clause (1) after 'or that he is the owner of other real estate in a rural area'.

"Interest rate on direct rural housing loans"

"SEC. 1002. Section 502(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out 'with interest at a rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal' and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 'with interest, in the case of applicants described in clauses (1) and (2) of section 501(a), at a rate not to exceed 5 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, and, in the case of applicants described in clause (3) of section 501(a) and applicants under sections 503 and 504, at a rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on such unpaid balance. Loans made or insured under this title shall be conditioned on the borrower paying such fees and other charges as the Secretary may require'.

"Insured rural housing loans"

"SEC. 1003. (a) Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sections:

"Insured rural housing loans"

"SEC. 517. (a) The Secretary may insure loans meeting the requirements of section 502, and may make loans in accordance with the requirements of such section to be sold and insured; except that such loans shall—

"(1) if the borrowers are persons of low or moderate income (as defined by the Secretary) (A) not exceed amounts necessary to provide adequate housing, modest in size, design, and cost (as determined by the Secretary), (B) bear interest at a rate not to exceed 5 per centum per annum, and (C) not exceed in the aggregate $300,000,000 of new loans made or insured in any one fiscal year; and

"(2) if the borrowers are persons other than those described in clause (1), bear interest and provide for insurance or service charges at rates comparable to the combined rate of interest and premium charges in effect under section 203 of the National Housing Act, as determined by the Secretary."

"(b) The Secretary may insure loans in accordance with the requirements of sections 514 (exclusive of subsections (a) (3), (a) (5), and (b)) and 515 (exclusive of subsections (a) and (b) (4)), and may make loans meeting such requirements to be sold and insured. Upon the expiration of ninety days after the original capitalization of the Rural Housing Insurance Fund, created by subsection (e) of this section, no new loans shall be made or insured under section 514 or 515(b), except in conformity with this section.

"(c) The Secretary may use the Rural Housing Insurance Fund for the purpose of making loans to be sold and insured under this section, but the aggregate of such loans which are held by the Secretary at any one time shall not exceed $100,000,000.

"(d) The Secretary may, in conformity with subsections (a) and (b), insure the payment of principal and interest as it becomes due on loans made by lenders other than the United States, and on loans made from the Rural Housing Insurance Fund which are sold by the Secretary. Any contract of insurance executed by the Secretary hereunder shall be an obligation supported by the full faith and credit of the United States, and shall be incontestable except for fraud or material misrepresentation of which the holder has actual knowledge. In connection with loans insured under this section, the Secretary may take liens running to the United States notwithstanding the fact that the notes evidencing such loans may be held by lenders other than the United States. Notes evidencing such loans shall be freely assignable, but the Secretary shall not be bound by any such assignment until notice thereof is given to and acknowledged by him.

"(e) There is hereby created the Rural Housing Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the "Fund") which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the provisions of this section. There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the purposes of the Fund.

"(f) Money in the Fund not needed for current operations shall be invested in direct obligations of the United States or obligations guaranteed by the United States.

"(g) All funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and property acquired by the Secretary under this section, and all collections and proceeds therefrom, shall constitute assets of the Fund; and all liabilities and obligations of such assets shall be liabilities and obligations of the Fund. Loans may be held in the Fund and collected in accordance with their terms or may be sold by the Secretary with or without agreements for insurance thereof. The Secretary is authorized to make agreements with respect to servicing loans held or insured by him under this section and purchasing such insured loans on such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(h) The Secretary is authorized to issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds necessary for discharging obligations under this section and for authorized expenditures out of the Fund, but except as may be authorized in appropriation Acts, not for the original or any additional capital of the Fund. Such notes shall be in such form and denominations and have such maturities and be subject to such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at the average rate, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for fifteen years from their date of issue. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes of the Secretary issued hereunder, and for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which such securities may be issued under such Act are extended to include purchases of notes issued by the Secretary. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States. The notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury shall constitute obligations of the Fund.

"(i) The Secretary may retain out of interest payments by the borrower an annual charge in an amount specified in the insurance or sale agreement applicable to the loan. Of the charges retained by the Secretary, if any, not to exceed 1 per centum per annum of the unpaid balance of the loan shall be deposited in the Fund. Any retained charges not deposited in the Fund shall be available for administrative expenses in carrying out the provisions of this title, to be transferred annually, and become merged with any appropriation for administrative expenses of the Farmers Home Administration, when and in such amounts as may be authorized in appropriation Acts.

"(j) The Secretary may also utilize the Fund—

"(1) to pay amounts to which the holder of the note is entitled in accordance with an insurance or sale agreement under this section accruing between the date of any prepayment by the borrower to the Secretary and the date of transmittal of any such prepayments to the holder of the note; and in the discretion of the Secretary, prepayments other than final payments need not be remitted to the holder until due;

"(2) to pay the holder of any note insured under this section any defaulted installment or, upon assignment of the note to the Secretary at the Secretary's request or pursuant to a purchase agreement, the entire balance outstanding on the note; and

"(3) to pay taxes, insurance, prior liens, expenses necessary to make fiscal adjustments in connection with the application and transmittal of collections, and other expenses and advances to protect the security for loans which are insured under this section or held in the Fund, and to acquire such security property at foreclosure sale or otherwise.

"Rural Housing Direct Loan Account"

"SEC. 518. (a) There is hereby created the Rural Housing Direct Loan Account (hereinafter referred to as the "Account") which shall be used by the Secretary for carrying out the provisions of this section. There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the purposes of the Account.

"(b) There are transferred to the Account (1) all funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and property, and all collections and proceeds therefrom, held by the Secretary under the direct loan provisions of this title, including those securing notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 and any unexpended balance of amounts borrowed upon such notes, and (2) all unexpended balances of appropriations for direct loans under this title, including the fund authorized by section 515 (a). All amounts hereafter borrowed by the Secretary from the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 shall be deposited in the Account. All collections and proceeds from assets acquired by the Account shall be deposited in the Account.

"(c) When and in such amounts as may be authorized in appropriation Acts, the Secretary may issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds to be deposited in the Account. The form, denominations, maturities, and other terms and conditions of such notes shall be prescribed by the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at the average rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for fifteen years from their date of issue. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes of the Secretary issued hereunder, and for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which such securities may be issued under such Act are extended to include the purchase of notes issued by the Secretary. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States.

"(d) The Account shall remain available to the Secretary for the payment of interest and principal on notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 of this section, and for direct loans and related advances under this title in such amounts as are now authorized by law and in such further amounts as shall be authorized in appropriation Acts. Amounts so authorized for such loans and advances shall remain available until expended."

"(b) Section 511 of such Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof 'The Secretary may issue notes and other obligations for purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury for the purpose of making direct loans under this title.';

"(2) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof 'The total principal amount of such notes and obligations issued pursuant to this section during the period beginning July 1, 1956, and ending October 1, 1969, shall not exceed $850,000,000.'; and

"(3) by striking out the fifth sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following 'Each such note or other obligation shall bear interest at the average rate, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note or other obligation is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for 15 years from their date of issue.'

"Federal National Mortgage Association secondary market operations for insured rural housing loans"

"SEC. 1004. (a) Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended—

"(1) by inserting immediately after 'which are insured under the National Housing Act' the following: 'or title V of the Housing Act of 1949';

"(2) by inserting after 'any mortgage' in clause (2) of the proviso the following: ', except a mortgage insured under title V of the Housing Act of 1949,'; and

"(3) by inserting before the period in the last sentence the following: 'or title V of the Housing Act of 1949'.

"(b) Section 303(b) of such Act is amended by inserting 'and other' after 'private' in the first sentence.

"Extension of rural housing authorizations"

"SEC. 1005. (a) Section 512 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out 'September 30, 1965' and inserting in lieu thereof 'October 1, 1969'.

"(b) Section 513 of such Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'September 30, 1965' in clause (b) and inserting in lieu thereof 'October 1, 1969';

"(2) by striking out '$10,000,000' in clause (c) and inserting in lieu thereof '$50,000,000', and by striking out 'September 30, 1965' in the same clause and inserting in lieu thereof 'October 1, 1969'; and

"(3) by striking out 'September 30, 1965' in clause (d) and inserting in lieu thereof 'October 1, 1969'.

"(c) Section 515(b)(5) of such Act is amended by striking out 'September 30, 1965' and inserting in lieu thereof 'October 1, 1969'.

"(d) Section 506(a) of such Act is amended by striking out 'sections 501 to 504, inclusive, and sections 514—516', each place it occurs and inserting in lieu thereof 'this title'.

"Sums excess to the needs of the rural housing insurance fund or the rural housing direct loan account"

"Sec. 1006. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 518 (added by section 1003 of this Act) a new section as follows:

"Sums excess to the needs of the rural housing insurance fund or the rural housing direct loan account"

"Sec. 519. Any sums in the Rural Housing Insurance Fund or the Rural Housing Direct Loan Account which the Secretary determines are in excess of amounts needed to meet the obligations and carry out the purposes of such Fund or Account shall be returned to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury."

"Definition of a rural area"

"Sec. 1007. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 1006 of this Act) the following new section:

"Definition of rural area"

"Sec. 520. As used in this title, the terms "rural" and "rural area" mean any open country, or any place, town, village, or city which is not part of or associated with an urban area and which (1) has a population not in excess of 2,500 inhabitants, or (2) has a population in excess of 2,500 but not in excess of 5,500 if it is rural in character."

"TITLE XI—MISCELLANEOUS"

"Annual report on housing and urban development programs"

"Sec. 1101. Section 802(a) of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended to read as follows:

"(a) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator shall, as soon as practicable during each calendar year, make a report to the President for submission to the Congress on all operations and programs (including but not limited to the FHA insurance, urban renewal, public housing, and rent supplement programs) under the jurisdiction of the Housing and Home Finance Agency during the previous calendar year. Such report shall contain recommendations for strengthening or improving such programs, or, when necessary to implement more effectively Congressional policies and purposes, for establishing new or alternative programs."

"No building and loan association incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia or organized in such District or doing business in such District shall establish any branch or move its principal office or any branch without the prior written approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and no other building and loan association shall establish any branch in such District or move its principal office or any branch in such District without such approval. As used in the sentence next preceding, "branch" means any office, place of business, or facility, other than the principal office as defined by the Board, of a building and loan association at which accounts are opened or payments thereon are received or withdrawals therefrom are paid, or any other office, place of business, or facility of a building and loan association defined by the Board as a branch within the meaning of such sentence, and as used in such sentence and in this sentence "building and loan association" means any incorporated or unincorporated building, building or loan, building and loan, savings and loan, or homestead association or cooperative bank."

"(d) Section 404 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) (1) Each insured institution shall make such deposits in the Corporation as may from time to time be required by call of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Any such call shall be calculated by applying a specified percentage, which shall be the same for all insured institutions, to the total amount of all withdrawable or repurchasable shares, investment certificates, and deposits in each insured institution. No such call shall be made unless such Board determines that the total amount of such call, plus the outstanding deposits previously made pursuant to such calls, does not exceed 1 per centum of the total amount of all withdrawable or repurchasable shares, investment certificates, and deposits in all insured institutions. For the purposes of this subsection, the total amounts hereinabove referred to shall be determined or estimated by such Board or in such manner as it may prescribe.

"(2) The Corporation, in accordance with such regulations as it may prescribe, shall credit as of the close of each calendar year, to each deposit outstanding at such close, a return on the outstanding balance, as determined by the Corporation, of such deposit during such calendar year, at a rate equal to the average annual rate of return, as determined by the Corporation, to the Corporation during the year ending at the close of November 30 of such calendar year, on the investments held by the Corporation in obligations of, or guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States.

"(3) The Corporation in its discretion may at any time repay all such deposits, or repay pro rata a portion of each of such deposits, in such manner and under such procedure as the Corporation may prescribe by regulation or otherwise. Any procedure for such pro rata repayment may provide for total repayment of any deposit, if total repayment of any and all deposits of equal or smaller amount is likewise provided for.

"(4) The provisions of subsection (f) of this section and of the last sentence of subsection (e) of this section shall be applicable to deposits under this subsection, and for the purposes of this subsection the references in such subsection (f) and such last sentence to the prepayments and the pro rata shares therein mentioned shall be deemed instead to be references respectively to the deposits under this subsection and the pro rata shares of the holders thereof, and the references in such subsection (f) to that subsection (except the last such reference) and to subsection (d) of this section shall be deemed instead to be references to this subsection."

"Federal Reserve Act"

"Sec. 1111. Section 24 of the Federal Reserve Act is amended by striking out 'eighteen months', wherever it appears in the third paragraph, and inserting in lieu thereof 'twenty-four months'.

"Repayment of certain planning grants"

"Sec. 1112. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no advance made under section 501 of Public Law 458, Seventy-eighth Congress; Public Law 352, Eighty-first Congress; or section 702, Housing Act of 1954, Public Law 560, Eighty-third Congress, for the planning of any public works project shall be required to be repaid if construction of such project has been heretofore or is hereafter initiated as a result of a grant-in-aid made from an allocation made by the President under the Public Works Acceleration Act.

"Study concerning relief of homeowners in proximity to airports"

"Sec. 1113. The Housing and Home Finance Administrator shall undertake a study to determine feasible methods of reducing the economic loss and hardship suffered by homeowners as the result of the depreciation in the value of their properties following the construction of airports in the vicinity of their homes, including a study of feasible methods of insulating such homes from the noise of aircraft. Findings and recommendations resulting from such study shall be reported to the President for transmission to the Congress at the earliest practicable date, but in no event later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act."

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7984) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute amendment. The committee of conference has agreed to a substitute for both the House bill and the Senate amendment. Except for technical, clarifying, and conforming changes, the following statement explains the differences between the House bill and the substitute agreed to in conference.

TITLE I—PROVISIONS FOR DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

Housing eligible for rent supplements on experimental basis

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill making rent supplements (subject to a limit of 10 percent of amounts appropriated) available to housing under the section 221(d)(3) below-market rate program (new units), the section 231 program of mortgage insurance for the elderly (new units and those not finally endorsed for insurance), and the section 202 program of direct loans for the elderly (existing and new units), on an experimental basis, for up to 20 percent of the dwelling units in any property.

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision but the 20-percent dwelling unit limitation is restricted to existing projects and, in addition, 50 percent of the funds for experimental projects is earmarked for newly constructed section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate projects in order to assure the equitable allocation of funds as between these projects and projects designed to serve the elderly exclusively.

Operating costs limit

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill limiting the operating costs of any property aided under the rent supplement program to amounts for similar housing in the community. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Eligibility for rent supplements

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill making eligible for rent supplement payments those persons (meeting the income test) whose dwellings are extensively damaged or destroyed in a disaster area after April 1, 1965. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Below-market mortgages not yet endorsed for insurance

It is the intent of the committee that in cases where commitments have been issued at a higher rate of interest than 3 percent, and the mortgages have not been finally endorsed for insurance, the lower interest rate should be made available whenever practicable.

Low-rent housing in private accommodations

The House bill contained a provision not in the Senate amendment authorizing local housing authorities to use as low-rent housing up to 10 percent of the units in an existing privately owned structure, and to make annual contributions to the owner in amounts not exceeding the amounts that would be payable for units in a newly constructed low-rent project. Contracts with owners would be for 12 to 36 months, renewable. Tenants would be selected by owners, subject to the contracts between local authorities and PHA. Rentals would be determined under standards applicable to conventional public housing.

The conference substitute contains the House provision with an amendment stating that the provisions of the new program shall not apply to any locality unless the governing body of the locality has by resolution approved the application of such provisions to such locality.

Rehabilitation grants

The House bill contained a provision authorizing grants for the full cost of necessary repairs (up to $1,500) to homeowners in urban renewal areas with annual incomes of $2,000 or less; in the case of owners with larger incomes, grants would be limited to the portion of cost which cannot be financed without increasing housing expense to more than 25 percent of income.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision except that the income limit for the full cost of repairs was $3,000. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Direct loans for housing for the elderly or handicapped

The House bill removed the existing $35,000,000 ceiling and terminated the program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply increased the existing ceiling from $350,000,000 to $500,000,000. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Mortgage moratorium

The House bill contained a provision providing a moratorium of up to 3 years on payments under FHA or VA mortgages in the case of a mortgagor unemployed due to closing of a Federal installation. The Senate amendment contained the same provision except that the moratorium period is limited to 1 year. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

TITLE II—FHA INSURANCE OPERATIONS

Land development mortgage insurance

The House bill authorized a maximum of $12,500,000 on the aggregate amount of outstanding mortgages involving a single land development undertaking. The Senate amendment provided a maximum of $10,000,000, and the conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Maximum mortgage term

The House bill limited the maturity of land development mortgages to 7 years. The Senate amendment contained a provision permitting a lower maturity (as determined by the Commissioner) to the extent a mortgage is secured by private water and sewer systems. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Water and sewer facilities

The House bill contained a provision requiring a public water and sewerage system after the land is developed under the new FHA program, except that if public ownership is found not feasible an adequately regulated private system may be approved upon assurances of eventual transfer to public ownership. The comparable provision in the Senate amendment permitted either a public system or an adequately regulated private one. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Downpayment for low-income housing demonstration homes

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting a downpayment under section 203(b) to be made by a person other than the mortgagor on the purchase of a home under the low-income housing demonstration program. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Nondwelling facilities in urban renewal housing

The House bill contained a provision permitting nondwelling facilities to be included in a section 220 mortgage if the Commissioner finds that they contribute to the economic feasibility of the project. The Senate amendment contained a similar provision except that the Commissioner must find that the facilities are essential to the economic feasibility of the project and that the financing will not result in unfair disadvantage to other business enterprises in the vicinity.

The conference substitute conforms to the House language with respect to the finding that the facilities contribute to the economic feasibility of the project and requires the Commissioner to give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community.

Home improvement loans in high-cost areas

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing an increase in the amount of loans under sections 220(h), 203(k), and 312 by up to 45 percent when cost levels so require. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Mortgages for servicemen

The House bill contained a provision providing minimum downpayments under section 222 the same as the regular section 203(b) program (3 percent of the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent of the next $5,000, and 25 percent of all over $20,000). The Senate amendment contained a provision providing a minimum downpayment of 5 percent of the first $20,000 (or the amount under the sec. 203(b) program if less) plus 15 percent of all over $20,000.

The conference substitute provides a minimum downpayment of 3 percent on the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent on the next $5,000, and 15 percent on all over $20,000.

Optional cash payment of insurance benefits

The House bill contained a provision authorizing the FHA Commissioner in his discretion to pay benefits under any FHA program either in cash or in debentures, and authorized Treasury borrowing for cash payments as the Commissioner deems necessary. The Senate amendment contained the same provision except it did not authorize Treasury borrowing.

The Senate receded from its position and accepted the House provision which authorizes the Federal Housing Commissioner to borrow from the Treasury in connection with the making of optional cash payments of insurance benefits rather than the issuance of debentures. The conferees want to make clear that this Treasury borrowing authority is to be used prudently and only if receipts accruing to the insurance fund are inadequate to support continuation of payments in cash and only where such payments would represent a savings to the Government.

FHA loans for veterans

The House bill contained a provision authorizing section 203(b) mortgage insurance for veterans who have not received benefits under the VA program with no downpayment required on the first $20,000 and 15 percent on all above that amount. The term "veteran" was defined as a person who served in the Armed Forces and was not dishonorably discharged.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision providing no downpayment on the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent between $15,000 and $20,000, and 15 percent of all over $20,000. The term "veteran" was defined as a person who served in the Armed Forces on or after September 16, 1940, for at least 90 days (or is certified by the Secretary of Defense as having performed extrahazardous service) and was not dishonorably discharged.

The conference substitute provides for no downpayment on the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent between $15,000 and $20,000, and 15 percent above $20,000. The definition of "veteran" is the same as the Senate provision except that the limiting eligibility date of September 16, 1940, is deleted.

Refinancing of housing for elderly projects

The House bill contained a provision permitting refinancing of housing projects for the elderly under FHA's section 231 program. The Senate amendment contained no similar provision and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Approval of technically suitable materials

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill directing the FHA Commissioner to adopt uniform procedure for acceptance of, and to accept, technically suitable materials and products to be used in structures approved for FHA insurance. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision but with an amendment making it clear that the decision that a material or product is technically suitable must still be subject to the financial decision of the Commissioner that it is within the scope of underwriting requirements for mortgage insurance and that he must find that the use of the material or product is consistent with "economic soundness" or "acceptable risk," as the case may be, under the several FHA programs.

The conference substitute language is not intended to lessen the responsibility of the Commissioner to approve products or materials which are shown by acceptable research, testing, or performance to be technically suitable. It should also be clear that if a material or product is shown to be technically suitable and widely accepted in housing financed by conventional mortgage lenders, as being economically sound, these facts should be persuasive upon the Commissioner that such material or product is an acceptable risk for FHA-financed housing.

The conferees expect both Committees on Banking and Currency to observe carefully the actions taken by the FHA Commissioner under the intent of this section and further expect that the FHA Commissioner will exercise extra effort to keep abreast of technological advances and the use of new products where suitable, and that he should bend every effort to minimize the long delays which have often been experienced before technically suitable materials are determined to be acceptable.

Water and sewer facilities

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill prohibiting FHA insurance or a VA loan for new housing which is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system, if local officials certify that such a system is economically feasible. The conference substitute contains this provision.

Downpayment requirement under section 203(b)

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill reducing from 25 to 15 percent the required downpayment on that part of the value of insured property which exceeds $20,000. The conference substitute reduces the downpayment requirement to 20 percent of that part of the value in excess of $20,000.

TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL

General neighborhood renewal plans

The House bill contained a provision permitting general neighborhood renewal plans to cover adjoining areas as well as the urban renewal area. The Senate amendment contained a similar provision but required that adjoining areas have "specially related problems." Also, the provision in the Senate amendment provided that all projects in the plan area need only be initiated in 8 years (rather than completed in 10 years). The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Increase of nonresidential exception

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill increasing from 30 to 40 percent the existing exception to the "predominantly residential" requirement (but only with respect to the new capital grant authority provided by the bill). The conference substitute provides for an increase in the nonresidential exception to 35 percent, making it clear that the 35-percent factor applies only to the new money authorized in the bill. It also makes it clear that this is in addition to amounts previously available (and still unused) for such projects.

Projects financed on three-fourths grant basis

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill including as gross project costs for projects financed on a three-fourths basis certain expenses incurred for staff services in connection with code enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation programs. It also would have given credit for certain tax losses in case of projects financed on a three-fourths grant basis in the same way as such losses are now credited to projects on a two-thirds grant basis.

The conference substitute contains that part of the provision including expenses for staff services but deletes that part of the provision giving credit for certain tax losses.

Demolition of unsafe structures

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing grants (up to two-thirds of cost) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the demolition of unsafe structures located in urban renewal areas or located in other areas which have workable programs and meet specified conditions. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Concentrated code enforcement program

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing grants (up to two-thirds of cost, or three-fourths of cost in the case of cities of less than 50,000) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas (rather than only in urban renewal project areas as in existing law).

These programs may include the provision and repair of specified public improvements. The locality would be required to maintain its own code enforcement expenditures at normal levels and to have a satisfactory public improvements program. FHA section 220 housing, and rehabilitation loans under section 312 of the 1964 act, would be available in these areas. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Rehabilitation loan program

The House bill contained a provision eliminating the present $50,000,000 ceiling on the rehabilitation loan authorization under section 312 of the 1964 act, and terminating the program October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment contained a provision substituting a $100,000,000 per year ceiling for the existing total $50,000,000 ceiling and terminating the program October 1, 1969.

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill making rehabilitation loans available where the funds needed are not available on "comparable" (rather than "reasonable") terms and conditions and making the revolving fund available for loan servicing expenses (including those incurred by FNMA or other agencies). The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Workable program requirement and Indian tribes

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill providing that the workable program requirement shall be applicable to any Indian tribe, band, or nation only to the extent it has legal jurisdiction and power to carry out the requirement. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Lease guarantees for small business concerns

The House bill contained a provision amending the Small Business Act to authorize SBA to insure the lessor of property to a small business concern displaced by urban renewal against losses resulting from concern's failure to perform the lease. The maximum term of the lease would have been 10 years. The bill would have established an insurance fund with initial capital of $5,000,000 from SBA's revolving fund. A maximum insurance premium of 1 percent of annual rental payments was authorized.

The Senate amendment contained a provision amending the Small Business Investment Act to authorize SBA to guarantee payment of rentals under leases entered into by small business concerns displaced by any Federal action and concerns eligible for loans under the Antipoverty Act. The SBA fee for the guarantee could not exceed 2½ percent of the minimum annual guaranteed rental. The amendment established a revolving fund with initial capital of $5,000,000 from SBA's general fund (and increased the authorization for the latter fund by an equal amount).

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Parking facilities

The House bill contained a provision providing that publicly owned parking facilities provided in redevelopment can be counted as local grants-in-aid under the urban renewal program only to the extent that the cost is not anticipated to be recovered from revenues. No comparable provision was contained in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Local grants-in-aid

The Senate amendment contained provisions not in the House bill relating to local grants-in-aid for specific urban renewal projects in Jasper, Ala., Joliet, Ill., New Brunswick, N.J., St. Louis, Mo., Norfolk, Va., Reno, Nev., Michigan City, Ind., and Chester, Pa.

The conference substitute contains the Senate provisions.

The conferees were unanimous in their concern over the potential danger of amendments offered on the floor to provide special benefits to specific urban renewal projects. Such procedure does not give the committees sufficient opportunity to study the merits and implications of the proposals. In the future such proposals should be made to the committee early enough so that proper study can be made of each request. By so doing, the proponents of these amendments will protect themselves from the persuasive criticism that they have not been adequately studied and therefore should be rejected.

Waiver of prompt redevelopment requirement

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill waiving the prompt redevelopment requirement with respect to the sale for industrial purposes of certain land included in an urban renewal project in Texarkana, Ark. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Urban renewal in the District of Columbia

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill amending the Housing Act of 1954 to authorize the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency to undertake nonresidential projects as contemplated by title I of the 1949 act. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Historic structures

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing an urban renewal project to include the cost of relocating historic structures within the area of the project. It is the understanding of the conferees that this provision, which is included in the conference substitute, is meant to apply only to the costs of moving such structures and not to their acquisition or renovation.

TITLE IV—COMPENSATION OF CONDEMNNEES

The House bill contained provisions not in the Senate amendment establishing a uniform Federal land acquisition policy for real property taken under certain federally assisted housing and urban development programs. Continued Federal assistance under these programs was conditioned on certain specified standards of fair treatment for owners whose property is taken by eminent domain. The conference substitute contains the House provisions with amendments (1) adding the urban mass transit program and the new community facilities programs authorized by title VII to the federally assisted programs to which the new provisions would apply, and eliminating the college housing and housing for the elderly programs (because condemnation of property in these programs is so seldom used); and (2) limiting the specified standards under which Federal assistance would be conditioned. Under the standards specified in the conference substitute, every reasonable effort would have to be made to acquire the property by negotiated purchase; no owner could be required to surrender possession of his property before being paid the purchase price agreed to by negotiation, or 75 percent of the appraised value of the property if only the purchase price is in dispute; and the occupant of the property could not be required to surrender possession without 90 days' written notice.

The House bill also broadened and increased the amount of the relocation payments authorized to be paid under certain federally assisted housing and urban development programs and extended these payments to additional federally assisted housing and urban development programs. The conference substitute contains the House provisions with technical and conforming changes.

TITLE V—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

Equivalent elimination

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting PHA to accept local certification that there has been equivalent elimination of slum housing. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Reallocation of units

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting PHA (subject to contractual obligations) to reallocate units not under construction within 5 years from the date reserved, without regard to the 15-percent State limit. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Sale of federally owned projects

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting the PHA to sell a federally owned public housing project to a nonprofit local group (as well as to a local public housing agency), and requires that the sale of such a project be for continued use as low-rent housing. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Per room limitations

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill increasing the basic per room limit from $2,000 to $2,400 (from $3,000 to $3,500 in Alaska), and the special per room limit for the elderly from $3,000 to $3,500 (from $3,500 to $4,000 in Alaska). The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Public housing rental gap

The House bill contained a provision eliminating the requirement of 20-percent gap between upper rental limits for admission to public housing and lowest private rents. The provision in the Senate amendment did not eliminate the rental gap requirement but exempted from such requirement, as "displaced families," those whose dwellings are extensively damaged or destroyed in disaster areas after April 1, 1965. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Purchase by tenants

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting tenants to purchase public housing units (in the case of units which are detached, semi-detached, or row housing) on specified terms and conditions. The conference substitute permits such a purchase only in the case of detached and semidetached housing.

TITLE VI—COLLEGE HOUSING

Eligible institutions

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill making it clear that new colleges are eligible for loans upon providing assurances that they will offer the requisite degree within a reasonable time. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Vocational institutions

The Senate amendment contains a provision not in the House bill making a public educational institution offering technical or vocational instruction eligible for college housing loans, if it is administered by an accredited college or university and provides housing for all or part of its students. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Parking facilities

The House bill contained a provision making parking facilities for faculty and students eligible for loans. No similar provision was contained in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Cosignature of note

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting waiver of cosignature of the note by an educational institution in the case of a student cooperative when State law prohibits the institution from cosigning the note. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

TITLE VII—COMMUNITY FACILITIES

Grants for basic water and sewer facilities

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing grants up to 90 percent for a sewer facility in the case of a small community where no such facility exists and unemployment is high. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

The Senate amendment also contained a provision not in the House bill specifying that grants for sewers cannot include "treatment works" which are eligible for assistance under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Neighborhood facilities

The provisions in the House bill and the Senate amendment authorizing grants for neighborhood facilities were identical, except that the Senate amendment authorized a local public body receiving such a grant to utilize a nonprofit organization to provide the facilities if the local public body maintains continuing control. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Advance acquisition of land

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist in the acquisition of land for future construction of public works or facilities. The maximum grant would be determined by aggregate interest charges over a 5-year period. The grantee must initiate construction within 5 years or may be required to repay grant. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Authorization of appropriations

The House bill contained a provision authorizing appropriations without dollar amount for the new programs of grants for water and sewer facilities and neighborhood centers and terminating the programs on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment authorized appropriations as follows:

[In millions of dollars]

	Fiscal years
	1966	1967	1968	1969
For water and sewer grants...	$100	$200	$200	$200
For neighborhood facilities...	50	50	50	50
For advance land acquisition...	25	25	25	25

NOTE.—Amounts authorized for any year remain available to June 30, 1969.

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision except that the authorization for water and sewer grants in 1966 is increased to $200,000,000.

TITLE VIII—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

FNMA special assistance authority

Both the Senate amendment and the House bill contained a provision increasing FNMA's special assistance authority by a total of $1,625,000,000 over a 4-year period and transferring certain unused amounts available for title VIII housing. The provision in the House bill also transferred the amount (approximately $59,000,000) reserved for section 809 military, NASA, or AEC housing; no similar provision is contained in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Mortgage amount for below-market mortgages

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill excepting section 221(d)(3) below-market mortgages from the $17,500 per unit limit on purchasable mortgages under FNMA's special assistance authority. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision with an amendment authorizing the exemption only in cases where local tax abatement is granted in an amount sufficient to keep rentals at the level where they would be if the mortgage amount did not exceed $17,500 per dwelling unit.

Mortgages held by Federal instrumentalities

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing FNMA to purchase mortgages covering residential property offered by other Federal agencies and other obligations offered by HHFA. It also authorized FNMA in its fiduciary capacity to deal in any HHFA obligations. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

TITLE IX—OPEN SPACE LAND AND URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

Increased grant level

The House bill contained a provision increasing the maximum grant under the open space program from 20 to 30 percent of cost (and from 30 to 40 percent where applicant exercises open space responsibility for all or a substantial portion of the urban area). The provision in the Senate amendment increased the maximum grant for open space projects to 50 percent of cost and the conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Grant authorization

The Senate amendment contained a provision increasing the existing authorization for grants under the open space and urban beautification program from the present $75,000,000 to $310,000,000 and limiting the share of these funds which can be used for the new open space program in built-up areas to $64,000,000 and the amount for the new program of urban beautification to $36,000,000. The House bill would have authorized appropriations without dollar limit for this program. The conference report conforms to the Senate provisions.

Development grants for open space uses

The Senate amendment contained a provision, not in the House bill, authorizing grants to assist development, for open space uses (i.e., use for park and recreational purposes, conservation, or historic or scenic purposes), of land acquired with open space grant assistance. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Open space land in built-up areas

The House bill contained a provision authorizing grants up to $500,000 per project or 40 percent of cost, whichever is less, to assist in providing open space land in built-up urban areas. The Senate amendment contained a provision providing for grants up to 50 percent of cost without dollar limit on individual projects. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Urban beautification and improvement

The House bill contained a provision authorizing grants up to 40 percent of a community's increased expenditures for urban beautification and improvement, except that up to $5,000,000 can be used in making 100-percent grants for demonstrations. The Senate amendment contained a similar provision except that the grant limit would be 50 percent for the basic grants and 66⅔ percent for demonstration grants. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment with respect to the 50 percent maximum for basic grants, but in the case of demonstration grants the maximum is 90 percent.

Open space planning

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill, permitting grants to be made only if needed for a unified or officially coordinated open space land program to be carried out as part of comprehensive planning for the area (existing law requires only that there be comprehensive planning to which the proposed land use is important). The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Use of funds for studies

The House bill contained a provision permitting up to $100,000 a year of grant funds to be used for studies and publications, while under the Senate amendment these studies would be limited to $50,000 a year. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

TITLE X—RURAL HOUSING

Insurance of rural housing loans

The House bill contained a provision, not in the Senate amendment, requiring a minimum period of 5 years from the date of the note before the insured holder could require the Secretary to repurchase the insured loan under a repurchase agreement. There was no similar provision in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

The House bill contained provisions, not in the Senate amendment, authorizing the sale of insured loans at market prices, authorizing use of insurance fund to pay fees and charges in connection with such sales, requiring that reimbursement of the insurance fund for the amount of losses from sales at less than par plus related fees and charges paid be made by annual appropriation and prohibiting borrowing from the Treasury to make such reimbursement. There were no similar provisions in the Senate amendment and none are contained in the conference substitute. It is the view of the conferees that by exercise of the authority to use repurchase agreements with minimum periods fixed by the Secretary in accordance with prevailing market conditions, the Secretary will be able to sell the insured loans without loss, and that sales at a loss should not be made.

Interest on Treasury borrowing

The House bill contained a formula for computing interest on loan funds borrowed from the Treasury based on current market yields of Treasury securities while the Senate formula was based on the rate of interest actually paid by the Treasury. The conference substitute contains the Senate formula.

Payment of interest to Treasury

The House bill contained a provision requiring the Secretary to pay interest on future appropriations for making rural housing loans. The Senate amendment contained no similar provision and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Definition of rural area

The House bill contained a provision defining a rural area as a place with a population of 5,500 or less which is not a part of or associated with an urban area. There was no similar provision in the Senate amendment. The conference substitute defines a rural area as a place which is not part of or associated with an urban area, and which (1) has a population not in excess of 2,500, or (2) has a population between 2,500 and 5,500 if it is rural in character. While emphasizing that a place with a population in excess of 2,500 but not in excess of 5,500 must be rural in character, the conferees do not intend to suggest any change in the present administrative rules for determining whether a place with a population of 2,500 or less is a rural area.

TITLE XI—MISCELLANEOUS

Studies of housing programs

The Senate amendment included provisions not in the House bill requiring special reports on the rent supplement program public housing, FHA land insurance, urban renewal, community facilities, and the open-space and urban beautification program. In lieu of these, the conference substitute amended section 802 of the Housing Act of 1954, which requires the Housing and Home Finance Agency to make annual reports on all its programs and operations, to accomplish the purpose of the Senate provisions. It is the understanding of the conferees that HHFA and its constituent agencies should give special attention in its annual report to the new programs authorized by this act.

Urban planning grants

The House bill contained a provision authorizing appropriations as needed for the urban planning grant program and terminating the program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply raised the existing authorization from $105,000,000 to $230,000,000. In addition, the Senate amendment contained a provision permitting up to 5 percent of the funds appropriated to be used in developing and improving planning techniques, and also authorized grants to organizations of elected officials in metropolitan areas to assist in studies, collection of data, and development of plans and programs. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision with a modification.

The term "elected official" as contained in the original Senate text was changed to read "public official". While the amendment is directed at making eligible organizations of local elected officials, the term "public official" was required to make it clear that the Metropolitan Councils of Governments for Washington and certain other areas are eligible for these grants even though their members may not be elected. For example, the Washington Council has representatives from the Board of Commissioners of the Government of the District of Columbia. These Commissioners are not elected but are appointed by the President.

Federal-State training programs

The House bill contained a provision eliminating the ceiling on the authorization for appropriations for the Federal-State training program and terminating that program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply increased the authorization from the existing $10,000,000 limit to $30,000,000.

The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Public works planning advances

The House bill contained a provision removing the ceiling on the amount which can be appropriated for public works planning advances and terminated the program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply increased the authorization for appropriation from $20,000,000 to $70,000,000. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Low income housing demonstration program

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill increasing the authorization for low income housing demonstration grants from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Public facility loans

The House bill contained a provision permitting public facility loans to nonprofit corporations to provide water or sewer facilities for smaller municipalities which are unable to provide them. The Senate amendment contained the same provision except it made it clear that rural areas were included. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill permitting public facility loans to communities where NASA installations are located without regard to population (the limitation in present law for such communities is 150,000). The conference substitute conforms to the Senate amendment.

Mass transportation act

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill repealing the requirement in the Urban Mass Transportation Act that facilities and equipment used under the program be U.S. manufactured. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Federal Reserve Act

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill which would have authorized national banks to purchase participations in loans secured by real estate and, in addition, would have increased the maximum maturity of industrial, commercial, and residential construction loans from 18 to 30 months. It was felt that further study of the authorization for the purchase of participations is needed, and this authority is not included in the conference substitute. It is the intention of the Committee on Banking and Currency to call hearings as soon as possible to study this proposal. The conference substitute does include a provision extending to 24 months the maximum maturity of industrial, commercial, and residential construction loans.

Savings and loan associations loans on leaseholds

The House bill contained a provision not in the Senate amendment authorizing savings and loan associations to make loans secured by leaseholds which extend at least 10 years beyond loan maturity in areas where a substantial part of residential land is available only on a leasehold basis.

In place of this the conference substitute amends existing law to permit savings and loan associations generally to make loans on leaseholds which extend or are renewable for at least 10 years beyond the loan maturity. (Present law requires 15 years.) It is the intention of the conferees that where the leasehold is renewable, precautions be taken that it be renewable under terms which do not adversely affect the mortgage security.

District of Columbia savings and loan associations

The House bill provided that associations in the District of Columbia shall have the same investment powers as Federal associations. No similar provision was contained in the Senate amendment and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Deposits in FSLIC

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill requiring insured institutions to make deposits in FSLIC as required by call of FHLBB. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Investments by Federal savings and loan associations

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing Federal associations to invest up to 1 percent of their assets in loans (for Latin American housing) guaranteed by AID under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Proximity to airports

The Senate amendment contained a provision not in the House bill authorizing HHFA to study methods of reducing loss and hardship to homeowners whose property has been depreciated by the proximity of airports. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

HIGHLIGHTS: Senate agreed to conference report on housing bill. Sen. Smith inserted letter critical of food stamp program. Sen. Aiken inserted Secretary Freeman's report to President on aid to drought-stricken areas. Sen. Tower commended passage of bill providing FHA loans and grants for rural water systems. Rep. Betts expressed concern over rising food costs. Rep. Hathaway defended rise in potato prices.

SENATE

1. HOUSING LOANS. Received and agreed to the conference report on H. R. 7984, the housing and urban development bill (pp. 17630-37). Title X of the bill would provide a new $300,000,000-per-year program of insured housing loans under the Farmers Home Administration in rural areas.

2. FARM CREDIT. A subcommittee of the Agriculture and Forestry Committee "approved for full committee consideration with an amendment H. R. 4152, to provide for loans to production credit associations by Federal intermediate credit banks without the necessity of collateral." p. D698
3. HEALTH. Received and agreed to the conference report on S. 510, to extend and amend certain expiring provisions of the Public Health Service Act relating to community health services, which includes provisions extending until June 30, 1968, the program of health services to domestic agricultural migratory workers, and providing specific authorization for necessary short-term hospital care for such workers and their families. pp. 17598-9
4. LANDS. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee reported with amendment S. 625, to authorize the sale of certain isolated or disconnected tracts of land (S. Rept. 512). p. 17555
5. RECLAMATION. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee reported with amendment S. 1088, to authorize the construction of the Touchet division, Walla Walla project, Oregon-Washington (S. Rept. 511). p. 17555
6. PUBLIC LAW 480. Sen. Miller criticized Public Law 480 assistance to the United Arab Republic, and inserted excerpts from a GAO report stating that "U. S. commercial dollar sales of tallow to the United Arab Republic have been displaced by sales of surplus tallow for foreign currency under title I, Public Law 480, programs." p. 17643
Both Houses received a GAO report "on significant dollar savings available in financing foreign sales agents' commissions on surplus agricultural commodities exported" under title I, Public Law 480. pp. 17548, 17552
7. FOOD STAMPS. Sen. Smith inserted a letter from the welfare director of Portland, Me., critical of the administration of the food stamp program in that area. pp. 17569-70
8. DISASTER RELIEF. Sen. Aiken inserted a report by Secretary Freeman to the President reviewing steps being taken by this Department to provide aid to drought-stricken areas. p. 17569
9. LOANS. Sen. Tower commended provisions of S. 1766, recently passed by the Senate, which would authorize loans and grants by this Department to finance the development of rural water systems. p. 17578
10. FOREIGN AID; CCC. Sen. Simpson inserted an article, "Sleuth of the Senate," commending investigations conducted by Sen. Williams, Del., including references to the diversion of grain shipped to Austria under Public Law 480, and the purchase of soybean oil by CCC. pp. 17577-8
11. POVERTY. Sen. Murphy submitted an amendment to the Economic Opportunity Act which he stated "would bring the remaining VISTA volunteers and all persons employed on community action projects for private nonprofit organizations under the Hatch Act's prohibition on improper political activities"; to Labor and Public Welfare Committee. pp. 17562-3
12. NATIONAL ECONOMY. Sen. Hartke inserted an address by Vice President Humphrey before the National Conference of the American Society of Corporate Secretaries reviewing the status of the national economy. pp. 17591-3 part of any understanding that the committee will reach whether the plan is approved or disapproved (refer to pp. 25 and 26 of the transcript of the hearings) and further that such plan will be placed in the hands of the Executive Reorganization Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Government Operations by Wednesday, July 21, 1965, or Thursday, July 22, 1965. (Refer to p. 51 of the transcript of the hearings.)

5. That there shall be a position of Director (Chief) of Locomotive Inspection and Assistant Director (Assistant Chief) of Locomotive Inspection who shall be appointed by the Interstate Commerce Commission instead of the President of the United States. Also that the most highly competent and experienced personnel available would be chosen to fill the above positions, using the rules and regulations of the Civil Service Commission whose present requirements or standards shall be maintained. (Refer to pages 49 and 50 of the transcript of the hearings.)

We feel that the above positions should be filled from the ranks of the locomotive inspectors who are the most experienced, qualified, and competent individuals available.

6. It was further agreed that the minimum number of locomotive inspectors will be maintained at the present 50 or more. (Refer to page 22 of the transcript of the hearings.)

In the event the Interstate Commerce Commission fails to conform with these joint understandings, we would have recourse to the Senate Committee on Government Operations who would then require the Interstate Commerce Commission to appear for questioning to show cause why they failed to follow the intent of Congress, and if question still remained thereafter, the law would have to be amended.

This understanding was made clear to all parties participating in the July 20, 1965, hearings. (Refer to page 101 of the transcript of the hearings.)

In conclusion, the major concern of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Enginemen is the protection and safety of the employees we represent.

While we are not completely satisfied with Reorganization Plan No. 3, these understandings do meet and correct some of the major objections we have.

JOINT ICC-BUREAU OF THE BUDGET STATEMENT WITH REGARD TO IMPLEMENTATION OF RE- ORGANIZATION PLAN NO. 3 OF 1965

If Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1965 is permitted to become effective it will be implemented and operate as follows:

1. All of the substantive duties and functions now assigned to the Commission and the Director of Locomotive Inspection under the Locomotive Inspection Act, 45 U.S.C. 22-34, as amended, will continue to be performed after the reorganization becomes effective. Final responsibility therefor will be vested in the Commission. In this connection, it will be unnecessary and neither does the Commission intend to change the basic assignment of locomotive inspection work and functions as reflected in its present organization minutes, table of organization and description of central and field organization as published in the Federal Register. The statutory provisions will be administered by the Commission with the same force and effect as heretofore. Through elimination of certain cumbersome restrictions, as provided in the reorganization plan, and better utilization of resources it is the Commission's intention that more substantive locomotive inspection work will be accomplished.

2. There will continue to be maintained within the Bureau of Railroad Safety and Service, a separate Section of Locomotive Inspection which will provide technical guidance to the locomotive inspection program. The section will be headed by a chief and an assistant chief. These officers will be delegated the basic locomotive inspection duties and responsibilities comparable to those now assigned by statute to the Director and Assistant Director of Locomotive Inspection.

The existing qualification requirements for the Director and Assistant Directors of Locomotive Inspection will be continued for the chief and assistant chief of the section, respectively.

The Section of Locomotive Inspection and its chief will function under the general direction of the Director of the Bureau of Railroad Safety and Service; and will adhere to the same organizational and administrative channels and procedures established for other organizational components of the Bureau including those engaged in railroad safety, signal inspections, car service, etc.

3. With respect to the field organization the following changes will be made:

DISTRICT SUPERVISORS

The present eight district supervisors of locomotive inspection will be reduced to seven. One supervisor will be assigned to each of the Commission's seven regional offices. With the resultant savings one additional position will be provided for field locomotive inspection activities. We will require the supervisors to conduct locomotive inspections in addition to the work of supervising other locomotive inspectors. Since the district supervisors are generally the more highly skilled locomotive inspectors, they also will be assigned to handle some of the more difficult accident investigations. District supervisors will work under the general direction of the Regional Director of Railroads, however, technical guidance will continue to be provided to them by the Section of Locomotive Inspection. The existing qualification requirements will be continued for district supervisors of locomotive inspection. Our present promotion program will be amended to include the district supervisor positions among those eligible for promotion to the position of Regional Director of Railroads and other positions within the Bureau for which they qualify. District supervisors and inspectors of locomotives have heretofore been deemed ineligible for promotion to such positions due to the rigid provisions of the act.

INSPECTORS OF LOCOMOTIVES

Inspectors of locomotives will continue to perform all of the duties now assigned to them under the Locomotive Inspection Act. They will place primary emphasis on such duties. The existing qualification requirements for inspectors of locomotives will be continued. Selection for these positions will be made in accordance with civil service standards, and only persons qualified by experience and training will be used in these capacities.

After appropriate training we will assign certain additional duties to qualified locomotive inspectors which will in no way interfere with the existing statutory duties. These will include:

(a) Inspecting the records of signal equipment tests on locomotives. These records are normally maintained at the same location as the locomotive inspection records. Also, the inspection of the locomotive signal equipment, now conducted by signal and train control inspectors, will be made by locomotive inspectors after they are trained. This work is closely related to the locomotive inspectors' tests of locomotive brake equipment. Only a little additional time would be required for the locomotive inspector to complete the entire signal inspection. This will relieve the signal and train control inspectors from much of this particular inspection activity and permit them to do other important work.

(b) In the course of their regular duties, it is sometimes necessary for locomotive inspectors to visit remote and isolated points at which locomotives are housed. These locations include logging camps, sand and gravel pits, and mines. In all these operations, equipment is subjected to rough handling and more safety appliance inspections at these points would be beneficial. Locomotive inspectors will be authorized to make safety appliance inspections at these locations and our safety appliance program improved. It should not be necessary to send safety appliance inspectors and locomotive inspectors to these remote points at approximately the same time.

(c) We frequently receive complaints involving more than one of our railway safety functions. Usually these complaints involve the determination of facts which could be developed by one qualified investigator. In many instances, we could make the required investigation with a single qualified employee, where we now must use two. When appropriate, certain of these complaints will be assigned to qualified locomotive inspectors. In addition to the foregoing, the Commission will, over a reasonable period, review the present 50 geographical districts and make such adjustments as may be necessary to achieve a balanced and equitable workload for each inspector, assure maximum efficiency and economy in the field operations, and integrate the district pattern with the rest of the Commission's field organization.

OTHER RAILROAD SAFETY PERSONNEL

To the extent that other members of the Bureau's field staff are qualified by experience and training they will be given assignments to perform locomotive inspection work when it will further the Commission's safety programs. Cross-use of staff in this manner will make additional qualified manpower available for locomotive inspection work and eliminate the necessity for dual inspections or investigation of complaints at some points. Under no circumstances, will we permit an unqualified employee to inspect a locomotive. The current qualification requirements are set forth in Civil Service Commission examination announcement No. 260B, "Inspector of Locomotives." Only those staff members meeting these requirements will be given locomotive inspection assignments.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION,
Washington, D.C., July 23, 1965.

HON. FRED R. HARRIS,
Acting Chairman, Subcommittee on Executive Reorganization of the Committee on Government Operations, U.S. Senate,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR HARRIS: This refers to the Memorandum of Understanding of Reorganization Plan No. 3, 1965, submitted to the subcommittee by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Enginemen, a copy of which was given to us by Mr. Nobleman for review.

We agree that the memorandum represents our understanding of how the reorganization plan would be implemented with the following clarification with respect to the specific items contained in brotherhood's memorandum:

Item (1): We interpret the statement reading "sections 3 and 4 of the present Locomotive Inspection Act shall be maintained" to relate to qualifications of the Director (Chief) of Locomotive Inspection, the Assistant Director (Chief) of Locomotive Inspection, and the locomotive inspectors, only. If the plan becomes effective it obviously would abolish those provisions of these sections relating to method of appointment of the Director (Chief) and Assistant Director (Chief) and dividing the territory comprising the several States and the District of Columbia into 50 locomotive boiler-inspection districts.

Item (3): This item apparently refers to Mr. Schnoor's testimony on page 27 of the transcript in which he said, "the reorganization plan itself does not abolish any of the functions of the present locomotive inspection program except for the function of setting up these 50 districts." We agree that all of the basic statutory functions of the locomotive inspection program would remain unchanged. However, in addition to abolishing the function of dividing the several States and the District of Columbia into 50 districts, the reorganization plan would transfer responsibility for the performance of all locomotive inspection functions to the Commission; and give the Commission authority to appoint the Director (Chief) and Assistant Director (Chief) of Locomotive Inspection.

Item (4): The Commission submitted to the subcommittee on July 21, 1965, a statement entitled "Joint ICC-Bureau of the Budget Statement with Regard to Implementation of Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1965." It is our intention that this will constitute the detailed plan of operation referred to in this item.

Item (6): It is the Commission's intention to maintain a minimum of 50 locomotive inspectors as long as the Congress authorizes appropriations therefor.

We appreciate the opportunity to comment on the brotherhood's memorandum relating to this matter.

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES A. WEBB,
Chairman.

Mr. JACKSON. Mr. President, I commend the acting chairman of the subcommittee, the distinguished junior Senator from Oklahoma, for the very able manner in which he handled the entire matter.

As a result of the hearings, the committee, in effect, entered into a compact with the Interstate Commerce Commission to the effect that the provisions of the 1911 Act would remain in force and effect insofar as the integrity of the inspection systems are concerned.

The only real change in the 1911 Act stemming from the reorganization plan would be in connection with the organization of the inspection service. The integrity of the systems under which the men work on the trains would be preserved and protected.

The distinguished junior Senator from Oklahoma deserves great credit for working out the plan which resulted in general agreement between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Enginemen, the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Bureau of the Budget.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I also commend the junior Senator from Oklahoma for working out the agreement which I am convinced will satisfy the concern that was expressed about the proposed plan of reorganization.

I understand that the agreement will satisfy the safety requirements that this agency has long been striving for. I do not believe, therefore, that any resolution of disapproval is required.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, both Senators from Washington added materially to the effectiveness of the committee meetings.

Mr. COOPER subsequently said: Mr. President, I have listened with great interest to the statements of the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS] and to the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. HARRIS] regarding the President's reorganization plan affecting the Bureau of Locomotive Inspection.

Although I am not a member of the Senate Committee on Commerce which has jurisdiction of the reorganization plan, I was concerned with the proposal, and like my colleagues wished to be sure that under its provision the highest safety standards would be maintained and improved.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Engineers and all railway brotherhoods are concerned with safety as is the public.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Engineers are very much concerned, inasmuch as firemen no longer work with them on a large proportion of engines in use—moving tremendous trains of great lengths and tonnage. I am very glad that the subcommittee of the Committee on Commerce, under the chairmanship of the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. HARRIS], and with the active cooperation and interest of the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS], and its members, has written into the record the assurance that high standards of safety will be maintained and improved.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill, H.R. 7984, to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. TYDINGS in the chair). The report will be read for the information of the Senate.

The legislative clerk read the report.

(For conference report, see House proceedings of July 23, 1965, pp. 17415-17433, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the report?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I should like to make a statement on the conference report on the housing bill. I do not believe it necessary that my remarks be in great detail because there is a printed report on the desk of each Senator giving full text of the agreed-upon legislation and a statement of managers on the part of the House, explaining the differences between the House bill and the legislation agreed to in conference.

Before I comment on the details, I want to say how pleased I am with the fine job done by the members of the conference committee from both Houses of Congress.

We had before us the most difficult task of resolving significant differences on a total of 82 items, some of which had 4 and 5 subtopics. As you may know, housing is one of the most complex pieces of legislation that the Congress deals with because it involves so many different programs. Practically all of these programs were involved, in one way or another, in the decisions to be made by the conference committee.

The committee worked together with speed and in a spirit of goodwill and cooperation and completed its work in three sessions held on July 20, 21, and 22. As conferences usually do, there were compromises between the two sides. On the part of the Senate, we remained adamant on several items on which we believed there could be no compromise but naturally gave in on others.

The final agreements result in a good bill of which both the Senate and the House can be proud. I am not wholly in accord with the results on several items and there were several that I voted against but which were finally approved based on the majority vote. However, I believe we have the best compromise that we could get.

Many important items, of course, were not in conference, having already been agreed to by each House.

All in all, this is one of the most comprehensive housing bills ever written by the Congress. It is a 4-year bill, involving extensions of programs, many of which have been in existence for 30 years.

The bill provided a 4-year extension for FHA, urban renewal, college housing, housing for the elderly, public housing, urban planning and rural housing. In addition to extending these programs, amendments were written to improve their workability and to make them more effective in doing the housing job that Congress intended.

The final bill also provided new programs to supplement the existing ones.

The new programs may be considered in three different categories. First, and most important is a program of financial assistance for the construction and rehabilitation of housing for elderly and for families of low income who are living in slums and blighted neighborhoods. The principal provision here is the new rent supplement program under private auspices.

Another category is a program of Federal assistance to the cities and communities of our Nation to help pay the cost of essential public works. Under this the conference committee agreed to a 4-year program of $800 million of matching grants for water and sewer facilities.

The third category involves a relatively new approach to improve the environment of our communities through acquisition of open spaces, the development of parks, the construction of neighborhood facilities for recreational and cultural purposes, and the provision for beautification of urban areas. Not much attention has been paid to this aspect of the bill, but in the years to come this may well turn out to be one of the most important contributions of the 1965 act.

Mr. President, I should like to make some remarks about a few of the items in which the Senate had a particular interest.

On rent supplements, both Houses made provision in almost identical terms to authorize this program for a 4-year period. Each House recognized the merits of an alternative program of assistance for families at the public housing level through a new program of housing to be sponsored, built and managed by private enterprise. Although each House of Congress would have limited eligibility for rent supplements to families qualified for public housing, the House bill would have changed the basic public housing law relative to rental gap, the effect of which would be to increase slightly the income ceiling for eligibility for both public housing and for rent supplements. The Senate had no such provision and the conferees agreed with the Senate version.

Also the Senate had a provision for an experimental program for a limited amount up to 10 percent of the rent supplement funds for FHA section 231 program of mortgage insurance for the elderly, section 202 direct Federal loans for the elderly, and FHA section 221(d)(3) below-market rate program. The conference committee agreed to accept the Senate provision with an amendment that no more than 20 percent of units in an existing project could benefit for rent supplements, and that no more than 50 percent of the experimental funds authorized could be used for newly constructed FHA section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate projects. This was to assure the equitable allocation of funds between these projects and those exclusively for housing for the elderly.

Agreements were reached on the down-payment provisions relative to FHA programs for veterans, servicemen, and for regular sales housing. The conference committee finally agreed to an amendment offered by the House conferees which is quite satisfactory to all and which I believe will act as one of the most important incentives for home ownership in recent years.

Compromise language was written into the report relative to the approval by the FHA Commissioner of technically suitable materials. This issue has been one of the most difficult ones to resolve since it was first discussed by the Housing Subcommittee several months ago. The statement in the House managers' report explains the substitute language by which the conferees intended to clarify the FHA Commissioner's responsibility without changing the intent of the Senate provision. I believe this was an excellent resolution of a most difficult problem and I suggest that the Members read that statement.

On urban renewal, the conferees had a number of differences, the most important of which involved the extent to which urban renewal funds should be used for commercial and other nonresidential uses. The Senate version would have permitted 40 percent of new funds to be used for nonresidential purposes. House conferees disagreed but finally compromised on a 35-percent figure.

The only other items under urban renewal which the House conferees would not agree to were more or less technical matters involving a definition of substandard structures, and limiting acquisition to such structure, a new definition of gross project cost when State law authorizes additional relocation assistance and where certain tax losses are not now included. The House conferees were adamant on these items, believing that more information was needed and in view of the fact that no hearings were held and no committee consideration was given to them, the Senate receded.

Mr. President, at this point, I should like to repeat what I have said several times on the Senate floor relative to items being brought up on the Senate floor for inclusion in the bill. I would never want to foreclose Members from bringing up matters and having them considered without benefit of hearings or committee consideration, but I believe that Senate floor approval of such matters should be given only on extremely rare occasions.

It is not only unfair to the Senate, but such action often prejudices the chance of success of an item in conference because it is so easy to have the other body refuse to accept an item which has not been given full consideration by the committee.

One item which the conference committee agreed to only after considerable discussion involved a House provision on compensation of condemnees. No such provision was included in the Senate version primarily because the entire subject of land acquisition procedures and equitable payment to property owners for land acquired under eminent domain rights is being considered by the Senate Government Operations Committee. I have a bill, S. 1201 and Senator MUSKIE has a bill, S. 1681, which would establish uniform procedures for all Government taking of private property. Nevertheless, the House insisted on some action at this time and the conferees agreed on tentative first steps toward the larger goal, namely that property owners be paid at least 75 percent of the value of the property acquired under rights of eminent domain and, furthermore, that owners not be thrown off their property within less than 90 days after written notice. Senator MUSKIE was active in working out this compromise and everyone seemed quite pleased with the results.

Another good compromise was reached relative to rural housing. The House had proposed language redefining a rural area to include a city or town up to 5,500 population which is not associated with an urban area. The conferees agreed to new language making it clear that rural areas for purposes of the rural housing program could include places over 2,500 population but less than 5,500 population only if such places were rural in character.

Relative to savings and loan legislation, the House conferees receded to the Senate on a provision authorizing new investment powers for non-Federal savings and loan association in Washington, D.C., and the Senate receded to the House on the term of a leasehold securing a mortgage loan made by a Federal savings and loan association. On the latter case, the conferees agreed to a period of at least 10 years as the proper time beyond which the leasehold should run after expiration of the loan.

The House also receded to the Senate on a provision requiring insured members of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation to pay up to 1 percent of deposits upon call of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. When this item was placed in the Senate bill, it was clearly understood that such a call would be made only to the extent needed to provide liquidity to the Corporation and that reasonable notice would be given to the members of the Board's intentions and that ordinarily a call for deposits would not be made in increments of greater than one-fourth of 1 percent in any 90-day period.

The House also receded to the Senate relative to a provision authorizing Federal savings and loan associations to invest up to 1 percent of their assets in loans guaranteed by the Agency for International Development for Latin American housing. The only objection to this came because of the possibility of an adverse effect on the passage of a pending bill to establish an International Home Loan Bank in which savings and loan associations could invest up to 1 percent of assets to be used to help finance housing in underdeveloped countries abroad. It was my opinion that in no way would the action proposed in the bill be in lieu of the proposal relative to the establishment of the International Bank and, with this in mind, the conferees agreed to approve the Senate provision.

The Senate bill contained two clarifying provisions relating to national banks. One would have made it clear that a national bank may purchase a participation in an existing real estate loan. The other would have increased the maximum maturity of industrial, commercial, and residential loans from 18 to 30 months.

At the present time paragraph 2120 of the regulations of the Comptroller of the Currency states that national banks may purchase or sell participations in existing real estate loans, when the interests of the participating banks are adequately protected by the terms of the participation agreement. And under the provisions of law which authorizes banks to make loans to manufacturing and industrial businesses—when they rely primarily on the borrowers' general credit standing and forecast of operations—without regard to the requirements for real estate loans, national banks may when appropriate make construction loans beyond the statutory limits.

The House conferees did not accept the Senate amendment with respect to the purchase of participations in real estate loans. The report states:

It was felt that further study of the authorization for the purchase of participations is needed, and this authority is not included in the conference substitute.

The conference did, however, increase the maximum maturity of construction loans from 18 to 24 months.

The fact that under current regulations national banks are permitted to carry on these activities was brought to the attention of the conferees, and it is expected that the current regulations will continue in force.

Mr. President, I have taken more time than I intended in explaining the conference report.

It is an involved bill and I have tried to explain only the more important relevant items. There are many other items which I did not cover which I should be glad to explain if Members have any questions.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am glad to yield to the chairman of the committee.

Mr. ROBERTSON. First, I wish to take the opportunity to congratulate the chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing and to concur in his statement that this is one of the biggest and most complicated housing bills we have ever had. As a matter of fact, when the bill came from the administration I recommended to the chairman of the subcommittee that it be made into four separate bills. While he did not do that, we took out one proposal to create a new department on housing, but he kept all the other proposals together. I commend him and his subcommittee. The conference report contains 62 pages. If we add the comment by the House managers, it amounts to 78 pages. I have never seen one that big before on a housing bill.

In the debate on the bill, one Senator said it would cost $15 billion. Another said that there was no way to tell how much it would cost. It will cost far less than it would have cost if it had not been for the Senator from Alabama. He took out the open-end provision, providing a period of 4 years of authorization, and took out the visionary scheme that would build new houses with Federal funds and then invite citizens and industries to come in. I am grateful for the fine work he did in eliminating some of the provisions of the bill. I am also grateful to him and to the Senate conferees in respect to the provision with relation to the city of Norfolk.

It was on a par with the other provisions for cultural and convention centers which, in their benefits, went a little beyond the renewal areas in which they would be located. It was extended to the whole city, so that we had to authorize.

For the benefit of some of the younger Senators, let me make a personal reference. The junior Senator from Virginia and the junior Senator from Alabama qualified for the Senate in November of 1946. In January of 1947, we were both assigned to the Committee on Banking and Currency. We had equal seniority in the Senate, but the rules of the Senate do not recognize equal seniority in a committee. So the Senator from Alabama said to me:

Let us toss a coin to see who will be chairman and who will be the ranking Democrat on the committee.

The junior Senator from Virginia won. However, I wish to say that the ranking Democrat, the Senator from Alabama, has been my right arm on that committee through the years, and I sincerely hope that the great and sovereign

State of Alabama will keep him in the Senate for as long as he cares to serve.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, let me express my appreciation to the chairman of the committee. Let me say on behalf of the entire Housing Subcommittee that we could not have had better or finer cooperation than that which we received from the chairman of the full committee. He was frank about the provisions to which he objected, as he always is, but any time we wished the committee assembled for a hearing, he saw to it that it was done.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am grateful to the Senator from Virginia for his very fine cooperation and the flattering remarks he has made about me.

I am glad to yield to the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. The housing bill which the Senate will finally approve today is, in my judgment, the most significant piece of housing legislation I have seen in my 17 years in the Senate. It is not only a comprehensive bill, but it sets up certain new principles whereby we will seek to aid directly those citizens of our country who otherwise could not afford decent housing. We shall aid them to live in homes which otherwise they could not afford without Government help.

The Senator from Alabama should be saluted for his leadership in the housing field. There are many items in the bill which are major improvements and extensions of benefits that we had before to help us improve the Nation, particularly the cities and smaller communities, to provide facilities which they otherwise could not obtain. I pay tribute to the Senator for his great leadership in this field.

It was my privilege, as a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency a number of years ago—to serve under the leadership of the great Senator from Alabama, who was then and is now chairman of the Housing Subcommittee of the Committee on Banking and Currency. I tried to contribute, insofar as I could, to the legislation which was being enacted at that time, and I believe that I made some contribution in the field of community facilities; but there was always our chairman, the Senator from Alabama, who stood as a great stalwart fighting for practically everything that would make it possible for Americans to live better in this great land of ours.

To a considerable extent, the pending bill is undoubtedly the culmination not merely of 2 years work but of 18 to 20 years of hard work which the Senator from Alabama has performed in the housing field.

I salute his magnificent contribution to the housing field, and also pay tribute to the Johnson administration for the part it played in recommending the proposed legislation provided for in the bill, and in helping us by urging its immediate passage.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I thank the Senator from Louisiana for his kind remarks.

Even though this is one of the most important measures, perhaps the biggest we have ever passed, I still adhere to the belief that the Housing Act of 1949 was perhaps the most important of any, because all the programs were new then. A major part of the pending bill will continue and improve upon existing programs, many of which the Senator from Louisiana helped to write when he was a member of the committee. There are many provisions in the law today which have resulted from amendments which were offered by the Senator from Louisiana. I shall always remember his valuable service to the cause of good housing.

In the pending bill, there are only one or two really new programs included. The Senator touched upon one of them, the rent supplement proposal. By the way, that is not a new program. I remember the first year I was on the Housing Subcommittee, when former Senator Taft, and the senior Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], and former Senator Wagner were sponsors of the general housing bill.

At that time, I remember that the real estate boards came before us, urging strongly that instead of public housing we should provide for direct payments of aid to low-income families. The pending bill does this for the first time, although the real estate boards were recommending it 20 years ago.

In the pending bill, there has been considerable criticism of the rent supplemental. The idea was supported this year by such organizations as the American Bankers Association, the Mutual Savings Banks Association, the Catholic Charities of America, the savings and loan associations, the National Association of Home Builders, the Mortgage Bankers Association—I could go on and name organization after organization who approve of this measure, trying to improve on public housing and perhaps to replace public housing with this private enterprise undertaking which the pending bill would provide.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield briefly?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Washington.

Mr. MAGNUSON. No one can appreciate more than the Senator from Washington, without being on the Senator's committee, how complicated and comprehensive a housing bill can be when one is chairman of the Subcommittee on Appropriations. But I was going to ask the Senator if the bill made any substantial change in the need for appropriations, other than exist in the present independent offices bill, which is about ready to go to conference.

Mr. SPARKMAN. No, so far as existing programs are concerned, the Senator from Washington might be interested in this statement: On existing programs which were to be continued, the request had gone from the administration for open end authorizations. We declined to do that. We have always declined to make open end authorizations, but instead we decided to extend the program for 4 years until October 1, 1969, and to authorize appropriations at the going level for that period of time.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I, as well as many others in the lumber-producing areas of the United States, including that of the Senator from Alabama, was quite interested in section 211 of the pending bill.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes; I made a few remarks on that subject earlier.

Mr. MAGNUSON. As I understand, we kept in the conference substitute which contained a further provision, making it clear as to the decision that the material or product which is technically suitable must still be subject to the financial decision of the Commissioner, that is, within the scope of the requirement of mortgage insurance, and that he must provide that use of the material or product is consistent with economic soundness or an acceptable risk, as the case may be.

Can the Senator enlarge on what the conference meant by "further provision"?

Mr. SPARKMAN. The objection had been raised that the Senate language would place a severe burden on the Federal Housing Commissioner for beyond what it was felt he should have. The language was included to clarify the Commissioner's responsibility in approving new material for FHA housing. In other words, what we wish is this: The Senator realizes that if we are to make progress, we must have new materials.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Yes.

Mr. SPARKMAN. And they should be given a fair chance. We wished to stress to him that new materials should be utilized, when he is satisfied and makes a finding that they are suitable and meet the underwriting standards laid down by the FHA.

Mr. MAGNUSON. But not if the material is inconsistent with economic soundness—for example, lumber which might not hold up over a period of time.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Then he would still have the authority to agree to the acceptable standards—

Mr. SPARKMAN. That is correct.

Mr. MAGNUSON. As to the type of lumber that would be consistent with economic soundness.

Mr. SPARKMAN. In other words, there would be no compulsion on him to accept materials that would not be economically sound.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I notice one other thing that I hope the Commissioner would take under consideration. The Senator suggests that he should bend every effort to minimize the long delays which have often been experienced by buyers or manufacturers of products that go into houses, when it is not known whether they are acceptable or not acceptable. In some cases no decisions have been made.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator is correct. Many of us have encountered experiences in connection with materials which were perfectly sound and which had met all the tests, but which had to wait for many years before they could be used. I wonder if I might relate a little experience that I had at one time.

A manufacturer in my State made doorlocks. They had been tested, and the Public Housing Administration had found them acceptable. They were perfectly willing to use them. However, the locks had not been approved by the appropriate industry committee. When I checked into the matter, I found that they could not meet the lock specifications of the standards committee within the industry, because the specifications had been written in 1893. Those specifications required a solid block of copper, I believe, to back up a part in the lock.

The company that manufactured the lock had used a light metal, probably magnesium, or something of that kind. It had worked perfectly well, and had replaced a scarce material. It served as a good substitute. However, the company could obtain no action from the industry committee in modernizing the requirement that had been written in 1893.

I kept pushing, until that specification was changed. The manufacturer had come to me, and I was willing to go to work on it. Most people in those circumstances would never think of doing that.

We hope that under this language the Administrator will use his discretion, and that new material can come into use, and perhaps expedite action by industry committees, which serve a useful purpose, if they act promptly.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I rise to express my appreciation to the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], first because I had two questions that I raised when the bill was under debate on the floor of the Senate, to answer which I offered amendments on the floor. The Senator from Alabama was understanding in his handling of these questions, despite the fact that these questions had not been brought to my attention before that time, and I had not been able to offer in committee the appropriate amendments. The amendments were adopted on the floor of the Senate because the Senator from Alabama and the distinguished members of his committee did not object to them.

I appreciate the fact that the amendments were kept in the bill, as reported by the conference at page 25 and at page 41 of the conference report, respectively.

Second, and more broadly, I join Senators who have commended the distinguished Senator from Alabama for his courteous, energetic, skillful, wise, and knowledgeable handling of what is magnificent landmark legislation.

On the last note that I may express the Senator from Alabama may wish to strike my remarks, because he may feel that I am not a competent judge, because of my being so lately initiated into this body. However, even though it may be presumptuous on my part, he has evidenced once again all of those great qualities which constitute an outstanding Member of the Senate. I praise him for the remarkable way in which he has handled this proposed legislation.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I appreciate the Senator's statement. The Senator from Alabama would be the last one in the world to try to expunge those remarks from the Record.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. I have several questions that I wish to discuss with the Senator from Alabama. I shall also, in due course, pay my tribute to him, and it will be a glowing one.

While the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] is on the floor, I should like to invite the attention of Senators who are interested in urban renewal to page 26 of the conference report. By way of explanation, the very able senior Senator from Washington is now the chairman of the Senate conferees who are dealing with the independent offices appropriation bill. With that background, I ask the Senator from Alabama, with respect to section 304(a), which sets forth the authorization for urban renewal capital grants for the next 4 years, whether this method of financing urban renewal has not been in effect since the first Urban Renewal Act of 1949, and was to a very large extent the brainchild of the late Senator Robert A. Taft. I refer to contract authorizations, as opposed to annual appropriations.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes. This refers to contract authority. It has been in the act since 1949.

Mr. CLARK. People who do not like it sometimes refer to it as backdoor financing.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes. I have always felt that that was not a very good description.

Mr. CLARK. I quite agree with the Senator. As the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] knows—and he is chairman of the Senate conferees on the Independent Offices appropriations bill—the House wrote a proviso into that bill which would forbid the expenditure of any money for administrative expenses or technical services in connection with a contract authorization for a capital grant. The effect of the proviso would be to make it impossible for the Urban Renewal Agency to implement its new contract authority.

The Senate struck out that proviso. The conferees are now meeting. The House, I am told by my friend, the Senator from Washington, feels very strongly about this question.

My question to the Senator is this: Would not such a proviso, if the House remained adamant, and the proviso stayed in the conference report, inevitably result in the whole system of urban renewal grants being set aside and a system of annual appropriations, under which normal and judicious planning is practically impossible, being put in its place?

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes; of course, that would be the result of the adoption of that proviso.

I said a moment ago that I did not believe backdoor financing was properly descriptive of this situation. For this type of program I believe this method of financing is the businesslike way of proceeding.

Mr. CLARK. I quite agree with the Senator.

Mr. SPARKMAN. As the Senator says, it permits planning. Furthermore, it makes it unnecessary to have an appropriation made ahead of time, and to wait until a program is ready before moving forward.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I must leave in a moment. I leave this thought with Senators: The fact that this type of financing has again been put in the bill—

Mr. CLARK. With the concurrence of the House.

Mr. MAGNUSON. With the concurrence of the House—reiterates what we have been doing, and establishes the fact that no urban renewal can be accomplished without some planning; and that, it seems to me, should be very persuasive in conference. Of course, the Senate conferees will do their best to continue the amounts. Secondly, there is another item which has also been agreed to, and that relates to the trainees for urban renewal.

Mr. CLARK. I was coming to that.

Mr. MAGNUSON. A small amount was put in for that purpose.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes.

Mr. MAGNUSON. There was no question in the conference between the two legislative committees on this method of urban renewal.

Mr. SPARKMAN. It was not even mentioned. There was no controversy on it at all.

Mr. CLARK. There was no suggestion on the part of the House conferees that this time-honored method should be set aside or changed.

Mr. SPARKMAN. In past years our own committee has changed this procedure in connection with some programs; and we have changed from Treasury borrowing to annual appropriations.

But in a program of this type we have felt that the businesslike way of doing it is as provided.

Mr. CLARK. I am sure that the Senator from Alabama will join me and the members of his subcommittee, and indeed the full committee, in giving complete support to the Senate conferees. What the House desires to do is to eliminate the traditional type of financing by what might be called a backdoor proviso, that is, by denying the money necessary for administration and technical services in connection with contracting for grants. In effect, they would be killing an important, multibillion-dollar program, if their will were to prevail.

The Senator may wish to complete his formal statement.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I have completed it.

Mr. CLARK. I ask the Senator to turn to page 11 of the conference report, at which point reference is made to section 108(a) entitled "Acquisition of Certain Properties Situated at or Near Military Bases Which Have Been Ordered To Be Closed." The genesis of that particular provision was in the House of Representatives, with Representative JOHN KUNKEL of the Harrisburg area.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I wish to stop the Senator at that point. The genesis was a bill which I introduced in the Senate, which was inserted by our subcommittee in the housing bill we are now discussing before it ever came up in the House.

Mr. CLARK. I am glad to have the Senator make that statement.

Mr. SPARKMAN. After we had written the provision into the bill, it was picked up in the House and added to the House bill.

Mr. CLARK. I am glad to have that statement from the Senator from Alabama. I do not wish to take undue credit on my part for that feature of the bill. But it was the closing of the Olmsted Air Force Base in Pennsylvania which resulted in this particular suggestion coming to fruition and getting into both the bills.

Mr. SPARKMAN. It was the closing of Brookley Field at Mobile, Ala., which suggested it to me, and I introduced a separate bill on that subject early in the session.

Mr. CLARK. I do not wish to take undue credit for that.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield at that point?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield to the Senator from Texas.

Mr. TOWER. The Senator from Texas joined the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SPARKMAN. He certainly did.

Mr. TOWER. We have had a problem at Waco, Tex., and Amarillo, Tex., that might have been some inspiration.

Mr. SPARKMAN. That is true.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. I am happy, indeed, to learn that Senators on both sides of the aisle are as deeply interested in section 108(a) as I am. But I point out to the Senator from Texas and the Senator from Alabama that that provision will be no good unless it is funded. In order to fund it, we must obtain an appropriation. The way the section is worded—and I ask my friends if they do not agree with me—the funding ought to come in the military construction appropriations bill, since the Secretary of Defense would be given the authority, and indeed the duty, to carry the proposal into effect.

My information is that the Department of Defense has not the slightest intention of funding that section. At the moment, they are opposed to it. I do not know that any member of the Military Construction Appropriations Committee of the Senate has any particular enthusiasm for the program. It is badly needed in Alabama and Texas. I assure Senators that it is vital to the economy of the Harrisburg, Pa., area. I hope that the Senator from Texas and the Senator from Alabama will do all they possibly can to see that the program is funded, because if it is not funded, it will not do anyone any good.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator is correct; and I plan to do anything that I can to that end.

Mr. CLARK. I suggest that the Senator's senior colleague [Mr. HILL] might be able to help him in that endeavor.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am sure that he can, because he is a member of the Committee on Appropriations, and I know he is vitally interested in the subject.

Mr. CLARK. If the Senator will bear with me, there is one more question I should like to call to his attention.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. TOWER. It seems to me that, in the final analysis, the proposal would really not cost very much. There should not be too much difficulty in obtaining the funding. Once acquired, the property will be ultimately disposed of.

The authorization is available. The Appropriations Committee will probably be amendable. I seriously doubt if the Armed Services Committee would do anything on the question one way or the other.

Mr. CLARK. I do not believe that the problem is one to be considered by the Armed Services Committee. I believe that it is a question for the military construction appropriations subcommittee.

Mr. TOWER. The subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee.

Mr. CLARK. And the Pentagon has no interest in the question at all. We have explored that today. They do not want it funded.

I am undertaking to do all possible to persuade the powers that be to press for its funding.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I am glad that the Senator has taken that stand. I promise to do all I can.

Mr. CLARK. Will the Senator turn to page 55 of the conference report, where reference is made to section 1103(a)? In effect, the conferees increased the authorization for a program of Federal-State training from $10 million to $30 million, all of which appears more clearly if the Senator will turn to page 76 of the conference report, where, under the heading "Federal-State Training Programs," the following statement appears:

FEDERAL-STATE TRAINING PROGRAMS

The House bill contained a provision eliminating the ceiling on the authorization for appropriations for the Federal-State training program and terminating that program on October 1, 1969. The Senate amendment simply increased the authorization from the existing $10 million limit to 30 million.

The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

I ask the Senator whether the House and the Senate were not in accord that the program was a good program, that it should go forward, and that it should be substantially increased.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Yes. The only difference between us was that the House was willing to have an open-end authorization. The Senate, of course, had the policy of no open-end authorization.

Mr. CLARK. The Senator will remember that he took the lead, and I gave him some support during the 8 years I served under him when he was chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing, in getting this Federal-State training program underway. It took us a long time to do it. Finally, we got it into the Housing Act of 1964. We obtained a 3-year authorization for fellowships in city planning.

When the independent offices appropriation bill came to the Senate, the House had deleted the funding for both of those programs. The Senator from Alabama was not present at that time, but I had spoken to him about it and I undertook to use his name as indicating his keen interest in both those programs. The other day, when the independent offices appropriation bill came to the floor of the Senate, the Senator was not present. The Senate Appropriations Committee reported a bill in which it categorically refused to fund either of those programs.

Thanks to the good offices of the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], and because of the kind heart of the Senator from Colorado [Mr. ALLOTT], who was the acting minority leader when the bill came to the Senate, I was able to persuade them to fund the Federal-State training program to the tune of $4 million. That was when the authorization was $10 million. Now the authorization has gone up to $30 million, but I am told by my friend, the Senator from Washington, that it would be very difficult indeed to hold as much as 1 cent in conference. Even the Senate Appropriations Committee refused to recommend as much as 1 cent for the fellowship program, which was only $500,000 annually for 3 years.

I raise this question because again I hope that I can have the support of the junior Senator from Alabama in urging the Senate conferees to stand firmly behind at least this modest $4 million authorization and to do what they can next year to have the fellowship program funded. It is my view—and I do not ask the Senator from Alabama necessarily to agree with it—that when the Congress of the United States passes an authorization program, when the President of the United States signs the bill, and when in another year the President recommends a continuation of the program, I believe it is a rather serious matter for the Appropriations Committee of either body to say, "We do not like what the House did. We do not like what the Senate did. We do not like what the President did. We are not going to fund the program."

Those may be unduly belligerent words. I do not mean them as such. In any event, I hope that we might have the active support of the Senator from Alabama in getting these programs funded as rapidly as we can.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I appreciate the remarks of the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CLARK. Does the Senator agree?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I certainly do. The Senator knows that throughout the years, primarily because of the need of the smaller cities and towns that could not afford planning offices of their own to meet the need, I felt that a program of the type proposed was needed.

Mr. CLARK. Will the Senator yield further?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. In my own Commonwealth of Pennsylvania we are having the greatest difficulty in obtaining adequately trained officers for planning boards in a score of cities, on the State level, and in a great many counties. Those people are in short supply. Unless the Federal Government will make a modest amount available to provide both fellowships and in-service training for those people, we shall not get the caliber of county, municipal, metropolitan area, and State planning which is badly needed.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The Senator is correct.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I compliment a country boy upon doing so much for the city. I have rarely seen a bill—

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I hasten to add that there is a good bit in the bill for the country boys, too.

Mr. JAVITS. That is very true. But really, the Senator from Alabama, with his great devotion to housing, has in this bill been able to provide leadership for a great many programs which the cities urgently need. Many problems remain unsolved, but the bill contains a number of items which are especially helpful and important to the cities. They should be noted, because they indicate the kind of concern over where the housing shoe pinches the most in human misery and deprivation.

I invite attention to some of these provisions such as the allowability of an increase in the per room cost limitations on public housing; to the opportunity to reallocate public housing units not under construction within 5 years from the date reserved without regard to the 15-percent State limit. When one realizes how hard it was to get that, one is appalled at how difficult it is to get things done that seem meritorious.

I invite attention also to the needed increase in compensation to small businesses displaced by urban renewal. I also feel that the remarkable efforts of the committee, under the leadership of the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], in respect to code enforcement are important aspects of the bill, as is the new breakthrough in rent supplements, which I supported. The efforts to bring the focus of rent supplements upon lower income families with the greatest needs was a most constructive one. The efforts to improve the 221(d)(3) below market interest rate program were also most valuable.

I am pleased to see that the Senate was able to retain the increase from $50 to $100 million in the authorization for rehabilitation loans, which I proposed for urban renewal areas. The bill makes contributions to the major and vital needs of low- and middle-income housing.

Finally, I cannot tell the Senator how happy I am and how happy it must be for many other Representatives and Senators who come from highly metropolitan areas with respect to the action taken on airport problems. This is the time to really obtain the research and organizational help of Federal housing officials in the noise abatement field and know that something tangible will be done in terms of examining into what can be done to improve housing near airports and to alleviate many of the existing problems concerning valuation.

Citizens living near airports do not seem to be asking for the millennium;

they know that airports cannot be eliminated; they know that airports have to be near fairly sizable space. But, at least, they want the resulting problems examined and efforts made.

On this ground and many others, I express appreciation for the fine leadership of the Senator from Alabama. I appreciate the sympathetic consideration which he gave to these proposals and many others.

I am proud of the leadership of the distinguished Senator from Texas [Mr. Tower]. He may have agreed or disagreed with particular aspects of the bill; but once the Senate spoke, he was a powerful advocate for doing what the Senate wanted done, and he acted in a most dedicated way.

We owe much, with respect to what has been done in the bill, to the fine collaboration which now exists between the chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing and the ranking minority member.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I thank the Senator from New York.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. I would be derelict both in my duty and in common good manners if I did not close my part of the colloquy with an expression of my deep appreciation and real admiration for the work the Senator from Alabama has done in the entire field of housing throughout the years in which he has been chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

It was my privilege to serve under him for 8 years in bringing forward various housing bills. His ingenuity, his complete understanding of the complex, difficult problems, his imagination in being willing to move into new areas are really beyond the bounds of praise.

He said a moment ago that he thought the late Senator Taft was really the man who started housing on its way. Of course, the first Housing Act was passed in the 1930's; but I am perfectly confident that when the history of housing is written, the junior Senator from Alabama will get the principal share of the credit for a program which I think has done more for urban America than anything else in my time as a Senator.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I thank the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. President, as a member of both the Subcommittee on Housing of the Committee on Banking and Currency and the Committee on the District of Columbia, I should like to be among the first to congratulate the distinguished Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] for his role in helping our Nation's Capital to become the beautiful city which it should be. I refer to his success in retaining in conference section 307 of the Senate housing bill, now section 317 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, which will allow the District of Columbia to exercise the same urban renewal powers in commercial areas which are possessed by every city in the United States.

For 15 years the District of Columbia has tried to obtain this authority, but it was not until today that his long-awaited reform came into view.

I first became aware of this problem when, as a freshman Senator, I was named chairman of the Business and Commerce Subcommittee of the Committee on the District of Columbia. In that capacity, I presided over the hearings and managed on the floor S. 628 of the 88th Congress which was essentially similar to the proposal that is before us today. That bill, which passed the Senate, did not become law, but I was so much impressed by the quality and persuasiveness of the testimony before my subcommittee that I offered an amendment to the Housing Act of 1964 to accomplish the same purpose. Although the Senate accepted that amendment, it did not become law either. This year section 317 of the bill came to the Congress as a presidential proposal, and this year we have succeeded—the District of Columbia urban renewal program will now be able to obtain those powers which every other major city in the United States shares and can make available to small business the benefits of this program which are presently denied under the laws of the District of Columbia.

I commend publicly the efforts of a number of people who have contributed to this triumph. An organization of businessmen and citizens concerned with Washington, Downtown Progress, has consistently been of great assistance over the years in making this day possible. My colleagues on the Senate District Committee have given their full and very essential support. The Senate Subcommittee on Housing, under Senator SPARKMAN, and with active assistance from Senator DOUGLAS, and last year from Senator CLARK, carried the ball on the floor and in conference. I also understand that certain Members of the House played significant roles in making this action of the conference committee possible. Above all, President Johnson's decision to incorporate this section in his bill should be recognized by the people of the District of Columbia as evidence of his constructive concern.

All in all, Mr. President, today represents a great victory for the people of the District of Columbia. Perhaps it is indicative of what may lie in store for the mass transit and home rule bills for the District in this session of Congress.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I thank the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, as a member of the Subcommittee on Housing, I wish to join in the general commendation of the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee [Mr. SPARKMAN]. The Senator from Alabama is not only "Mr. Small Business" in the Senate; he is also "Mr. Housing." He did a magnificent job. As a member of the committee, I can testify that it was the skill of a professional that was at work.

The bill was highly complicated. It contained scores of differences between the House and the Senate, many of which could have resulted in a deadlock or could have resulted in extended debate, debate lasting many days. I am sure the Senator from Alabama would join me in saying that the successful result is due also to the cooperation of the minority members of the conference, the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] and the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], who were most intelligent, discriminating, and cooperative at every turn; also to the Members of the House, including Representative PATMAN, who attended throughout the conference; Representative BARRETT, of Philadelphia, an able man; and, Representative WIDNALL, of New Jersey, a Republican Representative and a real expert in the housing area. All were most cooperative and helpful. Nevertheless, because it was a new bill, because it contained a completely new concept, at least so far as action on rent supplements was concerned, and because it was a comprehensive bill, since, over 4 years, it provides a large sum of money, it was a bill that could have foundered along the way.

I wish to join particularly in the sentiment expressed by the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency [Mr. ROBERTSON] by saying that the firm, solid position of the Senator from Alabama in insisting on limited authorizations, in insisting on 4 years, and in insisting that the bill be responsible fiscally, without being economical, was a great service not only to the housing industry, not only to the people who so urgently needed housing and who will be helped so greatly by the bill, but to the general taxpayer.

As a member of the subcommittee, I am delighted to join in congratulating the Senator from Alabama for his excellent work.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I thank the Senator from Wisconsin. I express appreciation to every member of the subcommittee for their fine cooperation. It was a delight to work with the subcommittee.

I have completed my discussion of the bill.

I say again that our being able to write the bill and have it passed was due in large part to the very fine cooperation we received from the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] and the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT] throughout the consideration of the measure in the subcommittee, in the full committee, and in the conference committee.

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator for his kind remarks. I thank my friend the Senator from New York, for making his very generous remarks and expressing the hope that one day we will not think in terms of there being a conflict of interest between the urban and rural citizens in the country, but that rather the mutuality of interest which exists between us all will demonstrate that our differences are not so large that they cannot be reconciled. I trust that, in the good American fashion, they will be reconciled in the future.

I thank my friend the Senator from Wisconsin, for his kind remarks.

Mr. President, the conference report of the omnibus housing bill, in my opinion, represents the best consensus possible under the circumstances.

Certainly I remain adamantly opposed to the concept of the Federal rent supplement program, despite the fact the Congress wisely rejected the administration's proposed subsidies for those of moderate income. The reporting safeguards incorporated into the bill, whereby the Administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency must advise the Congress of the operation of the rent supplement program, should help insure its limited scope. The Congress will have the opportunity to alter the course of the program should the desired ends not be achieved.

I do not wish my opposition to rent supplement to overshadow my support in general of various meritorious programs under the Housing and Home Finance Agency's jurisdiction. I did, of course, support the continuance of the Federal Housing Administration, the Federal National Mortgage Association, housing for the elderly and handicapped, college housing, the low-income housing demonstration program, and the rural housing program.

I am happy that the House conferees receded on their proposals for open-end authorizations.

As I have stated, this conference report represents what I believe to be a true consensus of the minority and majority. I wish to again thank my colleague, the very able chairman of the Housing Subcommittee, for his consideration to the minority during the several months we have been working on this bill.

John Sparkman is one of the most forthright men I know. We have had our day in court. We have been allowed to express our support and dissent to various provisions of the bill. We have, I believe, influenced—perhaps to a relatively small degree, but to some degree—the legislative course of this particular legislation. That was possible because the chairman has been very fair in recognizing that the minority view should and must be heard if we are to have a true reflection of opinion in a democratic society.

I believe that perhaps the greatest talent of the Senator from Alabama is his ability to synchronize ideas of two divergent points of view which seem to be diametrically opposed, reflect on them for awhile, and come up with a proposal that seems to satisfy everyone and causes everyone to think he was the author of the idea.

I believe that the Senator from Alabama has demonstrated that legislation does embody the art of compromise and draws together divergent viewpoints. The Senator has produced a measure that I believe does represent the consensus and takes various approaches into consideration.

It has been a great pleasure and an education for me to work with the distinguished Senator from Alabama.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed at this point in the RECORD a statement by the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], who served with me as a minority member of the conference committee.

He is necessarily absent from the Senate today.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR BENNETT

I signed the conference report on the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, because I feel that it is a good resolution of the differences in the two bills. I believe that I can say on balance that the conference report is better from my point of view than was either of the House or Senate passed bills. Thus, the conference committee within the limits set by the House and Senate performed a valuable service for the Congress and for the Nation.

Although the final proposals included in this act are a great improvement over the original bill introduced, and many desirable provisions are included in the act, there are also many important new programs which are included that I cannot support, because I feel that they are not in line with the principles of individual initiative and private homeownership that have been so important to the development of housing in this country.

My signature on the conference report therefore does not reflect a reversal of my vote against the original Senate bill.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I am opposed to this legislation and shall vote "No" on the conference report.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. President, I voted against S. 2213 when it was before the Senate.

I shall also vote against the conference report, which has agreed to include the new program of rent supplements, which I opposed. I do so with regret, because the bill extends other valuable programs which I have supported during my service in the Senate.

In past years, as the Senate and Congress have written legislation for housing programs, I have supported authorizations and appropriations for low-rent public housing, loans for construction of college housing, urban renewal, and urban improvement programs, mortgage insurance and property improvement programs under the Federal Housing Administration, special programs available for the elderly and handicapped, and other programs for rural housing.

I am glad that extensions of these programs are included in the bill, and I know that they will continue to be useful in Kentucky and in other States. I also wish to note that provision is made to continue the community facilities program which has been much used by cities and towns of my own State, and that special attention will be given to the growing needs for facilities in urban areas.

I voted against the bill because of the new program authorized by section 101, which provides for payment of rent supplements by the Federal Government. Although the bill as amended by the Senate does place some limits upon the rent supplement program recommended by the President, the approval of this section by the conference report would, by 1968, raise the annual authorization to $150 million. Additionally, it is argued that rent supplements would simply provide an auxiliary program for public housing, but the estimated initial cost of the rent supplement program alone would come to some $6 billion and I believe it will cost billions more.

In the committees on which I serve, and in the Senate, I have worked and voted for programs to provide needed facilities for cities and communities of all sizes. I have cosponsored, supported, and voted for many programs designed to give aid to the unemployed, to the elderly, and the disabled, and to provide equality of opportunity; but the rent supplement program goes beyond the objectives of such legislation.

Inasmuch as under existing law programs are now available to provide loans for housing at a low interest rate not to exceed 3½ percent for the elderly and the handicapped, with an authorization of $500 million—there is an added reason for not approving the rent supplement program.

I believe that whatever the conception is of the new rent supplement program, it will be impossible to hold it to any reasonable limit. I also believe that it could well bring great difficulties in its administration, with possibilities of unfairness, discouragement of incentive for home owning, as well as great political pressures.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I call attention to the fact that the conference report was signed by all conferees of both Houses.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the conference report.

The report was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Hackney, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had passed, without amendment, the bill (S. 1321) to amend section 501(e) of title 16 of the District of Columbia Code relating to bond requirements in connection with attachment before judgment.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

The message also announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills:

H.R. 70. An act to provide for the conveyance of approximately 80 acres of land to the heirs of Adam Jones, Creek Indian not enrolled;

H.R. 237. An act to make certain provisions in connection with the construction of the Garrison diversion unit, Missouri River Basin project by the Secretary of the Interior;

H.R. 903. An act to add certain lands to the Kings Canyon National Park in the State of California, and for other purposes;

H.R. 1987. An act for the relief of Nabhane M. Nickley (Nabhane M. Karam);

H.R. 1989. An act for the relief of Krys-tyna Stella Hancock;

H.R. 2012. An act for the relief of Dr. Ignace D. Liu;

H.R. 2351. An act for the relief of Teresita Centeno Valdez;

H.R. 2360. An act for the relief of Dr. Antonio R. Perez;

H.R. 2499. An act for the relief of Remedios Ocampo;

H.R. 2913. An act for the relief of Lt. Thomas A. Farrell, U.S. Navy, and others;

H.R. 4131. An act for the relief of Mrs. Phoebe Thompson Neesham;

H.R. 5508. An act to facilitate the work of the Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes;

H.R. 5860. An act to amend the law relating to the final disposition of the property of the Choctaw Tribe;

H.R. 8620. An act to amend the Agricultural Act of 1949 and the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, to take into consideration floods and other natural disasters in reference to the feed grains, cotton, and wheat programs for 1965;

H.R. 8862. An act to amend the Act of August 7, 1935, to increase the authorized annual share of the United States as an adhering member of the International Council of Scientific Unions and Associated Unions; and

H.R. 9041. An act to restore to the heirs of the Indian grantor certain tribal land of the Iowa Tribe of Oklahoma.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I yield to the distinguished senior Senator from New York.

POSTAL SERVICE IN PHILADELPHIA, MISS.—A CASE HISTORY OF CIVIL RIGHTS AND THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I have recently intervened in a case which dramatically demonstrates how important is, and must be, the continuing role of the Federal Government in assuring equal rights for all our citizens regardless of race, creed, or color. The case involved the provision of mail service to the section of a town heavily populated by Negroes—an issue which would hardly seem to be a civil rights problem at first glance. But in Philadelphia, Miss.—the site of the murder of three young civil rights workers last summer—it was very definitely a civil rights problem and one to remedy which required firm Federal action.

To obtain that Federal action required a series of letters from civil rights groups and from me, first to the Post Office Department and, finally, to the President. In any event, the necessary action is now being taken, and the regular U.S. mail delivery will be extended on July 31 to the Negroes of Philadelphia, Miss., just as it has been all along to all the other citizens of that town.

I ask unanimous consent that the correspondence on this subject be printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the correspondence was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NOVEMBER 25, 1964.

HON. JACOB K. JAVITS,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR: Our letter of November 17 promised you a further reply concerning extension of city mail delivery at Philadelphia, Miss.

In determining areas where city delivery service may be operated effectively, it has been necessary to fix some minimum standards with relation to civic improvements. These include paved or improved streets to permit travel of vehicles at all times without damage or delay, street signs at intersections, and proper house numbers.

To qualify for delivery to the door, 50 percent of the building sites in the areas proposed for service must be occupied by dwellings or business places and passable walkways provided from the street or sidewalk to the delivery point. Sidewalks are also required where traffic hazards or weather conditions preclude use of the streets by carriers. Patrons are required to furnish suitable receptacles for delivery of their mail in all instances.

At present, those minimum requirements are not met in several sections of Philadelphia. However, considerable progress has been made in recent months. Some of the streets which were in poor condition have been graded and graveled and bridges have been repaired. There are indications that house numbers and street signs will be provided within a reasonable time.

We appreciate your interest, and assure you delivery will be extended to those areas as soon as the minimum requirements are met. Your correspondence is returned.

Sincerely yours,

A. C. HAHN,
Deputy Assistant Postmaster General.

DECEMBER 2, 1964.

Hon. A. C. HAHN,
Deputy Assistant Postmaster General,
Bureau of Operations, Post Office Department, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. HAHN: Thank you for your letter of November 25 concerning extension of city mail delivery at Philadelphia, Miss.

I appreciate the merit, in the ordinary case, of the Department's minimum requirements in regard to civic improvements for mail delivery. However, I am sure the Department must also recognize that such requirements should not be inflexibly applied to a case such as this, in which the Negro community very likely can be shown to have been discriminatorily denied those civic improvements by the city and State authorities.

Your letter states that the minimum requirements will be met within a "reasonable time." I would very much appreciate your estimate of what length of time this may involve, as well as the Department's position on waiving or amending the minimum standards in this case.

With best wishes,
Sincerely,

JACOB K. JAVITS,
U.S. Senator.

DECEMBER 9, 1964.

Hon. JACOB K. JAVITS,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR: This refers to your letter of December 2 expressing further your interest in the extension of city mail delivery at Philadelphia, Miss.

The present requirements for mail delivery by city carrier are considered to be minimal. Passable streets, the display of house numbers, and provision of street signs constitute a basis for a dependable service. Waiving these fundamental requisites could result in confusion and delay in delivery of mail.

Our letter of November 25 advised there were indications that house numbers and street signs would be provided within a reasonable time. We have no definite information as to when these improvements may be completed. The Department has no jurisdiction over maintenance of streets, assignment of house numbers, or erection of street signs. These have always been the responsibility of local governmental authority.

Your continued interest is appreciated, and we will advise you promptly of any further developments in this matter.

Sincerely yours,

A. C. HAHN,
Deputy Assistant Postmaster General.

JANUARY 5, 1965.

Hon. LYNDON B. JOHNSON,
President of the United States,
The White House,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: It has been brought to my attention that there is no home delivery of mail to the Negro section of Philadelphia, Miss., because the civic improvements in that section do not meet the minimum requirements as to paved streets, street signs, and proper house numbers, which are imposed by Post Office Department regulations.

I have looked into the matter with the Department, emphasizing that, while their minimum requirements are reasonable in the ordinary case, they should not be inflexibly applied to a case such as this, in which the Negro community very likely can be shown to have been discriminatorily denied those civic improvements by the city and State authorities. I have requested that the Department waive or amend the minimum standards in this case.

The Department's response is that there are indications that the minimum standards will be met "within a reasonable time," but that they have "no definite information as to when these improvements may be completed." Yet the Department refuses to waive the requirements.

I believe the Department's position in this instance, while perhaps it can be justified under existing regulations, is inconsistent with the policy of your administration and the policy which the Congress has enunciated in regard to the nondiscriminatory use of Federal funds, and I respectfully request your review of the matter.

With warm regard.

Sincerely yours,

JACOB K. JAVITS,
U.S. Senator.

JUNE 18, 1965.

Hon. JACOB K. JAVITS,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR: This has reference to our letter of December 9 concerning your interest in extension of mail delivery at Philadelphia, Miss.

Further attention has disclosed the city government has requisitioned street signs and expects to complete installation by July 15. We also have been informed the city plans to supply house numbers without cost to the residents.

Since the streets have been placed in suitable condition, delivery service will be extended to these areas as soon as the improvements mentioned above are completed.

Sincerely yours,

A. C. HAHN,
Deputy Assistant Postmaster General.

JULY 21, 1965.

Hon. JACOB K. JAVITS,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR: This has reference to our letter of June 18 concerning your interest in extension of mail delivery at Philadelphia, Miss.

We have been informed by our regional office in Memphis, Tenn., which has jurisdiction over post offices in the State of Mississippi, that the city officials at Philadelphia plan to have street signs installed and provide house numbers by Saturday, July 31, at which time the region will institute appropriate delivery service.

Your interest in this matter is greatly appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

A. C. HAHN,
Deputy Assistant Postmaster General.

COMMENDATION OF ACTIONS OF YOUNG AMERICANS FOR FREEDOM

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, earlier today the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT] delivered a most disturbing speech on this floor. I say "disturbing" because of the central theme of his remarks and because of the language he used while describing an outstanding and patriotic organization which is dedicated to the best interests of this Nation and the free world. The Senator from Arkansas described Young Americans for Freedom, this country's largest and most responsible conservative youth group, as "extremist," and a "vigilante group."

Mr. President, if anyone who is connected with Young Americans for Freedom is an extremist, then there are 39 Members of this Congress who should be so classified because we serve as members of the National Advisory Board of Young American for Freedom.

I ask unanimous consent, Mr. President, to have this list inserted in the RECORD at the conclusion of these remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I also ask unanimous consent to have the statement of principles of this fine organization, called the Sharon statement, inserted in the RECORD at the conclusion of these remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 2.)

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I ask every Member of this body to read this statement, and then ask himself if this is extremism. I can answer here and now, Mr. President, that the Sharon statement and indeed all the public utterances of Young Americans for Freedom are based upon the enduring documents of this Nation: the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence.

Furthermore, Young Americans for Freedom is no secret vigilante group skulking about in the night. They have been in business since September of 1960 and have been the object of editorial comment and commendation in countless publications across America, including Life magazine, which has described Young Americans for Freedom as responsible. None of these publications has seen fit to describe or characterize Young Americans for Freedom as extremist. They could not because Young Americans for Freedom is not.

In addition, Young Americans for Freedom has received the George Washington Honor Medal from the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge, "For outstanding achievement in helping to bring about a better understanding of the American way of life." Young Americans for Freedom has also received a national award from the All-American Conference to Combat Communism, which is composed of such groups as the American Legion, the Catholic War Veterans, the Jewish War Veterans, the Elks, and Lions International.

Typical of the many words of encouragement Young Americans for Freedom has received were those of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1963, on the occasion of a Young Americans for Freedom testimonial dinner for Congressman WILLIAM CRAMER of Florida. Said President Eisenhower:

I join wholeheartedly in the salute that Young Americans for Freedom are rendering.

Or consider the words of former Vice President of the United States, Richard

HOUSE

1. HOUSING LOANS. Agreed to the conference report on H. R. 7984, the housing and urban development bill (pp. 17743-51). Title X of this bill would provide a new $300,000,000-per year program of insured housing loans under the Farmers Home Administration in rural areas. This bill will now be sent to the President.

2. HEALTH. Agreed to the conference report on H. R. 6675, to provide a hospital insurance program for the aged under the Social Security Act with a supplementary health benefits program and an expanded program of medical assistance, to increase benefits under the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance System, etc. pp. 17729-43

Agreed to the conference report on S. 510, to extend and amend certain expiring provisions of the Public Health Service Act relating to community health services, which includes provisions extending until June 30, 1968, the program of health services to domestic agricultural migratory workers, and and providing specific authorization for necessary short-term hospital care for such workers and their families (pp. 17752-3). This bill will now be sent to the President.

3. FARM PROGRAM. The committee report on H. R. 9811, the farm bill (see Digest 131), includes a summary of major provisions of the bill as follows:

"Dairy (title I).--The class I dairymen's base plan authorized in the first title seeks to reduce surplus milk production and stabilize the income of dairy farmers in Federal milk order areas by removing the necessity for dairymen to maintain maximum production in order to preserve individual participation in the markets for milk for fluid consumption. The dairy title... would assign to each producer in/a milk order area a fluid milk base, which would enable him to receive the higher price for milk consumed in fluid form on a specified quantity of his production, in lieu of a blended price on total production used for fluid consumption and for manufacturing into butter, cheese, powdered milk, and other milk products. This title was not a part of the original omnibus bill proposed by the administration.

"Wool (title II).--The administration's proposal for changes in the wool program, to permit a system of graduated payments to producers based upon various levels of production, was not approved by the committee, which decided to continue the National Wool Act of 1954 through December 31, 1969. A floor of 77 percent of parity is set on wool price supports.

"Feed grains (title III) --This title continues for 4 years the provisions of the present feed grains program for price-support loans, purchases, and in-kind payments to program participants. In keeping with the price-support range at 65 to 90 percent of parity for corn (with comparable levels for grain sorghum, barley, oats, and rye), it provides the basis for support prices around levels of recent years. Participants by diverting acreage from feed grain production to conservation uses would receive, as in the past, payments in kind to help maintain income. Payments would be based on a percentage of price-support rates, on per-acre yields, and on acreage diverted, as previously. The Secretary of Agriculture could permit the diverted acreage to be devoted to guar, sesame, safflower, sunflower, castor beans, mustard seeds and flax, but not to soybeans. However, under certain conditions soybeans could be grown on permitted acres without loss of price support payments. Price support payments in kind could be varied and made only on part of the acreage planted for harvest.

"Cotton (title IV).--The one-price cotton program, wherein American mills buy U. S. cotton at the same price it is offered to foreign mills, is extended for 4 years, through 1969, with modifications. The new bill (1) continues the 16-million-acre national minimum allotment, but establishes a domestic allotment within the farm allotment which will be not less than 65 percent of each farm allotment, (2) requires at least a 15-percent reduction from farm acreage allotment for participation in the program, (3) permits any producer to stay out of the program and plant and sell without penalty at the market price

Negotiations will be slow and difficult. But the growing strength of our dollar means at last that there is reason to hope for a successful outcome.

THE MESS IN VIETNAM—XVIII

Mr. GRUENING. Mr. President, Walter Lippmann, the internationally known columnist, in his syndicated column printed in this morning's Washington Post entitled "Asian War," is saying precisely what I have been saying for nearly a year and a half, starting with my full-length address to the Senate on March 10, 1964.

I can only wish that President Johnson would follow the course that is clearly implicit in this appraisal of our unfortunate, unnecessary, and unjustified military commitment in southeast Asia, with its steadily mounting toll of American lives and its foreseeable disastrous consequences.

I ask unanimous consent that Walter Lippmann's column appearing in today's Washington Post entitled "Asian War" be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, July 27, 1965]

TODAY AND TOMORROW: ASIAN WAR

(By Walter Lippmann)

We are about to pit Americans against Asians on the continent of Asia. Except for the diminishing and disintegrating South Vietnamese Army, we have only token or verbal support from any Asian country. No great Asian power, Japan, India, or Pakistan, is allied with us. None of our European allies is contributing anything beyond scattered verbal support. We have no mandate from the United Nations as we had in Korea, none from NATO, none from the nations of this hemisphere.

The situation in which we find ourselves is unprecedented, and the best the administration has been able to achieve by way of approval and support from our own people is a reluctant and depressed acquiescence. For there has been no proof, not even a real attempt to prove, that the security of the United States is vitally threatened in this war as it was, for example, when Hitler was in sight of the conquest of Britain and the capture of the British fleet, or when Japan with a great navy threatened to command the whole Pacific Ocean including Hawaii and the coast of California.

Nations fight well when they are defending themselves, when, that is to say, they have a vital interest. It is the lack of an American vital interest which explains the current mood of depression and anxiety, which explains why our intervention in southeast Asia has for 10 years been so gingerly, so furtive, so inadequate.

There are in truth two main reasons why we are becoming ever more deeply involved in Vietnam. The first, must be the more powerful of the two, is a proud refusal to admit a mistake, to admit the failure of an attempt, begun 10 years ago, to make South Vietnam a pro-American and anti-Chinese state. More than anything else we are fighting to avoid admitting a failure—to put it bluntly, we are fighting to save face.

There is a second reason which weighs heavily with many conscientious people. It is a respectable reason. As stated by the New York Herald Tribune on Sunday:

"We're in Vietnam at the express invitation of the Vietnamese Government; we're fighting there for the Vietnamese people. But we're fighting also for the millions of people in the other threatened lands beyond, people who haven't the power to defend themselves from the Chinese colossus, and whose lives, safety, and freedom depend on the strong arm of the policeman—which only we can provide."

My own view is that the conception of ourselves as the solitary policeman of mankind is a dangerous form of self-delusion. The United States is quite unable to police the world, and it is dangerous to profess and pretend that we can be the policeman of the world. How many more Dominican Republics can the United States police in this hemisphere? How many Vietnams can the United States defend in Asia?

The believers in America as the world policeman get around these practical difficulties by making an assumption—that what happens in Vietnam will determine what happens elsewhere in Asia, that what happens in the Dominican Republic will determine what happens all over Latin America. This notion of the decisive test is a fallacy. The Korean war, in which we successfully defended South Korea, did not determine the outcome in Indochina. What we have done in the Dominican Republic will not protect any other Latin American country from the threat of revolution.

Revolutionary wars are indeed dangerous to order and it is baffling to know how to deal with them. But we may be sure that the phenomenon of revolutionary wars, which is latent in all of the underdeveloped regions of the world, cannot be dealt with by American military intervention whenever disorder threatens to overwhelm the constituted authority. On the contrary, it is more likely that in making Vietnam the test of our ability to protect Asia, we shall in fact provide revolutionary China with just the enemy it needs in order to focus popular hatred against us—a white, rich, capitalistic great power. We are allowing ourselves to be cast in the role of the enemy of the miserable and unhappy masses of the emerging nations.

DEATH OF ADLAI STEVENSON

Mr. WILLIAMS of New Jersey. Mr. President, at a time when our country was caught in a tide of complacency, Adlai Stevenson summoned the Democratic Party in 1962:

Let's talk sense to the American people * * * there are no gains without pains. * * * This is the eve of great decisions, not easy decisions * * * but a long, patient, costly struggle which alone can assure triumph over the great enemies of mankind.

Despite the odds, Adlai Ewing Stevenson never stopped talking sense. To a nation parading its nuclear might, he warned the dangers of atmospheric testing. To a people already wearied by the complexities of the cold war, he cautioned against the easy panacea.

Yet, two election defeats never daunted his courage, never dampened his devotion to his country. As our Ambassador to the United Nations which he helped construct 20 years earlier, he took upon his shoulders the criticisms directed at all Americans, and by so doing, blunted, and softened the accusations of our critics.

Adlai Stevenson represented the finest in our American heritage. In the forum of world politics, he was at once our spokesman and our ideal. We, and history, will mourn his loss.

AMBASSADOR ARTHUR GOLDBERG

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Mr. President, yesterday Arthur Goldberg was sworn in as our Ambassador to the United Nations. Very few times in the history of this great land of ours has a man left the security, quiet, and prestige of the Supreme Court for a position as demanding and soul-trying. I join my many fellow Americans in praising the former Mr. Justice and now Ambassador, Arthur Goldberg for taking this courageous step.

All Americans can again feel at ease that our country is being represented before the nations of the world by a man who typifies the best attributes of our people. We all felt this was true while Adlai Stevenson was our representative at the U.N., and I know that I, as I am sure was true with the rest of my fellow Americans, felt greatly reassured when it was announced that then Mr. Justice Goldberg had agreed to assume this awesome burden.

Ambassador Goldberg has a brilliance of mind which made him a great private lawyer, a widely respected Secretary of Labor, and a greatly admired member of the Court. Long before he reached such high position, this brilliance was recognized. My old friend and teacher, the eminent professor of law, Leon Green, of the University of Texas, has often stated with pride that while he was dean of the Northwestern University Law School, his star pupil was Arthur Goldberg. My own acquaintance with the Ambassador runs back more than 10 years.

Ambassador Goldberg throughout his illustrious career has always been one of those who advance the frontiers of thought. As a jurist this has been typified by his concern for the innocent victims of crime. This is a field in which I have long been interested, and was greatly encouraged by Ambassador Goldberg's continued advocacy of a plan to provide compensation for the victims of crime. A man of his caliber, one who becomes increasingly concerned with the victims of crime while it is fashionable jurisprudence to concentrate solely on constitutional rights of the accused, is a man who is excellently qualified to represent our Government and our people before the nations of the world.

H.R. 7984, HOUSING ACT OF 1965

Mr. WILLIAMS of New Jersey. Mr. President, the Congress in passing H.R. 7984, the Housing Act of 1965, has taken another step in solving this Nation's farm labor problems. Section 905 of this bill increases from $10 to $50 million the total appropriation authorized through 1969 for Federal assistance grants for the construction of low-rent housing for American farm labor.

As chairman of the Migratory Labor Subcommittee, I have carefully studied the problems of our Nation's agricultural workers and have found that one of the main reasons Americans are reluctant to work in our Nation's fields is the lack of adequate family housing.

The expiration of Public Law 78 has brought about a massive interstate recruitment program of American farmworkers. Adequate housing facilities for these American farmworkers who travel with their families is at the present time nonexistent. I realize that in the past family type farm housing was not in great demand especially in those areas of our Nation which were heavy users of foreign farmworkers. Foreign farmworkers were either single males or traveled without their families. They were often housed in barrack type structures dormitory style. These structures were equipped with three decker bunks as sleeping accommodations and lacked family type sanitation and cooking facilities. For example, California, the Nation's largest user of foreign farm labor, in 1964 had 158,222 farm housing units for single males as opposed to 9,875 family housing units. Obviously, this type of accommodation is not suitable for a worker who is accompanied by his family.

The farmer who employs American farm labor has a unique labor problem in that he generally must provide housing for his employees. This housing is an extra item of labor costs; it has no economic value to the farmer beyond enabling him to attract employees and is only occupied for short periods of the year.

I realize that many farmers do not have adequate financial means to build family housing. The $50 million authorized by H.R. 7984 for Federal grants in this area is an insignificant amount indeed when compared with the need for such housing.

A recent study by the State of California showed that there were 250,000 farmworkers in that State who earned less than $2,700 a year. A great majority of these workers lived in dilapidated and deteriorated housing. In the heart of the California farm community an eight-county survey reported that 80 percent of the farmworker housing violated minimum standards of health, safety and sanitation. Sixty-five percent of such housing was deteriorated or dilapidated; 33 percent had inadequate sanitation facilities; 30 percent had no bathing facilities and 25 percent were without running water.

The lack of family housing is most acute in communities which have high seasonal, short-term labor demands. In California's Monterey, Santa Cruz, and Santa Clara Counties in the heart of that State's strawberry-producing area, there are only 183 family housing units.

The State of California estimates that in order to provide adequate housing for these farmworkers the cost would be $4,000 per housing unit. These costs cannot be paid for by the farmworker since his low family income limits his opportunity of obtaining normal financing. The States with their already strained budgets cannot be expected to pay the entire amount.

Federal assistance such as is provided in H.R. 7984 is needed in order to better the lot of our Nation's agricultural workers. I realize, however, that low-rent housing cannot compensate for the effect of public policy which up until now has excluded American agricultural workers from such basic social legislation as minimum wage, collective bargaining and unemployment insurance. Federal grants for the construction of farm housing must only be a part of a broader overall social economic program to better the lot of our agricultural workers.

OUR PACIFIC TRUST TERRITORY— TIME FOR REAPPRAISAL

Mr. FONG. Mr. President, a timely and perceptive editorial on the political alternatives facing Pacific island peoples has been published in the Honolulu Star-Bulletin. I offer the editorial as another useful item to add to the information available for discussion among the growing number of those concerned with the present and future status of non-self-governing peoples of the Western Pacific.

As the Nation charged with administering the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands under a trusteeship agreement with the United Nations Security Council, the United States has an obligation to promote greater self-government among the 87,000 Micronesians who live in the former Japanese mandated islands. We are doing this with some success despite many difficulties.

Nearly 20 years have passed since we began administering the Pacific Trust Territory. It is time to take stock of our national policies and to seek a consensus on the eventual destiny for the peoples of the trust territory.

As the Star-Bulletin editorial cogently noted:

Of one thing we may be sure. Colonialism under the cloak of United Nations Trusteeship is not the final answer.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the Honolulu Star-Bulletin editorial of July 22, 1965, titled "Too Poor for Independence."

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Honolulu Star-Bulletin,
July 22, 1965]

TOO POOR FOR INDEPENDENCE

Pacific island leaders, meeting in New Guinea, almost without exception indicated that they do not want to be cut adrift from their more powerful protectors: the United States, France, Britain, New Zealand, Australia.

The one exception is Nauru, rich with phosphate, which is one of the few Pacific islands with resources enough to be economically independent. But even Nauru realizes that it would still have to depend upon Australia, which administers it under United Nations trust, for defense and some services.

None of the scattered island groups under U.S. trusteeship is economically viable in today's world at anything beyond the barest subsistence level. It is unlikely that the people of those islands, having known a higher standard of living than bare subsistence, will want to revert to the primitive economies they never knew.

A colonial status under the United States, or any other power, is an anachronism not sanctioned by today's enlightened political thought—or by the U.N. Charter. And yet these small island groups are too poor to be independent. Their leaders for the most part are well aware of this. While appreciative of the internal self-government that is coming their way, they fear the consequences of being cast adrift on their own.

It is against this background that the proposal to incorporate the Pacific islands in the State of Hawaii emerges as one practical, if complex, way out. Senator Fong has placed the idea before Congress and a study of the possibilities, if nothing else, may be forthcoming.

Of one thing we may be sure, colonialism under the cloak of United Nations trusteeship is not the final answer.

PUERTO RICO CELEBRATES 13TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FOUNDING OF ITS COMMONWEALTH

Mr. GRUENING. Mr. President, on Sunday, July 25, Puerto Ricans celebrated the 13th anniversary of the establishment of the island's Commonwealth. It was a day of rejoicing, made notable by addresses of the Governor, the Honorable Roberto Sanchez Vilella, of Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall, and others.

Because the establishment of the Commonwealth—an inaccurate translation really of the political status of Puerto Rico, a literal translation of its Spanish nomenclature being "associated free state"—has been so successful and has set such a fine example of what can be accomplished in eliminating colonialism in consonance with the wishes and needs of the people affected, I think it desirable that the two principal addresses—those of Governor Vilella and Secretary of the Interior Udall—be inserted in the RECORD, and I ask unanimous consent that they be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the addresses were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SPEECH DELIVERED BY GOV. ROBERTO SANCHEZ VILELLA ON THE 13TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PUERTO RICO, JULY 25, 1965

Honorable representative of the President of the United States, distinguished guests of honor, honorable visitors, members of the three branches of government, friends, and fellow citizens, today we commemorate once again the greatest act of political creativity which our people have accomplished. Exactly 3 years ago, on a similar occasion, two historic letters were made public. Former Gov. Muñoz Marín wrote to the late President John F. Kennedy that our people should again be consulted on their political relations with the United States of America. The late President was in total agreement with this aspiration. On that same occasion, we were honored to have among us the man who is now President of the Nation. Lyndon B. Johnson said then that the exchange of letters constitutes: "a historic reaffirmation of our belief in the self-determination of peoples, when exercised with the acceptance of the responsibilities of freedom."

As a result of that exchange and that belief, a commission was created—composed of American citizens from Puerto Rico and from the continent, and with representation from all sectors of opinion—to study all the aspects of our relations with the United States of America. The commission is making this study because we are proud of our present relationship with the United States, and because we want to improve it. It is also making this study because we want finally to liberate the energies of our people from the narrow dilemma of political status. We will succeed.

I am confident that the work of the commission and the subsequent acts of our people and of Congress will result in the reaffirmation of our will, expressed time and again in the ballots: the will to associate with the United States on the basis of a compact of political equality. But regardless of the deliberations and studies made by the

So the conference report was agreed to.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

On this vote:

Mr. Keogh for, with Mr. Colmer against.
Mr. Blatnik for, with Mr. Watson against.

Until further notice:

Mr. Toll with Mr. McVicker.
Mr. Willis with Mr. Bonner.

Mr. HALEY changed his vote from "yea" to "nay."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION AND LABOR

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Education and Labor may be permitted to sit during general debate this afternoon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ALBERT). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I call of the conference report on the bill (H.R.

7984) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of July 23, 1965.)

Mr. PATMAN (interrupting the reading of the statement). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that since this statement is published in the RECORD and available to every Member, further reading of it be dispensed with.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ALBERT). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

GENERAL LEAVE TO EXTEND

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may extend their remarks and insert any germane extraneous matter on this conference report we are considering today.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pride to call up the conference report on the housing bill, H.R. 7984. This conference report is the culmination of long months of hard work and close study on both sides of the Capitol. Our Housing Subcommittee held 2 weeks of public hearings shortly after the bill was submitted by the President and heard testimony representing every point of view. After the subcommittee reported to the full committee, we called 2 days of closed sessions at which administration witnesses and public interest representatives gave us the benefit of their comments, and every member of the full Committee on Banking and Currency had an opportunity to participate in the discussions, become fully informed on the bill, and contribute to the shaping of its final form. When the committee bill came to the floor, it was approved by a vote of 245 to 169, a substantial margin for a bill as broad as this. Subsequently, the Senate approved their amendment to the housing bill by a vote of 54 to 30 and we took the two versions to conference.

As always, there were strong feelings expressed on particular points by the conferees from both sides, and there were difficult issues to solve. The conference committee met in 3 days of long, hard sessions to work out these differences the last session lasted 7 hours. However, I believe that it is fair to say that we had relatively few fundamental issues to resolve; and, as a result, this conference report is very similar to the bill which passed the House on June 30 by a margin of 76 votes. I further believe that the work of the conferees has perfected the legislation so that the margin of approval should be even larger on the conference report. Yesterday, the Senate approved the conference report by a voice vote. Therefore, the only question before the House today is to vote the conference report up or down, and I am confident that it will be accepted.

It is essential that we approve this conference report because a number of our basic programs in the field of housing, home ownership, and community development have exhausted the authorizations provided in existing law or are rapidly approaching expiration dates. In particular, there is an urgent need to approve this conference report to extend the FHA program of mortgage insurance which is vital to a healthy homebuilding industry and which has done so much to encourage home ownership. If we fail to approve this legislation, the FHA program will expire on September 30. I do not need to describe the disruption of the homebuilding industry and the problems of mortgage lenders if this were to happen.

Mr. Speaker, the House bill and the Senate amendment had some 80 points of difference which were in conference. I would like to explain to the House the action of the conference on the major differences.

The President's rent supplement program which was the main point of controversy in both Houses was basically not in conference because both the House bill and the Senate amendment were identical on most points. The House conferees insisted that the Senate accept our amendment emphasizing the potential for eventual homeownership under this program for those whose incomes rise enough to permit them to afford the housing without Government aid. For our part we accepted, after careful consideration, this provision which is strongly supported by the National Association of Home Builders and groups interested in housing for the elderly. This provision would authorize the experimental use of one-tenth of the rent supplement funds in connection with new and existing housing for the elderly and new housing financed with below-market interest rate loans under FHA section 221(d)(3). The Committee on Banking and Currency will be watching the whole rent supplement program carefully with particular attention to this experimental aspect to evaluate its progress in meeting the pressing housing problems of our low-income families.

Mr. Speaker, there were two other important sections in title I which were in conference. On the first one, authorization for FNMA to pool below-market interest rate mortgages in order to obtain private financing for a substantial part of this program, the Senate receded and accepted our provision. The second item, low-rent housing in private accommodations, is also contained in the conference report. This provision will make it possible for local public housing authorities to take advantage of existing vacancies in the private housing supply by enabling them to lease such units on a short-term basis when they are offered for this purpose by the owner. The Senate accepted this provision with an amendment requiring local government approval of the housing authorities' action.

The House and Senate versions of the new program of FHA land insurance for subdivisions were very close together but there was one disagreement in which many Members of the House had expressed an interest. That was the section dealing with the role of private water and sewer companies. I believe some of the concern expressed by private water companies over the House provision magnified the question out of proportion in view of the action by both the bodies of the Congress eliminating the Administration's request for land insurance for whole new communities; but, in any case, the House conferees accepted the Senate language on this point which was preferred by private water companies.

I am very pleased to report to the House that the conference substitute provides no-downpayment loans for our veterans, reduces downpayments for those still in the service, and reduces the downpayments under FHA's section 203 homeownership program generally. Under the provisions adopted in conference veterans can obtain FHA financing with no downpayment on loans up to $15,000, while for the more expensive homes they would be required to pay only 10 percent of value between $15,000 and $20,000 and 15 percent of any amount above $20,000. The requirements for servicemen would be the same, except that they would be required to pay 3 percent down on the first $15,000. For FHA borrowers generally the requirement of 3 percent down on the first $15,000 and 10 percent down on the next $5,000 remains the same as they are in existing law, but the amount required on value above $20,000 is cut from 25 percent to 20 percent. This liberalization of FHA terms should help to encourage home ownership and enable families to acquire homes better suited to their needs and, very importantly, it should stimulate homebuilding which is the one major sector of our economy that fails to show a gain over year-ago levels.

Mr. Speaker, many Members of the House have expressed interest in a provision contained in the Senate amendment but not included in the House bill requiring the FHA Commissioner to accept any technically suitable material for use in FHA financed housing. While the Senate conferees fought hard for their provision, our side felt deep concern at the language in the Senate amendment which would have tied the FHA Commissioner's hands and allowed him little, if any, discretionary judgment. In place of that language the conference adopted a modified version which was drafted with the help of the Housing Agency. This compromise restores a large measure of discretionary control to the Commissioner but, at the same time, strongly encourages him to accept any technically suitable materials and products which can be shown to be generally acceptable to conventional mortgage lenders.

The Senate amendment had a provision in the urban renewal title which would have increased from 30 percent to 40 percent the share of the new grant authorization which could be used for nonresidential projects. Strong feelings were expressed on both sides on this difference and the conferees reached a compromise at a 35 percent figure.

The Senate amendment also contained two related urban renewal provisions which appear to have general support. These called for assistance under the program for the demolition of unsound structures and for an expanded program of code enforcement. Our committee is generally sympathetic with the objectives of these provisions and the House conferees accepted them.

The House bill would have sharply restricted the amount of credit which a city could receive under the urban renewal program for parking facilities. On this point the Senate was adamant and I know that many Members of the House shared their concern over the possible effect of this on the urban renewal program. In view of this the House conferees receded and the provision is not in the conference report.

Mr. Speaker, one of the sharpest points of controversy in the entire conference was the debate over provisions relating to specific local grants-in-aid under the urban renewal program. This section alone added a full day to the conference and came very close to resulting in a complete deadlock. The most serious problem involved those amendments which had been adopted on the floor by each body and which required lengthy explanation and reports from the Housing Agency before the conferees were in a position to judge them. I would like to call the attention of all of the Members of the House to the comments in the statement of managers, on page 69 of the conference report, expressing the unanimous concern of the conferees over this procedure. While ultimately we accepted these provisions, such a procedure does not allow adequate attention by the committees and sufficient knowledge for evaluation. All members should be put on notice that if they wish to obtain such provisions in the future, they should be brought to the attention of the committee at the time hearings are held to allow full study or should be made on the subject of private bills. We cannot allow a conference on an entire housing bill to become deadlocked over provisions like these.

Mr. Speaker, one other point of strong controversy was on a provision in the House bill limiting the interest rate on college housing loans to 3 percent. In my opinion, this is most important if we are to enable our institutions of higher learning to cope with their rapidly rising enrollments. Without this provision the interest rate would go to 4 percent largely nullifying the benefits of Federal loans under this widely supported program. It was only with great reluctance that the Senate conferees accepted the House provision.

Another disagreement between the House bill and the Senate amendment which touched on a number of our housing programs was the question of additional authorization. The House bill contained the administration recommendations for open-end authorizations while the Senate amendment imposed dollar ceilings. The programs affected were housing for the elderly, rehabilitation loans, community facilities grants, the open-space program, urban planning grants, the Federal-State training program, and public works planning advances. After long and thorough debate and vigorous insistence by the Senate conferees on their provision, the House conferees accepted the Senate ceilings which appear to be generally in line with the needs of these programs over the 4-year period covered by the bill.

In the last title of the bill there were two main points of disagreement. The House bill included a provision urgently wanted by the savings and loan associations to permit them to make loans on property secured by leaseholds extending at least 10 years beyond the loan maturity in place of the requirement in existing law of a 15-year period. I am pleased to report that we were able to obtain the agreement of the Senate conferees at this point. The other difference in title XI was a provision in the Senate amendment authorizing national banks to purchase participations in loans secured by real estate and jumping the maximum maturity of construction loans from 18 months to 30 months. In the debate on the provision affecting purchase of participations, I believe it became evident that the conferees needed additional facts and consideration since our side had never held hearings on this point and that provision was omitted from the conference report. In the case of construction loans, the conferees accepted a compromise extending maturities only to 24 months.

Mr. Speaker, I have discussed the main actions of the conferees and, of course, all of the differences between the House bill and the conference report are set forth in the statement of managers which was filed with the conference report last Friday and printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for that day. This conference report is similar to the House-approved bill in all major points and includes a number of modifications which I am sure have the support of most Members of the House. I urge all of my colleagues to vote for the conference report and make these important improvements in our housing programs and the vital extensions of authorizations for programs such as FHA mortgage insurance which have reached or are fast approaching the limits set in existing law.

Mr. DUNCAN of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PATMAN. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. DUNCAN of Oregon. This last item to which the gentleman referred is of great interest to me. I come from a lumber-producing area where the establishment of uniform grades and standards for lumber is of great importance to us.

I was concerned when I read the Senate language that it would destroy the traditional role of the American Lumber Standards Committee in setting up the standards and grades for lumber and lumber products in FHA approved housing.

As I read the conference committee report, I am of the opinion that the recommended language now does not destroy this role of the American Lumber Standards Committee.

Am I correct in my understanding?

Mr. PATMAN. I believe the gentleman is correct. May I invite the gentleman's attention to the fact that the Senate committee amendment went rather far—we thought it went too far. While we believed in using any suitable material in home construction that is good, we realized that housing contracts are insured for up to 30, 35, and 40 years.

Material that has lasted 5 or 10 years may not last 35 or 40 years; therefore, we changed the language to read that any material that is accepted in conventional financing for home building should be considered by the Commissioner. This fact should be persuasive to the Commissioner. Yet that language is not in there, but having written that particular part, I had in mind "persuasive" but not "conclusive." It is still up to the Commissioner to decide, because it is his responsibility. I believe that conforms to the statement expressed by the gentleman.

Mr. DUNCAN of Oregon. I think it does, and I thank the gentleman.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PATMAN. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. HALL. I have one question to ask the distinguished gentleman:

In view of the provisions in here for rent or ownership of homes for people displaced by the closing of a Federal installation, or for many other reasons under title I or other titles, either in the original bill or conference report; my question is: Is there any relief for elderly people, people handicapped, or otherwise, who are displaced by reason of land acquisition or condemnation by the right of eminent domain for big dam impoundments, Corps of Engineers, and Air Force missile sites, etc.?

Mr. PATMAN. I think it would include them. I believe it would. You will find it contained in title 4 of the bill entitled "Compensation of Condemnees."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT].

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Speaker, this is one of the proudest moments in my life. As the Members of the House know, this is the first year that I have been privileged to be chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing. I want to express my gratitude to the distinguished chairman of our committee, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN], and to all members of the Housing Subcommittee, particularly our ranking minority member, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL]. Their hard work and sincere constructive efforts have helped us to shape a sound and forward-looking housing bill which marks a major forward step in our efforts to improve our communities and the housing conditions of our people. While those who oppose certain sections of the housing bill fought hard and earnestly for their viewpoints—and the conference report now before us reflects a number of modifications made to accommodate their views—I believe the important fact to be kept in mind is that the House approved the bill by a 76 vote margin on June 30. The bill now before us is essentially that same bill.

Mr. Speaker, the bill is a great victory for President Johnson and will give him an important set of tools to help us in our march toward achieving the goals of the Great Society. The bill is truly a landmark bill which can proudly stand in prominence with the other great housing bills in our history, the National Housing Act of 1934, the Housing Act of 1937, the Housing Act of 1949, and the Housing Act of 1961.

The bill's combination of adequate authorizations to continue existing programs and the new programs which it authorizes should give a powerful boost in our constant efforts to achieve the goal of a decent home for every American family and to improve the environment, the health, and the economic strength of the cities and towns of our great Nation.

Mr. Speaker, there is another extremely important aspect of this great housing bill which I do not think has received enough emphasis. Its many features will provide an important stimulus to homebuilding, to urban renewal programs in our cities and towns, and to the construction of vitally needed community facilities. All of these should have a most beneficial effect upon our economy and with the additional jobs it will create it will help us to lower the ranks of the unemployed and help us toward our ultimate goal of full employment so that all Americans can enjoy the fruits of our great and affluent society.

Our distinguished chairman has explained the major differences between the original housing bill and the conference report. I would like to comment further on some of the important provisions of the bill, which were not changed in conference.

Mr. Speaker, the bill of course contains the new rent supplement program recommended by the President which has such great potential in meeting the still unsolved problem of providing housing for our low-income families. The new rent supplement program will unleash the resources of private industry and private capital to provide homes for hundreds of thousands of our disadvantaged low-income families who are either elderly or handicapped, displaced by public programs, living in slums, or victims of natural disasters.

Those who were fearful that the new rent supplement program would be competitive with or replace the low-rent public housing program need have no fear. The bill before us authorizes 60,000 additional low-rent public housing units for each of the next 4 years. This is a substantial increase over the annual rate of 35,000 units which was the most we were able to achieve in recent years. In addition, the bill will permit us to make greater use of vacant existing dwellings for public housing so that we can furnish immediate housing aid to many low-income families, particularly families with large numbers of children.

I am particularly pleased that we were successful in persuading the distinguished conferees of the other body to accept Mr. WIDNALL's new rent certificate program. This program would authorize local housing authorities to use low-rent housing in existing privately owned structures and the local housing authority would pay to the landlord the difference between the economic rental and the rent which the low-income family can afford to pay. This is a promising new program and we are very hopeful that it will make an important contribution to our objective of providing decent housing for our lowest-income families.

I am also particularly pleased that the bill places great weight on meeting the housing problems of our senior citizens. The bill provides ample authorization to continue the successful direct loan program of housing for the elderly and it provides that these loans shall be made at a maximum interest rate of 3 percent which will bring rents down within the economic reach of more of our elderly citizens. And I should like to point out that senior citizens of low income will be eligible for the new rent supplement program and they will also be given special advantages in the low-rent public housing title of the bill. I think it is particularly fitting that we provide these very substantial housing aids to senior citizens at the same time that the Congress is sending to the President the great medicare bill which will at long last provide the hospital and medical attention most needed in the later years of life.

Veterans of our Armed Forces will be given special preference under the FHA program which is fitting as the benefits of the great GI home loan program are being phased out. Veterans will be able to purchase FHA homes up to $15,000 with no downpayment and with very modest downpayments in price ranges above $15,000.

The bill will continue and expand our great national effort to renew and rebuild our cities with the Federal aid provided under the urban renewal program. The bill also provides greatly liberalized relocation payments and other benefits to displaced families and businesses to minimize the inevitable hardship suffered by some as a result of these great improvement programs.

While the urban renewal program has proven its value in restoring the vitality of our towns and cities, none of us can ignore the painful personal problems of people who are displaced from their homes or places of business. Last year the Congress authorized payments of $1,500 to displaced small business concerns to compensate them at least partly for their loss and to help them get started in a new location. This bill raises that grant substantially to $2,500.

In the case of homeowners in urban renewal areas, this bill makes a major breakthrough, one which seems to be such plain commonsense that it is surprising it has eluded us this long. I refer to the President's proposal for grants up to $1,500 for homeowners in urban renewal areas who cannot afford the necessary repairs to bring their homes up to building code standards. Without this provision, many of our poorest families, many of them advanced in years, would have their homes condemned and taken away from them. When this happens there is already the cost to the Government of relocation benefits and possibly the cost of public housing, since these families have no place else to go. Instead of that, this bill authorizes the necessary aid to enable these families to improve their homes and remain in the neighborhood.

The bill will help us intensify the President's program to improve and beautify our cities and suburbs. It will help cities provide more parks and open-space land both in the central city and in the surrounding suburbs.

The gentleman from Texas has already spoken with justifiable pride about our success in persuading the Senate conferees to continue the college housing loan program with a maximum interest rate of 3 percent. Our institutions of higher learning are a priceless asset to our national welfare and security, and the bill will help these institutions provide the housing needed by our students and faculty.

The bill will also continue the below-market interest rate section 221(d)(3) program established in 1961 with a maximum interest rate of 3 percent. Under this program, which is now gathering momentum, nonprofit groups and cooperatives are able to supply decent housing at modest rentals for families of moderate income.

I am also very proud of the community facilities title of the bill. I urge my colleagues to look more closely at this title, because it has not received the attention it deserves. For the first time we are providing vitally needed Federal grant aid to our cities and towns to meet the grave problem of adequate water and sewer facilities. It is about time we came to grips with this problem and the $200 million in matching grants authorized annually over the next 4 years will be a powerful weapon to help our urban and suburban areas provide the water and sewer facilities they so desperately need.

As an adjunct to the antipoverty program the bill authorizes a new program of two-thirds grants to local public bodies to provide neighborhood facilities, including neighborhood community centers, youth centers, health stations, and other public buildings to provide health or recreational or similar social services. This new program is an important step forward in helping us combat the heavy costs of ill health and deprivation and in combating crime and juvenile delinquency.

Mr. Speaker, although I come from one of our great urban centers, I would like to mention with pride title 10 of our bill which continues and improves our programs to provide better housing in the rural areas of our Nation. The new program of insured housing loans under the Farmers Home Administration should greatly increase the availability of mortgage credit on reasonable terms in rural areas which are particularly handicapped by a shortage of such credit facilities. The problem of slum housing and the shortage of decent housing at modest prices and rentals is every bit as severe in rural and farm areas and we believe the new rural housing programs in the bill will furnish much needed help.

Mr. Speaker, while there are many other provisions in this truly comprehensive bill, I think I have covered its main features. I am confident that a majority of our colleagues will join with us in passing this great forward-looking bill and sending it to the President for signature. I would ask those who might be on the margin of indecision to consider what the gentleman from Texas has said about the bill, what I have said, and what our distinguished colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL], the ranking minority member of the committee, will say in support of the bill. This bill should have the support of every Member on the grounds of compassion, on the grounds of commonsense, and on the grounds of concern for our general public welfare. It will provide decent housing for our disadvantaged poor. It will give decent shelter to our aging citizens of limited income. It will help us rebuild, restore, and revitalize our cities and towns from the smallest hamlet to the greatest metropolis. It will help us replace rural slum housing with decent housing. It will help us make our cities more healthful and beautiful places in which to live. It will stimulate our economy and provide jobs for our unfortunate unemployed. It will do all these things and many more. All of us who have a stake in our great country and in its future growth and betterment have no other choice than to support this great and vitally needed bill.

Mr. Speaker, I urge our colleagues on both sides of the aisle to cast their vote in the affirmative and make this bill a reality of our great legislative heritage.

(Mr. BARRETT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

ONE OF THE BEST HOUSING BILLS IN 11 YEARS

Mrs. SULLIVAN. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to support the conference report on the housing bill, and I am proud that I was accorded the great privilege of helping to work out its details during the 3 days of our conference meetings. This bill marks an important step forward toward the achievement of our goal, as a Nation, of a decent home and a suitable environment for every American family. It is one of the best housing bills to originate in the Subcommittee on Housing of the Committee on Banking and Currency during the 11 years we have had such a subcommittee. For this, I congratulate our subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT], and the chairman of the parent committee, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN], both of whom contributed much to this legislation and to the success of the conference in reaching final agreement on significant new programs and ideas.

MOST BENEFICIARIES OF FEDERAL HOUSING AID PAY THEIR OWN WAY

Much as I have enjoyed serving on the Subcommittee on Housing during the entire period of its existence, I have nevertheless recognized the fact that the programs we provide for in our legislation are terribly complex and not easily understood or explained. Anyone who has ever purchased a residence for his family knows how complicated the process is of transferring real estate, or building a structure. In the legislation we consider in the subcommittee we are attacking the problems of housing millions of families. Most of the benefits of the legislation we recommend go to the private building industry—and this bill is no exception. About 95 percent of the families which benefit from our housing programs—and this would surprise most people, I am sure—are families which pay their own way and make their own way and need no Government handouts or charity. But without the FHA insured-loan program, and other programs which assure the provision of good housing for average-income and higher-income families, we would never have succeeded so dramatically in the private housing field, and I think every enterpriser and businessman in that field will acknowledge the truth of my statement.

NEW PROGRAMS TO MEET CHANGING NEEDS

But much more complex than the provisions for private housing assistance, through mortgage insurance or other aids, are the programs which remake the faces of our cities and towns; which bring nonprofit organizations into the challenging service of providing specialized housing for the elderly and for families which have incomes too high for public housing but not high enough for adequate private housing; and the new programs in this bill for the rehabilitation of older housing and the launching of a new type of special-help program for additional families in the income range of public housing.

Nowhere are the complexity of the legislation and the difficulty of its administration more clearly demonstrated than in the case of the urban renewal program. Back in 1949, when it was begun, it was thought of and referred to primarily as a slum clearance program—the focus being on the elimination of dreadful pockets of misery and urban decay which characterized much of our central city areas. Fifteen years later, we are still using this program to eliminate slums and blighted areas, but as many projects long in the planning and execution have neared completion, we have seen an entirely new and exciting dimension unfold—in the beautification of our cities, as well as in their transformation. Not every urban renewal project is a great architectural masterpiece, but on balance, the quality of architecture has been high and the opportunities for imagination and innovation have been tremendous. In my own city of St. Louis, we are thrilled and delighted with what has been done to transform warehouse and rundown industrial as well as slum areas into magnificent plazas of good housing and beautiful surroundings.

A SIGNIFICANT REDUCTION IN COSTS IN A ST. LOUIS PROJECT

I have just today received word from the Housing and Home Finance Agency of a most interesting development in connection with our big Mill Creek project in St. Louis—which shows it is even more successful from a financial standpoint than we had originally hoped. This will come as a further surprise to many people, including, I am sure, many of the Members here, but our Mill Creek project, I have just learned, has been so attractive to investors and developers, that land values have risen appreciably at the same time that costs have been reduced, so that the Federal Government will save more than 20 percent of the money it had previously intended to put into the project.

Instead of costing Uncle Sam $23,900,000, the project will—it is now estimated—cost the Federal Government $18,750,000. That is a very substantial reduction. Local costs of the project will also be reduced substantially, from $11,467,000 to $10,050,992. These savings reflect both higher prices received for land in the project, and lower costs in land acquisition, relocation, and demolition. It is a good record, and proves that costs do not have to go in one direction only—upward.

MAKING THE RENEWAL PROGRAM MORE HUMANE

This bill authorizes funds to carry the urban renewal program for the next 4 years, but perhaps more important it includes provisions to make the program more humane and better suited to the needs of the people most directly affected.

The housing needs of families displaced by Government-aided programs—always a severe problem—will be eased by the nearly 400,000 new privately owned and managed units expected to be built under President Johnson's rent supplement proposal. The relocation needs will be further eased by the nearly quarter of a million low-rent public housing units also authorized by this bill—particularly in view of the improvements made in that program to permit utilization of existing housing.

Those whose homes or places of business are acquired under housing programs, such as urban renewal, will benefit from the new requirements in this legislation for relocation payments and for fair procedures to compensate condemnees.

ENABLING THE HOMEOWNER TO "STAY PUT" IN A RENEWAL AREA

In the long run, it may well prove to be that one of the most important provisions in this bill is the new authority for home repair grants for homeowners living in urban renewal areas to enable them to bring their houses up to code standards. These grants can cover the full cost of such repairs up to a maximum of $1,500, for families of lowest income. Until now, impoverished homeowners who could not afford to bring their housing up to standard usually had their homes condemned and they were evicted. Previous legislation had tried to meet this problem by providing relocation payments, and offering rehousing in public housing projects when units were available. This not only failed usually to satisfy the displaced homeowner but it carried a high cost in plain dollars and cents. Now, under this bill, we are offering direct aid so that we can accomplish the purposes of urban renewal by improving the units, but without the personal sacrifice and substantial public cost of displacing these people who now live in them, and who much prefer to stay.

To supplement these new rehabilitation grants, the conference bill also authorizes a fivefold increase in the authorization for the very promising program of 3 percent rehabilitation loans authorized by last year's housing act. These loans, available to improve homes and stores alike, reduce financing costs sharply and make it possible for businessmen and families in a great many cases to improve their property and thereby avoid eviction. The independent offices appropriations bill includes funds to put this program into effect, and I am hopeful that the bill which emerges from conference will carry enough money to give this loan program a meaningful start.

OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE TO ELDERLY FAMILIES

These aids are intended to benefit all of those living in blighted areas where it is possible to save the structures, but they have a very special importance for our senior citizens. Elderly families and individuals account for a very high proportion of those living in neighborhoods which once were among the most pleasant in our cities but which, over the years—as the cities have grown and land use patterns have changed, have been left behind by progress, and have been allowed to deteriorate through no fault of the people who live there.

Where they fit into the city's plans for growth, such neighborhoods are potentially valuable assets, and can offer the advantages of living close to the heart of a city. I strongly believe in saving such areas. They should never be abandoned lightly. The aid provided by this bill will make it possible to renovate existing properties, restore neighborhoods to the high standards that they formerly knew, and let them serve the same people who have lived there for a long time and, in many cases, for all their lives. Moving them out in order to clear a site for new housing for others is often a cruel thing, although sometimes it is the only solution. But, where possible, rehabilitation of a neighborhood's soundly built existing housing for continued occupancy by present residents is a much better solution whenever it can be achieved and whenever the neighborhood lends itself to this kind of restoration from a practical standpoint.

HELPING SMALL BUSINESS

The bill also liberalizes the benefits available to displaced small business firms many of which are largely dependent on the established trade in their familiar neighborhoods to stay in business. Last year, in addition to moving expense allowances, we provided in the law for payments up to $1,500 to displaced small businesses to tide them over the interruption to business and to help them become established in new locations. This bill now raises that payment to $2,500; and I believe the increase, modest in terms of our overall program, will make the difference between survival and bankruptcy for many small establishments.

In addition, this bill authorizes an entirely new program of least guarantees for displaced small business which will help them compete successfully for good locations.

IN NO HOUSING ACT HAVE WE MADE MORE PROGRESS

Mr. Speaker, we cannot yet say that all of our problems are solved by H.R. 7984 or that the dynamic process of renewing our cities will not still have problems. But over the years we have made tremendous strides in the field of housing and in no single act have we done more to improve it than we are doing in this act. I urge all of my colleagues to support this conference report.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Speaker, I am supporting the conference report that is being submitted to the House today. I would like to report, as the ranking House Republican on the conference, that there was very extensive discussion of differences between the House and Senate bills. There was also a fine spirit of compromise and cooperation in trying to advance the best interest of the country toward a sound housing program. I believe out of the final results we can achieve what has been a longtime goal—a decent housing and decent living environment for millions of our Americans.

I would like to compliment the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT], for his attitude right from the start on this housing legislation.

Contrary to the many times when you find yourself as a member of the minority in a situation where there is unwillingness to discuss minority proposals with respect to legislation, there was, with Congressman BARRETT, a complete open door for discussion, for valid argument, and in this particular case there was acceptance by the majority of many new programs that were being sponsored by the minority.

There was a spirit of cooperation and a willingness to advance the best interest of all our people, without partisanship.

At the same time, in the conference the chairman of our full committee argued vigorously for a number of the minority proposals which were in the bill, and really fought for the House version. As a result, such proposals are in the final bill.

We also had fine cooperation from the Senate side, encouraged by both majority and minority members. Senator SPARKMAN, Senator TOWER, and Senator MUSKIE worked hard with others on the Senate side to achieve the final report.

We in the minority are quite proud of the acceptance of the rent-certificate plan which had been proposed by us a year ago. This goes beyond what was sought through the rent-supplement plan, the much-debated issue before the House. The rent-certificate plan is important because it can provide now—not after building new accommodations, but now—the means of housing thousands of our low-income citizens with voluntary participation on the part of the property owner.

We are also proud of the acceptance of a new program in connection with condemnation proceedings. Those displaced from their housing as a result of clearance for urban renewal or other governmental housing projects will be able to obtain 75 percent of their potential award immediately rather than years later when the courts act. They will not have to suffer from the lack of funds as they attempt to relocate in new quarters.

There is a new FHA veterans housing proposal, which can prove to be one of the largest programs within this bill. There is a potential of 21 million homes. It will give entitlement to all veterans who have been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable. I say it will be available to practically all veterans and those who have not used their previous GI entitlement, they may obtain homes with no downpayment up to $15,000, with a 10-percent downpayment for the amount between $15,000 and $20,000, and with a 15-percent downpayment from $20,000 to $30,000. This is extremely important, as the present VA program is being phased out. There are thousands and thousands, even millions of our veterans who have served and have served well, and some who are serving presently in the very dangerous areas of the world such as Vietnam, Santo Domingo and other outposts, who have not been covered by our GI assistance programs. They deserve action now for their future.

There are also changes in the code enforcement part of the bill, which are wholesome, which can provide, I believe, better housing. These will provide better tools for the municipality to work with.

I am also pleased that there is a $400 million authorization for the rehabilitation and modernization loan program which was enacted a year ago. This will provide some very strong means within urban renewal areas to accomplish what is acknowledged to be necessary to truly obtain the promise of urban renewal. This has great potential, if wisely used by the Administrator.

Mr. SAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SAYLOR. I should like to direct a question to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT]. I commend him on his statement, but if this bill is to do all of these things for the great American workingman, why do you have section 1109? This is the "buy American" provision in the mass transit bill of 1965. It was in this bill when it passed the House.

Mr. BARRETT. I am glad that the gentleman brought up this question. This is not altogether "buy American." This is quite different from "buy American." This question involves private industry and the governmental position.

Let me point out to the gentleman that concrete and allied products imports in 1963 amounted to $13 million.

In the same year, we exported $72.1 million.

Mr. SAYLOR. The important thing is you have not answered my question. This bill takes out the "buy American" provision. The House receded. It was in the bill, and that was one of the reasons why you got the vote to pass the bill in the House, because it retained that provision.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has again expired.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman 4 additional minutes.

Mr. SAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. SAYLOR. One of the reasons why this bill passed the House—because it had the "buy American" provision in it. When you went to conference the House receded without a debate.

Mr. BARRETT. If the gentleman will yield further so that I may answer more fully, I just want to point out to the gentleman that at all times we must use our own best judgment and change our minds when it is necessary in the interest of the people of the United States. I just read you this one group of imports and exports, concrete and allied products. Now, we have rails and truck materials where the United States imported in 1963 $1 million and the U.S. exports were $19.2 million. In office and computing equipment, in 1963 the U.S. imports were $93.9 million and the exports were $359.6 million.

Gentlemen, not wishing to take up the time of the House, this is a matter that runs this way consistently pertaining to all kinds of material. We have gained tremendously. This is not "buy American," but it is buy what a private enterprise thinks they should buy.

Let me give you what I think is one potent answer to your question. Let us say that the Baldwin Locomotive Works of the United States decided to buy a certain ball bearing which is better suited for their purpose. Your amendment would stop this industry from buying this type of material which would be beneficial to the transportation system of America.

Mr. SAYLOR. I am satisfied that would be because the men who make it in America make better ball bearings than are made anywhere else in the world. What you have done by your action is to place the American workingman in jeopardy and are threatening to reduce his living standard to that of our foreign competitors.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Speaker, there are two other programs I would like to comment on briefly. These are the college housing program and the elderly housing program. These have been highly successful with no defaults but both programs would have been phased out because of the rise in interest rates. The minority sponsored a realistic rate for these two programs, which was accepted in conference. This will mean that the nonprofit organizations and labor organizations, the churches and institutions who have sponsored housing for the elderly will be able to continue these worthwhile programs. It will mean also lower dormitory rents can be provided in the colleges and lower rents in elderly housing projects. I think these are very meaningful sections of the bill and we worked hard together in order to obtain approval in conference.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. HALL. I just wanted to make an observation. I appreciate the gentleman yielding.

I tabulated the statements in the statement on the part of the managers of the House. It says it contains the Senate provision in 56 instances, I believe, on 12 pages, but not once does it say that the position of the House prevailed.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. DOWDY].

(Mr. DOWDY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DOWDY. Mr. Speaker, when this bill originally came on for consideration in the House, debate was cut off after discussion of only one of its many titles, namely, the title dealing with subsidized rents. The way money is considered here in Washington, and as far as money is concerned, the rent subsidy title was one of the minor titles in the bill—it involves only a few hundred million dollars.

The other titles in the bill involve the spending of thousands of millions of dollars—$6 billion. Those titles received little or no attention, and included among them is the urban renewal title, calling for the spending of $3 billion. I wanted to talk about that title at the time, as did some of the other Members of the House, but we were not even allowed 30 seconds time; we felt that the House and its Members were entitled to know a little something about what they were being asked to vote for, but for some reason the managers of the bill preferred to keep the Members uninformed, and required them to vote blindly.

For a number of years, we have heard a great deal about images—a person's image—a program's image—a nation's image. I believe we should brush aside the images, and get down to the substance of things.

An attempt has been made to build an image for Federal urban renewal; it has been described as a program that will give everyone a fine house; that is the image picture painted for the uninformed. Let us look behind the image, to find the substance.

Several hundred thousand homes have been destroyed by the bulldozer, in the name of urban renewal; only 25,000 homes have been built to replace them—and this when we were already running short of places for people to live.

When we look behind the false image, we find that Federal urban renewal, we find that it is actually a reversion to the past—a turning-back of the clock to the 17th and 18th centuries when the reigning princes of a country controlled all the land, and gave the use of it to their favorite vassals. That is exactly what is happening under Federal urban renewal. The average homeowner can no longer call his home his own; the small businessman is helpless before the favored wealthy and powerful interests who covet his place of business for their own.

That brings us to the particular item in this conference report that I want to direct attention, and it is section 317 of the bill.

I have no interest in this matter, except my feeling and compassion for those average homeowners and small businessmen who are the victims of this wholly heartless piece of legislation.

I mentioned images; the desired image of a committee, of course, is that it is omnipotent, of all-encompassing knowledge and infallable wisdom. Does this great committee deserve that image? When this bill was introduced in the House, it contained section 317, purporting to authorize Federal urban renewal for commercial districts of the District of Columbia. The committee struck that section from the bill, and did not have any hearings on same, even though the affected businessmen, the intended victims of the section, sought to be heard by the subcommittee. They were positively denied the right to testify and be heard. When the House conferees voted 5 to 4 to agree with the Senate to reinsert section 317, they did it without benefit of any hearings, and without any knowledge of the effect of their action, and wholly disregarding the interests, well-being and property of their victims. The committee in the other body had no hearings on this section, either. It is no way legislative.

Admitting that the House of Lords has infinite wisdom, nevertheless I believe a committee of the House is stripping away its own desired image when it takes such wanton action as is displayed here.

When Congress enacted an urban renewal law for the District of Columbia, it excluded commercial sections; its purpose was to remove slums, and provide decent housing for the slum-dwellers. One hundred thirty million Federal tax dollars have been spent in the District, tearing down homes, and many thousands of people made homeless; yet to this date, not one low-rent or middle-income rent dwelling has been built in any urban renewal area in the District of Columbia. Now, by section 317, it is proposed to spend additional hundreds of millions of dollars destroying the business and commercial areas of the city.

In the 88th Congress, the Banking and Currency Committee had a bill before it containing a similar provision to the present section 317; that committee acknowledged that such provision was not appropriate and out of place in a national housing bill, and so removed it. When the other body wrote it in, the House conferees faithfully stuck to the position rightfully taken, and refused to outrage common decency by rolling over and playing dead.

In this 89th Congress, the bill, as introduced, again contained the repugnant provision, which is an unwarranted invasion of the jurisdiction of a sister committee of the House. The chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia, the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMILLAN] conferred with the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency while this bill was still in committee, and advised such chairman, the venerable and able gentleman from Texas of the presumptuous grab of jurisdiction. By agreement, the provision was amended out of the bill. It was not properly a part of the bill, and was therefore stricken.

Now, in the conference with the other body—and we must bear this in mind—section 317 was rewritten into the bill in the conference by a vote of 5 to 4 of the House conferees, as disclosed by two of those conferees who felt betrayed by this disregard of the results of the former conference with the chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia. If the chairman of the House conferees had not voted for it, this section 317 would not be in the conference report today. By a tie vote it would have been defeated. So the small businessmen and the homeowners in the District of Columbia—the small businessmen who are going to the guillotine—the homeowners who are going to lose their homes in the District of Columbia, know that one man's vote did it—if the chairman had not voted, they would be safe.

My compassion for the weak and helpless victims of Federal urban renewal, whether homeowners or small businessmen, cause me to try to shield them, as much as I can, from the machinations of that agency without a heart. I wish all of the Members of the House could have heard the testimony and would read the records that were produced before my subcommittee about the lack of human feelings and the downright cruelty that was practiced on men, women, and children right here in the Nation's Capital, merely because their homes or businesses stood in the way of greedy landgrabbers, backed by the power of eminent domain in the hands of that agency without a heart.

Nobody else has listened to them; nobody else has even recognized the fact that there will be victims of this grandiose scheme to wipe out and rebuild almost all of downtown Washington; but my subcommittee of the District of Columbia Committee has heard witnesses, and we heard, as well, the witnesses from the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency, and from the little group which calls itself downtown progress, to see what they planned to do. We wanted to hear, and did hear both sides.

My esteemed and well-beloved friend, the gentleman from Texas, has been many years building a reputation as a friend of small business. He could not have read any part of the hearing record of my subcommittee; if he had, he could not have possibly given the slightest thought or consideration to rewriting section 317 into this conference report now before us. It purports to apply to downtown Washington. Does my friend know there are 5,000 businesses in downtown Washington, and that the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency freely admitted, when before our subcommittee, that it is their intention to permanently do away with 2,200 of those businesses—completely and wholly put them out of business—because, in their high-handed, heartless way, they only want 3,000 businesses downtown?

Of the remaining 3,000 businesses, great numbers of them will be newcomers to the area, as very few, except the large and wealthy businesses, are permitted to remain in the commandeered area after it comes into the hands of the favorites of the planners.

This destruction of small business is not purely anticipatory. We can look to the past actions of this heartless agency. In the Southwest urban renewal project area here in the District of Columbia, 62 percent of the proprietorships were permanently put out of business by urban renewal; a few were permitted to remain, but most of the replacements were big and wealthy chains. And in the Nation as a whole, some 200,000 small businesses have been displaced, many of them permanently and totally destroyed.

In addition to the small businesses in the downtown area, according to the testimony brought before my subcommittee, produced from the mouths of the despoilers themselves, they intend to bulldoze the homes, and throw 19,000 more citizens of the District of Columbia out of those homes, adding them to the many thousands of families already ousted by urban renewal.

Urban renewal has taken the homes of more than a million people in our Nation; I am now just referring to its cruel plan for a portion of our Nation's Capital; this is what section 317 does to the District of Columbia. A person with any of the milk of human kindness could not do this to innocent people. I believe the gentleman from Texas, the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, to be a man of compassion. I cannot believe he would have done this had he known the facts. I beseech him to join me in correcting this gross injustice; tell the Members of the House that it was a lapse, caused by lack of knowledge of the true facts.

I believe this bill—I know this bill, for the sake of all that is right and good, should be recommitted to the conference committee, so that, at the very least, this section 317 can be deleted. This conference report should be voted down.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ALBERT). The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. PATMAN. I yield the gentleman 1 additional minute.

Mr. McMILLAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DOWDY. I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. McMILLAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I wonder if the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency could explain to me and to other Members of the House just how one committee can take legislation from another committee when the chairman objects.

Mr. DOWDY. Well, I was going to ask that question a while ago, except that the gentleman from Texas did not yield to me at that time.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DOWDY. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. We respect the gentleman's wishes on the House side but we have no control over what the other body does.

Mr. DOWDY. But the gentleman had control and it was his vote that controlled it in the conference, as far as the House conferees were concerned. The gentleman does not mean to say that the Members of the other body control, or controlled his vote in conference, or that of any of the others of the House conferees?

Mr. PATMAN. The conferees decided—it was a free conference—to act according to our own will and wishes, and our decision was to do what was done.

Mr. DOWDY. And that was a 5-to-4 vote of the House conferees?

Mr. PATMAN. It was the decision of the conference.

Mr. DOWDY. That was what the newspapers reported, and the same information given to us by House conferees on the day the action was taken.

Mr. PATMAN. Well, the newspapers fortunately or unfortunately were not there. It was a closed meeting. We have no transcript of the proceedings.

Mr. DOWDY. Well, that is correct, is it not?

Mr. PATMAN. It may not be incorrect—it was a closed meeting as you know, and no record was kept.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Texas has again expired.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. SISK].

(Mr. SISK asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SISK. Mr. Speaker, I feel somewhat out of place in talking on this particular piece of legislation. But I do want to comment upon the remarks which were made by my good friend, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Dowdy]. I have great respect for the gentleman and for him as chairman of a subcommittee on the District of Columbia. I know the gentleman has worked very diligently on this entire subject of urban renewal. In philosophy he and I simply do not see eye to eye on what has been accomplished, or obtained, under the urban renewal program.

I would like to cite here today the fact that last year some of us tried on several occasions to get legislation which would do exactly what this provision would provide to the full House, but because of the fact that we were being asked to swallow a lot of undesirable things, at least in my opinion, undesirable things—we were never able to obtain it.

Mr. Speaker, personally I support this provision in the conference report. I am very happy that the other body made it possible for us to enable the District of Columbia to do exactly what every other city in America is enable to do under the basic law.

Mr. Speaker, it was only through a technical error in the basic act upon which the court ruled that caused the District of Columbia and the business people in nonresidential areas to be denied a right that every other city and every other State in our country has enjoyed.

Mr. Speaker, in this instance, we are simply correcting that error and I would hope, of course, that the House will support the conference report and support the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN], in what I believe to be a very excellent report.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished minority leader, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. GERALD R. FORD].

(Mr. GERALD R. FORD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, this is in some respects a very notable day in the history of the House of Representatives.

Less than an hour ago we passed the House-Senate conference report on medicare.

Now it appears that we are about to approve the conference report on the housing bill which includes among other things the very controversial rent supplement provision, or what some have rather charitably referred to as renticare.

Mr. Speaker, within an hour of one another, billions have been authorized for medicare and now billions will be authorized for renticare.

In short, I think it would be entirely fitting to designate this afternoon's labor or proceedings as "Fedicare Day."

In future years, Mr. Speaker, when the taxpayers come face to face with the billions of dollars required to support these two programs, among many others, perhaps we will similarly devote a few hours, I hope in the House as well as in the other body, to a measure that will then be called Dedicare Day.

Mr. MATSUNAGA. Mr. Speaker, it must be noted that what has just been enumerated is the result of efforts on the part of those of us Who-do-care.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Speaker, section 1109 of the conference report would repeal a provision in the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 which requires that contractors, in providing mass transportation facilities or equipment financed with loan or grant assistance under that act "shall use only such manufactured articles as have been manufactured in the United States."

This repeal is an administration proposal. When the President signed the Urban Mass Transportation Act in 1964, he expressed hope that the provision would be repealed. He said it is incompatible with the trade policy this Nation is pursuing under the Trade Expansion Act.

The provision in the Urban Mass Transportation Act that would be repealed was put in the act as a result of an amendment offered on the House floor by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Representative SAYLOR, to provide more protection to American manufacturers and industrial interests.

The repealed provision, however, is against the overall national interest because it opens the way for other countries to retaliate against exports of this country.

The Department of State has had protests from Canada, Japan, and the European Economic Community concerning this provision. These countries did not refer to any specific projects, but protested on the ground that the provision was contrary to this country's commitments on trade with those countries.

The Department of State testified during hearings on the bill that unless repealed the provision could damage our foreign trade relations out of all proportion to the small volume of materials it might protect.

To demonstrate the accuracy of their statements, witnesses for the Department of State gave the following figures on imports and exports involved in the provision:

[In millions of dollars]

	U.S. imports, 1963	U.S. exports, 1963
Concrete and allied products.....	13.0	72.1
Rails and track material.....	1.0	19.2
Office and computing equipment.....	93.9	359.6
Assorted machinery.....	119.4	1,431.0
Electric power machinery.....	21.9	292.1
Electric distributing equipment.....	9.5	49.2
Telecommunications apparatus.....	211.5	472.6
Railway vehicles.....	1.6	139.5

The existing provision in the law is very undesirable because the United States cannot expect foreign countries to follow relatively liberal policies in trade, which we recommend, where we do not follow the same policies. We should not say "Do as we say, not as we do."

There is no need for the provision. U.S. industry competes very well on the open market with foreign industry—as demonstrated by the figures above.

Mr. DONOHUE. Mr. Speaker, I hope this body will quickly and resoundingly accept this conference report on H.R. 7984, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

The legislative subject of housing and its related activities vitally affects the welfare of the family which is the basic unit of all civilized society. Prudent and reasonable legislative advances in this special area should, therefore, be and they are of major concern to this House.

Over these past 15 years, the Congress has consistently and increasingly demonstrated its particular interest and fulfilled its legislative obligation in this field by the enactment of programs designed to sensibly increase the availability of decent housing for our lowest income families and to help our burdened cities cope with the vexing problems of urban and suburban expansion.

Today we have another opportunity to take several further steps forward, by adopting this conference report, in the improvement of our existing programs of housing, slum clearance, urban renewal, community facilities, college housing expansion, assistance to displaced businesses and many other related fields.

The conference report is the well balanced result of the long, hard and exhaustive work and study, with noticeable and commendable bipartisan effort, of the parent House and Senate committees and the particular and exacting cooperative concentration and agreement of the conference committee. Their final recommendations to us very clearly represent a most conscientious and patriotic attempt to prudently and effectively deal with the complex subject of housing for the American people.

Mr. Speaker, the past record shows that, in general, our housing programs have been well administered and they have been exceptionally free from misuse of funds or authority. The provisions contained in this report now before us surely seem essential, from every objective viewpoint, for the vigorous continuation of programs that are vital to our efforts and our obligation to encourage more wholesome living conditions in better housing for all of our people.

Because it appears obviously in full accord with our national traditions, because it is designed to reasonably meet a fundamental national need and because it unquestionably tends to promote the health, safety and happiness of all our citizens, I hope this report will be overwhelmingly approved without further delay.

Mr. MULTER. Mr. Speaker, section 317 of this bill amends section 316(2) of the Housing Act of 1954 by making the provisions thereof applicable in the District of Columbia so that the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency may undertake nonresidential projects in Washington, D.C.

That provision was in the Senate bill. It was not in the House bill.

It was not considered either in subcommittee, in full committee, or on the floor of the House, neither during debate nor under the 5-minute rule.

When consideration was sought in full committee, it was stated that the section had been eliminated from the House bill so that the matter could be studied at a later time.

This provision should not have been accepted by the House conferees.

The urban renewal program in the District of Columbia is the worst in the country. The District Committee has spent days studying the problem.

Several amendments to improve the District program had been unanimously approved by the District Committee which should be a part of any section extending this act to the District of Columbia. No opportunity is afforded us to accomplish that.

My objection to this provision being included in the bill goes beyond the matter of the Banking and Currency Committee's invasion of the jurisdiction of the District Committee. It goes to the dangerous procedure of legislating without hearings and without consideration. It is bad enough to have inadequate hearings. It is inexcusable to have no hearings.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 251, nays 168, answered "present" 2, not voting 12, as follows:

NOT VOTING—12

Battin	Cahill	Macdonald
Blatnik	Colmer	Minshall
Bonner	Keogh	Toil
Bow	McVicker	Watson

So the conference report was agreed to.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

On this vote:

Mr. Keogh for, with Mr. Colmer against.
Mr. Toll for, with Mr. Bonner against.
Mr. McVicker for, with Mr. Watson against.
Mr. Blatnik for, with Mr. Battin against.
Mr. Macdonald for, with Mr. Minshall against.

Mr. PIKE changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

Mr. ROBERTS changed his vote from "yea" to "nay."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

(Mr. SCHEUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SCHEUER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to clarify for the record that on rollcall No. 204 concerning H.R. 7984, I was present but did not vote because I felt I had a direct personal interest in the legislation, and, under rule 8 of the House was precluded from voting thereon.

CORRECTION OF THE RECORD

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, on page 17474 of the CONGRES-

SIONAL RECORD for Monday, July 26, I am quoted as saying:

I did not have any reference to voluntary contributions through the so-called buck drives or coke drives conducted by many organizations.

The word "coke," obviously is incorrect. What I actually said was "COPE drives."

I ask unanimous consent that the word "COPE" be substituted in the permanent RECORD for the word "coke" in my remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

COMMUNITY HEALTH SERVICES EXTENSION AMENDMENTS OF 1965

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (S. 510) to extend and otherwise amend certain expiring provisions of the Public Health Service Act relating to community health services, and for other purposes and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

(For conference report and statement see proceedings of the House of July 23, 1965.)

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, this conference report is on the extension of several very important and necessary programs. It will be recalled that the Congress in the past established a program of intensive community immunization programs, established a program of health services for domestic agricultural migratory workers, and established programs of grants for State health programs and special projects for community health services.

H.R. 2986, extending these programs, passed the House some time back by a vote of 347 yeas to no nays. We then substituted this text for the text of S. 510, a similar bill that had passed the other body. The amendment went to the other body and they agreed to a conference. We went to conference, and we have endeavored to resolve the differences. I feel that we have fairly well maintained the position of the House. There was some modification in the position of both Houses, and we bring to you today a unanimous conference report.

There are three questions involved. First is the immunization program. The House proposed to extend the present program for 3 years with an authorization of $11 million a year. The Senate included a 5-year program with $8 million a year. The conferees agreed on an extension of 3 years and $11 million, which was the same as the House had passed.

There was another difference in the immunization program between the House amendment and the Senate bill in that the Senate version permitted advance payments on the basis of estimates to the States and local agencies carrying out immunization programs, and modified certain record-keeping requirements. The House bill had no such provision.

We accepted the provision for advance payments on the basis of estimates, but the conference report does not include the provision relating to a modified record keeping. In view, however, of the conference substitute, and in view of the language already in the act which authorizes grants for costs reasonably attributable to the protection of the eligible age group, the conferees expect that the Surgeon General will review with the States and local agencies affected methods for simplifying record-keeping requirements. We think by this method it will work out satisfactorily and will alleviate unnecessary burdens.

The second difference between the two Houses in connection with this conference report has to do with the provision of health services for domestic agricultural migratory workers. The Senate bill extended the program for a period of 5 years and for this 5-year program, they would have authorized a total of $34 million. Since the House has established a pattern of authorizing these programs for 3-year periods in order that the Congress may at the end of that time review what the programs have accomplished, the House version provided a straight extension of 3 years with the current authorization of $3 million. In view, however, of the expected demand the conferees extended the program for 3 years as provided in the House bill and for fiscal year 1966, we authorized $7 million; $8 million for 1967 and for the third and final year this authorization of $9 million. These were the amounts authorized in the Senate version.

We believe that these amounts will be sufficient to provide the needs anticipated in this program for the next 3 years.

The conference agreement also includes specific authorization for necessary short-term hospital care for domestic agricultural workers and their families. This was a provision in the Senate bill, but it was not in the House amendment. It is the intention of the conferees that the authority for hospital care will be utilized on a limited basis and in accordance with the priorities established by the Surgeon General. We wanted to make this abundantly clear and we feel that where emergencies arise they will be taken care of, and yet it will not put a burden upon local hospital facilities.

The third point of difference in this conference has to do with the schools of public health. Many of our colleagues here in the House were quite concerned about the lack of increased authorization for these schools when the bill was reported and considered in the House. We authorized for these 12 public health schools in the United States a straight extension of the existing $2½ million authorization. The Senate provided a $5 million authorization. In view of the fact that there are 12 of these schools and that they have increased their enrollment, and that we are establishing two additional schools of public health, the House conferees felt that the Senate authorization would be more justified and consequently we adopted the authorization included by the other body of $5 million.

I think many Members in the House will be gratified that the House conferees agreed to this provision of the Senate amendment. The conferees feel that this program is a very necessary program.

We feel that the conference agreement is a reasonable compromise, and, therefore, we urge the adoption of the report.

(Mr. HARRIS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SPRINGER] such time as he may require.

Mr. SPRINGER. Mr. Speaker, several programs of proven merit are included in this bill. The value of immunization programs is well enough known and needs no extensive justification at this time. Extension of the program to include measles has become feasible because of a breakthrough in scientific research which should make it possible to eradicate this common but dangerous disease, mostly in children. Because of the progress made in recent years in the means to vaccinate against diseases which killed or maimed large numbers within our population, it seems wise to leave the door open for prompt action in the event that other dramatic developments make new immunization programs practical. This bill does so.

The health of migratory workers poses acute problems for those communities to which they come for relatively short periods of time each year. Although there may not be one easy answer which would apply to each and every situation, we do know that the Nation must take cognizance of the problems. The provision of extra manpower for the affected health service agencies has proved to be most useful within the communities affected. Because of the peculiarity and diversity of State laws and local ordinances the provisions of emergency hospital services has been difficult or impossible in many cases. The funds provided by this bill are not meant to solve this dilemma in its entirety but it does provide for emergency hospital services on a limited scale until better answers can be found.

Grants to support general public health services and special project grants for community health services throughout the Nation are not new. This bill would merely extend the program for 1 year at present levels.

A comprehensive look at this situation must be taken by the next Congress. The reappraisal is called for only because of the evolutionary changes in community health services. I would not want to see any cutting back or any changes whatsoever in this particular program until we have the benefit of studies now underway.

I believe we did as good a job in conference as the House could expect and I believe the conference report is such that it ought to be approved.

Public Law 89-117
89th Congress, H. R. 7984
August 10, 1965

An Act

79 STAT. 451.

To assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, and community facilities.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965".

Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

TITLE I—SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO ENABLE CERTAIN PRIVATE HOUSING TO BE AVAILABLE FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES WHO ARE ELDERLY, HANDICAPPED, DISPLACED, VICTIMS OF A NATURAL DISASTER, OR OCCUPANTS OF SUBSTANDARD HOUSING

SEC. 101. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator (hereinafter referred to as the "Administrator") is authorized to make, and contract to make, annual payments to a "housing owner" on behalf of "qualified tenants", as those terms are defined herein, in such amounts and under such circumstances as are prescribed in or pursuant to this section. In no case shall a contract provide for such payments with respect to any housing for a period exceeding forty years. The aggregate amount of the contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $30,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1966, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $35,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $40,000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by $45,000,000 on July 1, 1968.

(b) As used in this section, the term "housing owner" means a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act and which, after the enactment of this section, has been approved for mortgage insurance thereunder and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That, except as provided in subsection (j), no payments under this section may be made with respect to any property financed with a mortgage receiving the benefits of the interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of that Act. Subject to the limitations provided in subsection (j), the term "housing owner" also has the meaning prescribed in such subsection.

"Housing owner."

75 Stat. 150.
12 USC 17151.

Post, p. 454.

(c) As used in this section, the term "qualified tenant" means any individual or family who has, pursuant to criteria and procedures established by the Administrator, been determined—

"Qualified tenant."

(1) to have an income below the maximum amount which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public housing dwellings; and

Post, p. 457.
63 Stat. 422.
42 USC 1415.

(2) to be one of the following—

- (A) displaced by governmental action;
- (B) sixty-two years of age or older (or, in the case of a family to have a head who is, or whose spouse is, sixty-two years of age or over);

(C) physically handicapped (or, in the case of a family, to have a head who is, or whose spouse is, physically handicapped);

(D) occupying substandard housing; or

(E) an occupant or former occupant of a dwelling which is (or was) situated in an area determined by the Small Business Administration, subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected by a natural disaster, and which has been extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of such disaster.

The terms "qualified tenant" and "tenant" include a member of a cooperative who satisfies the foregoing requirements and who, upon resale of his membership to the cooperative, will not be reimbursed for any equity increment accumulated through payments under this section. With respect to members of a cooperative, the terms "rental" and "rental charges" mean the charges under the occupancy agreements between such members and the cooperative.

(d) The amount of the annual payment with respect to any dwelling unit shall not exceed the amount by which the fair market rental for such unit exceeds one-fourth of the tenant's income as determined by the Administrator pursuant to procedures and regulations established by him.

(e) (1) For purposes of carrying out the provisions of this section, the Administrator shall establish criteria and procedures for determining the eligibility of occupants and rental charges, including criteria and procedures with respect to periodic review of tenant incomes and periodic adjustment of rental charges. The Administrator shall issue, upon the request of a housing owner, certificates as to the following facts concerning the individuals and families applying for admission to, or residing in, dwellings of such owner:

(A) the income of the individual or family; and

(B) whether the individual or family was displaced by governmental action, is elderly, is physically handicapped, or is (or was) occupying substandard housing or housing extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of a natural disaster.

(2) Procedures adopted by the Administrator hereunder shall provide for recertifications of the incomes of occupants, except the elderly, at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals in cases where the Administrator may deem it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting rental charges and annual payments on the basis of occupants' income, but in no event shall rental charges adjusted under this section for any dwelling exceed the fair market rental of the dwelling.

(3) The Administrator may enter into agreements, or authorize housing owners to enter into agreements, with public or private agencies for services required in the selection of qualified tenants, including those who may be approved, on the basis of the probability of future increases in their incomes, as lessees under an option to purchase (which will give such approved qualified tenants an exclusive right to purchase at a price established or determined as provided in the option) dwellings, and in the establishment of rentals. The Administrator is authorized (without limiting his authority under any other provision of law) to delegate to any such public or private agency his authority to issue certificates pursuant to this subsection.

(4) No payments under this section may be made with respect to any property for which the costs of operation (including wages and salaries) are determined by the Administrator to be greater than similar costs of operation of similar housing in the community where the property is situated.

(f) Section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting "(i)" after "a mortgage under" in the first proviso and by inserting immediately before the colon at the end of such proviso the following: ", or (ii) section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act if payments with respect to the mortgaged property are made or are to be made under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except that no such mortgage shall be insured, and no commitment to insure such a mortgage shall be issued, with respect to property in any community for which a workable program for community improvement was required and in effect at the time a contract for a loan or capital grant was entered into under this title, or a contract for annual contributions or capital grants was entered into pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937, unless there is a workable program for community improvement which meets the requirements of this subsection in effect in such community at the time of such insurance or commitment".

68 Stat. 623.
42 USC 1451.

(g) The Administrator is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section. Nothing contained in this section shall affect the authority of (1) the Federal Housing Commissioner with respect to any housing assisted under this section and under sections 221(d)(3) and 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act, or (2) the Housing and Home Finance Administrator with respect to any housing assisted under this section and under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, including the authority to prescribe occupancy requirements under other provisions of law or to determine the portion of any such housing which may be occupied by qualified tenants.

(j) (1) For the purpose of assisting housing under this section on an experimental basis, subject to the limitations of this subsection, the term "housing owner" (in addition to the meaning prescribed in subsection (b)) includes—

(A) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under a mortgage which receives the benefits of the interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of the National Housing Act and which, after the date of the enactment of this Act, has been approved for mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section;

Post, p. 454.

(B) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity which is a mortgagor under a mortgage insured under section 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act and which, after the date of the enactment of this Act, has obtained final endorsement of such mortgage for mortgage insurance and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section; and

LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 103. (a) The United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by redesignating section 23 as section 24, and by adding after section 22 the following new section:

50 Stat. 899;

63 Stat. 431.

42 USC 1422.

“LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

“SEC. 23. (a) (1) For the purpose of providing a supplementary form of low-rent housing which will aid in assuring a decent place to live for every citizen and promote efficiency and economy in the program under this Act by taking full advantage of vacancies or potential vacancies in the private housing market, each public housing agency shall, to the maximum extent consistent with the achievement of the objectives of this Act, provide low-rent housing under this Act in the form of low-rent housing in private accommodations in accordance with this section where such housing in private accommodations can be provided at a cost equal to or less than housing in projects assisted under other provisions of this Act.

“(2) The provisions of this section shall not apply to any locality unless the governing body of the locality has by resolution approved the application of such provisions to such locality.

“(3) As used in this section, the term ‘low-rent housing in private accommodations’ means dwelling units in an existing structure, leased from a private owner, which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and related facilities effectively supplementing the accommodations and facilities in low-rent housing assisted under the other provisions of this Act in a manner calculated to meet the total housing needs of the community in which they are located; and the term ‘owner’ means any person or entity having the legal right to lease or sublease property containing one or more dwelling units as described in this section. Definitions.

“(b) Beginning as soon as practicable after the date of the enactment of this section, each public housing agency shall conduct a continuing survey and listing of the available dwelling units within the community or communities under its jurisdiction which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and related facilities and are, or may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section.

“(c) Each public housing agency, by notification to the owners of housing listed under subsection (b), or by publication or advertisement, or otherwise, shall from time to time make known to the public in the community or communities under its jurisdiction the anticipated need for dwelling units in such community or communities to be used as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, inviting the owners of such dwelling units to make available for purposes of this section one or more of such units (not exceeding 10 per centum of the units in any single structure except to the extent that the agency, because of the limited number of units in the structure or for any other reason, determines that such limit should not be applied). The public housing agency shall conduct appropriate inspections of the units offered to be made available in any residential structure by the owner thereof in response to such invitation, and if—

“(1) it finds that such units are, or may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations within the meaning of subsection (a) (3), and

“(2) the rentals to be charged for such units, as negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner of the structure in a manner consistent with subsection (d) (2), are within the financial range of families of low income,

such agency may approve such units for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations in accordance with (and subject to the applicable limitations contained in) this section. Each public housing agency shall maintain and keep current a list of units approved by it under this subsection, including such information with respect to each such unit as it may consider necessary or appropriate.

“(d) To the extent of contracts for annual contributions entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency under section 10(e), such agency may enter into contracts with the owners of structures containing dwelling units approved under subsection (c) for the use of such units in accordance with this section. Each such contract with an owner shall provide (with respect to any unit) that—

“(1) the selection of tenants for such unit shall be the function of the owner, subject to the provisions of the contract between the Authority and the agency;

“(2) the rental and other charges to be received by the owner shall be negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner, and the rental and other charges to be paid by the tenant shall be determined in accordance with the standards applicable to units in low-rent housing projects assisted under the other provisions of this Act;

“(3) the agency shall have the sole right to give notice to vacate, with the owner having the right to make representations to the agency for termination of a tenancy;

“(4) maintenance and replacements (including redecoration) shall be in accordance with the standard practice for the building concerned, as established by the owner and agreed to by the agency; and

“(5) the agency and the owner shall carry out such other appropriate terms and conditions as may be mutually agreed to by them.

Each contract between a public housing agency and an owner entered into under this subsection shall be for a term of not less than twelve months nor more than thirty-six months, and shall be renewable by such agency and owner at the expiration of such term.

“(e) The annual contribution under this Act for a project of a public housing agency for low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section in lieu of any other guaranteed contribution authorized by section 10 shall not exceed the amount of the fixed annual contribution which would be established under this Act for a newly constructed project by such public housing agency designed to accommodate the comparable number, sizes, and kinds of families. The period over which payments will be made to a public housing agency for a project of low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, and the aggregate amount of such payments, under a contract for annual contributions, shall be determined on the basis of the number of units in the community or communities under the jurisdiction of such agency which are in use (or can reasonably be expected to be placed in use) as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, taking into account the terms of the leases under which such units are (or will be) so used. In addition, contracts for financial assistance entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency pursuant to this section shall provide for reimbursement of reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by such agency in conducting surveys, listings, and inspections described in subsections (b) and (c).

PARITY OF TREATMENT FOR THE HANDICAPPED AND ELDERLY IN PUBLIC HOUSING

SEC. 104. Section 2(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended to read as follows: 78 Stat. 794.

"(2) The term 'families of low income' means families (including elderly and displaced families) who are in the lowest income group and who cannot afford to pay enough to cause private enterprise in their locality or metropolitan area to build an adequate supply of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for their use. The term 'families' includes families consisting of a single person in the case of elderly families and displaced families, and includes the remaining member of a tenant family. The term 'elderly families' means families whose heads (or their spouses), or whose sole members, have attained the age at which an individual may elect to receive an old-age benefit under title II of the Social Security Act, or are under a disability as defined in section 223 of that Act, or are handicapped within the meaning of section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959. The term 'displaced families' means families displaced by urban renewal or other governmental action, or families whose present or former dwellings are situated in areas determined by the Small Business Administration, subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected by a natural disaster, and which have been extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of such disaster." 49 Stat. 622;

DIRECT LOANS TO PROVIDE HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED

SEC. 105. (a) Section 202(a)(4) of the Housing Act of 1959 is amended by striking out "$350,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$500,000,000". 78 Stat. 783.
12 USC 1701q.

(b) Effective with respect to loans made on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, section 202(a)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out "the higher of (A) 2¾ per centum per annum, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or". 73 Stat. 667.

REHABILITATION GRANTS TO HOMEOWNERS IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 106. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section: 63 Stat. 414.
42 USC 1450-1465.

"REHABILITATION GRANTS

"SEC. 115. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator may authorize a local public agency to make grants (and the urban renewal project may include the making of such grants) as prescribed in this section. Any such grant may be made only to an individual or family, as described in subsection (b), who owns and occupies a structure in an urban renewal area, and only for the purpose of covering the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make such structure conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable codes or other requirements of the urban renewal plan for the area. Any contract for financial assistance under this title shall provide that the capital grant otherwise payable for the project shall be increased by an amount equal to the total amount of the grants under this section and that no part of the total amount of such grants shall be required to be contributed as part of the local grant-in-aid.

"(b) A grant authorized by this section may be made to an individual or family whose income does not exceed $3,000 a year, and such grant may be in the amount which does not exceed the lesser of (1) the actual (and approved) cost of the repairs and improvements involved, or (2) $1,500. In case the income of the individual or family exceeds $3,000 a year, a grant may be made under this section, subject to the limitations specified in clauses (1) and (2) of the preceding sentence, but only in an amount not to exceed that portion of the cost of the repairs and improvements which cannot be paid for with any available loan that can be amortized as part of such individual's or family's monthly housing expense without requiring such monthly housing expense to exceed 25 per centum of such individual's or family's monthly income."

(b) Any contract with a local public agency which was executed under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 before the date of enactment of this Act may be amended to provide for grants authorized by section 115 of the Housing Act of 1949.

MORTGAGE RELIEF FOR HOMEOWNERS WHO ARE UNEMPLOYED AS THE RESULT OF THE CLOSING OF A FEDERAL INSTALLATION

SEC. 107. (a) For the purposes of this section—

(1) The term "mortgage" means a mortgage which (A) is insured under the National Housing Act, or (B) secures a home loan guaranteed or insured under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code.

48 Stat. 1246.
12 USC 1701.
58 Stat. 284;
72 Stat. 1203,
1273.
38 USC 1801-
1825.

(2) The term "Federal mortgage agency" means—

(A) the Federal Housing Commissioner when used in connection with mortgages insured under the National Housing Act, and

(B) the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs when used in connection with mortgages securing home loans guaranteed or insured under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code.

(3) The term "distressed mortgagor" means an individual who—

(A) is unemployed, although willing to work, as the result of the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, and

(B) is the owner-occupant of a dwelling upon which there is a mortgage securing a loan which is in default because of the inability of such individual to make payments of principal and/or interest under such mortgage.

(b) (1) Any distressed mortgagor, for the purpose of avoiding foreclosure of his mortgage, may apply to the appropriate Federal mortgage agency for a determination that suspension of his obligation to make payments of principal and/or interest under such mortgage during a temporary period is necessary in order to avoid such foreclosure.

(2) Upon receipt of an application made under this subsection by a distressed mortgagor, the Federal mortgage agency shall issue to such mortgagor a certificate of moratorium if it determines, after consultation with the interested mortgagee, that—

(A) the mortgagor is not in default with respect to any condition or covenant of the mortgage other than that requiring the payment of installments of principal and/or interest under the mortgage, and

Certificate of moratorium.

(B) such action is the only available means whereby a foreclosure of such mortgage can be avoided.

(3) Prior to the issuance to any distressed mortgagor of a certificate of moratorium under paragraph (2), the Federal mortgage agency shall require such mortgagor to enter into a binding agreement under which he will be required to make payments to such agency, after the expiration of such certificate, in an aggregate amount equal to the amount paid by such agency on behalf of such mortgagor as provided in subsection (c). The manner and time in which such payments shall be made shall be determined by the Federal mortgage agency having due regard to the purposes sought to be achieved by this section.

(4) Any certificate of moratorium issued under this subsection shall expire on whichever of the following dates is the earliest—

(A) one year from the date on which such certificate is issued;

(B) thirty days after the date on which the mortgagor to whom such certificate is issued ceases to be a distressed mortgagor as defined in subsection (a); or

(C) the date on which such mortgagor becomes in default with respect to any condition or covenant in his mortgage other than that requiring the payment by him of installments of principal and/or interest under the mortgage.

(c)(1) Whenever a Federal mortgage agency issues a certificate of moratorium to any distressed mortgagor with respect to any mortgage, it shall transmit to the mortgagee a copy of such certificate, together with a notice stating that, while such certificate is in effect, such agency will assume the obligation of such mortgagor to make payments of principal, and, if so specified in the certificate, of interest, under the mortgage.

(2) Payments made by any Federal mortgage agency pursuant to a certificate of moratorium issued under this section with respect to the mortgage of any distressed mortgagor shall include, in addition to the payments referred to in paragraph (1), an amount equal to the unpaid principal and interest charges which had accrued under such mortgage prior to the issuance of such certificate and subsequent to the date on which such mortgagor became a distressed mortgagor as defined in subsection (a).

(3) While any certificate of moratorium issued under this section is in effect with respect to the mortgage of any distressed mortgagor, no further payments of principal, and, if so specified in the certificate, of interest, under the mortgage shall be required of such mortgagor, and no action (legal or otherwise) shall be taken or maintained by the mortgagee to enforce or collect such payments. Upon the expiration of such certificate, the mortgagor shall again be liable for the payment of all amounts due under the mortgage in accordance with its terms.

(4) Each Federal mortgage agency shall give prompt notice in writing to the interested mortgagor and mortgagee of the expiration of any certificate of moratorium issued by it under this section.

(d) The Federal mortgage agencies are authorized to issue such individual and joint regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section and to insure the uniform administration thereof.

(e) There shall be in the Treasury (1) a fund which shall be available to the Federal Housing Commissioner for the purpose of extending financial assistance in behalf of distressed mortgagors as provided in subsection (c), and (2) a fund which shall be available to the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs for the same purpose. The capital of each such fund shall consist of such sums as may, from time to time, be appropriated thereto, and any sums so appropriated shall remain available until expended. Receipts arising from the programs of assistance under subsection (c) shall be credited to the fund from which such assistance was extended. Moneys in either of such funds not needed for current operations, as determined by the Federal Housing Commissioner, or the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, as the case may be, shall be invested in bonds or other obligations of the United States, or paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

79 STAT. 460.

72 Stat. 1212.

(f) Section 1816 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by inserting "(a)" before the text of such section, and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

78 Stat. 380.

"(b) With respect to any loan made under section 1811 which has not been sold as provided in subsection (g) of such section, if the Administrator finds, after there has been a default in the payment of any installment of principal or interest owing on such loan, that the default was due to the fact that the veteran who is obligated under the loan has become unemployed as the result of the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, he shall (1) extend the time for curing the default to such time as he determines is necessary and desirable to enable such veteran to complete payments on such loan, including an extension of time beyond the stated maturity thereof, or (2) modify the terms of such loan for the purpose of changing the amortization provisions thereof by recasting, over the remaining term of the loan, or over such longer period as he may determine, the total unpaid amount then due with the modification to become effective currently or upon the termination of an agreed-upon extension of the period for curing the default."

ACQUISITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTIES SITUATED AT OR NEAR MILITARY BASES WHICH HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO BE CLOSED

SEC. 108. (a) The Secretary of Defense is authorized to acquire title to any property, improved with a one- or two-family dwelling, which is situated at or near a military base or installation which the Department of Defense has, subsequent to November 1, 1964, ordered to be closed in whole or in part, if he determines—

(1) that the owner of such property is, or has been, employed or performing military service, at such base or installation;

(2) that the closing of such base or installation, in whole or in part, has required or will require the termination of such owner's employment or service at such base or installation; and

(3) that as the result of the actual or pending closing of such base or installation there is no present market for the sale of such property upon reasonable terms and conditions.

(b) The purchase price of any property which is situated at or near a military base or installation and is acquired under this section shall be equal to an amount determined by the Secretary of Defense to be the average price at which properties, similar in size, construction, condition, and location to that of the property to be acquired, were sold during a representative period, as determined by the Secretary, prior to the announcement of the intention of the Department of Defense to close all or part of such base or installation.

(c) The title to any property acquired under this section shall be free and clear of any outstanding liens or encumbrances and shall conform to such requirements as the Secretary of Defense shall by regulation require. Such regulations shall also prescribe the terms and conditions under which payments may be made under this section, and decisions by the Secretary regarding such payments, and the terms and conditions under which the same are approved or disapproved, shall be final and conclusive and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(d) Properties acquired under this section shall be transferred to the Federal Housing Commissioner, and the Federal Housing Commissioner shall have power to deal with, rent, renovate, or sell for cash or credit any properties so transferred. Receipts from the management or sale of any such properties may be utilized by the Commissioner to defray expenses arising in connection with the management of such properties, and any part of such receipts not required for such expenses shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

(e) Section 223(a) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (7) and inserting in lieu thereof “; or”; and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (7) a new paragraph as follows:

“(8) executed in connection with the sale by the Commissioner of any housing acquired pursuant to section 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.”

(f) Such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section are hereby authorized to be appropriated, and any sums so appropriated shall remain available until expended.

TITLE II—FHA INSURANCE OPERATIONS

LAND DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 201. (a) The National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

48 Stat. 1246.
12 USC 1701 and note.

“DEFINITIONS

“SEC. 1001. As used in this title—

“(a) the term ‘mortgage’ means a lien or liens on real estate in fee simple, or on a leasehold (1) under a lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renewable, or (2) under a lease having a period of not less than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was executed;

“(b) the term ‘first mortgage’ includes such classes of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances (including but not limited to advances during construction) on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate under the laws of the State in which the real estate is located, together with the credit instrument or instruments, if any, secured thereby, and may be in the form of trust mortgages or mortgage indentures or deeds of trusts securing notes, bonds, or other credit instruments;

"(c) the terms 'mortgage', 'mortgagor', and 'State' have the same meaning as in section 207 of this Act;

"(d) the term 'improvements' means waterlines and water supply installations, sewerlines and sewerage disposal installations, roads, streets, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, storm drainage facilities, and other installations or work, whether on or off the site, which the Commissioner deems necessary or desirable to prepare land primarily for residential and related uses or to provide facilities for public or common use; but such term shall not include any building unless it is (1) a building which is needed in connection with a water supply or sewage disposal installation, or (2) a building, other than a school, which is to be owned and maintained jointly by the property owners; and

"(e) the term 'land development' means the process of making, installing, or constructing improvements.

"BASIC CONDITIONS FOR INSURANCE

"SEC. 1002. (a) The Commissioner is authorized (1) to insure, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, any first mortgage (including advances on such mortgage) in accordance with the provisions of this title, and (2) to make a commitment for the insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of execution of such mortgage or prior to the date of disbursement of the mortgage proceeds. No mortgage shall be insured under this title after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment to insure issued before such date.

"(b) The mortgage shall—

"(1) be executed by a mortgagor, other than a public body, approved by the Commissioner;

"(2) be made to and held by a mortgagee approved by the Commissioner; and

"(3) cover the land to be developed and the improvements to be made with the assistance of the mortgage insurance under this title, except facilities intended for public use and in public ownership.

"(c) The principal obligation of the mortgage shall (1) not exceed 75 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of the property upon completion of the land development, and (2) not exceed the sum of 50 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of the land before development and 90 per centum of his estimate of the cost of such development. The outstanding principal obligations of mortgages involving a single land development undertaking, as defined by the Commissioner, shall at no time exceed $10,000,000.

"(d) The mortgage shall—

"(1) have a maturity not to exceed seven years or such longer maturity as the Commissioner deems reasonable in the case of a privately owned system for water or sewerage, and contain repayment provisions satisfactory to the Commissioner;

"(2) bear interest at a rate satisfactory to the Commissioner, and such interest shall be exclusive of premium charges for mortgage insurance and such service charges and fees as may be approved by the Commissioner; and

"(3) contain such terms and provisions with respect to protection of the security, payment of taxes, delinquency charges, prepayment, additional and secondary liens, and other matters as the Commissioner may in his discretion prescribe.

"(e) A property or project to be financed by a mortgage insured under this title shall—

"(1) represent a good mortgage insurance risk; and

"(2) involve improvements that comply with all applicable State and local governmental requirements and with minimum standards approved by the Commissioner.

"LAND PLANNING

"SEC. 1003. (a) The land development covered by a mortgage insured under this title shall be undertaken pursuant to a schedule, conforming to such requirements and procedures as the Commissioner may prescribe, that will assure the use of the land for the purposes for which it is to be developed within the shortest reasonable period consistent with the objectives of sound and economic community growth or urban development.

"(b) The land development shall be undertaken in accordance with an overall development plan, appropriate to the scope and character of the undertaking, which—

"(2) is acceptable to the Commissioner as providing reasonable assurance that the land development will contribute to good living conditions in the area being developed, which area (A) will have a sound economic base and a long economic life, (B) will be characterized by sound land-use patterns, and (C) will include or be served by such shopping, school, recreational, transportation, and other facilities as the Commissioner deems adequate or necessary; and

"(3) is consistent with a comprehensive plan which covers, or with comprehensive planning being carried on for, the area in which the land is situated, and which meets criteria established by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator for such plans or planning.

"ENCOURAGEMENT OF SMALL BUILDERS AND MODERATE COST HOUSING

"SEC. 1004. The Commissioner shall adopt such requirements as he deems necessary in land development covered by mortgages insured under this title to encourage the maintenance of a diversified local homebuilding industry, broad participation by builders, and the inclusion of a proper balance of housing for families of moderate or low income.

"WATER AND SEWERAGE FACILITIES

"SEC. 1005. After development of the land it shall be served by public systems for water and sewerage which are consistent with other existing or prospective systems within the area, except that the Commissioner may approve an adequate privately or cooperatively owned system which will be regulated in a manner acceptable to him with respect to user rates and charges, capital structure, methods of operation, rate of return, and conditions and terms of any sale or transfer.

"RELEASES

"SEC. 1006. The Commissioner may, on such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, consent to the release or subordination of a part or parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the mortgage.

"PREMIUMS AND FEES

"SEC. 1007. The Commissioner shall collect reasonable premiums for the insurance of any mortgage under this title and make such charges as he determines are reasonable for the analysis of the land development plan and the appraisal and inspection of the property and improvements. On or before January 1, 1967, the Commissioner shall make a report to the Congress concerning the premium rates and other charges under this title that he estimates will be adequate to provide income sufficient for a self-supporting program.

Report to Congress.

"INSURANCE BENEFITS

"SEC. 1008. The provisions of subsections (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 of this Act shall be applicable to mortgages insured under this title, except that as applied to such mortgages (1) any reference therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to this title, and (2) any reference to an annual premium shall be deemed to refer to such premiums as the Commissioner may designate under this title.

52 Stat. 16.
12 USC 1713.

"INCONTESTABILITY PROVISIONS

"SEC. 1009. Any contract of insurance executed by the Commissioner under this title shall be conclusive evidence of the eligibility of the mortgage for insurance, and the validity of any contract of insurance so executed shall be incontestable in the hands of an approved mortgagee from the date of the execution of such contract, except for fraud or material misrepresentation on the part of such approved mortgagee.

"RULES AND REGULATIONS

"SEC. 1010. The Commissioner is authorized to make such rules and regulations and to require such agreements as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this title.

"TAXATION PROVISIONS

"SEC. 1011. Nothing in this title shall be construed to exempt any real property acquired and held by the Commissioner under this title from taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

"COST CERTIFICATION

"SEC. 1012. (a) The Commissioner shall adopt such requirements as he determines necessary to assure, at reasonable intervals of time during land development and upon completion of such development, that the amount of the mortgage loan outstanding at each such interval does not exceed with respect to that portion of the land remaining under the lien of the mortgage (1) 50 per centum of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of such remaining land before development, plus (2) 90 per centum of the actual costs of the development allocated by the Commissioner to such remaining land.

"(b) From time to time during, and upon completion of, the development, the Commissioner shall require the mortgagor to certify as to the actual costs of development of the land.

"(c) Certifications required pursuant to this section shall be accompanied by such data and records as the Commissioner shall prescribe.

"(d) A mortgagor's certification approved by the Commissioner shall be final and incontestable except for fraud or material misrepresentation on the part of the mortgagor.

"(e) As used in this section, the term 'actual costs' means the costs (exclusive of kickbacks, rebates, or trade discounts) to the mortgagor of the improvements involved. These costs may include amounts paid for labor, materials, construction contracts, land planning, engineers' and architect's fees, surveys, taxes, and interest during development, organizational and legal expenses, such allocation of general overhead expenses as are acceptable to the Commissioner, and other items of expense incidental to development which may be approved by the Commissioner. If the Commissioner determines there is an identity of interest between the mortgagor and the contractor, there may be included an allowance for contractor's profit in an amount deemed reasonable by the Commissioner."

(b) (1) Section 302(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "the term 'mortgages'" in the last sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "the terms 'mortgages' and 'home mortgages'". 75 Stat. 158.
12 USC 1717.

(2) The first paragraph of section 24 of the Federal Reserve Act is amended by inserting before the next to last sentence the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the foregoing limitations and restrictions in this section, any national banking association may make loans for land development which are secured by mortgages insured under title X of the National Housing Act." 69 Stat. 633.
12 USC 371.

(3) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph: 48 Stat. 132.
12 USC 1464.

"Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, any such association may, to such extent as the Federal Home Loan Bank Board may by regulation permit, invest in loans, and interests in loans, (1) secured by mortgages as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under title X of the National Housing Act or of a commitment or agreement for such insurance, or (2) guaranteed by the President under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. Investments under clause (1) of this paragraph shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection. Investments under clause (2) of this paragraph shall not exceed, in the case of any association, 1 per centum of the assets of such association."

75 Stat. 432.
22 USC 2184.

(4) Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: "The provisions of this section shall also apply to insurance under title X with respect to laborers and mechanics employed in land development financed with the proceeds of any mortgage insured under that title." 53 Stat. 807.
12 USC 1715c.

MUTUALITY FOR MANAGEMENT-TYPE COOPERATIVES

Cooperative Management Housing
Insurance Fund.
64 Stat. 54.
12 USC 1715e.

SEC. 208. (a) Section 213 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsections:

“(k) There is hereby created a Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the ‘Management Fund’). The Management Fund shall be used by the Commissioner as a revolving fund for carrying out the provisions of this section with respect to mortgages or loans insured, on or after the date of the enactment of this subsection, under subsections (a) (1), (a) (3) (if the project is acquired by a cooperative corporation), (i), and (j). The Management Fund shall also be used as a revolving fund for mortgages, loans, and commitments transferred to it pursuant to subsection (m). The Commissioner is directed to transfer to the Management Fund from the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to section 519 such amount as the Commissioner determines to be necessary and appropriate. General expenses of operation of the Federal Housing Administration relating to mortgages or loans which are the obligation of the Management Fund may be charged to the Management Fund.

Post, p. 471.

General Surplus
Accounts; Participating
Reserve Accounts.

“(l) The Commissioner shall establish in the Management Fund, as of the date of the enactment of this subsection, a General Surplus Account and a Participating Reserve Account. The aggregate net income thereafter received or any net loss thereafter sustained by the Management Fund, in any semiannual period, shall be credited or charged to the General Surplus Account or the Participating Reserve Account or both in such manner and amounts as the Commissioner may determine to be in accord with sound actuarial and accounting practice. Upon termination of the insurance obligation of the Management Fund by payment of any mortgage or loan insured under this section, and at such time or times prior to such termination as the Commissioner may determine, the Commissioner is authorized to distribute to the mortgagor or borrower a share of the Participating Reserve Account in such manner and amount as the Commissioner shall determine to be equitable and in accordance with sound actuarial and accounting practice: Provided, That in no event shall the amount of the distributable share exceed the aggregate scheduled annual premiums of the mortgagor or borrower to the year of payment of the share less the total amount of any share or shares previously distributed by the Commissioner to the mortgagor or borrower: And provided further, That in no event may a distributable share be distributed until any funds transferred from the General Insurance Fund to the Management Fund pursuant to subsection (k) or (o) have been repaid in full to the General Insurance Fund. No mortgagor, mortgagee, borrower, or lender shall have any vested right in a credit balance in any such account or be subject to any liability arising out of the mutuality of the Management Fund. The determination of the Commissioner as to the amount to be paid by him to any mortgagor or borrower shall be final and conclusive.

"(m) The Commissioner is authorized to transfer to the Management Fund commitments for insurance issued under subsections (a) (1), (i), and (j) prior to the date of the enactment of this subsection, and to transfer to the Management Fund the insurance of any mortgage or loan insured prior to the date of the enactment of this subsection under subsection (a) (1), (a) (3) (if the project is acquired by a cooperative corporation), (i), or (j), but only in cases where the consent of the mortgagee or lender to the transfer is obtained or a request by the mortgagee or lender for the transfer is received by the Commissioner within such period of time after the date of the enactment of this subsection as the Commissioner shall prescribe: Provided, That the insurance of any mortgage or loan shall not be transferred under the provisions of this subsection if on the date of the enactment of this subsection the mortgage or loan is in default and the mortgagee or lender has notified the Commissioner in writing of its intention to file an insurance claim. Any insurance or commitment not so transferred shall continue to be an obligation of the General Insurance Fund.

"(n) Notwithstanding the limitations contained in other provisions of this Act, premium charges for mortgages or loans insured under this section and sections 207, 231, and 232 may be payable in debentures issued in connection with mortgages or loans transferred to the Management Fund or in connection with mortgages or loans insured pursuant to commitments transferred to the Management Fund, as provided in subsection (m) of this section.

52 Stat. 16;
73 Stat. 665,
663.
12 USC 1713,
1715v, 1715w.

"(o) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Commissioner is authorized to transfer funds between the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund and the General Insurance Fund in such amounts and at such times as he may determine, taking into consideration the requirements of each such Fund, to assist in carrying out effectively the insurance programs for which such Funds were respectively established."

(b) Section 213 of such Act is further amended—

64 Stat. 54.
12 USC 1715e.

(1) by inserting before the period at the end of subsection (a) the following: " : Provided, That as applied to mortgages the mortgage insurance for which is the obligation of the Management Fund, the reference to the General Insurance Fund in section 207(b) (2) shall be construed to refer to the Management Fund"; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of subsection (e) the following: " : Provided, That as applied to mortgages or loans the insurance for which is the obligation of the Management Fund (1) all references to the General Insurance Fund shall be construed to refer to the Management Fund, and (2) all references to section 207 shall be construed to refer to subsections (a) (1), (a) (3) (if the project involved is acquired by a cooperative corporation), (i), and (j) of this section".

REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 209. Section 220(d) (3) (A) of the National Housing Act is amended—

71 Stat. 296.
75 Stat. 154.
12 USC 1715k.

(1) by striking out the second proviso in clause (i); and

(2) by striking out clause (ii) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(ii) in a case where the mortgagor is not the occupant of the property and intends to hold the property for rental purposes, have a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed 93 per centum of the amount computed under the provisions of clause (i);

"(iii) in a case where the mortgagor is not the occupant of the property and intends to hold the property for the purpose of sale, have a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed 85 per centum of the amount computed under the provisions of clause (i), or in the alternative, in an amount equal to the amount computed under the provisions of clause (i) if the mortgagor and mortgagee assume responsibility in a manner satisfactory to the Commissioner for the reduction of the mortgage by an amount not less than 15 per centum of the outstanding principal amount thereof, or by such greater amount as may be required to meet the limitations of clause (iv), in the event the mortgaged property is not, prior to the due date of the eighteenth amortization payment of the mortgage, sold to a purchaser acceptable to the Commissioner who is the occupant of the property and who assumes and agrees to pay the mortgage indebtedness; and

"(iv) in no case involving refinancing (except as provided in clause (iii)) have a principal obligation in an amount exceeding the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Commissioner) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property or project, plus any existing indebtedness incurred in connection with improving, repairing, or rehabilitating the property; or".

NONDWELLING FACILITIES FOR URBAN RENEWAL HOUSING

73 Stat. 658.
12 USC 1715k.

SEC. 210. Section 220(d)(3)(B) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out clause (iv) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(iv) include such nondwelling facilities as the Commissioner deems desirable and consistent with the urban renewal plan: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage shall be found by the Commissioner to contribute to the economic feasibility of the project, and the Commissioner shall give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community."

LARGER HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS IN HIGH COST AREAS

75 Stat. 155.

SEC. 211. (a) Section 220(h)(2)(i) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof "Provided, That the Commissioner may, by regulation, increase such amount by not to exceed 45 per centum in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require".

78 Stat. 778.

(b) Section 220(h)(11) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof "or such additional amount as the Commissioner has by regulation prescribed in any geographical area where he finds cost levels so require pursuant to the authority vested in him by the proviso in paragraph (2)(i) of this subsection".

LARGER INSURED MORTGAGES FOR SERVICEMEN

71 Stat. 296;
73 Stat. 661.
12 USC 1715m.

SEC. 212. Section 222(b) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "$20,000" in paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "$30,000"; and

(2) by striking out paragraph (3) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(3) have a principal obligation not in excess of the sum of (i) 97 per centum of $15,000 of the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, (ii) 90 per centum of such value in excess of $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and (iii) 85 per centum of such value in excess of $20,000; and”.

REFINANCING OF INSURED MORTGAGES

SEC. 213. Section 223(a)(7) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out “section 608 of title VI prior to the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954 or under section 220, 221, 903, or section 908” and inserting in lieu thereof “this Act”. 12 USC 1715n.

CONSOLIDATION OF FHA INSURANCE FUNDS

SEC. 214. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section: 12 USC 1731a-1735b.

“ESTABLISHMENT OF GENERAL INSURANCE FUND

“SEC. 519. (a) There is hereby created a General Insurance Fund which shall be used by the Commissioner, on and after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as a revolving fund for carrying out all the insurance provisions of this Act with the exception of those specified in subsection (e). All mortgages or loans insured under this Act pursuant to commitments issued on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in subsection (e), and all loans reported for insurance under section 2 on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, shall be insured under the General Insurance Fund. The Commissioner shall transfer to the General Insurance Fund—

“(1) the assets and liabilities of all insurance accounts and funds, except the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund, existing under this Act immediately prior to the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

“(2) all outstanding commitments for insurance issued prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in subsection (e);

“(3) the insurance on all mortgages and loans insured prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except insurance specified in subsection (e); and

“(4) the insurance of all loans made by approved financial institutions pursuant to section 2 prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

“(b) The general expenses of the operations of the Federal Housing Administration relating to mortgages and loans which are the obligation of the General Insurance Fund may be charged to the General Insurance Fund.

“(c) Moneys in the General Insurance Fund not needed for the current operations of the Federal Housing Administration with respect to mortgages and loans which are the obligation of the General Insurance Fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of such Fund, or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States. The Commissioner may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in the open market debentures issued as obligations of the General Insurance Fund or issued prior to the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 under other provisions of this Act, except debentures issued under the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from other investments authorized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued.

"(d) Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, and appraisal and other fees received on account of the insurance of any mortgage or loan which is the obligation of the General Insurance Fund, the receipts derived from the property covered by such mortgages and loans and from the claims, debts, contracts, property, and security assigned to the Commissioner in connection therewith, and all earnings on the assets of the Fund shall be credited to the General Insurance Fund. The principal of, and interest paid and to be paid on, debentures which are the obligation of such Fund, cash insurance payments and adjustments, and expenses incurred in the handling, management, renovation, and disposal of properties acquired, in connection with mortgages and loans which are the obligation of such Fund, shall be charged to such Fund.

1715e.

Ante, p. 468.

"(e) The General Insurance Fund shall not be used for carrying out the provisions of sections 203(b), 203(h), and 203(i), or the provisions of section 213 to the extent that they involve mortgages the insurance for which is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund created by section 213(k); and nothing in this section shall apply to or affect any mortgages, loans, commitments, or insurance under such provisions."

OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

SEC. 215. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 214 of this Act) the following new section:

"OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

"SEC. 520. (a) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act with respect to the payment of insurance benefits, the Commissioner is authorized, in his discretion, to pay in cash or in debentures any insurance claim or part thereof which is paid on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 on a mortgage or a loan which was insured under any section of this Act either before or after such date. If payment is made in cash, it shall be in an amount equivalent to the face amount of the debentures that would otherwise be issued plus an amount equivalent to the interest which the debentures would have earned, computed to a date to be established pursuant to regulations issued by the Commissioner.

"(b) The Commissioner is authorized to borrow from the Treasury from time to time such amounts as the Commissioner shall determine are necessary to make payments in cash (in lieu of issuing debentures guaranteed by the United States, as provided in this Act) pursuant to the provisions of this section. Notes or other obligations issued by the Commissioner in borrowing under this subsection shall be subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. Each sum borrowed pursuant to this subsection shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States of comparable maturities during the month preceding the issuance of such notes or other obligations."

APPROVAL OF TECHNICALLY SUITABLE MATERIALS

SEC. 216. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after section 520 (added by section 215 of this Act) a new section as follows:

"APPROVAL OF TECHNICALLY SUITABLE MATERIALS

"SEC. 521. The Commissioner shall adopt a uniform procedure for the acceptance of materials and products to be used in structures approved for mortgages or loans insured under this Act. Under such procedure any material or product which the Commissioner finds is technically suitable for the use proposed shall be accepted. Acceptance of a material or product as technically suitable shall not be deemed to restrict the discretion of the Commissioner to determine that a structure, with respect to which a mortgage is executed, is economically sound or an acceptable risk."

WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES IN CONNECTION WITH CERTAIN FEDERALLY ASSISTED HOUSING

SEC. 217. (a) Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after section 521 (added by section 216 of this Act) a new section as follows:

"WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

"SEC. 522. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, no mortgage which covers new construction shall be approved for insurance under this Act (except pursuant to a commitment made prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965) if the mortgaged property includes housing which is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system: Provided, That this limitation shall be applicable only to property which is not served by a system approved by the Commissioner pursuant to title X of this Act and which is situated in an area certified by appropriate local officials to be an area where the establishment of public or adequate community water and sewerage systems is economically feasible: Provided further, That for purposes of this section the economic feasibility of establishing such public or adequate community water and sewerage systems shall be determined without regard to whether such establishment is authorized by law or is subject to approval by one or more local governments or public bodies."

Ante, p. 461.

(b) Section 1804 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows: 72 Stat. 1206.

"(e) No loan for the purchase or construction of new residential property (other than property served by a water and sewerage system approved by the Federal Housing Commissioner pursuant to title X of the National Housing Act) shall be financed through the assistance of this chapter, except pursuant to a commitment made prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, if such property is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system and is located in an area where the appropriate local officials certify that the establishment of such systems is economically feasible. For purposes of this subsection, the economic feasibility of establishing public or adequate community water and sewerage systems shall be determined without regard to whether such establishment is authorized by law or is subject to approval by one or more local governments or public bodies."

TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL

STUDY OF HOUSING AND BUILDING CODES, ZONING, TAX POLICIES, AND DEVELOPMENT STANDARDS

SEC. 301. (a) The Congress finds that the general welfare of the Nation requires that local authorities be encouraged and aided to prevent slums, blight, and sprawl, preserve natural beauty, and provide for decent, durable housing so that the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family may be realized as soon as feasible. The Congress further finds that there is a need to study housing and building codes, zoning, tax policies, and development standards in order to determine how (1) local property owners and private enterprise can be encouraged to serve as large a part as they can of the total housing and building need, and (2) Federal, State, and local governmental assistance can be so directed as to place greater reliance on local property owners and private enterprise and enable them to serve a greater share of the total housing and building need. The Housing and Home Finance Administrator is therefore directed to study the structure of (1) State and local urban and suburban housing and building laws, standards, codes, and regulations and their impact on housing and building costs, how they can be simplified, improved, and enforced, at the local level, and what methods might be adopted to promote more uniform building codes and the acceptance of technical innovations including new building practices and materials; (2) State and local zoning and land use laws, codes, and regulations, to find ways by which States and localities may improve and utilize them in order to obtain further growth and development; and (3) Federal, State, and local tax policies with respect to their effect on land and property cost and on incentives to build housing and make improvements in existing structures.

Report to President and Congress.

(b) The Administrator shall submit a report based on such study to the President and to the Congress within 18 months after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 or the appropriation of funds for the study, whichever is later.

(c) There are authorized to be appropriated such funds as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section. Any funds so appropriated shall remain available until expended.

WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT

68 Stat. 623.
42 USC 1451.

SEC. 302. (a) (1) Section 101 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(e) No loan or grant contract may be entered into by the Administrator for an urban renewal project unless he determines that (1) the workable program for community improvement presented by the locality pursuant to subsection (c) is of sufficient scope and content to furnish a basis for evaluation of the need for the urban renewal project; and (2) such project is in accord with the program.”

(2) The requirements imposed by the amendment made by paragraph (1) shall not be applicable to any project which received Federal recognition prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) Section 101(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: “Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in the case of a contract with an Indian tribe, band, or nation (or a public housing or other public agency for such tribe, band, or nation established under State or tribal law), the workable program and minimum standards housing code, referred to in the preceding sentence, may be presented to the Administrator by such tribe, band, or nation, and it shall be subject to the requirements of law with respect to such program and code only to the extent that such tribe, band, or nation has the legal jurisdiction and power to carry out such requirements."

GENERAL NEIGHBORHOOD RENEWAL PLANS

SEC. 303. Section 102(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended— 70 Stat. 1099.

(1) by striking out the first sentence of the second paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 42 USC 1452.

"In order to facilitate proper preliminary planning for the attainment of the urban renewal objectives of this title, the Administrator may also make advances of funds (in addition to those authorized above) to local public agencies for the preparation of General Neighborhood Renewal Plans (as herein defined). A General Neighborhood Renewal Plan may be prepared for an area consisting of an urban renewal area or areas, together with any adjoining areas having specially related problems, and which is of such size that the urban renewal activities in the urban renewal area or areas may have to be initiated in stages, consistent with the capacity and resources of the respective local public agency or agencies, over an estimated period of not more than eight years."; and

(2) by striking out the first numbered paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(1) in the interest of sound community planning, it is desirable that the urban renewal activities proposed for the area be planned in their entirety";.

INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR CAPITAL GRANTS

SEC. 304. (a) The first sentence of section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "$4,725,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$4,700,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $675,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, by $725,000,000 on July 1, 1966, and by $750,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1967 and 1968". 78 Stat. 785.
42 USC 1453.

(b) The proviso in the first sentence of section 103(b) of such Act, and the second sentence of section 6(b) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, are repealed. Repeals.

78 Stat. 305.
49 USC 1605.

RELOCATION OF DISPLACED FROM URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 305. (a) Section 105(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows: 63 Stat. 417.
42 USC 1455.

"(c) (1) There shall be a feasible method for the temporary relocation of individuals and families displaced from the urban renewal area, and there are or are being provided, in the urban renewal area or in other areas not generally less desirable in regard to public utilities and public and commercial facilities and at rents or prices within the financial means of the individuals and families displaced from the urban renewal area, decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings equal in number to the number of and available to such displaced individuals and families and reasonably accessible to their places of employment. The Administrator shall issue rules and regulations to aid in implementing the requirements of this subsection and in otherwise achieving the objectives of this title. Such rules and regulations shall require that there be established, at the earliest practicable time, for each urban renewal project involving the displacement of individuals, families, and business concerns occupying property in the urban renewal area, a relocation assistance program which shall include such measures, facilities, and services as may be necessary or appropriate in order (A) to determine the needs of such individuals, families, and business concerns for relocation assistance; (B) to provide information and assistance to aid in relocation and otherwise minimize the hardships of displacement, including information as to real estate agencies, brokers, and boards in or near the urban renewal area which deal in residential or business property that might be appropriate for the relocating of displaced individuals, families, and business concerns; and (C) to assure the necessary coordination of relocation activities with other project activities and other planned or proposed governmental actions in the community which may affect the carrying out of the relocation program, particularly planned or proposed low-rent housing projects to be constructed in or near the urban renewal area.

“(2) As a condition to further assistance after the enactment of this paragraph with respect to each urban renewal project involving the displacement of individuals and families, the Administrator shall require, within a reasonable time prior to actual displacement, satisfactory assurance by the local public agency that decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings as required by the first sentence of this subsection are available for the relocation of each such individual or family.”

68 Stat. 623;
75 Stat 153.
42 USC 1451.

(b) Clause (iii) in the second proviso of section 101(c) of such Act is amended by striking out “section 105(c)” and inserting in lieu thereof “section 105(c)(1)”.

(c) The requirements imposed by the amendment made by subsection (a) of this section shall not be applicable to any project which received Federal recognition prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

REDEVELOPMENT IN ACCORDANCE WITH URBAN RENEWAL PLAN

63 Stat. 417.
42 USC 1456.

SEC. 306. Section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, no contract shall be entered into for any loan or capital grant under this title with any local public agency unless the local public agency establishes, by evidence satisfactory to the Administrator, that any urban renewal project with respect to which such local public agency has received a loan or capital grant under this title has been, or will be, undertaken and carried out in substantial accordance with the urban renewal plan, and any amendments thereto, approved with respect to such project, and the terms of the contract for loan or capital grant covering such project.”

USE OF GRANT OR LOAN FUNDS IN CODE ENFORCEMENT AND REHABILITATION PROJECTS

78 Stat. 787.
42 USC 1460.

SEC. 307. The first unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs in section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by inserting “(A)” before “no contract”; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of the paragraph the following: “, and (B) not less than 10 per centum of the aggregate amount of (i) grants authorized to be contracted for under this title by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and subsequent Acts, and (ii) loans authorized to be made under section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964, shall be available for projects assisted with such grants or loans which involve primarily code enforcement and rehabilitation”.

PRESERVATION OF HISTORIC STRUCTURES

SEC. 309. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

- (1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (7);
- (2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (8) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and";

- (3) by inserting a new paragraph (9) as follows:

"(9) relocating within the project area a structure which the local public agency determines to be of historic value and which will be disposed of to a public body or a private nonprofit organization which will renovate and maintain such structure for historic purposes."; and

- (4) by striking out "paragraphs (7) and (8)" in the second unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraphs (7), (8), and (9)".

(b) Section 110(e) of such Act is amended by striking out "and (8)" in clause (i) and inserting in lieu thereof "(8), and (9)".

ELIGIBILITY OF CERTAIN EXPENSES OF PROJECTS FINANCED ON THREE-FOURTHS GRANT BASIS

SEC. 310. (a) Clause (i) of the third sentence of section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by (1) inserting "staff services in connection with programs of code enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation and repair (including community organization)," after "disposition of land,"; and (2) inserting "(5)," after "(4)".

(b) Any contract for a capital grant under title I of the Housing Act of 1949, executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act, may be amended to incorporate the provisions of subsection (a) as to costs incurred on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

1465.

DEMOLITION OF UNSAFE STRUCTURES; CODE ENFORCEMENT

SEC. 311. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after section 115 (added by section 106 of this Act) two new sections as follows:

"DEMOLITION

"SEC. 116. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties to assist in financing the cost of demolishing structures which under State or local law have been determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation, and which such city, municipality, or county has authority to demolish. The amount of

63 Stat. 416.
42 USC 1453.

any grant under this section shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the demolition of such structures.

“(b) No grant shall be made under this section unless the structures to be demolished are located in an urban renewal area, or, in the case of structures outside an urban renewal area, (1) the locality involved has an approved workable program for community improvement in accordance with the requirements of section 101(c), as determined by the Administrator, (2) the demolition to be assisted will be on a planned neighborhood basis and will further the over-all renewal objectives of such locality, (3) there is in such locality a program of enforcement of existing local housing and related codes, (4) the structures to be demolished constitute a public nuisance and a serious hazard to the public health or welfare, and (5) the governing body of such locality has determined that other available legal procedures have been exhausted to secure remedial action by the owner of the structures involved and that demolition by governmental action is required.

“CODE ENFORCEMENT

“SEC. 117. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the purpose of assisting such localities in carrying out programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas in which such enforcement, together with those public improvements to be provided by the locality, may be expected to arrest the decline of the area. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any city, other municipality, or county having a population of 50,000 or less according to the most recent decennial census) of the cost of planning and carrying out such programs which may include the provision and repair of necessary streets, curbs, sidewalks, street lighting, tree planting, and similar improvements within such areas. The Administrator shall not make any grant under this section unless he has obtained adequate assurances (1) that the locality will maintain during the period of the contract, in addition to its expenditures for planning and carrying out any program assisted under this section, a level of expenditures for code enforcement activities at not less than its normal expenditures for such activities prior to the execution of such contract, and (2) that the locality has a satisfactory program for the provision of all necessary public improvements for such areas. The provisions of sections 101(c), 106, 114, and 115 shall be applicable to activities and undertakings assisted under this section to the same extent as if such activities and undertakings were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project.”

(b) Section 110(c) of such Act is amended by—

(1) striking out “or a program of code enforcement in an urban renewal area,” in the first sentence; and

(2) striking out the proviso in paragraph (5).

(c) Section 220(d) (1) (A) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting before the first proviso the following: “, or (iv) an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949”.

(d) Section 220(h) (1) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after “urban renewal project” in the first sentence the following: “or in an area in which a program of concentrated code enforce-

REHABILITATION LOANS

SEC. 312. (a) Section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended by striking out "reasonable" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "comparable".

(b) Section 312(d) of such Act is amended by striking out "$50,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$100,000,000 for each fiscal year", and by adding at the end thereof a new sentence as follows: "All moneys in such revolving fund shall be available for necessary expenses of servicing loans made pursuant to this section, including reimbursement or payment for services and facilities of the Federal National Mortgage Association and of any public or private agency for the servicing of such loans."

(c) Section 312 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) No loan shall be made under the authority of this section after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a contract, commitment, or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date."

ELIGIBILITY OF COMMUNITIES IN DEPRESSED AREAS FOR URBAN RENEWAL ASSISTANCE

SEC. 313. (a) Subparagraph (B) of section 103(a)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

75 Stat. 165.
42 USC 1453.

"(B) three-fourths of the aggregate net project costs of any such projects which are located in (i) a municipality having a population of fifty thousand or less according to the most recent decennial census, or (ii) a municipality situated in a labor market area which, at the time the contract or contracts involved are entered into or at such earlier time as the Administrator may specify in order to avoid hardship, is designated as a redevelopment area under the second sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act or any other legislation enacted after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 containing standards for designation as a redevelopment area generally comparable to those set forth in the second sentence of section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act, and".

75 Stat. 48.
42 USC 2504.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply only with respect to urban renewal projects placed under contract for capital grant on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, except that such amendment shall apply with respect to all urban renewal projects in the city of Providence, Rhode Island, placed under contract for capital grant during the period Providence was designated as a redevelopment area under section 5(a) of the Area Redevelopment Act (or at such earlier time as the Administrator may specify in order to avoid hardship) and not completed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

LOCAL GRANT-IN-AID CREDIT FOR CERTAIN COAL ROYALTIES

SEC. 314. (a) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

68 Stat. 628.
42 USC 1460.

"Where a project in any municipality includes an area affected by an underground mine fire or by a coal mine subsidence and where it is necessary in such project to remove any underlying coal deposits in order to stabilize the soil or to control the underground mine fire, then any royalties received by the project from the removal and sale of such coal deposits shall be credited to the project as a local grant-in-aid made by such municipality."

(b) Any contract under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act shall, at the request of the municipality involved, be amended to reflect the amendment made by subsection (a).

SPECIFIC URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS

SEC. 315. (a) (1) Notwithstanding the date of the commencement of construction of the Tanyard Creek collector sanitary sewer in Jasper, Alabama, local expenditures made in connection with this collector sanitary sewer system shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the downtown urban renewal project (Alabama R-49) in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

(2) Notwithstanding the date of the commencement of construction of the East Side High School and the start of construction of the improvements to Hickory Creek in Joliet, Illinois, expenditures made in connections with such high school and such creek improvements shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the proposed south central urban renewal project in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

(3) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of the installation of certain underground electrical wiring in Johnson City, Tennessee, expenditures made in connection with such installation shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to Johnson City's proposed downtown urban renewal project (Tennessee R-80) in accordance with the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

(4) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 312 of the Housing Act of 1954 or any request previously made pursuant to such section, upon request of the local public agency the eligibility of the local grants-in-aid for any project in the city of New Brunswick, New Jersey, in connection with which the final capital grant payment has not been made, shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949.

(5) Two-thirds of all expenditures by the city of Saint Louis, Missouri, in connection with its Downtown Sports Stadium project, to the extent such expenditures would have been eligible under the provisions of section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 to be counted as non-cash grants-in-aid toward such project if it had received Federal assistance as an urban renewal project pursuant to the provisions of title I of such Act, shall be eligible to be counted as a grant-in-aid toward any federally-assisted urban renewal projects in Saint Louis.

(6) Notwithstanding the extent to which the cultural and convention center proposed to be built adjacent to Urban Renewal Project Colorado R-15 (Skyline) in Denver, Colorado, may benefit areas other than the urban renewal area, expenses incurred by the city of Denver in constructing such center shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a grant-in-aid toward such project.

(7) Notwithstanding the extent to which the cultural and convention center proposed to be built within Urban Renewal Project R-8 in Norfolk, Virginia, may benefit areas other than the urban renewal area, expenses incurred by the city of Norfolk in constructing such center shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a grant-in-aid toward such project.

(8) Expenses incurred in the construction of the Glenn Duncan Elementary School and the Fred W. Traner Junior High School in Reno, Nevada, shall not be deemed to be ineligible as a local grant-in-aid in connection with the Northeast Urban Renewal Project (Nevada R-2) because of any change in the urban renewal plan for such project which is determined by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator to have resulted from the proposed location of a federally-aided highway within or adjacent to the urban renewal area in which such project was undertaken. For the purpose of computing the portion of the cost of such schools which may be allowed as a local grant-in-aid, the degree of benefit of the schools to such urban renewal area shall be based on the latest estimate of benefit submitted by the local public agency and accepted by the Administrator prior to such change in the urban renewal plan.

(9) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 112(a) of the Housing Act of 1949, expenditures in the amount of $600,000 made by the Memorial Hospital of Michigan City Foundation, Incorporated, for the purchase of certain land and buildings on or about July 24, 1963, from Doctors Hospital Realty Corporation shall, if otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid to the community center numbered 1 urban renewal project (Indiana R-46) in Michigan City, Indiana, in accordance with the remaining provisions of title I of that Act.

75 Stat. 169.
42 USC 1463.

(10) The provisions of section 113(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 shall be applicable to the Hobo Jungle Urban Renewal Project in Texarkana, Arkansas (Arkansas R-3).

75 Stat. 58.
42 USC 1464.

(11) Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Pulaski, Showalter, and Smedley Junior High Schools, and the William Penn and Stetser Elementary Schools in Chester, Pennsylvania, local expenditures made in connection with such schools shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as local grants-in-aid for federally-assisted urban renewal projects in Chester that will be served by such schools.

(12) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, moneys heretofore expended by the University of Pennsylvania and Wilkes College for land (and related expenditures for demolition and relocation) included in the overall development plans proposed by such institutions and utilized, or to be utilized, in connection with new facilities of such institutions within one mile of urban renewal projects Pennsylvania 5-3 (University City) and Pennsylvania R-149 (Wright Street), respectively, shall, if otherwise eligible, be allowed as local grants-in-aid for such projects.

(13) Notwithstanding the June, 1956, commencement of certain flood control work in Ottumwa, Iowa, local expenditures in connection with such flood control work shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the Marina Gateway urban renewal project (Iowa R-12) in accordance with the provisions of Title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

42 USC 1450-1465.

(b)(1) Notwithstanding the provisions of title I of the Housing Act of 1949 and the United States Housing Act of 1937, the Housing and Home Finance Administrator and the Public Housing Commissioner are authorized and directed to consent to the transfer by the Housing Authority of the City of Macon, Georgia, to the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon, Georgia, of all property acquired by the Housing Authority for low-rent housing project numbered Georgia 7-8, on condition that (A) an amount which, together with any funds of the Housing Authority available for the purpose, is sufficient to pay and discharge all obligations incurred by the Housing Authority in connection with such low-rent housing project and owing at the time of transfer, will be paid by the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon to the Public Housing Administration to be applied in satisfaction of the Housing Authority's obligations which it cannot meet with its own funds available for the purpose, and (B) the total amount so paid by the Urban Renewal Department of the City of Macon will be included in the gross project cost of its Coliseum Urban Renewal Project, Georgia R-95.

(2) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator and the Public Housing Commissioner are authorized to modify any contracts heretofore entered into and to take any other appropriate action necessary to carry out the provisions of paragraph (1).

(c) (1) Notwithstanding any provision of the Housing Act of 1949 or any other provision of law, the urban renewal project in Savannah, Georgia, known as Project "J" in the General Neighborhood Renewal Plan for the Broad Street-Canal Urban Renewal Area adopted by resolution of the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Savannah on November 18, 1958, may include the donation by Housing Authority of Savannah, by a suitable instrument of conveyance, of the right, title, and interest of the Authority in and to all or any portion of the land included within the boundaries of such Project "J" in the City of Savannah, Chatham County, Georgia, the area of such Project "J" being generally bounded on the North by properties of the Central of Georgia Railway Company, on the East by West Broad Street, on the South by the right-of-way for Interstate Highway No. I-16, and on the West by the Savannah and Ogeechee Canal and West Boundary Street.

(2) The conveyance authorized to be included in the urban renewal project under paragraph (1) shall be made only if the donee represents, and furnishes such assurances as may be required by Housing Authority of Savannah, that such donee will develop, preserve, and operate such property on a nonprofit basis as a historical site or monument.

LEASE GUARANTEES FOR CERTAIN SMALL BUSINESS CONCERNS

SEC. 316. (a) The Small Business Investment Act of 1958 is amended by adding after title III a new title as follows:

"TITLE IV—LEASE GUARANTEES

"AUTHORITY OF THE ADMINISTRATION

"SEC. 401. (a) The Administration may, whenever it determines such action to be necessary or desirable, and upon such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, guarantee the payment of rentals under leases of commercial and industrial property entered into by small business concerns that are (1) eligible for loans under section 7(b) (3) of the Small Business Act, or (2) eligible for loans under title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, to enable such concerns to obtain such leases. Any such guarantee may be made or effected either directly or in cooperation with any qualified surety company or other qualified company through a participation agreement with such company. The foregoing powers shall be subject, however, to the following restrictions and limitations:

"(1) No guarantee shall be issued by the Administration (A) if a guarantee meeting the requirements of the applicant is otherwise available on reasonable terms, and (B) unless the Administration determines that there exists a reasonable expectation that the small business concern in behalf of which the guarantee is issued will perform the covenants and conditions of the lease.

"(2) The Administration shall, to the greatest extent practicable, exercise the powers conferred by this section in cooperation with qualified surety or other companies on a participation basis.

"(b) The Administration shall fix a uniform annual fee for its share of any guarantee under this section which shall be payable in advance at such time as may be prescribed by the Administrator. The amount of any such fee shall be determined in accordance with sound actuarial practices and procedures, to the extent practicable, but in no case shall such amount exceed, on the Administration's share of any guarantee made under this title, $2\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per annum of the minimum annual guaranteed rental payable under any guaranteed lease: Provided, That the Administration shall fix the lowest fee that experience under the program established hereby has shown to be justified. The Administration may also fix such uniform fees for the processing of applications for guarantees under this section as the Administrator determines are reasonable and necessary to pay the administrative expenses that are incurred in connection therewith.

"(c) In connection with the guarantee of rentals under any lease pursuant to authority conferred by this section, the Administrator may require, in order to minimize the financial risk assumed under such guarantee—

"(1) that the lessee pay an amount, not to exceed one-fourth of the minimum guaranteed annual rental required under the lease, which shall be held in escrow and shall be available (A) to meet rental charges accruing in any month for which the lessee is in default, or (B) if no default occurs during the term of the lease, for application (with accrued interest) toward final payments of rental charges under the lease;

"(2) that upon occurrence of a default under the lease, the lessor shall, as a condition precedent to enforcing any claim under the lease guarantee, utilize the entire period, for which there are funds available in escrow for payment of rentals, in reasonably diligent efforts to eliminate or minimize losses, by releasing the commercial or industrial property covered by the lease to another qualified tenant, and no claim shall be made or paid under the guarantee until such effort has been made and such escrow funds have been exhausted;

"(3) that any guarantor of the lease will become a successor of the lessor for the purpose of collecting from a lessee in default rentals which are in arrears and with respect to which the lessor has received payment under a guarantee made pursuant to this section; and

"(4) such other provisions, not inconsistent with the purposes of this title, as the Administrator may in his discretion require.

new leases with any person, firm, organization, or other entity, in order to aid in the liquidation of obligations of the Administration hereunder.

"FUND

"SEC. 403. There is hereby established a revolving fund for use by the Administration in carrying out the provisions of this title. Initial capital for such fund shall consist of not to exceed $5,000,000 transferred from the fund established under section 4(c) of the Small Business Act: Provided, That the last sentence of such section 4(c) shall not apply to any amounts so transferred. Into the fund established by this section there shall be deposited all receipts from the guarantee program authorized by this title. Moneys in such fund not needed for the payment of current operating expenses or for the payment of claims arising under such program may be invested in bonds or other obligations of, or bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States; except that moneys provided as initial capital for such fund shall be returned to the fund established by section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, in such amounts and at such times as the Administration determines to be appropriate, whenever the level of the fund herein established is sufficiently high to permit the return of such moneys without danger to the solvency of the program under this title."

72 Stat. 690.
15 USC 671.

(b) Section 201 of such Act is amended by striking out the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The powers conferred by this Act upon the Administration and upon the Administrator, with the exception of those conferred by titles IV and V hereof, shall be exercised through the Small Business Investment Division and through the Deputy Administrator appointed hereunder. The powers conferred by this Act upon the Administration and upon the Administrator by titles IV and V hereof shall be exercised through such division, section, or other personnel as the Administrator in his discretion shall determine."

TITLE IV—COMPENSATION OF CONDEMNEEES

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 401. For the purposes of this title—

(1) the term "development program" means any program established by or conducted under any of the following provisions of law:

- (A) the United States Housing Act of 1937; 42 USC 1430;
- (B) title I of the Housing Act of 1949; 42 USC 1450-
- (C) the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964; 1465; 49 USC
- (D) title II of the Housing Amendments of 1955; 1601 note; 42
- (E) title VII of the Housing Act of 1961; and USC 1491-1497;
- (F) title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 42 USC 1500-

1965;

1500e.
Post, p. 489.

(2) the term "Federal assistance" means a grant, loan, contract of guaranty, annual contribution, or other assistance provided by the United States;

(3) the term "applicant" means any public body or other agency authorized to receive Federal assistance under a development program;

(4) the term "real property" means any land, or any interest in land, and (A) any building, structure, or other improvements embedded in or affixed to land, and any article so affixed or attached to such building, structure, or improvement as to be an essential or integral part thereof; (B) any article affixed or attached to such real property in such manner that it cannot be removed without material injury to itself or the real property; and (C) any article so designed, constructed, or specially adapted to the purpose for which such real property is used that (i) it is an essential accessory or part of such real property, (ii) it is not capable of use elsewhere, and (iii) it would lose substantially all its value if removed from the real property; and

(5) the term "Administrator" means the Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

LAND ACQUISITION POLICY

SEC. 402. As a condition of eligibility for Federal assistance pursuant to a development program, each applicant for such assistance shall satisfy the Administrator that the following policies will be followed in connection with the acquisition of real property by eminent domain in the course of such program—

(1) the applicant shall make every reasonable effort to acquire the real property by negotiated purchase;

(2) no owner shall be required to surrender possession of real property before the applicant pays to the owner (A) the agreed purchase price arrived at by negotiation, or (B) in any case where only the amount of the payment to the owner is in dispute, not less than 75 per centum of the appraised fair value of such property as approved by the applicant; and

(3) the construction or development of any public improvements shall be so scheduled that no person lawfully occupying the real property shall be required to surrender possession on account of such construction or development without at least 90 days' written notice from the applicant of the date on which such construction or development is scheduled to begin.

FUNDS FOR CERTAIN PAYMENTS IN EMINENT DOMAIN

SEC. 403. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, financial assistance under any federally assisted development program may include amounts necessary for financing, in the same manner that other costs of a project assisted under such program are financed, the payments described in paragraph (2) (B) of section 402 of this Act.

RELOCATION PAYMENTS UNDER FEDERALLY ASSISTED DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

SEC. 404. (a) To the extent not otherwise authorized under any Federal law, financial assistance extended to an applicant under any federally assisted development program may include grants for relocation payments, as herein defined. Such grants may be in addition to other financial assistance under such federally assisted development programs, and may cover the full amount of such relocation payments. Any funds available for any such program may be used for such grants. The term "relocation payments" means payments by the applicant, to a displaced individual, family, business concern, or non-profit organization, which are made on such terms and conditions and subject to such limitations (to the extent applicable, but not including the date of displacement) as are provided for relocation payments, at the time such payments are approved, by sections 114(b), (c), and (d) of the Housing Act of 1949 with respect to projects assisted under title I thereof. Relocation payments authorized by this subsection shall be made subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Administrator.

78 Stat. 788.
42 USC 1465.

(b) Section 114(b) (2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "$1,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$2,500".

(c) (1) Section 114 of such Act is further amended by redesignating subsection (d) as subsection (e) and by inserting after subsection (c) the following new subsection:

"(d) In addition to payments authorized to be made under subsections (b) and (c), a local public agency may pay to any displaced individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organization reasonable and necessary expenses incurred for (1) recording fees, transfer taxes, and similar expenses incidental to conveying real property to a project assisted under this title, (2) penalty costs for prepayment of any mortgage encumbering such real property, and (3) the pro rata portion of real property taxes allocable to a period subsequent to the date of vesting of title or the effective date of the acquisition of such real property by such agency, whichever is earlier."

78 Stat. 795.
42 USC 1415.

(2) Section 15(8) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "section 114 (b) or (c)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 114 (b), (c), and (d)".

(d) Subsection (a) shall not be applicable with respect to any displacement occurring prior to the date of the enactment of this Act (or prior to March 4, 1965, in the case of the programs specified in subparagraphs (C) and (E) of section 401(1)).

TITLE V—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

(3) by striking out "$3,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$4,000".

PURCHASE OF UNITS BY TENANTS

50 Stat. 895.
42 USC 1415.

SEC. 507. (a) Section 15 of the United States Housing Act is amended by adding after paragraph (8) a new paragraph as follows:

"(9) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, but subject to the provisions of any contract with the Authority, any public housing agency may permit any member of a tenant family to enter into a contract (either individually or as a member of a group) for the acquisition of a dwelling unit in any project of the public housing agency which is suitable by reason of its detached or semidetached construction for sale and for occupancy by such purchaser or a member or members of his family, upon the following terms:

"(A) The purchaser shall pay at least (i) a pro rata share cost of any services furnished him by the public agency, including but not limited to, administration, maintenance, repairs, utilities, insurance, provision of reserves, and other expenses, (ii) local taxes on his dwelling unit, and (iii) monthly payments of interest and principal sufficient to amortize a sales price, equal to the greater of the unamortized debt or the appraised value (at the time such purchase contract is entered into) of the dwelling unit, in not more than forty years: Provided, That the public housing agency may, under terms and conditions to be prescribed by it, permit a purchaser to apply an amount equal to the net rent paid for his dwelling unit, over a period not exceeding three years prior to the entering into of any such contract, toward the purchase price of such unit;

"(B) The interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the average interest cost of loans outstanding on the project, except that in the case of a project on which bonds are not outstanding the interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the going Federal rate applicable to such project;

"(C) The principal payments shall be not less than one-half of 1 per centum per annum of the sales price during the first five years after purchase, 1 per centum per annum during the next five years, $1\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per annum during the third five years, and thereafter not less than the principal payments resulting from a level debt service of interest and principal over the balance of the payment period; and

"(D) If at any time (i) a purchaser fails to carry out his contract with the public housing agency and if no member of his family who resides in the dwelling assumes such contract, or (ii) the purchaser or member of his family who assumes the contract does not reside in the dwelling, the public housing agency shall have an option to acquire his interest under such contract upon payment to him or his estate of an amount equal to his aggregate principal payments plus the value to the public housing agency of any improvements made by him, less an amount equal to $2\frac{1}{2}$ per centum of the sales price."

(b) Such Act is further amended—

(1) by inserting in the parenthetical phrase in section 10(h) after the words "exclusive of" the following: "any part thereof covered by a contract or conveyed pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15, and exclusive of";

(2) by inserting after "may be made" in section 10(1) the following: ", subject to any outstanding contracts made pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15,";

(3) by inserting after "acquisition", the first place it appears in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 15, the following: "(except pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15)"; and

(4) by inserting before the semicolon at the end of paragraph (1) of section 22(a) a colon and the following: "Provided, That such conveyance or delivery of title shall be subject to the rights of third parties vested pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15". 63 Stat. 424.

(b) Section 401(g) of such Act is amended by striking out "In the case" and inserting in lieu thereof "Except as otherwise provided in the second paragraph of section 404(b), in the case". 73 Stat. 682.

TITLE VII—COMMUNITY FACILITIES

PURPOSE

SEC. 701. The purpose of this title is to assist and encourage the communities of the Nation fully to meet the needs of their citizens by making it possible, with Federal grant assistance, for their governmental bodies (1) to construct adequate basic water and sewer facilities needed to promote the efficient and orderly growth and development of our communities, (2) to construct neighborhood facilities needed to enable them to carry on programs of necessary social services, and (3) to acquire, in a planned and orderly fashion, land to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities.

GRANTS FOR BASIC WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

SEC. 702. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "Administrator") is authorized to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to finance specific projects for basic public water facilities (including works for the storage, treatment, purification, and distribution of water), and for basic public sewer facilities (other than "treatment works" as defined in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act): Provided, That no grant shall be made under this section for any sewer facilities unless the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare certifies to the Administrator that any waste material carried by such facilities will be adequately treated before it is discharged into any public waterway so as to meet applicable Federal, State, interstate, or local water quality standards.

(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the development cost of the project: Provided, That in the case of a community having a population of less than ten thousand, according to the most recent decennial census, which is situated within a metropolitan area, the Administrator may increase the amount of a grant for a basic public sewer facility assisted under this section to not more than 90 per centum of the development cost of such facility, if the community is unable to finance the construction of such facility without the increased grant authorized under this subsection, and if in such community (1) there does not exist a public or other adequate sewer facility which serves a substantial portion of the inhabitants of the community, and (2) the rate of unemployment is, and has been continuously for the preceding calendar year, 100 per centum above the national average: And provided further, That the limitations and restrictions contained in subsection (c) of this section shall not be applicable to any community applying for an increased grant under this subsection.

(c) No grant shall be made under this section in connection with any project unless the Administrator determines that the project is necessary to provide adequate water or sewer facilities for, and will contribute to the improvement of the health or living standards of, the people in the community to be served, and that the project is (1) designed so that an adequate capacity will be available to serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area; (2) consistent with a program meeting criteria, established by the Administrator, for a unified or officially coordinated areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area, except that prior to July 1, 1968, grants may, in the discretion of the Administrator, be made under this section when such a program for an areawide water and sewer facilities system is under active preparation, although not yet completed, if the facility or facilities for which assistance is sought can reasonably be expected to be required as a part of such program, and there is urgent need for the facility or facilities; and (3) necessary to orderly community development.

GRANTS FOR NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES

SEC. 703. (a) In accordance with the provisions of this section, the Administrator is authorized to make grants to any local public body or agency to assist in financing specific projects for neighborhood facilities. Any such project may be undertaken by such body or agency directly or through a nonprofit organization approved by it: Provided, That no grant shall be provided under this section for any project to be undertaken through a nonprofit organization unless the Administrator determines (1) that such organization has or will have the legal, financial, and technical capacity to carry out the project, and (2) that the public body or agency to which the grant is made will have satisfactory continuing control over the use of the proposed facilities.

(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed $66\frac{2}{3}$ per centum of the development cost of the project for which the grant is made (or 75 per centum of such cost in the case of a project located in an area which at the time the grant is made is designated as a redevelopment area under the Area Redevelopment Act or any Act supplementary thereto).

(c) No grant shall be made under this section for any project unless the Administrator determines that the project will provide a neighborhood facility which is (1) necessary for carrying out a program of health, recreational, social, or similar community service (including a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964) in the area, (2) consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community, and (3) so located as to be available for use by a significant portion (or number in the case of large urban places) of the area's low- or moderate-income residents.

(d) For a period of twenty years after a grant has been made under this section for a neighborhood facility, such facility shall not, without the approval of the Administrator, be converted to uses other than those proposed by the applicant in its application for a grant. The Administrator shall not approve any conversion in the use of such a neighborhood facility during such twenty-year period unless he finds that such conversion is in accordance with the then applicable program of health, recreational, social, or similar community services in the area and consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community in which the facility is located. In approving any such conversion, the Administrator may impose such additional conditions and requirements as he deems necessary.

(e) The Administrator shall give priority to applications for projects designed primarily to benefit members of low-income families or otherwise substantially further the objectives of a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist in the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works or facilities, the Administrator is authorized to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loan or other financial obligation incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not exceeding the lesser of (1) five years from the date such loan was made or such financial obligation was incurred, or (2) the period of time between the date

78 Stat. 516.
42 USC 2781
et seq.

such loan was made or such financial obligation was incurred and the date construction is begun on the public work or facility for which the land acquired was planned to be utilized.

(c) No grant shall be made under this section for any project for the acquisition of land unless the Administrator determines that the public work or facility for which such land is to be utilized is planned to be constructed or initiated within a reasonable period of time (not to exceed five years after a contract to make such grant is entered into) and that construction of such public work or facility will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area.

(d) As a condition to providing assistance under this section, the Administrator may, under terms and conditions prescribed by him, require an applicant to agree to repay such assistance, if (1) the land purchased with such assistance is not utilized within five years after the agreement is entered into in connection with the construction of the public work or facility for which such land was acquired, or (2) such land is diverted to other uses.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 705. (a) In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Administrator shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties set forth in section 402, except subsections (a), (c) (2), and (f) of the Housing Act of 1950.

(b) The Administrator is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made pursuant to this title. No part of any grant authorized to be made by the provisions of this title shall be used for the payment of ordinary governmental operating expenses.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 706. As used in this title—

(a) The term "State" means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the territories and possessions of the United States.

(b) The term "local public bodies and agencies" includes public corporate bodies or political subdivisions; public agencies or instrumentalities of one or more States, municipalities, or political subdivisions of one or more States (including public agencies and instrumentalities of one or more municipalities or other political subdivisions of one or more States); Indian tribes; and boards or commissions established under the laws of any State to finance specific capital improvement projects.

(c) The term "development cost" means the cost of constructing the facility and of acquiring the land on which it is located, including necessary site improvements to permit its use as a site for the facility.

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 707. All laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors on projects assisted under sections 702 and 703 shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a-5). No such project shall be approved without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the

SEC. 902. (a) The first sentence of section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended—

75 Stat. 184.

(1) by inserting "and development" after "acquisition" the first place it appears; and

42 USC 1500a.

(2) by inserting before the period the following: ", and the development, for open-space uses, of land acquired under this title".

(b) Section 702(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "development costs or".

(c) Section 709 of such Act (as redesignated by section 906 of this Act) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(4) The term 'open-space uses' means any use of open-space land for (A) park and recreational purposes, (B) conservation of land and other natural resources, or (C) historic or scenic purposes."

INCREASED GRANT LEVEL FOR PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF OPEN-SPACE LAND

SEC. 903. The second sentence of section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows: "The amount of any such grant shall not exceed 50 per centum of the total cost, as approved by the Administrator, of such acquisition and development."

CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 904. Section 702(b) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by striking out "$75,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$310,000,000: Provided, That of such sum the Administrator may contract to make grants under section 705 aggregating not to exceed $64,000,000, and grants under section 706 aggregating not to exceed $36,000,000".

78 Stat. 806.

OPEN-SPACE PLANNING AND PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 905. Section 703(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows:

42 USC 1500b.

"(a) The Administrator shall enter into contracts to make grants under sections 702 and 705 of this title only if he finds that such assistance is needed for carrying out a unified or officially coordinated program, meeting criteria established by him, for the provision and development of open-space land as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area."

GRANTS FOR PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT-UP URBAN AREAS AND FOR URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

SEC. 906. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by redesignating sections 705 and 706 as sections 708 and 709, respectively, and by inserting after section 704 two new sections as follows:

75 Stat. 185.

42 USC 1500d,

1500e.

"GRANTS FOR PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT-UP URBAN AREAS

"SEC. 705. The Administrator is further authorized to enter into contracts to make grants to States and local public bodies to help finance the acquisition of title to, or other permanent interests in, developed land in built-up portions of urban areas to be cleared and used as permanent open-space land. The Administrator shall make such grants only where the local governing body determines that adequate open-space land cannot effectively be provided through the use of existing undeveloped or predominantly undeveloped land. Grants under this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the cost of acquiring such interests and of necessary demolition and removal of improvements.

"GRANTS FOR URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

"SEC. 706. The Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts to make grants, as herein provided, to States and local public bodies to assist in carrying out local programs for the greater use and enjoyment of open-space and other public land in urban areas. The Administrator shall establish criteria for such programs to assure that each program (1) represents significant and effective efforts, involving all available public and private resources, for the beautification of such land and its improvement for open-space uses; and (2) is important to the comprehensively planned development of the locality. Grants made under this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the amount by which the cost of the activities carried on by an applicant during a fiscal year under an approved program exceeds its usual expenditures for comparable activities: Provided, That, notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Administrator may use not to exceed $5,000,000 of the sum authorized for contracts under this section for the purpose of entering into contracts to make grants in amounts not to exceed 90 per centum of the cost of activities which he determines have special value in developing and demonstrating new and improved methods and materials for use in carrying out the purposes of this section."

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 907. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 is further amended by inserting after section 706 (as added by section 906 of this Act) the following new section:

"LABOR STANDARDS

"SEC. 707. (a) The Administrator shall take such action as may be necessary to insure that all laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors in the performance of construction work financed with the assistance of grants under this title shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended. The Administrator shall not approve any such grant without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work.

"(b) The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in subsection (a), the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 133z-15), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 948; 40 U.S.C. 276c)."

USE OF FUNDS FOR STUDIES AND PUBLICATION

(b) Section 702(a) of such Act is amended by striking out "acceptable to the Administrator as capable of carrying out the provisions of this title".

(c) Section 702(e) of such Act is amended by striking out in the second sentence "served by the open-space land acquired" and inserting in lieu thereof "assisted".

(d) Section 704 of such Act is amended by striking out in the first sentence "for which" and inserting in lieu thereof "for the acquisition of which". 42 USC 1500c.

TITLE X—RURAL HOUSING

LOANS FOR PREVIOUSLY OCCUPIED BUILDINGS AND MINIMUM SITE ACQUISITION

SEC. 1001. (a) Section 501(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended— 63 Stat. 432;
75 Stat. 186.
42 USC 1471.

(1) by inserting after "their farms," in clause (1) the following: "and to purchase previously occupied buildings and land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order"; and

(2) by inserting after "rural areas" in clause (2) the following: "for the construction, improvement, alteration, or repair of dwellings, related facilities, and farm buildings and to rural residents for such purposes and for the purchase of previously occupied buildings and the purchase of land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order".

(b) Section 501(c) of such Act is amended by inserting "or a rural resident" in clause (1) after "or that he is the owner of other real estate in a rural area".

INTEREST RATE ON DIRECT RURAL HOUSING LOANS

SEC. 1002. Section 502(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "with interest at a rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "with interest, in the case of applicants described in clauses (1) and (2) of section 501(a), at a rate not to exceed 5 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, and, in the case of applicants described in clause (3) of section 501(a) and applicants under sections 503 and 504, at a rate not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on such unpaid balance. Loans made or insured under this title shall be conditioned on the borrower paying such fees and other charges as the Secretary may require". 42 USC 1472.
76 Stat. 670.
63 Stat. 434.
42 USC 1471,
1473, 1474.

INSURED RURAL HOUSING LOANS

63 Stat. 432.
42 USC 1471 et seq.

SEC. 1003. (a) Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sections:

"INSURED RURAL HOUSING LOANS

"SEC. 517. (a) The Secretary may insure loans meeting the requirements of section 502, and may make loans in accordance with the requirements of such section to be sold and insured; except that such loans shall—

"(1) if the borrowers are persons of low or moderate income (as defined by the Secretary), (A) not exceed amounts necessary to provide adequate housing, modest in size, design, and cost (as determined by the Secretary), (B) bear interest at a rate not to exceed 5 per centum per annum, and (C) not exceed in the aggregate $300,000,000 of new loans made or insured in any one fiscal year; and

"(2) if the borrowers are persons other than those described in clause (1), bear interest and provide for insurance or service charges at rates comparable to the combined rate of interest and premium charges in effect under section 203 of the National Housing Act, as determined by the Secretary.

"(b) The Secretary may insure loans in accordance with the requirements of sections 514 (exclusive of subsections (a) (3), (a) (5), and (b)) and 515 (exclusive of subsections (a) and (b) (4)), and may make loans meeting such requirements to be sold and insured. Upon the expiration of ninety days after the original capitalization of the Rural Housing Insurance Fund, created by subsection (e) of this section, no new loans shall be made or insured under section 514 or 515 (b), except in conformity with this section.

75 Stat. 186;
76 Stat. 671.
42 USC 1484,
1485.

"(c) The Secretary may use the Rural Housing Insurance Fund for the purpose of making loans to be sold and insured under this section, but the aggregate of such loans which are held by the Secretary at any one time shall not exceed $100,000,000.

"(d) The Secretary may, in conformity with subsections (a) and (b), insure the payment of principal and interest as it becomes due on loans made by lenders other than the United States, and on loans made from the Rural Housing Insurance Fund which are sold by the Secretary. Any contract of insurance executed by the Secretary hereunder shall be an obligation supported by the full faith and credit of the United States, and shall be incontestable except for fraud or material misrepresentation of which the holder has actual knowledge. In connection with loans insured under this section, the Secretary may take liens running to the United States notwithstanding the fact that the notes evidencing such loans may be held by lenders other than the United States. Notes evidencing such loans shall be freely assignable, but the Secretary shall not be bound by any such assignment until notice thereof is given to and acknowledged by him.

Rural Housing
Insurance Fund.

"(e) There is hereby created the Rural Housing Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the 'Fund') which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the provisions of this section. There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the purposes of the Fund.

"(f) Money in the Fund not needed for current operations shall be invested in direct obligations of the United States or obligations guaranteed by the United States.

"(g) All funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and property acquired by the Secretary under this section, and all collections and proceeds therefrom, shall constitute assets of the Fund; and all liabilities and obligations of such assets shall be liabilities and obligations of the Fund. Loans may be held in the Fund and collected in accordance with their terms or may be sold by the Secretary with or without agreements for insurance thereof. The Secretary is authorized to make agreements with respect to servicing loans held or insured by him under this section and purchasing such insured loans on such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

“(h) The Secretary is authorized to issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds necessary for discharging obligations under this section and for authorized expenditures out of the Fund, but, except as may be authorized in appropriation Acts, not for the original or any additional capital of the Fund. Such notes shall be in such form and denominations and have such maturities and be subject to such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at the average rate, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for fifteen years from their date of issue. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes of the Secretary issued hereunder, and for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which such securities may be issued under such Act are extended to include purchases of notes issued by the Secretary. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States. The notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury shall constitute obligations of the Fund.

40 Stat. 288.
31 USC 774.

“(i) The Secretary may retain out of interest payments by the borrower an annual charge in an amount specified in the insurance or sale agreement applicable to the loan. Of the charges retained by the Secretary, if any, not to exceed 1 per centum per annum of the unpaid balance of the loan shall be deposited in the Fund. Any retained charges not deposited in the Fund shall be available for administrative expenses in carrying out the provisions of this title, to be transferred annually, and become merged with any appropriation for administrative expenses of the Farmers Home Administration, when and in such amounts as may be authorized in appropriation Acts.

“(j) The Secretary may also utilize the Fund—

“(1) to pay amounts to which the holder of the note is entitled in accordance with an insurance or sale agreement under this section accruing between the date of any prepayment by the borrower to the Secretary and the date of transmittal of any such prepayments to the holder of the note; and in the discretion of the Secretary, prepayments other than final payments need not be remitted to the holder until due;

“(2) to pay the holder of any note insured under this section any defaulted installment or, upon assignment of the note to the Secretary at the Secretary's request, or pursuant to a purchase agreement, the entire balance outstanding on the note; and

“(3) to pay taxes, insurance, prior liens, expenses necessary to make fiscal adjustments in connection with the application and transmittal of collections, and other expenses and advances to protect the security for loans which are insured under this section or held in the Fund, and to acquire such security property at foreclosure sale or otherwise.

"RURAL HOUSING DIRECT LOAN ACCOUNT

Rural Housing
Direct Loan
Account.

"SEC. 518. (a) There is hereby created the Rural Housing Direct Loan Account (hereinafter referred to as the 'Account') which shall be used by the Secretary for carrying out the provisions of this section. There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the purposes of the Account.

"(b) There are transferred to the Account (1) all funds, claims, notes, mortgages, contracts, and property, and all collections and proceeds therefrom, held by the Secretary under the direct loan provisions of this title, including those securing notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 and any unexpended balance of amounts borrowed upon such notes, and (2) all unexpended balances of appropriations for direct loans under this title, including the fund authorized by section 515(a). All amounts hereafter borrowed by the Secretary from the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 shall be deposited in the Account. All collections and proceeds from assets acquired by the Account shall be deposited in the Account.

"(c) When and in such amounts as may be authorized in appropriation Acts, the Secretary may issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury to obtain funds to be deposited in the Account. The form, denominations, maturities, and other terms and conditions of such notes shall be prescribed by the Secretary with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Each note shall bear interest at the average rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for fifteen years from their date of issue. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes of the Secretary issued hereunder, and for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which such securities may be issued under such Act are extended to include the purchase of notes issued by the Secretary. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States.

"(d) The Account shall remain available to the Secretary for the payment of interest and principal on notes issued by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 511 or this section, and for direct loans and related advances under this title in such amounts as are now authorized by law and in such further amounts as shall be authorized in appropriation Acts. Amounts so authorized for such loans and advances shall remain available until expended."

(b) Section 511 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "The Secretary may issue notes and other obligations for purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury for the purpose of making direct loans under this title.";

(2) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "The total principal amount of such notes and obligations issued pursuant to this section during the period beginning July 1, 1956, and ending October 1, 1969, shall not exceed $850,000,000."; and

40 Stat. 288.
31 USC 774.

63 Stat. 438.
42 USC 1481.

(3) by striking out the fifth sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following "Each such note or other obligation shall bear interest at the average rate, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, payable by the Treasury upon its marketable public obligations outstanding at the beginning of the fiscal year in which such note or other obligation is issued, which are neither due nor callable for redemption for 15 years from their date of issue."

(d) Section 404 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) (1) Each insured institution shall make such deposits in the Corporation as may from time to time be required by call of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Any such call shall be calculated by applying a specified percentage, which shall be the same for all insured institutions, to the total amount of all withdrawable or repurchasable shares, investment certificates, and deposits in each insured institution. No such call shall be made unless such Board determines that the total amount of such call, plus the outstanding deposits previously made pursuant to such calls, does not exceed 1 per centum of the total amount of all withdrawable or repurchasable shares, investment certificates, and deposits in all insured institutions. For the purposes of this subsection, the total amounts hereinabove referred to shall be determined or estimated by such Board or in such manner as it may prescribe.

"(2) The Corporation, in accordance with such regulations as it may prescribe, shall credit as of the close of each calendar year, to each deposit outstanding at such close, a return on the outstanding balance, as determined by the Corporation, of such deposit during such calendar year, at a rate equal to the average annual rate of return, as determined by the Corporation, to the Corporation during the year ending at the close of November 30 of such calendar year, on the investments held by the Corporation in obligations of, or guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States.

"(3) The Corporation in its discretion may at any time repay such deposits, or repay pro rata a portion of each of such deposits, in such manner and under such procedure as the Corporation may prescribe by regulation or otherwise. Any procedure for such pro rata repayment may provide for total repayment of any deposit, if total repayment of any and all deposits of equal or smaller amount is likewise provided for.

"(4) The provisions of subsection (f) of this section and of the last sentence of subsection (e) of this section shall be applicable to deposits under this subsection, and for the purposes of this subsection the references in such subsection (f) and such last sentence to the prepayments and the pro rata shares therein mentioned shall be deemed instead to be references respectively to the deposits under this subsection and the pro rata shares of the holders thereof, and the references in such subsection (f) to that subsection (except the last such reference) and to subsection (d) of this section shall be deemed instead to be references to this subsection."

Tax Court of the United States; Interstate Commerce Commission

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Charles R. Simpson to the Court and Willard Deason to the Commission. August 10, 1965

The President today announced his intention to nominate Charles R. Simpson for appointment to the Tax Court of the United States, to fill the unexpired term of Morton Fisher who died February 11, 1965.

Mr. Simpson is presently Director of the Legislation and Regulations Division in the Office of the General Counsel of the Internal Revenue Service.

Mr. Simpson was born in Danville, Ill., and he received the B.A. degree in 1943 and the J.D. degree in 1945, from the University of Illinois. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and achieved the highest academic average in 25 years at the Law School.

From 1947 to 1950, Mr. Simpson was a member of the Illinois General Assembly from the 24th District of Illinois. He taught at Harvard Law School for a year after receiving the LL.M. degree in 1950. From 1951 to 1952 he was an attorney with the Office of Price Stabilization. Then in 1952 he joined the Legislation and Regulations Division of the Internal Revenue Service as an attorney, and he served in this capacity until 1957. From 1957 to 1959 he was Special Assistant to the Director of the Division and from 1959 to 1961 he was Staff Assistant to the Chief Counsel.

In 1961 Mr. Simpson became Assistant Director of the Legislation and Regulations Division and has been Director of that Division since 1964.

In May of 1965 Mr. Simpson received the Justice Tom C. Clark Award for Outstanding Career Lawyers in the Service of the Federal Government.

Mr. Simpson has been totally blind since birth.

Mr. Simpson is married and resides at 1400 South Joyce St., Arlington, Va.

President Johnson also announced his intention to nominate Willard Deason to fill the vacancy on the Interstate Commerce Commission created by the recent resignation of Everett Hutchinson of Texas.

Mr. Deason, a lawyer and businessman from Austin, Tex., has served the Federal Government previously with the Federal Land Bank of Houston, the National Youth Administration, and in Naval Service during the war. Since January 1949 Mr. Deason has been an Austin, Tex., businessman.

Born in Wilson County, Tex., Mr. Deason graduated from Stockdale High School, he holds a B.S. degree received in 1930 and a law degree from the San Antonio School of Law in 1934. He is married to the former Jeanne Fitz-Patrick of Bayonne, N.J., and has a son and a daughter.

The President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board

Announcement of Intention To Appoint Augustus C. Long, Adm. John H. Sides, and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor. August 10, 1965

The President announced today his intention to appoint three new members to the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board. The three distinguished Americans named are: Mr.

Augustus C. Long, Adm. John H. Sides, USN (Ret.), and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, USA (Ret.).

The President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board was established by Executive Order 10938 of May 4, 1961. The purpose of the Board is "to advise the President with respect to the objectives and conduct of the foreign intelligence and related activities of the United States" which are required by our national defense and security interests.

Mr. Long was born August 28, 1904, at Starke, Fla. He is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and served as a naval officer from 1926 to 1929. In 1930 he joined the Texas Company and received several assignments in Europe. He served in an executive capacity with several Federal agencies during World War II. He became Chief Executive Officer of Texaco in 1956. He resides in Green Plains in Mathews County, Va.

Admiral Sides was born in Roslyn, Wash., on April 22, 1904. A graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy in 1921, the University of Michigan in 1933, and the National War College in 1948, he rose through the ranks and was commissioned admiral on March 1, 1960. He served in China during the Yangtze campaign, and in the Pacific during World War II. An expert in ordnance, he served as Director of the Guided Missiles Division of the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations from 1952 to 1956. Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965

The President's Remarks at the Signing Ceremony. August 10, 1965

Mr. Vice President, distinguished Speaker McCormack, Senator Mansfield, Senator Sparkman, Congressman Patman, distinguished Members of the Congress, distinguished Governors, mayors, and friends:

This is a very proud and gratifying occasion. I am very proud to welcome you today to the first house of the land—the house that belongs to all of the American people. I am gratified, as you are, that we could come together to sign into law a measure which will take us many longer strides nearer the goal that has been the dream and the vision of every generation of Americans. That is the goal of honoring what a very great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, 21 years ago expressed as "the right of every family to a decent home."

From Plymouth Rock to Puget Sound, the first priority of the men and women who settled this vast and this blessed continent was, first of all, to put a roof over the heads of their family. And that priority has never, and can never, change.

I am so happy this morning to see the great and distinguished Mayor of New York here because it was his father who pioneered the housing legislation in this country. And here on the platform with me is one of those who joined with him—the very able and distinguished Senator from Louisiana. It took a lot of courage for him to stand on some of those bills. He got in with Bob Wagner and Bob Taft and he got in the middle between them, and it did take courage to stand there.

Many elements mattered to the success and the stability of our great American society. Education matters a great deal. Health matters. Jobs matter. Equality of opportunity and individual dignity matter very much.

But legislation and labors in all of these fields can never succeed unless and until every family has the shelter and the security, the integrity and the independence, and the dignity and the decency of a proper home.

For me, this is not a belief that comes recently. It is a conviction, and it is a passion, to which I was born 57 years ago this month in a humble home on the banks of a small river in Central Texas.

Men may forget many memories of their childhood. But many of you know—as I know—that no man and no woman ever grows too old or too successful to forget the memory of a childhood home that was without lights, and that was without water, and that was without covering on the floor. And I have never forgotten.

The first great reward of my public service was to secure for my little congressional district, as a young Congressman, the Nation's first public housing project that President Roosevelt signed in the 1930's. And Bob's father was there at that allocation. What I sought then for the people of one city—Austin, Tex.—I am determined as President that we shall seek and we shall obtain for all the people of all the Nation.

We have the resources in this country. We have the ingenuity. We have the courage. We have the compassion. And we must, in this decade, bring all of these strengths to bear effectively so that we can lift off the conscience of our affluent Nation the shame of slums and squalor and the blight of deterioration and decay.

We must make sure that every family in America lives in a home of dignity and a neighborhood of pride and a community of opportunity and a city of promise and hope.

This legislation represents the single most important breakthrough in the last 40 years.

Only the Housing Act of 1949 approaches the significance of this measure. And in years to come, I believe this act will become known as the single most valuable housing legislation in our history.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 retains, and expands, and improves the best of the tested programs of the past.

It extends and gives new thrust to the FHA mortgage insurance program so that millions of Americans can come toward attainment of new homes in the future, as millions already have under that program in the past.

It opens the way for a more orderly and cohesive development of our suburbs; and it opens the door to thousands of our veterans who have been unable to obtain the benefits of a Federal housing program.

It extends and enlarges and improves the urban renewal program so that we can more effectively challenge and defeat the enemy of decay that exists in our cities.

It faces the changing challenge of rural housing. It continues the loan programs to assure the needed dormitories on our college campuses, and decent housing at decent costs for the elderly and the handicapped and those of lower income.

But the importance of the bill is not only that it retains and improves the best of good and traditional programs; it is a landmark bill because of its new ideas.

Foremost and uppermost of these is the program of assistance for the construction and the rehabilitation of housing for the elderly and for families of low income—the people who live in the most wretched conditions in our slums and our blighted neighborhoods.

The conception of this fine program, endorsed by this fine Congress, calls for the best in cooperation between Government and free enterprise. I am so happy to see so many members of the building industry and the trade unions and our free enterprise system—that made us the strongest nation in all the world—here to honor us with their presence this morning.

This imperative housing will be built under sponsorship of the private organizations. It will make use of private money, and it will be managed by private groups. With supplements paid by their Government, the private builders will be able to move into the low-income housing field which they have not been able to penetrate or to serve effectively in the past.

Furthermore, this legislation responds to the urgent needs of our cities. It offers Federal assistance to the cities and communities of our Nation to help pay the cost of essential public works.

And finally, this legislation meets our compelling responsibility for giving attention to the environment in which Americans live. Grants are provided for the acquisition of open spaces, for the development of parks, for the construction of recreational facilities, and for the beautification of urban areas.

This measure votes "no" on America the Ugly—and it votes "yes" on preserving, for our posterity, America the Beautiful.

The promise and the portents of this legislation cannot be justly described in the limited time we have this morning. But there is embodied in this legislation that generosity of vision, that breadth of approach, that magnitude of effort, with which we must meet all of our challenges here in America.

So, I am very proud to congratulate and to salute those outstanding Members of Congress whose influence and whose leadership have helped to achieve this landmark today. There is Senator John Sparkman—the son of a tenant farmer, and still the tenant farmers' friend, as this bill reflects—who has done perhaps as much or more in America than any living legislator.

There are others whose study and understanding of housing has helped us much. I would like to name all of them but that would take too long. But I must not overlook Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois who is here; Senator Edward Muskie from Maine; Senator George Aiken of Vermont. On the House side there was the great leader of my delegation in the Congress, my longtime friend and the cherished friend of my father ahead of me, Congressman Wright Patman. He has always been a champion and always been faithful to the people. There is Congressman Barrett, whose services have meant so much. There is Congressman Widnall, who has worked for years with Congressman Patman and Barrett to try to give this Nation good bills.

I would like to express my appreciation to the Governors and the mayors, especially the great mayor of New York, Bob Wagner; the great mayor of Chicago, Dick Daley; and all of the others who have been of so much help to me.

And I just cannot overlook being grateful to the constructive role of the Nation's home builders, under the leadership of that patriot, Bernie Boutin.

And last, but certainly not least—he has been for months the leader of us all in this field—the modest, retiring, and able administrator, Bob Weaver, who finds not much satisfaction in the compliments paid him, not even in the recognition accorded him by his superiors, but who finds ample satisfaction in the achievements that come his way. And this bill is a monument to him.

Now, this is not the last housing bill that we shall need and it is not going to be the last that we shall pass.

For I pledge to you that we shall do all that must be done to fulfill our commitment—and the Vice President and I have made it in every State of this Union. And he is going to stand by my shoulder here and throughout the States of the Union to see that we do our best to try to get every American in every family living his life not with the haunted memory of a dilapidated and degraded hovel that he must call home, but with a happy memory of a decent and a dignified home worthy of a free and just society, where a man can enjoy the privacy of his family and can help to build a stronger America, a more profitable and peaceful America, and, finally, something we all want—a more beautiful America.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 12:02 p.m. in the Rose Garden at the White House.

As enacted, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is Public Law 89-117.

Federal-State Program of Vocational Rehabilitation

Statement by the President on Reports of Accomplishments in Fiscal Year 1965. August 10, 1965

I am making public the attached reports from Secretary Celebrezze and Commissioner Switzer so that the public may be fully familiar with the valuable work being done in this country to help our disabled citizens become active and useful citizens.

I can think of no better example of what this administration is trying to accomplish for the American people than the Federal-State program of vocational rehabilitation.

However difficult the circumstances, whatever the burdens of poverty, whatever the deficiencies in educational opportunity that exist today, we must and we will find ways to offer full opportunity for a useful and satisfying life for all Americans.

If we can do this for 135,000 of our people who, along with other problems, face the obstacle of a serious physical or mental handicap, then we can do it for other people as well. That is our goal.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

August 5, 1965

Dear Mr. President:

I believe you will share my pride in the attached report of the Commissioner of Vocational Rehabilitation, Miss Mary E. Switzer. It shows that the federal-state program of vocational rehabilitation has achieved a new record this year, with about 135,000 disabled men and women rehabilitated into useful work.

The total of rehabilitations for the past year represents an increase of nearly 13 percent over the previous year. The outlook for the future will be even more promising when the Congress completes action on the Vocational Rehabilitation Amendments passed by the House of Representatives last week and now pending in the Senate.

The vocational rehabilitation program is a practical expression of our highest humanitarian aims, for it restores the victims of physical and mental handicaps to a life of usefulness and dignity. It is an economically sound program, for these disabled men and women, back at work, pay more into federal and state treasuries in taxes than it cost to rehabilitate them. It brings into the labor force thousands of skilled workers who otherwise would be lost to our nation's industries, commerce, farms and professions.

Your leadership in advancing this work for the nation's disabled millions is deeply appreciated by those of us in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and by the hundreds of co-operating public and voluntary agencies across the country.

Sincerely,

ANTHONY CELEBREZZE
Secretary

[The President, The White House]

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION

August 4, 1965

To: The Secretary

From: Mary E. Switzer, Commissioner of Vocational Rehabilitation

Subject: Report of Number of Disabled
Persons Rehabilitated in Fiscal Year
1965

I am happy to report that our State vocational rehabilitation agencies rehabilitated into useful work about 135,000 disabled persons in the fiscal year just ended. This is an increase of about 13 percent over last year. It also represents almost 4,000 more disabled people rehabilitated than the States estimated when they presented their FY 1965 budget goal figures to us.

Attached is a table showing the numbers rehabilitated by States. As you will note, the actual total is 134,859. Pennsylvania led the States in the number rehabilitated, with 12,794 disabled men and women restored to activity and useful work. Others in the top five were New York (9,067), North Carolina (8,545), Georgia (7,221), and Florida (6,153).

West Virginia led all States in terms of the number rehabilitated per 100,000 population. West Virginia's rate was 218, followed by the District of Columbia (178), North Carolina (176), Rhode Island (173), and Georgia (168). The national average was 70.

As you know, in 37 States, separate vocational rehabilitation agencies serve blind persons. Among these agencies for the rehabilitation of the blind, New York led the Nation with 562 blind persons rehabilitated, followed by North Carolina (534) and Pennsylvania (528).

In addition to those reported above by the State vocational rehabilitation agencies, approximately 2,000 disabled persons were rehabilitated by other agencies, most of them voluntary groups, which conducted demonstration projects in rehabilitation, through grants made as part of our research and demonstration grant program.

I am deeply grateful for the consistent encouragement and direction which you and other officials of the Department have given to the development of the vocational rehabilitation program. I hope you will convey to the President our profound gratitude for his leadership and support, both in appropriations and in proposing legislation to expand and improve this work which so vitally affects the lives of millions of Americans.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

To the Members of the Committee on Banking and Currency:

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is one of the most important pieces of legislation to be acted on by this Congress. Our housing programs affect the lives of all of our citizens through their impact on community development, housing production and rehabilitation, and mortgage finance, and also through the impact they have on employment, national output, and our financial system.

Congressional action on the housing bill involved hundreds of decisions made after weighing the results of special studies and reports and many hours of testimony by witnesses representing every facet of the Nation. The 11 titles and nearly 100 sections of the act are the result of painstaking work by the committees and Members of Congress.

This act creates a number of entirely new programs shown by experience to be needed, and makes important modifications in many existing programs. The most important new venture contained in the Housing Act is President Johnson's rent supplement program, which he called "the most crucial new instrument in our effort to improve the American city." This is supplemented by a revitalization of the low-rent public housing program and by the continuation at high levels of the FHA below-market-interest-rate housing program and the housing for the elderly program, along with reductions in the interest rate on those two programs. The pressing housing needs of rural America will be served by a new program of insured home loans.

The growth and improvement of our communities will be advanced by the new authorization for the urban renewal program, the largest ever approved by the Congress, and by the many improvements made in that program to encourage rehabilitation and code enforcement and to provide more equitable treatment of those displaced by slum clearance.

Our towns and cities will also benefit from a series of new community facility programs. These include an entirely new program of continuing grant assistance to meet one of the most critical problems facing local government today, the provision of adequate water and sewer systems. In addition, the act contains the President's new programs to provide parks and recreation areas in our communities and to aid them in their efforts to make the urban environment more attractive.

The act will help our colleges and universities to meet mounting enrollments through the continuation of the highly successful college housing loan program and the reduction of the interest rate on these loans.

In these and many other ways, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 will help us to overcome our housing problems and make our towns and cities better places in which to live and work.

Sincerely,

WRIGHT PATMAN, Chairman.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

RENT SUPPLEMENTS

The Housing and Home Finance Administrator is authorized to make rent supplement payments to the owners of certain private housing in order to help make the housing available to low-income individuals and families.

Individuals or families eligible for rent supplements

To be eligible for the benefit of rent supplements, a tenant's income cannot exceed the maximum amount that Federal law permits to be established in the area for occupancy of federally aided low-rent public housing. In addition, the tenant must either—

1. be elderly;
2. be physically handicapped;
3. have been displaced by governmental action;
4. come from substandard housing; or
5. be an occupant or former occupant of a dwelling damaged or destroyed by a natural disaster after April 1, 1965.

Amount of rent supplement payments

The rent supplement payments for any dwelling unit cannot exceed the amount by which the fair market rental for the unit exceeds one-fourth of the tenant's income. When the tenant can pay the full rent he may continue to live in the same unit without a rent supplement payment.

Rent supplement payments to a housing owner will be up to an amount specified in the contract with the Administrator and cover a period of not more than 40 years. The annual amount of rent supplement payments that the Administrator can contract for is limited to amounts prescribed in annual appropriation acts but not more than $150 million a year by July 1, 1968.

Housing owners eligible for rent supplement payments

Rent supplement payments can be made to nonprofit, limited dividend, or cooperative housing owners who provide housing financed with mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration under its market-interest rate mortgage insurance program for low- or moderate-income families. The housing may be either new housing or housing that is improved by a substantial amount of rehabilitation financed by the insured mortgage.

Experimental rent supplement program

Of the funds approved in appropriation acts for the rent supplement program, there may be made available on an experimental basis (1) 5 percent for housing financed with FHA-insured mortgages bearing a below-market interest rate (3 percent per annum); and (2) 5 percent for housing for the elderly financed with a direct Federal loan or under the FHA mortgage insurance program for rental housing for the elderly.

FHA LOW- OR MODERATE-INCOME PROGRAM

FHA's special mortgage insurance program for housing for low- and moderate-income families (including the below-market interest rate rental housing program) is continued until October 1, 1969. The interest rate ceiling on the below-market interest rate mortgages is reduced to 3 percent (immediately prior to this change the rate was 4 percent).

LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

Additional low-rent public housing units

Contracts are authorized for Federal annual contributions to approximately 240,000 additional units of low-rent public housing over the next 4 years.

More private housing for low-rent public housing use

More use of the private housing supply for low-rent public housing is made possible by two provisions of the act.

1. Purchase or lease of available housing.—Under the first provision, the formula for Federal assistance to low-rent public housing is revised to make it more flexible and suitable for providing low-rent housing through the purchase, purchase and rehabilitation, or leasing of existing private housing.

2. Low-rent housing and private accommodations.—Under the second provision, a local housing authority can use up to 10 percent of the units in a privately owned structure for low-rent public housing under a contract with the owner. The contract for use of the housing can have a term of from 1 to 3 years and be renewable. Selection of the tenants will be made by the owner of the housing, subject to the provisions of the contract, and the rentals and charges to be paid by the tenants are like those in other public housing.

Before this provision can be used by a local housing authority, it must obtain approval from the local governing body. Where local approval is given, the local housing authority conducts a continuing survey and listing of available privately owned dwelling units within the area under its jurisdiction which can be used to provide decent, safe, and sanitary housing or which can be made suitable for use as low-rent public housing.

Increase in room cost limits

The ceiling on the construction and equipment cost per room of conventional public housing is raised from $2,000 to $2,400 with corresponding increases in the special cost limits for Alaska and dwelling units designed specifically for the elderly.

DIRECT LOANS FOR HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED

The limit on appropriations for Federal loans for housing for the elderly or handicapped is increased from $350 million to $500 million. The interest rate on the loans is reduced to a maximum of 3 percent (immediately prior to this change the rate was 4 percent).

REHABILITATION GRANTS TO HOMEOWNERS IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

Grants can be made by local public agencies to the owner-occupants of homes in urban renewal areas and federally assisted code enforcement areas to enable the homeowners to make repairs to their homes which are required to make them conform to applicable codes or urban renewal plan requirements. The grants will be financed from urban renewal grants to the local public agencies.

If the homeowner's income does not exceed $3,000 a year, the grant may be in amount up to the lesser of $1,500 or the cost of the repairs. If the income exceeds $3,000 a year, the grant cannot exceed that portion of the cost of repairs which cannot be paid for with a loan which could be amortized along with the borrower's other monthly housing expense, with 25 percent of his monthly income.

COMMUNITY AND NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES

Basic water and sewer facilities

The Housing Administrator can make grants to local public bodies and agencies to finance up to 50 percent of the development cost of basic public water and sewer facilities, subject to certain planning requirements.

Neighborhood facilities

The Administrator can make grants to local public bodies and agencies to finance neighborhood facilities such as neighborhood or community centers, youth centers, health stations, and other public buildings to provide health or recreational or social services to a neighborhood. A grant cannot exceed two-thirds of the development cost of a project, except it can be three-fourths if the project is located in a redevelopment area designated under the Area Redevelopment Act or any act supplementary to that act. Priority will be given to projects that benefit primarily low-income families or otherwise further the objectives of the antipoverty program.

Advance acquisition of land for community facilities

The Administrator can make grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist the timely acquisition of sites planned to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works or facilities. A grant may not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges, on a loan incurred to finance the acquisition of the land, for a period not exceeding the lesser of (1) 5 years from the date the loan is made; or (2) the period between the date the loan is made and the date construction of the facility starts.

LAND DEVELOPMENT

The Federal Housing Administration is authorized to insure mortgages which finance the cost of land development for residential and related uses. The development financed can include the acquisition of land and the installation of improvements such as water- and sewer-lines, streets, curbs, sidewalks, and storm facilities.

The amount of a mortgage cannot exceed $10 million, nor 50 percent of the value of the land before development plus 90 percent of the cost of development nor 75 percent of value upon completion of the land development. The maturity of a mortgage is limited to 7 years, or such longer maturity as the Federal Housing Commissioner deems reasonable in the case of a privately owned system for water or sewerage. The Commissioner may prescribe maximum interest rates, the premium charges, and service charges and fees.

MORTGAGE RELIEF FOR HOMEOWNERS WHO ARE UNEMPLOYED AS A RESULT OF THE CLOSING OF A FEDERAL INSTALLATION

Two forms of relief are provided to homeowners who are unemployed as a result of the closing in whole or in part of a Federal installation:

1. Mortgage moratorium.—FHA and VA are authorized to pay, for not more than 1 year, the principal and interest payments on FHA or VA mortgages where the mortgagors are unemployed as a result of the closing in whole or in part of a Federal installation and this action is the only means whereby mortgage foreclosure can be avoided. The homeowner must repay the payments made by either FHA or VA in accordance with the requirements of his agreement with the agency.

2. Acquisition of properties by the Secretary of Defense.—The Secretary of Defense is authorized to acquire one- or two-family dwellings situated at or near a military installation which is closed or partially closed after November 1, 1964, if he determines that there is no present market for the sale of the property upon reasonable terms and conditions and that the owner's employment at the installation is terminated by its closing.

The purchase price paid by the Secretary is to equal the average price at which similar properties in the locality were sold prior to announcement of the closing. Appropriations are authorized for the purposes of these two provisions.

OPEN-SPACE LAND AND URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

The open-space land program is continued and enlarged to provide more assistance and to include grants for urban beautification and improvement.

Increased grant authority

New authority is provided for grants by the Administrator, under the previous open-space land program, for the development of land for open-space uses in addition to the acquisition of land. The term "open-space uses" includes development for park and recreational purposes, conservation of land and other natural resources, and historic or scenic purposes.

The limit on the amount of a grant is raised to 50 percent of the total cost of land acquisition and its development for open-space uses. (Prior to this amendment the limit was 20 percent, or 30 percent in certain cases.)

Open-space land in built-up urban areas

The Administrator is authorized to make grants to States and local public bodies to assist in the acquisition of developed land in built-up portions of urban areas to be cleared and developed for open-space uses, where open-space land cannot be provided through the use of undeveloped land. The grants can cover 50 percent of the cost of land acquisition, removal of improvements, and development.

Urban beautification and improvement

The Administrator can make grants to State and local public bodies to assist in carrying out local programs for the greater use and enjoyment of open-space and other public land in urban areas (urban beautification and improvement) that are important to the comprehensively planned development of the locality. The grants cannot exceed 50 percent of the amount by which the cost of the urban beautification and improvement exceeds the locality's usual expenditures for comparable activities.

Increase in authorization for grants

The authorization for grants under the open-space program is increased by $235 million. Not more than $64 million can be used for the new open-space program in built-up urban areas and not more than $36 million can be used for the new program of urban beautification and improvement.

OTHER FHA MORTGAGE INSURANCE PROGRAMS

Continuation of programs

FHA's authority to insure housing mortgages and loans under all of its programs is continued until October 1, 1969.

Increases in dollar limits on insured mortgage amounts

The dollar limits on the amount of a mortgage that can be insured are increased—

- (1) from $11,000 to $12,500 where the mortgage finances a home in an outlying area;
- (2) from $20,000 to $30,000 where the mortgage finances a home for a serviceman; and
- (3) by amounts ranging from $2,250 to $3,000 per family unit where the mortgage finances rental housing having dwelling units with four or more bedrooms.

Reduction in downpayments

The amount of downpayment required where the purchase of a home is financed under FHA's regular home mortgage insurance program and its program for the military, NASA, and AEC, is decreased from 25 percent to 20 percent with respect to that portion of the value of a home which exceeds $20,000.

No downpayment FHA loans for veterans

A mortgage insurance program for veterans is authorized, under which a veteran can purchase a home with an FHA-insured mortgage with no downpayment required on the first $15,000 of the value of the home, a 10-percent downpayment on the value of the home over $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and 15-percent downpayment on the value in excess of $20,000.

A veteran means any person who has served in the Armed Forces not less than 90 days (or has performed extrahazardous service), and who has received a discharge other than dishonorable.

Approval of technically suitable materials

The Federal Housing Commissioner is required to adopt a uniform procedure for the acceptance of materials and products used in housing financed with FHA-insured loans. Under this procedure, any material or product which the Commissioner finds is technically suitable for the use proposed must be accepted. Acceptance of a material or product as technically suitable by the Commissioner does not restrict his discretion to determine that a structure, with respect to which a mortgage is executed, is economically sound or an acceptable risk.

FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION—MORTGAGE PURCHASE PROGRAMS

The limit on the amount of special assistance that can be provided by FNMA to mortgage financing of housing designed to meet special needs is increased by $1,625 million over the next 4 years.

URBAN RENEWAL*Increase in grant authorization*

The limit on the aggregate amount of Federal grants that can be made by the Administrator to assist urban renewal and related activities is increased by $2.9 billion over a 4-year period.

Grants for nonresidential urban renewal

Thirty-five percent of the additional $2.9 billion grant authority can be used for urban renewal in nonresidential areas.

Demolition of unsafe structures

Grants are authorized to be made by the Administrator to cities and counties to finance up to two-thirds of the cost of demolishing structures determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation. The structures must be either in an urban renewal area or (1) the locality must have an approved workable program for community improvement; (2) the demolition will be on a planned neighborhood basis; (3) the locality must have a program of enforcement of existing local housing and related codes; (4) the structures must constitute a serious hazard to public health or welfare; and (5) the local governing body must have determined that other legal procedures to obtain remedial action by the owners have been exhausted.

Code enforcement

The Administrator is authorized to make grants to cities and counties to assist them in carrying out programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas of cities and counties. The grants may not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of a city or county having a population of 50,000 or less) of the cost of planning and carrying out the programs.

No grant can be made for code enforcement assistance unless the locality (1) agrees to maintain its prior level of expenditures for code enforcement in addition to its expenditures for planning and carrying out the code enforcement to be assisted; (2) has a satisfactory program for providing all necessary public improvements for the assisted areas; and (3) has an approved workable program.

Rehabilitation loans

An authorization of appropriations of up to $100 million per year is provided for the low-interest rate Federal rehabilitation loans for homes and businesses in urban renewal areas and code enforcement areas. Authority to make the loans is terminated as of October 1, 1969.

Study of codes, zoning, and tax policies

The Administrator is directed to study housing and building codes, zoning and tax policies, and to report to Congress within 18 months after the appropriation of funds for the study.

LEASE GUARANTEES FOR SMALL BUSINESSES

A program of lease guarantees by the Small Business Administration is authorized. Under this program the payment by small business concerns of rentals under certain leases will be guaranteed where the small businesses are eligible for disaster loans under the Small Business Act or for loans under the antipoverty law.

COLLEGE HOUSING

The authorization for Federal college-housing loans is increased by an aggregate amount of \$1,200 million over a 4-year period. The interest rate on college housing loans is changed by placing a ceiling of 3 percent (or the amount derived from the statutory formula, if lower) on the rate. Prior to this change, the rate was $3\frac{7}{8}$ percent.

COMPENSATION OF CONDEMNÉES

Land acquisition policy—compensation

As a condition of eligibility for Federal assistance by the Housing Agency under the low-rent public housing program, the urban renewal program, the urban mass transportation program, the public facility loans program, the open-space land program, the programs of grants for community and neighborhood facilities, and the advance acquisition of land for future public facilities, each applicant for assistance must satisfy the Administrator that the following policies will be followed in connection with the acquisition of real property by eminent domain under the program to be assisted:

1. The applicant will make every reasonable effort to acquire the property by negotiation.
2. No owner will be required to surrender possession of real property before receiving the agreed purchase price or, in any case where only the amount of payment to the owner is in dispute, not less than 75 percent of the appraised fair value of the property.
3. Construction of public improvements will be so scheduled that no person occupying the property will be required to surrender possession without at least 90 days' written notice of the date the construction will begin.

RELOCATION PAYMENTS

Families, individuals, business concerns, and nonprofit organizations displaced by activities assisted by the Housing Agency under the public facility loans program, the urban mass transportation program, the open-space land program, and the programs of grants for community and neighborhood facilities and the advance acquisition of land for future public facilities are made eligible for relocation payments like those provided under the urban renewal and public housing programs.

The relocation adjustment payment for displaced small business concerns is increased from $1,500 to $2,500.

Under new relocation payment provisions, payments can be made for costs of transfer of real property including (1) recording fees, transfer taxes, and similar expenses; (2) mortgage prepayment penalties; and (3) the pro rata share of taxes covering a period after transfer of title.

ADDITIONAL AUTHORIZATIONS

Urban planning grants

Organizations composed of public officials in metropolitan or urban regions are made eligible for urban planning assistance grants. The grants cannot exceed two-thirds of the cost of the work for which they are given. The authorization of appropriations for urban planning grants is increased by $125 million.

Federal-State training programs

The limit on appropriations for grants to assist Federal-State training programs is increased from $10 to $30 million.

Public works planning advances

The limit on appropriations for public works planning advances is increased by $50 million.

Low-income housing demonstrations

The limit on authorization for grants for low-income housing demonstrations is raised by $5 million.

SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

The authority of Federal savings and loan associations to make loans on college, university, or hospital residential facilities is liberalized, and they are permitted to make loans secured by leaseholds where the term of the lease is 10 years rather than the previous 15 years.

Federal savings and loan associations are authorized to invest up to 1 percent of the association's assets, as approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, in certain loans for housing projects in Latin America which are guaranteed by the United States.

RURAL HOUSING

Continuation of certain programs

The authority of the Secretary of Agriculture is extended to October 1, 1969, (1) to make "loan contribution commitments" for housing on potentially adequate farms; (2) to finance assistance for housing improvements, research, and housing for farm labor; and (3) to make rental housing loans for the elderly. The authorization for appropriations for assistance to low-rent housing for domestic farm labor is increased by $40 million.

Insured and direct rural housing loans

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to insure loans, and make loans to be sold and insured, for rural housing. The loans to persons of low or moderate income will bear interest at not more than 5 percent and be limited to adequate housing modest in size, design, and cost. Loans to other persons will be made at rates and charges comparable to FHA's home loans.

SECTION-BY-SECTION SUMMARY OF THE HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

Public Law 89-117 (H.R. 7984)

TITLE I—SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO ENABLE CERTAIN PRIVATE HOUSING TO BE AVAILABLE FOR LOWER-INCOME FAMILIES WHO ARE ELDERLY, HANDICAPPED, DISPLACED, VICTIMS OF A NATURAL DISASTER, OR OCCUPANTS OF SUBSTANDARD HOUSING (RENT SUPPLEMENTS)

Section 101.—Authorizes the Housing and Home Finance Administrator to undertake and carry out a program of rent supplement payments to help make certain privately owned housing available to low-income individuals and families who are elderly, handicapped, displaced by governmental action, occupants of substandard housing, or occupants or former occupants of dwellings damaged or destroyed by a natural disaster subsequent to April 1, 1965. To be eligible for the benefit of rent supplements, a tenant's income cannot exceed the maximum amount that Federal law permits to be established in the area for occupancy of federally aided low-rent public housing. The housing owner (as described below) selects the tenants subject to a certification by the Administrator, or his delegatee, as to the specific facts concerning these eligibility requirements.

Amount of rent supplement payments per dwelling unit

The rent supplement payments for any dwelling unit cannot exceed the amount by which the fair market rental for the unit exceeds one-fourth of the tenant's income. As the tenant's income rises, the supplement payment will be reduced. When the tenant can pay the full rent with one-fourth of his income, he may continue to live in the same unit without a rent supplement payment.

Tenants will occupy the housing under leases. The owner of the housing may also, if the agreement with the Housing Administrator so provides, enter into lease-purchase agreements with qualified tenants under which the tenant will have an option to purchase a dwelling at an established price. Tenants would participate in the lease-purchase plan on the basis of a probability of future increases in their income.

Where the housing is owned by a cooperative, a member of the cooperative who meets the income and other requirements described above is eligible for rent supplement payments. Upon resale of his membership to the cooperative, the member of the cooperative will not be reimbursed for any equity increment he has accumulated through rent supplements.

Housing owners eligible for rent supplement payments

Housing owners who are eligible for contracts with the Housing Administrator to receive rent supplement payments will be nonprofit, cooperative, or limited dividend owners who provide housing financed with mortgages insured by FHA under its market-interest rate mortgage insurance program for low- or moderate-income families (sec. 221(d)(3)). The mortgage financing the housing must have been approved for insurance by the Federal Housing Commissioner after the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965. It can consist of a project of five or more dwelling units which may be individual dwelling units, row houses, semidetached housing, or multifamily housing. The housing must be either new housing or housing that is improved by a substantial amount of rehabilitation financed by the insured mortgage. The interest rate on the mortgage cannot exceed the amount prescribed by the Federal Housing Commissioner, which is currently $5\frac{1}{4}$ percent. The housing owner must also pay a mortgage insurance premium, which is currently one-half of 1 percent on the declining balance of the mortgage.

No rent supplement payments may be made with respect to any property for which the costs of operation (including wages and salaries) are determined by the Housing Administrator to be greater than similar costs of operation of similar housing in the community where the property is situated.

Contracts with housing owners

The Housing Administrator will enter into contracts with the housing owners to make rent supplement payments up to an amount specified in the contract over not more than 40 years.

Operation of the program

The Administrator may enter into agreements, or authorize housing owners with whom he has rent supplement contracts to enter into agreements, with public or private agencies for services required in connection with the admission of tenants who will receive the benefits of rent supplement payments. These public or private agencies will be authorized under the agreements to issue on behalf of the Administrator certificates of eligibility to applicants for dwelling units in connection with which the benefits of rent supplements are available.

The Administrator or these agencies will also recertify at least every 2 years the incomes of tenants who are receiving the benefit of rent supplements, except in the case of elderly tenants. The amount of rent supplement payments for a tenant will be adjusted on the basis of changes in these incomes.

Size of the program

The aggregate amount of rent supplement payments that the Housing Administrator can contract for is limited to amounts prescribed in annual appropriation acts, but not to exceed $30 million prior to July 1, 1966. That limit is increased by $35 million on July 1, 1966, by $40 million on July 1, 1967, and by $45 million on July 1, 1968.

Workable program requirement

The requirement that the community must have a workable program for community improvement before the housing is eligible for FHA mortgage insurance for low- or moderate-income housing (sec. 221

(d)(3)) does not apply in the case of housing to be used under the rent supplement program, unless the workable program was previously required and in effect in the community for purposes of Federal assistance to code enforcement, urban renewal, or public housing.

Relocation adjustment payments

A displaced person or family who obtains a dwelling unit with the assistance of a rent supplement will not be entitled to receive a relocation adjustment payment under the Federal urban renewal law although he may, if otherwise eligible, receive a payment under that law for moving expenses.

Experimental rent supplement program.

Section 101(j).—Authorizes rent supplements to be made available on a restricted and experimental basis for housing financed with mortgages insured by FHA under its below-market interest rate program for low- or moderate-income families (sec. 221(d)(3)) and housing for the elderly financed with a direct Federal loan (sec. 202 program) or under the FHA mortgage insurance program for rental housing for the elderly (sec. 231 program).

The FHA low- or moderate-income housing under this experimental program must be approved for mortgage insurance after the date of enactment of this law. Housing financed with a direct loan (sec. 202 program), either before or after enactment of the law, may be eligible under the experimental program. The FHA housing for the elderly (sec. 231 program) may be eligible if the mortgage is endorsed for insurance after the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

Not more than 10 percent of the amounts approved in annual appropriation acts for the rent supplement program may be utilized for the experimental program, of which half may be used for housing provided under the FHA below-market program and half for housing for the elderly under the direct loan program and the FHA elderly program.

In the case of an existing housing project for the elderly financed with a direct loan, not more than 20 percent of the dwelling units in such project may receive the benefits of rent supplements.

Authorization of appropriations

Appropriations are authorized to carry out the provisions of the rent supplement programs, to pay for services provided by local private or public agencies in connection with the program, and to provide administrative expenses.

EXTENSION OF FHA 221 PROGRAMS FOR LOW- OR MODERATE-INCOME FAMILIES; MODIFICATION OF INTEREST RATE; POOLING OF MORTGAGES FOR SALE

Extension of FHA 221 programs

Section 102(a).—Amends section 221(f) of the National Housing Act to extend for 4 years (to October 1, 1969) FHA's authority to insure mortgages under its section 221 programs of housing for low- and moderate-income families. These include the sales housing program under subsection (d)(2) of that section, the market-rate and below-market-rate rental and cooperative housing programs for limited profit and nonprofit mortgagors under subsection (d)(3), and the rental housing program for profit-making mortgagors under subsection (d) (4).

Modification of interest rate

Section 102(b).—Amends section 221(d) (5) of the National Housing Act to place an interest rate ceiling of 3 percent (or the rate derived under the existing formula, if lower) on mortgages which may be insured by FHA under the section 221(d) (3) below-market-interest-rate program.

Davis-Bacon Act requirements

Section 102(c).—Amends section 212(a) of the National Housing Act to apply the requirements of the Davis-Bacon Act to construction on all (d) (3) and (d) (4) projects under section 221. Under prior law, Davis-Bacon requirements applied to housing provided under the (d) (3) program in the case of a cooperative or a limited-profit mortgagor, but not to nonprofit or public body mortgagors.

Pooling of mortgages for sale

Section 102(d).—Amends section 302(c) of the National Housing Act to make it possible for FNMA to include its below-market-interest-rate mortgages in its arrangements for pooling mortgages and selling participations therein. It does this by authorizing appropriations to reimburse FNMA for the differential between (1) its total outlay with respect to such participations which, at the time of issuance, were predicated upon the below-market-interest-rate mortgages; and (2) its total receipts from such mortgages.

LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

Section 103.—Adds to the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 a new section 23 to provide a new form of low-rent housing, utilizing existing privately owned housing to supplement the units provided in low-rent public housing projects under the conventional program. These provisions will not apply in any locality unless the local governing body approves their application by resolution.

Where these provisions are made applicable, the local public housing authority will conduct a continuing survey and listing of the available privately owned dwelling units within the area under its jurisdiction which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and are (or may be made) suitable for use as "low-rent housing in private accommodations" under the new program. The public will be notified from time to time of the anticipated need for dwelling units to be used under the new program, and owners of housing listed invited to make one or more of their units available for this purpose. Not more than 10 percent of the units in any single structure can be used in the program, except in the case of buildings with small numbers of units or in other cases determined by the local agency.

If the local housing authority finds that units offered in response to the invitation are (or can be made) suitable for use in the new program, and that the rentals to be charged are within its financial range, it may approve the units for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations.

To the extent of its contracts with the Public Housing Administration for annual contributions, the local housing authority may enter into a contract (having a term of from 1 to 3 years, renewable) with the owners of the approved housing for its use in the program. Each contract will make the selection of tenants for the units involved a function of the owner of the property subject to the contract between the local authority and PHA, will provide for the negotiation of the rentals by the local authority and the owner, will give the local authority the sole right to give notice to vacate, and will contain other appropriate terms and conditions.

Payments under the new program to housing owners will be made from funds authorized for annual contributions to low-rent public housing. In any case, such payments will be limited to the amount of the fixed annual contributions payable for a newly constructed project offering comparable accommodations in that community (or in a comparable community if the locality has no public housing at present). As in the case of the conventional program, there could also be payable the additional subsidy of up to $120 per year for units occupied by elderly, handicapped, or displaced persons or families.

The tax exemption, local cooperation agreement, and workable program requirements otherwise applicable to low-rent public housing are waived in the case of low-rent housing in private accommodations.

PARITY OF TREATMENT FOR THE HANDICAPPED AND ELDERLY IN PUBLIC HOUSING

Handicapped

Section 104.—Amends section 2(2) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to establish for handicapped persons a parity of treatment with the elderly for low-rent public housing. For this purpose, it makes available to the handicapped higher room cost limits where the units are designed specifically for the handicapped; authorizes a special Federal contribution of up to $120 per year to dwelling units occupied by the handicapped; and exempts the handicapped from the requirement that there be a 20-percent gap between the upper rental limits for admission to a proposed low-rent housing project and the lowest rents at which private enterprise is providing a substantial supply of standard housing.

Disaster victims

Section 104 also amends section 2(2) of the U.S. Housing Act to include within the meaning of the term "displaced families" families whose homes have been extensively damaged or destroyed as a result of a natural disaster subsequent to April 1, 1965. Thus, disaster victims may be treated under the public housing program the same as families displaced by urban renewal or other governmental action for purposes of (1) exemption from the 20-percent gap requirement; (2) eligibility for admission of single persons; and (3) any priorities in admission which a local housing authority may establish for displaced families. The disaster victims may not be treated as "displaced families" for purposes of the additional subsidy of $120 per year. (This subsidy may be paid only with respect to a dwelling unit occupied by an elderly or handicapped family or a family displaced by an urban renewal or low-rent housing project on or after January 27, 1964.)

DIRECT LOANS TO PROVIDE HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED

Authorization

Section 105(a).—Amends section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 (which authorizes the program of direct loans to provide housing for the elderly or handicapped) to increase the limit on appropriations for loans under this program from $350 million to $500 million.

Interest rate

Section 105(b).—Places a ceiling of 3 percent (or the amount derived under the existing formula, if lower) on the interest rate applicable to loans under the program.

REHABILITATION GRANTS TO HOMEOWNERS IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

Section 106.—Adds a new section 115 to the Housing Act of 1949 to authorize the use of urban renewal capital grant funds for grants to the owner-occupants of homes in urban renewal areas, to enable the homeowners to make the repairs to their homes necessary to make them conform to applicable codes or urban renewal requirements for their areas.

If the homeowner's income does not exceed $3,000 a year, the grant may be in an amount up to the lesser of $1,500 or the cost of the repairs. If the income exceeds $3,000 a year, the grant cannot exceed that portion of the cost of repairs which cannot be paid for with an available loan which could be amortized, along with the borrower's other monthly housing expense, with 25 percent of his monthly income (subject to $1,500 ceiling).

Existing contracts for Federal assistance to urban renewal can be amended to provide for these rehabilitation grants.

MORTGAGE RELIEF FOR HOMEOWNERS WHO ARE UNEMPLOYED AS A RESULT OF THE CLOSING OF A FEDERAL INSTALLATION

Section 107.—Authorizes FHA and VA to pay for not more than 1 year the principal and interest payments on FHA or VA mortgages where the mortgagors are unemployed as a result of the closing in whole or in part of a Federal installation and such action is the only means whereby a foreclosure can be avoided. The mortgagor must be the occupant of the housing, and he must agree to reimburse the FHA or VA for the payments made by them. The manner and time of repayment shall be determined by FHA or VA, as the case may be. Funds are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this section and funds appropriated shall remain available until expended.

ACQUISITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTIES SITUATED AT OR NEAR MILITARY BASES WHICH HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO BE CLOSED

Section 108.—Authorizes the Secretary of Defense to acquire one- or two-family dwellings situated at or near a military base or installation which is closed or partially closed after November 1, 1964, if he determines that there is no present market for the sale of the property upon reasonable terms and conditions due to the closing and that the owner's employment at the base or installation is terminated by its closing.

The purchase price shall be equal to the average price at which similar properties in the locality were sold prior to announcement of the closing of the base or installation.

The properties acquired shall be transferred to the Federal Housing Commissioner for disposal. Any net receipts remaining after disposal shall be covered into the U.S. Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Appropriations are authorized to carry out the provisions of this section and any sums appropriated shall remain available until expended.

TITLE II—FHA INSURANCE OPERATIONS

LAND DEVELOPMENT

Section 201(a).—Adds to the National Housing Act a new title X to authorize a new program of FHA mortgage insurance for the development of land for residential subdivisions and related uses including facilities for public or common use.

FHA is authorized to insure mortgages to finance the acquisition of land and the installation of improvements such as water and sewer lines, streets, curbs, sidewalks, and storm drainage facilities.

The Commissioner is directed to adopt appropriate requirements to encourage the maintenance of a diversified local homebuilding industry, broad participation by builders, and a proper balance of housing for low- and moderate-income families.

The maximum amount outstanding of a mortgage for a single land insurance undertaking could not exceed $10 million. The mortgage maximum would also be limited to 50 percent of the Commissioner's estimate of the value of the land before development plus 90 percent of his estimate of the cost of such development, subject to an overall ceiling of 75 percent of the value upon completion.

The maximum maturity of the mortgage is limited to 7 years, or such longer maturity as the Commissioner deems reasonable in the case of a privately owned system for water or sewerage. The Commissioner is authorized to prescribe maximum interest rates, the premium charges, and service charges and fees.

To be eligible, the mortgage would have to represent a good mortgage insurance risk in the Commissioner's estimation, and the development would have to be consistent with sound land use patterns and consistent with a comprehensive plan or planning for the area in which the land is situated. The development shall include or be served by such shopping, school, recreational, transportation, and other facilities as the Commissioner deems adequate or necessary.

After development of the land it shall be served by public systems for water and sewerage except that the Commissioner may approve an adequate privately or cooperatively owned system which will be regulated in a manner acceptable to him with respect to rates, operation, and terms of sale or transfer.

Cost certification will be required to assure that the amount of the mortgage loan outstanding at reasonable intervals during construction does not exceed the maximum loan ratios described above.

No mortgage may be insured under the new program after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment to insure issued before that date.

Sections 201(b) (1) and (2).—Amend provisions of existing law to make land development mortgages insured under the new title X eligible for purchase under FNMA's regular secondary market operations and for investments by national banks.

Section 201(b) (3).—Amends section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 to authorize Federal savings and loan associations to invest in loans and participations in loans secured by mortgages as to which the associations have the benefit of insurance (or a commitment or agreement therefor) under the new title X of the National Housing Act.

This section also amends section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act to authorize Federal savings and loan associations to invest up to 1 percent of assets in loans and participations guaranteed by the President under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. Section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 authorizes the guarantee, as therein set forth, of investments in specified types of pilot or demonstration housing projects in Latin America which are made by U.S. citizens or by corporations, partnerships, or other associations created under the law of the United States or any State or territory and substantially beneficially owned by U.S. citizens.

Section 201(b) (4).—Amends section 212(a) of the National Housing Act to make the labor standards provisions of that section applicable to laborers and mechanics employed in land development financed with the proceeds of any mortgage insured under the new title X.

EXTENSION OF INSURANCE AUTHORIZATIONS

Section 202.—Amends the relevant sections of the National Housing Act to continue for 4 years (until Oct. 1, 1969) FHA's existing authority to insure (1) property improvement loans under title I program; (2) housing loans and mortgages under all of the FHA programs (except the sec. 221 program of mortgage insurance for low- and moderate-income families which is continued for 4 years by sec. 102 of this act).

DOWNPAYMENTS FOR HOMES UNDER SECTION 203(b)

Section 203.—Reduces the minimum downpayment required under FHA's regular 203(b) home mortgage program for homes having an appraised value in excess of $20,000. The amount of downpayment necessary with respect to that portion of the value of a home which exceeds $20,000 is decreased from 25 to 20 percent.

DOWNPAYMENT REQUIREMENT IN CASE OF LOW-INCOME HOUSING DEMONSTRATION HOMES

Section 204.—Amends section 203(b)(9) of the National Housing Act to permit the downpayment on the purchase of a home financed with a mortgage insured by FHA under the regular section 203(b) home mortgage insurance program to be made by someone other than the mortgagor in the case of a home being purchased under the low-income housing demonstration program assisted pursuant to section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961.

MORTGAGE LIMIT FOR HOMES IN OUTLYING AREAS UNDER FHA SECTION
203(i) PROGRAM

Section 205.—Amends section 203(i) of the National Housing Act to increase from $11,000 to $12,500 the dollar limit on the amount of a mortgage which can be insured under the FHA program of mortgage insurance for low-cost housing in outlying areas.

FHA MORTGAGE FINANCING FOR VETERANS

Section 206.—Amends section 203(b) of the National Housing Act to authorize liberal FHA home mortgage insurance for veterans who have not received benefits under the VA housing programs. Under the new veterans' program a veteran can purchase a home with an FHA-insured mortgage with no downpayment required on the first $15,000 of the value of the home, a 10-percent downpayment on the value of the home over $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and a 15-percent downpayment on the value in excess of $20,000 (with a maximum mortgage of $30,000).

A veteran is defined as any person who served on active duty in the Armed Forces of the United States for a period of not less than 90 days (or is certified by the Secretary of Defense as having performed extrahazardous service) and who was discharged or released from service under conditions other than dishonorable.

MULTIFAMILY MORTGAGE LIMITS FOR FOUR OR MORE BEDROOM UNITS

Section 207.—Amends sections 207, 213, 220, 221, 231, and 234 of the National Housing Act to increase the dollar limitation on the amount of an insurable mortgage financing rental housing where the dwelling units have four or more bedrooms. The amount of the increase would range from $2,250 to $3,000 per family unit. No change would be made in the existing limits for dwelling units having less than four bedrooms.

MUTUALITY FOR MANAGEMENT-TYPE COOPERATIVES

Section 208.—Amends section 213 of the National Housing Act to place FHA's mortgage insurance program for management-type cooperatives on a mutual basis. (Sales-type cooperatives are not included, nor are projects built for sale to cooperatives unless actually so sold.) A new cooperative management housing insurance fund is created with funds transferred from the general insurance fund (established by sec. 214 of this act), with a general surplus account and a participating reserve account to which income or loss will be appropriately credited or charged. Cooperative mortgages in good standing heretofore insured and transferred to the new fund, as well as cooperative mortgages insured in the future are eligible for mutuality.

REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

Section 209.—Amends section 220 of the National Housing Act (FHA's urban renewal housing program) to increase the maximum amount of an insurable mortgage in a case where the mortgagor is not the occupant of the property but intends to hold it for rental purposes. The increase is from 85 percent of the amount which an owner-occupant can receive to 93 percent of such amount (i.e., about 90 percent of value or cost). The 85-percent limit continues to apply where the nonoccupant mortgagor intends to hold the property for sale rather than rental. Where refinancing is involved, existing indebtedness for improvement of the property can be included in the computation of the mortgage amount whether or not the indebtedness is secured by a mortgage against the property.

NONDWELLING FACILITIES FOR URBAN RENEWAL HOUSING

Section 210.—Amends section 220 of the National Housing Act (FHA's urban renewal housing program) to expand the class of nondwelling facilities which may be included in a project financed with a section 220 mortgage. Under the amendment, such a project can include such nondwelling facilities as the Commissioner deems desirable and consistent with the urban renewal plan, so long as the project is predominantly residential and the Commissioner finds that any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage contributes to the economic feasibility of the project. (Under previous law only such nondwelling facilities as were needed to serve the occupants of the project and of other housing in the neighborhood could be included.)

The Commissioner also is required by the new provisions to give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community.

LARGER HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS IN HIGH-COST AREAS

Section 211.—Amends section 220(h) of the National Housing Act to permit the limit on the amount of home improvement loans to be increased by up to 45 percent in high-cost areas. This increase is applicable to the FHA 220(h) home improvement loans for housing in urban renewal areas, the FHA section 203(k) home improvement loans for housing in any area, and the section 312 direct Federal rehabilitation loans for owners or tenants of homes in urban renewal areas.

LARGER INSURED MORTGAGES FOR SERVICEMEN

Section 212.—Amends section 222 of the National Housing Act to increase the limit on the amount of an FHA-insured mortgage financing the home of a serviceman from $20,000 to $30,000. The downpayment required is 3 percent of the first $15,000 of value, 10 percent of the next $5,000, and 15 percent of all over $20,000.

REFINANCING OF INSURED MORTGAGES

Section 213.—Amends section 223 of the National Housing Act to give FHA the authority to insure mortgages executed for the purpose of refinancing existing mortgages insured under any of FHA's programs; this authority was previously available only for mortgages insured under sections 220, 221, 903, 908, and (in certain cases) 608.

CONSOLIDATION OF FHA INSURANCE FUNDS

Section 214.—Adds to the National Housing Act a new section 519, providing for the consolidation into a single general insurance fund of all of FHA's existing insurance funds except the mutual mortgage insurance fund, which would continue without change in its present coverage of section 203 mortgages (although section 203(k) home improvement loans would be transferred to the new fund). The only other FHA-insured mortgages not covered by the new general insurance fund are the section 213 cooperative housing mortgages which will be the obligation of the new cooperative management housing insurance fund established by section 208 of this act.

OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

Section 215.—Adds to the National Housing Act a new section 520 authorizing the Federal Housing Commissioner in his discretion to pay either in cash or in debentures any insurance claim filed by the mortgagee under any of FHA's programs. (Under previous law, payments had to be in debentures, except in the case of mortgages insured under sections 220, 221, and 233 after enactment of the 1961 Housing Act, and loans insured under section 203(k) after enactment of the 1964 act.) The Commissioner is authorized to obtain funds for these cash payments by borrowing from the Treasury.

Any cash payment can be in an amount equivalent to the face amount of the debentures which would otherwise be issued, plus an amount equivalent to the interest the debentures would have earned.

APPROVAL OF TECHNICALLY SUITABLE MATERIALS

Section 216.—Adds a new section 521 to the National Housing Act to require the Federal Housing Commissioner to adopt a uniform procedure for the acceptance of materials and products to be used in housing approved for mortgages or loans insured by FHA. Under this procedure any material or product which the Commissioner finds is technically suitable for the use proposed shall be accepted. Acceptance of a material or product as technically suitable by the Commissioner shall not be deemed to restrict the discretion of the Commissioner to determine that a structure, with respect to which a mortgage is executed, is economically sound or an acceptable risk.

WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES IN CONNECTION WITH CERTAIN FEDERALLY ASSISTED HOUSING

Section 217(a).—Adds a new section 522 to the National Housing Act to prohibit the insurance of any mortgage which covers new construction (except pursuant to a commitment to insure made prior to the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965) if the housing is not served by a public or adequate community water and sewerage system where (1) the property is not served by a system approved by the Federal Housing Commissioner under the new mortgage insurance program for land development under title X of the National Housing Act, and (2) is situated in an area certified by appropriate local officials to be an area where the establishment of public or adequate community water and sewerage systems is economically feasible. This feasibility is to be determined without regard to whether the establishment of community water or sewerage systems is authorized by law or is subject to approval by one or more local governments or public bodies.

Section 217(b).—Adds similar provisions to title 38 of the United States Code to be applicable to housing loans under the veterans' housing program administered by the Veterans' Administration.

TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL

STUDY OF HOUSING AND BUILDING CODES, ZONING, TAX POLICIES, AND DEVELOPMENT STANDARDS

Section 301.—Directs the Housing and Home Finance Administrator to study the structure of (1) State and local urban and suburban housing and building laws, standards, codes, and regulations and their impact on building costs; (2) State and local zoning and land use laws, codes, and regulations; and (3) Federal, State, and local tax policies with respect to their effect on land and property cost and on incentives to build new housing and make improvements in existing structures. These studies are for the purpose of determining how local property owners and private enterprise can be encouraged to serve as large a part as they can of the total housing and building need, and how governmental assistance can be so directed as to enable them to serve a larger part of such need.

The Administrator is required to submit a report on the study to the President and the Congress within 18 months after the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 or the appropriation of funds for the study, whichever is later. Appropriations are authorized for the study, and funds appropriated shall remain available until expended.

WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT

Section 302(a).—Amends section 101 of the Housing Act of 1949 to prohibit the Administrator from entering into a loan or grant contract for any urban renewal project (receiving Federal recognition after the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965) unless he determines that the workable program required by that section is of sufficient scope and content to furnish a basis for evaluation of the need for such project and the project is in accord with the workable program.

Section 302(b).—Amends section 101(c) of the 1949 act to provide that in the case of a contract with an Indian tribe, band, or nation (or a housing authority of an Indian tribe, band, or nation), the workable program and minimum standards housing code required by that section may be presented to the Housing and Home Finance Administrator by the tribe, band, or nation, and shall be subject to the requirements of law with respect to such program or code only to the extent that such tribe, band, or nation has the legal jurisdiction and power to carry out such requirements.

GENERAL NEIGHBORHOOD RENEWAL PLANS

Section 303.—Amends section 102(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 to (1) permit a general neighborhood renewal plan to be prepared for an urban renewal area or areas together with any adjoining area or areas having specially related problems, thereby eliminating the prior requirement that the whole area covered by the general neighborhood renewal plan be an urban renewal area; and (2) permit urban renewal projects undertaken in general neighborhood renewal plan areas to be initiated within a period of not more than 8 years, in lieu of the prior requirement that such projects be carried out within an estimated period of not more than 10 years.

INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR CAPITAL GRANTS

Section 304.—Amends section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 to increase by $2.9 billion the aggregate amount of grants which the Housing and Home Finance Administrator may make under the urban renewal program. Of the new $2.9 billion authority, $675 million is authorized upon the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, with further increases of $725 million on July 1, 1966, and $750 million on July 1 in each of the years 1967 and 1968.

The prior figure designating total urban renewal grant authorization ($4.725 billion) is reduced by $25 million to reflect the deletion of an obsolete proviso in that amount authorizing the use of a portion of the urban renewal grant authorization for demonstration grants under the urban mass transportation program.

RELOCATION OF DISPLACED FROM URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

Section 305.—Amends section 105(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to require (with respect to any urban renewal project receiving Federal recognition after the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965) that (1) a relocation assistance program include information as to real estate agencies, brokers, and boards in or near the urban renewal area which deal in residential or business property that might be appropriate for the relocating of displaced individuals, families, and business concerns; and (2) as a condition to further assistance to each urban renewal project involving the displacement of individuals or families, that the local urban renewal agency present satisfactory assurance to the Housing Administrator, within a reasonable time prior to actual displacement, that decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings are available for the relocation of each such individual or family.

REDEVELOPMENT IN ACCORDANCE WITH URBAN RENEWAL PLAN

Section 306.—Amends section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 to require, as a condition of entering into any loan or capital grant contract for an urban renewal project with a local public agency, that the agency demonstrate that its projects theretofore assisted under the urban renewal program have been or will be undertaken and carried out in substantial accordance with the applicable urban renewal plan and the contracts covering the projects.

USE OF GRANT OR LOAN FUNDS IN CODE ENFORCEMENT AND REHABILITATION PROJECTS

Section 307.—Amends section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to provide that not less than 10 percent of (1) the amount of the additional capital grant authority provided by section 304 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and subsequent acts; and (2) the rehabilitation loans authorized under section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964 shall be available for projects (assisted with such grants or loans) which involve primarily code enforcement and rehabilitation.

INCREASE IN NONRESIDENTIAL EXCEPTION

Section 308.—Amends section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit 35 percent of the additional capital grant authority provided by section 304 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 to be used for areas which are not predominantly residential in character and which will be redeveloped and rehabilitated for uses which are not predominantly residential.

PRESERVATION OF HISTORIC STRUCTURES

Section 309.—Amends section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit the cost of relocating within an urban renewal project area a structure determined by the local urban renewal agency to be of historic value (and to be disposed of to a public body or private non-profit organization for historic purposes) to be included as part of an eligible urban renewal project cost.

ELIGIBILITY OF CERTAIN EXPENSES OF PROJECTS FINANCED ON THREE-FOURTHS GRANT BASIS

Section 310(a).—Amends section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 to include as eligible project costs for urban renewal projects financed on a three-fourths limited cost basis expenses incurred by a local public agency for staff services in connection with code enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation programs.

Section 310(b).—Provides that urban renewal contracts executed before the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 may be amended to incorporate the provisions of subsection (a) as to costs incurred on or after the date of the enactment of the act.

DEMOLITION OF UNSAFE STRUCTURES; CODE ENFORCEMENT

Section 311(a).—Adds to the Housing Act of 1949 new sections 116 and 117 relating to demolition of unsafe structures and code enforcement.

The new section 116 authorizes the Housing Administrator to make grants to cities, other municipalities and counties to finance up to two-thirds of the cost of demolishing structures determined under State or local law to be structurally unsound and which the city, municipality, or county is authorized to demolish. No such grant may be made unless the structures to be demolished are located in an urban renewal area, or, in the case of structures outside an urban renewal area, (1) the locality involved has an approved workable program; (2) the demolition to be assisted will be on a planned neighborhood basis and will further the overall renewal objectives of such locality; (3) there is in such locality a program of enforcement of existing local housing and related codes; (4) the structures to be demolished constitute a public nuisance and a serious hazard to public health or welfare; and (5) the governing body of such locality has determined that other available legal procedures to secure remedial action by the owner of the structure involved have been exhausted and that demolition by governmental action is required.

The new section 117 authorizes the Administrator to make grants to cities, other municipalities, and counties to assist them in carrying out programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorating areas in which such code enforcement, together with public improvements to be provided by the locality, may be expected to arrest the decline of such areas. Such grants may not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of a city, municipality, or county having a population of 50,000 or less) of the cost of planning and carrying out such programs (including certain public improvements such as streets, curbs, sidewalks, street lighting, and tree planting). However, no such grant may be made unless the locality involved (1) agrees to maintain its prior level of expenditures for code enforcement activities in addition to its expenditures for planning and carrying out any program assisted under this section; and (2) has a satisfactory program for providing all necessary public improvements for the deteriorating areas. Provisions of title I of the 1949 act relating to the workable program, relocation payments, and rehabilitation grants are applicable to activities under this section to the same extent as if such activities were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project.

Section 311(b).—Amends section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to eliminate provisions relating to code enforcement projects added to that act by the Housing Act of 1964.

Sections 311 (c) and (d).—Amend section 220 of the National Housing Act to make FHA-insured housing mortgages and home improvement loans, insured under that section for urban renewal areas, available for code enforcement areas assisted under the new section 117.

Section 311(e).—Amends section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 1964 to permit the low-interest rate rehabilitation loans authorized by that section for urban renewal areas to be made for property located in the code enforcement areas assisted under the new section 117.

REHABILITATION LOANS

Section 312(a).—Amends section 312(a) of the Housing Act of 1964 to permit a low-interest rate rehabilitation loan authorized by that section for urban renewal areas to be made to an applicant unable to secure necessary funds from other sources on “comparable” (rather than “reasonable” as previously provided) terms and conditions.

Section 312(b).—Amends section 312(d) of the 1964 act to (1) authorize the appropriation of up to $100 million for rehabilitation loans each fiscal year (in lieu of the prior single authorization of $50 million); and (2) permit use of the section 312 revolving loan fund to pay the necessary expenses of servicing the loans.

Section 312(c).—Adds a new subsection to section 312 of the 1964 act terminating the rehabilitation loan program as of October 1, 1969.

ELIGIBILITY OF COMMUNITIES IN DEPRESSED AREAS FOR URBAN RENEWAL ASSISTANCE

Section 313.—Amends section 103(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 to remove the 150,000 population limitation for three-fourths grants for urban renewal projects located in municipalities situated in areas designated as redevelopment areas under the Area Redevelopment Act (or similar legislation subsequently enacted) with respect to all such projects placed under contract for capital grant after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965. With respect to Providence, R.I., this section applies to all grant contracts for urban renewal projects which were placed under contract at any time that Providence was designated as a redevelopment area and not completed prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

LOCAL GRANT-IN-AID CREDIT FOR CERTAIN COAL ROYALTIES

Section 314(a).—Amends section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 to require any royalties received by an urban renewal project from the sale of coal deposits to be credited as a local grant-in-aid to such project by the municipality where the project includes an area affected by an underground mine fire or by coal mine subsidence, and where it is necessary to remove the underlying coal deposits in order to stabilize the soil or to control the underground mine fire.

Section 314(b).—Authorizes existing urban renewal contracts to be amended to permit the crediting of coal royalties received by an urban renewal project as a local grant-in-aid.

SPECIFIC URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS

Section 315.—Requires the granting of noncash credit, authorizes the inclusion within gross project cost of local expenditures, or makes other special provision with respect to urban renewal projects in the following cities: Jasper, Ala., Joliet, Ill., Johnson City, Tenn., New Brunswick, N.J., St. Louis, Mo., Denver, Colo., Norfolk, Va., Reno, Nev., Michigan City, Ind., Texarkana, Ark., Chester, Pa., Philadelphia and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Ottumwa, Iowa, Macon, Ga., and Savannah, Ga.

LEASE GUARANTEES FOR CERTAIN SMALL BUSINESS CONCERNS

Section 316.—Adds a new title IV to the Small Business Investment Act of 1958 to provide a program of lease-guarantees for certain small business concerns. The Small Business Administration is authorized to guarantee the payment of rentals under leases of commercial and industrial property entered into by small business concerns eligible for disaster loans under section 7(b)(3) of the Small Business Act or title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. A revolving fund is established to carry out the lease-guarantee program with initial capital of not to exceed $5 million to be transferred from the Small Business Administration revolving fund.

AMENDMENT OF SECTION 316 OF THE HOUSING ACT OF 1954

Section 317.—Amends section 316 of the Housing Act of 1954 to make clear the authority of the Redevelopment Land Agency of the District of Columbia to undertake nonresidential urban renewal projects as contemplated by title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

TITLE IV—COMPENSATION OF CONDEMNEEES

DEFINITIONS

Section 401.—Defines certain terms used in this title, including the term “development program” which indicates the Housing Agency programs to which the title is applicable. This term is defined to include the low-rent public housing program, the urban renewal program, the urban mass transportation program, the public facility loans program, the open-space land program, and the program of grants for basic public works, neighborhood facilities, and the advance acquisition of land.

LAND ACQUISITION POLICY

Section 402.—Requires, as a condition of eligibility for Federal assistance pursuant to a development program, each applicant for such assistance to satisfy the Housing Administrator that the following policies will be followed in connection with the acquisition of real property by eminent domain in the course of such program—

(1) the applicant shall make every reasonable effort to acquire the real property by negotiation;

(2) no owner shall be required to surrender possession of real property before receiving the agreed purchase price or, in any case where only the amount of the payment to the owner is in dispute, not less than 75 percent of the appraised fair value of the property as approved by the applicant; and

(3) construction or development of any public improvements shall be so scheduled that no person lawfully occupying real property shall be required to surrender possession without at least 90 days' written notice from the applicant of the date such construction or development is scheduled to begin.

FUNDS FOR CERTAIN PAYMENTS IN EMINENT DOMAIN

Section 403.—Provides that financial assistance under any development program may include the amounts necessary to finance (in the same manner that other costs of a project assisted under such program are financed) the 75 percent payments to property owners required by section 402.

RELOCATION PAYMENTS UNDER FEDERALLY ASSISTED DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

Section 404(a).—Extends the relocation payment provisions of section 114 of the Housing Act of 1949 (to the extent not otherwise authorized by Federal law) to families, individuals, business concerns, and nonprofit organizations displaced under the public facility loan program, the urban mass transportation program, the open-space land program, and the program of grants for basic public works, neighborhood facilities, and the advance acquisition of land. Under prior law, these payments were made only to persons displaced under the urban renewal and low-rent public housing programs.

Section 404(b).—Amends section 114(b) of the 1949 act to increase from $1,500 to $2,500 the amount of the additional relocation payment authorized for displaced small business concerns.

Section 404(c).—Further amends section 114 of the 1949 act to authorize reimbursement of a local public agency for the payment by it of certain costs incurred by displaced individuals, families, business concerns, and nonprofit organizations in the transfer of real property to the local public agency. Such costs may include (1) recording fees, transfer taxes, and similar expenses; (2) mortgage prepayment penalties; and (3) the pro rata share of taxes covering a period after transfer of title.

Section 404(d).—Provides that the relocation payment provisions of section 114 of the 1949 act shall be applicable, in the case of the public facility loan program and the program of grants for public works, neighborhood facilities, and advance acquisition of land, to any displacement occurring after the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and, in the case of the urban mass transportation program and the open-space land program, to any displacement occurring on or after March 4, 1965.

TITLE V—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

ACCEPTANCE OF LOCAL CERTIFICATION OF EQUIVALENT ELIMINATION

Section 501.—Amends section 10(a) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to permit acceptance of certifications by local governing bodies that they have complied with the equivalent slum housing elimination requirement of the act (rather than through direct Federal supervision as under prior law).

GREATER USE OF EXISTING HOUSING

Section 502.—Amends section 10(c) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to provide an alternative formula for computing annual contributions in the case of low-rent housing provided through the purchase, purchase and rehabilitation, or lease of privately owned existing dwelling units. Under the alternative formula, a maximum dollar amount (based on the fixed annual contribution otherwise established for a newly constructed housing project offering comparable housing facilities) can be established as the annual contribution for a purchased or leased unit, thus permitting the acquisition, or acquisition and rehabilitation, of existing units as well as the leasing of units for short-term use in meeting particular needs. This formula will permit local housing authorities to make greater use of the existing housing supply.

INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION FOR ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION

Section 503.—Amends section 10(e) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to increase by $47 million immediately, and by an additional $47 million in each of the years 1966 through 1968, the existing limit on the aggregate amount of contracts for annual contributions which may be entered into by the Public Housing Administration under the low-rent housing program. This increase will provide an estimated 60,000 additional units of low-rent housing annually over the 4-year period, to be available both for conventional low-rent housing projects and for the new approaches to low-rent housing contained in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

REALLOCATION OF UNITS

Section 504.—Amends section 10(e) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to provide that, subject to any contractual obligation outstanding on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, any low-rent public housing units not under construction within 5 years from the date they were reserved to a local housing authority may be reallocated and placed under contract for annual contributions in any State without limitation as to the aggregate amount of units which may be placed under contract in any one State.

SALE OF FEDERALLY OWNED PROJECTS TO PRIVATE PURCHASERS

Section 505.—Amends section 12(c) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to permit sale of a federally owned public housing project to a nonprofit organization for continued use as low-rent housing. Under prior law such projects could be sold only to local housing authorities.

INCREASE IN PER ROOM LIMITATIONS

Section 506.—Amends section 15(5) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to increase the ceiling on public housing per room construction and equipment costs (on which the computation of any annual contributions is based) from $2,000 per room to $2,400 per room. In the case of Alaska, the ceiling of $3,000 per room is increased to $3,500. In the case of accommodations designed specifically for elderly families, the ceiling is increased from $3,000 per room to $3,500, and from $3,500 in the case of Alaska to $4,000.

PURCHASE OF UNITS BY TENANTS

Section 507.—Amends section 15 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to authorize local housing authorities to permit any member of a tenant family to enter into a contract for the acquisition of a dwelling unit in any project of the local housing authority which is suitable for such acquisition by reason of its being detached or semi-detached construction.

The acquisition must be for use of the purchaser or members of his family and, in the event this condition fails, the local authority will have an option to acquire the purchaser's interest.

The sales price to the tenant will be the greater of the appraised value of the unit or the pro rata share of the local housing authority's unamortized debt. The purchaser will also pay a pro rata share of any services furnished to him by the local housing authority and local taxes on the dwelling unit.

The purchase price can be paid over a period of not more than 40 years but specified amounts of principal must be paid in each 5-year period during the first 15 years after purchase. The interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the average cost of loans outstanding on the project. If no bonds are outstanding on the project the interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the going Federal rate applicable to the project.

The local housing authority may permit a purchaser to apply to the purchase price an amount equal to the net rent paid for his dwelling unit, over a period not exceeding 3 years prior to the entering into of a purchase contract.

TITLE VI—COLLEGE HOUSING

LOAN AUTHORIZATION

Section 601.—Amends section 401(d) of the Housing Act of 1950 to increase the total amount authorized for college housing loans (presently $2,875 million) by $300 million on July 1 in each of the years 1965 through 1968, for a total increase of $1,200 million. Corresponding increases are made for the separate limitations on loans which can be outstanding for "other educational facilities" and for student nurse and intern housing.

INTEREST RATE ON COLLEGE HOUSING LOANS

Section 602.—Amends section 401 of the Housing Act of 1950 to place a ceiling of 3 percent (or the amount derived under the existing formula, if lower) on the interest rate applicable to college housing loans.

PARTICIPATION BY NEW COLLEGES AND CERTAIN PUBLIC VOCATIONAL AND TECHNICAL INSTITUTIONS

Section 603.—Amends section 404(b) of the Housing Act of 1950 to make the following additional educational institutions eligible for college housing loans: (1) an educational institution which provides satisfactory assurance to the Housing and Home Finance Administrator that it will offer a baccalaureate degree within a reasonable time after completion of facilities for which a loan is requested; and (2) a public educational institution which (a) is administered by a nationally accredited college or university, (b) offers technical or vocational instruction, and (c) provides residential facilities for some or all of its students.

TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

Section 604.—Amends section 404(b) of the Housing Act of 1950 to permit a college housing loan to be made to an eligible student housing cooperative corporation without requiring the educational institution to cosign the note for the college housing loan whenever State law in effect on September 2, 1964, prevents the educational institution from cosigning. However, the loan made may not be made to the student housing cooperative corporation without the educational institution cosigning the note unless the educational institution approves the proposed college housing project and the student housing cooperative corporation.

TITLE VII—COMMUNITY FACILITIES

PURPOSE

Section 701.—States that the purpose of title VII is to assist and encourage the communities of the Nation (1) to construct adequate basic water and sewer facilities needed to promote their efficient and orderly growth and development; (2) to construct neighborhood facilities needed to enable them to carry on programs of necessary social services; and (3) to acquire, in a planned and orderly fashion, land to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities.

GRANTS FOR BASIC WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

Section 702(a).—Authorizes the Housing and Home Finance Administrator to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to finance specific projects for basic public water and sewer facilities (other than "treatment works" as defined in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act). No grant for sewer facilities may be made unless the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare certifies to the Administrator that any waste material carried by the facilities will be adequately treated before it is discharged into any public waterway.

Section 702(b).—Provides that the amount of any grant may not exceed 50 percent of the development cost of a project. However, a very limited exception is provided. In the case of a community having a population of less than 10,000 and situated within a metropolitan area, the Administrator may increase the amount of a grant for a basic public sewer facility up to 90 percent if the community is unable to finance the construction of the facility without such increased grant assistance and if in such community (1) there does not exist a public or other adequate sewer facility serving a substantial portion of the community's inhabitants; and (2) the rate of unemployment is, and has been continuously for the preceding calendar year, 100 percent or more above the national average.

Section 702(c).—Provides that no grant may be made for any project unless the Administrator determines that the project is necessary to provide adequate water or sewer facilities for the people to be served, and that the project is (1) designed so that an adequate capacity will be available to serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area; (2) consistent with a program for a unified or officially coordinated areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area; and (3) necessary to orderly community development. Prior to July 1, 1968, grants, in the discretion of the Administrator, may be made if the program for an areawide water or sewer facilities system is under active preparation but not yet completed, if the facility for which assistance is sought can reasonably be expected to be required as part of such program, and there is an urgent need for the facility.

GRANTS FOR NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES

Section 703(a).—Authorizes the Administrator to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to finance specific projects for neighborhood facilities. This can include neighborhood or community centers, youth centers, health stations, and other public buildings to provide health or recreational or similar social services to a neighborhood. A project may be undertaken directly by a local public body or agency or through a nonprofit organization approved by such body or agency if the Administrator determines (1) that the nonprofit organization has the legal, financial, and technical capacity to carry out the project, and (2) that the public body or agency to which the grant is made will have satisfactory continuing control over the use of the proposed facilities.

Section 703(b).—Provides that the amount of any grant may not exceed two-thirds of the development cost of a project (or three-fourths in the case of a project located in an area designated as a redevelopment area under the Area Redevelopment Act or any supplementary act).

Section 703(c).—Provides that no grant may be made for any project unless the Administrator determines that the project will provide a facility which is (1) necessary to carry out a program of health, recreational, social, or similar community service in the area; (2) consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community; and (3) so located as to be available for use by a significant portion (or number in the case of large urban places) of the area's low- or moderate-income residents.

Section 703(d).—Provides that no project assisted by a grant may be converted for a period of 20 years to other uses without the approval of the Administrator.

Section 703(e).—Requires the Administrator to give priority to applications for projects that will primarily benefit members of low-income families or otherwise further the objectives of a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

Section 704(a). Authorizes the Housing Administrator to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to finance the acquisition of sites planned to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works or facilities.

Section 704(b).—Provides that the amount of any such grant may not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on a loan or other financial obligation incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not exceeding the lesser of (1) 5 years from the date such loan is made; or (2) the period of time between the date the loan is made and the date on which construction of the public work or facility is begun.

Section 704(c).—Provides that no grant may be made under this section unless the Administrator determines that the public work or facility for which the land is to be utilized is planned to be constructed or initiated within a reasonable period of time (not exceeding 5 years after a grant contract is entered into) and that construction of the public work or facility will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area.

Section 704(d).—Provides that the Administrator may require repayment of grant assistance under the section if (1) the land purchased with the assistance is not utilized within 5 years for the construction of the public work or facility planned to be placed on the acquired land; or (2) the land is directed to other uses.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 705(a).—Applies certain administrative provisions in section 402 of the Housing Act of 1950 to activities carried on under the provisions of this title.

Section 705(b).—Authorizes the Administrator to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made under this title and provides that no part of any such grant can be used for payment of ordinary governmental or operating expenses.

DEFINITIONS

Section 706.—Defines terms used in this title.

LABOR STANDARDS

Section 707.—Provides that prevailing wages determined in accordance with the provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act are to be applicable to construction work financed with assistance under sections 702 and 703, and specifies that certain authority generally available to the Secretary of Labor with respect to the enforcement of such labor standards shall also apply.

APPROPRIATIONS

Section 708.—Authorizes to be appropriated for each fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1965, and ending prior to July 1, 1969, (1) $200 million for grants for basic water and sewer facilities; (2) $50 million for grants for neighborhood facilities; and (3) $25 million for grants for the advance acquisition of land. Amounts appropriated remain available until expended.

TITLE VIII—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

INCREASE IN SPECIAL ASSISTANCE AUTHORITY

Section 801(a).—Amends section 305(c) of the National Housing Act to increase by $1,625 million the amount of special assistance that the President of the United States can authorize the Federal National Mortgage Association to provide for residential mortgage financing. The first $100 million of the increase is available as of the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965. The limit is further increased by $450 million on July 1, 1966, by $550 million on July 1, 1967, and by $525 million on July 1, 1968.

Section 801(b).—Amends section 305(f) of the National Housing Act to increase the President's special assistance authority further by transferring to it, on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and on each July 1 thereafter, the then available portions of the special assistance authority provided in that section for FHA title VIII insured mortgages on housing for military, NASA, and AEC personnel, except $58,750,000 which is required to be kept available for mortgages insured under section 809.

PURCHASE OF MORTGAGES HELD BY FEDERAL INSTRUMENTALITIES

Section 802(a).—Amends section 302(b) of the National Housing Act to enable FNMA to purchase Government underwritten mortgages from Federal instrumentalities having authority to effect sales of such mortgages to FNMA. Section 302(c) of the National Housing Act is amended to make FNMA's financing services under its fiduciary powers available to any obligations offered to it by the Housing Agency or its constituents.

Section 802(b).—Amends section 306(e) of the National Housing Act to authorize FNMA, under its management and liquidating functions, to purchase any obligations offered by the Housing Agency or its constituents, or any mortgages covering residential property offered by any Federal instrumentality.

PURCHASE OF BELOW-MARKET INTEREST RATE MORTGAGES

Section 803.—Amends section 302(b) of the National Housing Act to authorize FNMA, under its special assistance authority, to purchase below-market interest rate mortgages on low- or moderate-income housing (insured under FHA's sec. 221(d)(3) program) having original principal amounts exceeding $17,500 per dwelling unit, where such mortgages cover properties having the benefit of local tax abatement. The tax abatement must be in an amount sufficient to keep rentals at the level where they would be if the mortgage amount did not exceed $17,500 per dwelling unit.

INCREASE IN LIMITS ON MORTGAGES FOR DWELLING UNITS HAVING FOUR OR MORE BEDROOMS

Section 804.—Amends section 302(b) of the National Housing Act to increase from $17,500 to $20,000 the general limit per dwelling unit on the amount of a mortgage FNMA can purchase under its special assistance authority in the case of a mortgage financing a family residence having four or more bedrooms.

TITLE IX—OPEN-SPACE LAND AND URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

CHANGE IN THE NAME OF THE PROGRAM; FINDINGS AND PURPOSE

Section 901(a).—Amends the heading of title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 to include a reference to “urban beautification and improvement” and thus reflect the amendments of that title made by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

Section 901(b).—Amends the findings and purpose set forth in section 701 of the Housing Act of 1961 to add the additional finding by Congress that there is an urgent need both for the provision of parks and open-space areas in developed portions of urban areas and for greater and better coordinated local efforts to beautify and improve open-space and other public land throughout urban areas to facilitate their increased use and enjoyment by the urban population.

DEVELOPMENT GRANTS FOR OPEN-SPACE USES

Section 902.—Amends section 702 of the Housing Act of 1961 to permit grants under that section for the development of land (acquired under title VII) for open-space uses in addition to the acquisition of open-space land.

The term “open-space uses” is defined to mean any use of open-space land for (1) park and recreational purposes; (2) conservation of land and other natural resources; or (3) historic or scenic purposes.

INCREASED GRANT LEVEL FOR PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF OPEN-SPACE LAND

Section 903.—Amends section 702(c) of the Housing Act of 1961 to authorize grants for open-space land acquisition and development up to 50 percent of the total cost of such acquisition and development. Prior to amendment the limit was 20 percent, except that grants could be up to 30 percent where the applicant exercised open-space responsibility for all or a substantial part of the urban area, and the grant was available only for the acquisition of open-space land.

AUTHORIZATION OF FUNDS

Section 904.—Amends section 702(b) of the Housing Act of 1961 to increase the authorization for grants from $75 million to $310 million. Not more than $64 million of the total authorization can be used for the new open-space program in built-up areas (see sec. 906), and not more than $36 million can be used for the new program of urban beautification and improvement (see sec. 906).

OPEN-SPACE PLANNING AND PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Section 905.—Amends section 703(a) of the Housing Act of 1961 to require a finding by the Housing Administrator that each grant for the acquisition and development of open-space land is needed for carrying out a unified or officially coordinated program, meeting criteria established by the Housing Administrator, for the provision and development of open-space land as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area. Under prior law the Administrator had to find that (1) the proposed use of the land for open space is important to the execution of a comprehensive plan for the urban area; and (2) a program of comprehensive planning is being actively carried on for the urban area.

PROVISION OF OPEN-SPACE LAND IN BUILT-UP AREAS

Section 906.—Adds a new section 705 to the Housing Act of 1961 authorizing the Housing Administrator to make grants to States and local public bodies to assist in the acquisition of developed land in built-up portions of urban areas to be cleared for use as permanent open-space land. The grants can be made only where the local governing body determines that adequate open-space land cannot be provided through the use of existing undeveloped or predominantly undeveloped land. The grants are limited to 50 percent of the cost of land acquisition and of necessary demolition and removal of improvements (and 50 percent of the cost of development for open-space uses under the authority provided by sec. 902 of this act).

URBAN BEAUTIFICATION AND IMPROVEMENT

Section 906.—Also adds a new section 706 authorizing the Administrator to make grants to States and local public bodies to assist in carrying out local programs for the greater use and enjoyment of open space and other public land in urban areas.

The Administrator is required to establish criteria to assure that each program (1) represents significant and effective efforts, involving all available public and private resources, for the beautification or open-space use of land; and (2) is important to the comprehensively planned development of the locality.

Grants cannot exceed 50 percent of the amount by which the cost of the urban beautification and improvement activities of the applicant during a fiscal year under an approved program exceeds its usual expenditures for comparable activities. However, the Administrator may make grants up to 90 percent of the cost of activities which he determines have special value in demonstrating new and improved methods and materials for use in urban beautification and improvement. These demonstration grants cannot exceed a total amount of $5 million.

LABOR STANDARDS

Section 907.—Adds section 707 to the Housing Act of 1961 to make the prevailing wage requirements of the Davis-Bacon Act applicable to the open-space land and urban beautification activities assisted by grants under title VII of the Housing Act of 1961.

USE OF FUNDS FOR STUDIES AND PUBLICATION

Section 908.—Amends the Housing Act of 1961 to authorize the Housing Administrator to use up to $50,000 annually of the open-space land and urban beautification grant funds for studies in connection with the open-space land and urban beautification programs, and for publishing information on the programs.

CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

Section 909.—Makes necessary technical and conforming amendments in various sections of title VII of the Housing Act of 1961.

TITLE X—RURAL HOUSING

LOANS FOR PREVIOUSLY OCCUPIED BUILDINGS AND MINIMUM SITE ACQUISITION

Section 1001.—Amends section 501 of the Housing Act of 1949 to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to make loans to farmers and rural residents for the purchase of previously occupied dwellings and related facilities and farm service buildings, and for minimum adequate building sites.

INTEREST RATE ON DIRECT RURAL HOUSING LOANS

Section 1002.—Amends section 502(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 to increase to 5 percent the maximum interest rate on direct loans under section 502 for housing on farms and on nonfarm rural homesites, except for loans to elderly persons. The maximum rate on such loans to the elderly, and on the specialized loans under sections 503 and 504, remains at 4 percent. The Secretary is also authorized to charge fees on all title V loans.

INSURED AND DIRECT RURAL HOUSING LOANS

Section 1003.—Adds sections 517 and 518 to the Housing Act of 1949.

The new section 517 authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to insure loans, and make loans to be sold and insured, in accordance with section 502. Such loans to persons of low or moderate income will bear interest not above 5 percent and be limited to adequate housing modest in size, design, and cost and to an aggregate of $300 million per year. Such loans to other persons will be made at rates and charges comparable to those in effect under FHA's regular sales-type housing program. To assure the marketability of these loans at face value and the participation of private lenders in the program, the Secretary is authorized to insure, or to sell and insure, any of these loans on terms giving the insured lender or purchaser a specified portion of the interest earnings and an optional right to resell to the Secretary within an agreed period.

The new section 517 also establishes a rural housing insurance fund to finance insured section 502 loans and to be utilized by the Secretary for various specified purposes. The new fund will be used in lieu of the agricultural credit insurance fund for section 514 domestic farm labor housing and section 515(b) elderly rental housing loans. Loans made out of the fund and held unsold may not exceed $100 million at any one time. The Secretary is authorized to borrow from the Treasury to meet loan insurance obligations and to make other authorized expenditures from the fund.

The new section 518 establishes a rural housing direct loan account, and transfers to such account all rural housing direct loans made under sections 502, 503, 504, and 515(a) of the 1949 act, all collections therefrom, and any funds available from appropriations or Treasury borrowings for such loans. Amounts transferred to the account and such further amounts as may be appropriated will be available for making loans under those sections and for making repayments to the Treasury.

Section 1003(b).—Amends section 511 of the Housing Act of 1949 to extend for 4 years (to October 1, 1969) the unused balance (approximately $75 million) of the existing borrowing authority under section 511, and to remove the existing special reservation of $50 million exclusively for loans to elderly persons in accordance with section 501(a)(3).

PURCHASE OF RURAL HOUSING LOANS BY THE FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

Section 1004.—Amends title III of the National Housing Act to authorize FNMA to deal in loans insured under title V of the Housing Act of 1949.

EXTENSION OF RURAL HOUSING AUTHORIZATIONS

Section 1005.—Amends title V of the Housing Act of 1949 to extend for 4 years (to October 1, 1969) the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture to make "contribution commitments" on loans for housing on potentially adequate farms (sec. 503), the authority for appropriations to finance assistance for certain housing improvements, research, and housing for farm labor (secs. 504(a), 504(b), 506, and 516), and the authority of the Secretary to make insured section 515(b) rental housing loans for elderly persons. It also increases from $10 to $50 million the total amount of appropriations authorized for section 516 assistance to provide low-rent housing for domestic farm labor, and extends the construction standards and technical services provisions of section 506(a) to operations under the new provisions added to title V by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

SUMS EXCESS TO THE NEEDS OF THE RURAL HOUSING INSURANCE FUND OR THE RURAL HOUSING DIRECT LOAN ACCOUNT

Section 1006.—Adds section 519 to the Housing Act of 1949 to direct the Secretary of Agriculture to pay into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury any surpluses from the new rural housing insurance fund or the new rural housing direct loan account.

DEFINITION OF RURAL AREA

Section 1007.—Adds section 520 to the Housing Act of 1949 to define a “rural area” to mean any open country, or any place, town, village, or city which is not part of or associated with an urban area and which (1) has a population not in excess of 2,500 inhabitants; or (2) has a population in excess of 2,500 but not in excess of 5,500 if it is rural in character.

TITLE XI—MISCELLANEOUS

ANNUAL REPORT ON HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

Section 1101.—Amends section 802(a) of the Housing Act of 1954 to require the Housing Administrator to make annual reports to the President for submission to the Congress on all its operations and programs. The reports shall contain recommendations for strengthening or improving the programs, or, when necessary to implement more effectively congressional policies and purposes, for establishing new or alternative programs.

URBAN PLANNING GRANTS

Authorization

Section 1102(a).—Amends section 701(b) of the Housing Act of 1954 to increase the authorization of appropriations for urban planning grants from $105 to $230 million.

Studies and demonstration projects

Section 1102(b).—Amends section 701(b) of the Housing Act of 1954 to permit up to 5 percent of the funds appropriated for urban planning grants to be used for studies, research, and demonstration projects, for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of the purposes of the urban planning assistance program.

Grants to metropolitan organizations

Section 1102(c).—Amends section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 to authorize the Housing Administrator to make grants to organizations composed of public officials who are found to be representative of political jurisdictions within a metropolitan area or urban region to assist them to undertake studies, collect data, develop regional plans and programs, and engage in other activities desirable for the solution of their metropolitan or regional problems. The grants cannot exceed two-thirds of the cost of the work for which they are given.

AUTHORIZATION FOR FEDERAL-STATE TRAINING PROGRAMS

Section 1103.—Amends section 802(d) of the Housing Act of 1964 to increase the limit on appropriations for grants to assist Federal-State training programs from $10 to $30 million.

AUTHORIZATION FOR PUBLIC WORKS PLANNING ADVANCES

Section 1104.—Amends section 702(e) of the Housing Act of 1954 to increase the limit on appropriations for public works planning advances from $20 to $70 million.

AUTHORIZATION FOR LOW-INCOME HOUSING DEMONSTRATION PROGRAMS

Section 1105.—Amends section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961 by increasing the authorization for grants for low-income housing demonstrations from $10 to $15 million.

ADVISORY COMMITTEES—TECHNICAL PROVISION

Section 1106.—Deletes an obsolete provision from section 601 of the Housing Act of 1949 relating to advisory committees.

PUBLIC FACILITY LOANS

Section 1107.—Amends section 202(c) of the Housing Amendments of 1955 to authorize the Housing Administrator to make public facility loans to a private nonprofit corporation for the construction of works for the storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water or the construction of sewage, sewage treatment, and sewer facilities, if the works or facilities are needed to serve a smaller municipality or rural area, and there is no existing public body able to construct and operate the works or facilities.

Section 202(b) (4) of the amendments is also amended to permit a public facility loan to be made to a community without regard to its population if a research or development installation of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is located in or near the community.

FHA CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

Section 1108.—Amends various sections of the National Housing Act to make them conform to the consolidation of FHA insurance funds into the general insurance fund as authorized by section 214 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

REPEAL OF SPECIAL PROVISION IN URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION ACT

Section 1109.—Repeals section 9(c) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 which requires that contractors, in providing facilities or equipment which have received loan or grant assistance under that act, "shall use only such manufactured articles as have been manufactured in the United States."

SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

Loans for colleges and hospitals

Section 1110(a).—Amends section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 to liberalize the authority of Federal savings and loan associations to make loans on college, university, or hospital residential facilities. The general lending provision of that subsection is limited to "homes," "other dwelling units," and other specified types of residential property, subject to stated amount limitations and to a requirement that the property be within 100 miles of the association's home office, with a further provision that an association converted from a State-chartered institution may continue to make loans in the territory in which it made loans while operating under State charter and a provision that the Federal Home Loan Bank Board shall by regulation limit to not more than 15 percent of the association's assets the investments made thereunder on properties comprising or including more than four dwelling units or not constituting homes or combinations of homes and business property.

Loans under this general lending provision are not required to be included in the percentage restriction which provides that not exceeding 20 percent of an association's assets may be loaned on the security of first liens on improved real estate without regard to these limitations.

The amendment made by section 1110(a) provides that, subject to Board regulations, the term "other dwelling units" shall include structures or parts thereof designed or used as fraternity or sorority houses which include sleeping accommodations for students of a college or university, or designed or used principally for the provision of living accommodations for students, employees, or members of the staff of a college, university, or hospital. Under this amendment loans on such properties would not be included within the aforesaid 20-percent-of-assets limitation by reason of the type of property, although the amendment does not except them from that limitation if they do not meet the territorial and amount requirements of the general lending provision.

Leasehold lending

Section 1110(b).—Amends section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 to liberalize the statutory authority of Federal savings and loan associations with respect to leasehold lending. The Housing Act of 1964 amended section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 by providing that for the purpose of that section the terms "real property" and "real estate" shall include a leasehold or subleasehold whose term does not expire, or is renewable automatically or at the option of the holder or the association, for at least 15 years beyond the maturity of the debt. Section 1110(b) changes the 15-year figure to 10 years.

Branches in the District of Columbia—Moving of offices

Section 1110(c).—Amends section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 to require the prior written approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board for the establishment of branches or the moving of offices by savings and loan associations and similar institutions incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia or organized or doing business in the District, and for the establishment of branches or the moving of offices in the District by other savings and loan associations and similar institutions.

Deposits in Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation

Section 1110(d).—Amends section 404 of the National Housing Act by adding a new provision which enables the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation to obtain, in case the need should arise, additional liquidity by calling on institutions insured by it to make deposits in the Corporation. No call can be made unless the Federal Home Loan Bank Board determines that the total amount of the call, plus any outstanding deposits, does not exceed 1 percent of the withdrawable or repurchasable shares, investment certificates, and deposits in all insured institutions.

FEDERAL RESERVE ACT

Section 1111.—Amends section 24 of the Federal Reserve Act to extend the maximum maturity of industrial, commercial, and residential construction loans from 18 months to 24 months.

REPAYMENT OF CERTAIN PLANNING GRANTS

Section 1112.—Waives repayment of public works planning advances which were used for projects built under the accelerated public works program and have neither been previously waived nor repaid.

STUDY CONCERNING RELIEF OF HOMEOWNERS IN PROXIMITY TO AIRPORTS

Section 1113.—Directs the Housing Administrator to undertake a study of methods to reduce loss and hardship to homeowners whose property is depreciated in value following the construction of airports in the vicinity of their homes. The study shall include feasible methods of insulating the homes from the noise of aircraft. Findings and recommendations are to be reported to the President for transmission to Congress within 1 year after the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY OF CONGRESSIONAL ACTION ON THE HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

The President submitted his message on the "Problems and Future of the Central City and Its Suburbs" to the Congress on March 2, 1965 (H. Doc. 99). Bills carrying out the bulk of the President's recommendations were introduced on March 4 by Wright Patman, chairman, House Committee on Banking and Currency (H.R. 5840), and by John Sparkman, chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency (S. 1354).

House action

The Subcommittee on Housing of the House Committee on Banking and Currency held public hearings from March 25 through April 7 on H.R. 5840 and related bills, including those introduced by the Housing Subcommittee chairman, Mr. Barrett, and the ranking minority member, Mr. Widnall. After consideration by the subcommittee in executive session on May 6, an amended bill was agreed to by a vote of 10 to 1 and a clean bill embodying these provisions was introduced by Chairman Patman (H.R. 7984). This bill was considered in executive session by the full Committee on Banking and Currency on May 17 through 19, and reported without amendment by a vote of 25 to 7 (H. Rept. 365). The bill was considered on the floor of the House on June 28, 29, and 30, and a number of amendments were adopted. There were rollcall votes on an amendment setting the income limits on the rent supplement program at public housing ceilings (adopted 240 to 179) and on the motion to recommit the bill striking the rent supplement program and the rehabilitation grants to low-income homeowners in urban renewal areas (rejected 208 to 202). The bill then passed by a vote of 245 to 169.

Senate action

The Subcommittee on Housing of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency held hearings from March 29 through April 9, to consider S. 1354 and some 15 other related bills. Subsequently, the subcommittee met in executive session on April 28 and 29, May 12, 13, and 18, and June 4. At the conclusion of these sessions the subcommittee made its recommendations to the full committee. After executive sessions on June 22, 23, and 24 by the full Committee on Banking and Currency, an original bill was drafted by the committee (S. 2213) and was reported to the Senate by a vote of 10 to 4 (S. Rept. 378). S. 2213 was considered in the Senate on July 14 and 15 and a number of amendments were adopted. There were rollcall votes on an amendment striking the rent supplement program (rejected 47 to 40); an amendment reducing the rent supplement funds to $10 million a year (rejected 49 to 38); and an amendment reducing the dollar amounts of the rent supplement program to $30 million upon enactment, $35 million for fiscal 1967, $40 million for fiscal 1968, and $45 million for fiscal 1969 (adopted 79 to 6). The bill as amended passed the Senate by a vote of 54 to 30.

Conference

A conference was requested by the House and agreed to by the Senate on the differing versions and the conference committee met on July 20, 21, and 22. The conference report (H. Rept. 679) was approved by the Senate by a voice vote on July 26, and by the House on July 27 by a vote of 251 to 168. H.R. 7984 was transmitted to the White House and signed into law on August 10, 1965, Public Law 89-117.

AMENDMENTS

Intended to be proposed by Mr. JAVITS to the bill (S. 1354) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities, viz:

1 On page 9, between lines 19 and 20, insert a new section
2 as follows:

3 “GRANTS TO ENCOURAGE THE CONSTRUCTION OF HOUSING
4 PROJECTS FOR FAMILIES OF LOW AND MODERATE
5 INCOME

6 “SEC. 104. (a) In order to encourage State and local 7 units of government to assist private enterprise to provide 8 housing of sound design and construction for families whose

1 incomes are too high for admission to low-rent public housing
2 but too low to afford the rentals required to obtain adequate
3 private housing, the Housing and Home Finance Adminis-
4 trator is authorized to make, and to enter into contracts to 5 make, grants to States and local public bodies and agencies
6 which have made contributions to low- and moderate-income
7 housing projects.

8 “(b) The amount of any grant made under this section
9 shall not exceed the lesser of (1) 50 per centum of the value
10 of the contribution made by any State or local public body or 11 agency to any low- and moderate-income housing project, or 12 (2) 25 per centum of the development cost of such project.

13 “(c) The contribution of any State or local public body
14 or agency to a low- and moderate-income housing project,
15 for which a grant may be made under this section, may be 16 in the form of (1) cash, (2) by donation of land prior to 17 the construction of the project, (3) by annual payments to 18 the owner of the project on behalf of tenants of the project
19 to reduce the rental charges they would otherwise be re-
20 quired to pay, or (4) by the granting of a full or partial 21 exemption from real property taxes on the land on which the 22 project is located and the improvements thereon. If the con-
23 tribution of a State or local public body or agency is in the 24 form of annual payments to the owner of the project, or by 25 full or partial tax exemption, the Federal grant shall be paid

1 to the State or local public body or agency which has borne
2 the cost of such payments or tax exemption, and such Fed-
3 eral grant shall be paid on an annual basis, in an amount
4 equal to 50 per centum of the annual cost of such payments
5 or the value of such tax exemption, but the cumulative
6 amount of such Federal grants with respect to the cost of 7 such annual payments or the value of any tax exemption
8 granted a single low- and moderate-income housing project
9 shall not exceed 25 per centum of the development cost of 10 the project.

11 “(d) No grant shall be made under this section with re-
12 spect to any contribution by a State or local public body or 13 agency which was made, or contracted to be made, prior to 14 the date of enactment of this Act.

15 “(e) As used in this section—

16 “(1) The term ‘State’ means any of the several 17 States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth
18 of Puerto Rico.

19 “(2) The term ‘local public bodies and agencies’
20 includes public corporate bodies or political subdivisions;
21 public agencies or instrumentalities of a State, munici-
22 pality, or political subdivision of a State (including
23 public agencies and instrumentalities of one or more 24 municipalities or political subdivision of a State) ; In-25 dian tribes; and boards or commissions established under

1 the laws of any State to finance or assist low- and mod-
2 erate-income housing projects.

3 “(3) The term ‘low- and moderate-income project’
4 means a housing project (A) financed with a loan under
5 section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 or a below-
6 market-interest-rate mortgage insured under section
7 221 (d) (3) of the National Housing Act, or (B) fi-
8 nanced or assisted by a State or local public body or 9 agency authorized to provide or extend financial assist-
10 ance to housing designed to serve families having in-
11 comes too high for admission to low-rent public housing,
12 but too low to afford the rentals required to obtain ade-
13 quate private housing.

14 “(4) The term ‘development cost’ means the costs
15 of constructing a low- and moderate-income housing
16 project and of acquiring the land on which it is located,
17 including necessary costs of site improvements to per-
18 mit its use as a site for a low- and moderate-income
19 housing project.

20 “(f) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated
21 such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions
22 of this section. All sums so appropriated shall remain avail-
23 able until expended.”

24 On page 9, line 22, strike out “104” and insert “105”.

25 On page 10, line 19, strike out “105” and insert “106”.

Intended to be proposed by Mr. LONG of Missouri (for himself and Mr. SYMINGTON) to the bill (S. 1354) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities, viz: On page 43, beginning with line 12, strike out all through line 10, on page 44, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

1 (b) No grant shall be made under this section unless
2 the Administrator determines—

3 (1) that the project (A) will serve an area which 4 is expected to experience significant population growth
5 in the reasonably foreseeable future, (B) is designed so

1 that an adequate capacity will be available to serve the 2 reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area, (C) is
3 consistent with a program, meeting criteria established
4 by the Administrator, for a unified or officially coordinated
5 areawide water or sewer facilities system as part
6 of the comprehensively planned development of the area,
7 except that prior to July 1, 1968, grants may, in the 8 discretion of the Administrator, be made under this section
9 when such a program for an areawide water and 10 sewer facilities system is under active preparation, although 11 not yet completed, if the facility for which 12 assistance is sought can reasonably be expected to be 13 required as a part of such program, and there is urgent
14 need for the facility, and (D) is necessary to orderly 15 community development; or

16 (2) that the project will provide facilities which 17 (A) are necessary to a program (including a community
18 action program approved under title II of the Economic 19 Opportunity Act of 1964) to improve health
20 and sanitation conditions in the area, (B) are consistent 21 with any comprehensive planning, in effect or under 22 preparation, for the development of the community, and 23 (C) will serve the needs of a significant portion (or 24 number in the case of large urban places) of the area's
25 low- or moderate-income residents.

1 (c) The amount of any grant under the authority of this
2 section shall not exceed (1) 40 per centum of the develop-
3 ment cost of that portion of any project meeting the require-
4 ments of paragraph (1) of subsection (b) as may be
5 necessary to enable the project to serve adequately the rea-
6 sonably foreseeable growth needs of the area, or (2) 90 per

AMENDMENT

Intended to be proposed by Mr. JAVITS to S. 1354, a bill to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities, viz: At the end of the bill add a new title as follows:

1 TITLE XI—MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

2 FINDINGS

3 SEC. 1101. (a) While the Congress, in the declaration
4 of national housing policy set forth in the Housing Act of 5 1949, established the goal of a decent home and a suitable
6 living environment for every American family, experience
7 has demonstrated that this goal is not being met for the mil-

1 lions of American families whose incomes are too high for
2 admission to low-rent public housing but too low to afford
3 the range of sales prices and rents required for satisfactory
4 new private housing being produced under existing govern-
5 mental programs of assistance to private enterprise in hous-
6 ing. Therefore, to further implement the declaration of 7 national housing policy, and consistent with the provision
8 thereof that any governmental assistance should be utilized
9 where feasible to enable private enterprise to serve more of 10 the total housing need, the Congress hereby determines that 11 there is an urgent need for a supplementary system of hous-
12 ing finance to enable private enterprise to provide homes
13 of sound standards of design and construction for families
14 of moderate income and for elderly persons.

15 (b) The Congress further determines that there are 16 means available to State and local governments to further
17 assist private enterprise to meet this need at little or no
18 direct cost to such governments by (1) granting exemptions,
19 in whole or in part, from taxation on the increased value
20 of real property, (2) assisting in the assembling of sites
21 through the use of the power of condemnation and eminent 22 domain, and (3) promoting the use for such housing of 23 sites which have been cleared under the slum clearance and 24 urban renewal provisions of the Housing Act of 1949, as 25 amended.

PURPOSE

SEC. 1102. The purpose of this title is to assist the States in providing satisfactory housing in well-planned, economically sound residential neighborhoods for families of moderate income and elderly persons whose needs are not being effectively served through existing programs of assistance to private and public enterprise. Such assistance is to be provided through the establishment of a Federal guarantee program for obligations issued by local housing agencies to raise funds in order to make loans to eligible borrowers for the construction of such housing.

FEDERAL GUARANTEE

SEC. 1103. (a) The Housing and Home Finance Administrator is authorized to guarantee the payment of the principal and interest on obligations issued by any local housing agency in accordance with the provisions of this title.

(b) Any local housing agency desiring to avail itself of the benefits of this title shall make application in writing to the Administrator stating—

(1) that such agency is authorized and desires to issue obligations to obtain funds to make mortgage loans to eligible borrowers for the provision of housing for families of moderate income and for elderly persons;

(2) that such mortgage loans will conform to the requirements of section 1104;

1 (3) that the local housing agency shall approve
2 applications for mortgage loans only with respect to 3 projects which will receive assistance in one or more of 4 the ways specified in section 1101 (b) of this title;

5 (4) that the interest on such obligations shall not
6 exceed a rate of 4 per centum per annum;

7 (5) that the principal amount of obligations to be 8 issued by the applicant for which a Federal guarantee is 9 sought shall not exceed in the aggregate $;

10 (6) that such agency shall maintain at all times
11 such reserve fund to meet losses on mortgage loans made
12 by it as the Administrator shall, by regulation, require;

13 (7) that such agency will take steps to assure (A)
14 that mortgage loans are not dissipated through specu-
15 lative devices, (B) that the organization of any corpo-
16 rate borrower and its proposed methods of operation are 17 such as will avoid its use for speculative purposes or the 18 payment of excessive fees, salaries, or charges in con-
19 nection with any housing project, and (C) that bor-
20 rowers will adopt methods by which occupants of dwell-
21 ings may be permitted to reduce their rentals or other
22 occupancy charges by occupant maintenance and repair
23 or other means of self-help and methods whereby they 24 may acquire (subject to the right of a cooperative to repurchase) ownership of their individual dwellings where such dwellings are free standing; and

(8) such further information as the Administrator may, by regulation, require.

(c) Upon the approval of any application under this section, the Administrator shall issue to the local housing agency a certificate stating that obligations issued by such agency in accordance with such approved application are fully and unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States.

(d) The total amount of obligations outstanding at any time which are guaranteed under this title shall not exceed $.

CONDITIONS APPLICABLE TO MORTGAGE LOANS

SEC. 1104. (a) Any mortgage loan made by a local housing agency with funds obtained with assistance under this title shall be made only to an eligible borrower to finance the development by such borrower of a housing project. No such loan shall be made unless—

(1) such agency shall have determined that—

(A) the borrower is an eligible borrower and that, in the case of a cooperative ownership housing corporation, the subscribers thereof are predominantly families of moderate income, or elderly per-

1 sons (or both) or that, in the case of a borrower
2 other than a cooperative ownership housing cor-
3 poration, the dwellings in such housing project
4 are to be made available to families of moderate
5 income or elderly persons;

6 (B) the proposed housing project will meet a
7 need for housing of families of moderate income or 8 elderly persons;

9 (C) the location and physical planning of the 10 housing project will afford reasonable assurance as 11 to the stability of the neighborhood, and the dwell-
12 ings in the housing project will meet sound stand-
13 ards of design, construction, livability, and size for 14 adequate family life or for elderly persons; and

15 (D) the housing project will not be of elab-
16 orate or extravagant design or construction, and 17 such design and construction and the proposed 18 methods of construction and of operation and main-
19 tenance are such as will promote such economies
20 as are contemplated to be achieved through (i)
21 the nonprofit or limited-profit character of the bor-
22 rower, (ii) increased efficiency in production
23 through the use of new or improved materials and 24 techniques and methods of construction or other-25 wise, (iii) increased efficiency in operation and management, (iv) minimum necessary operating services, occupant maintenance, or otherwise; and (2) the borrower shall have agreed with such agency—

(A) not to incur or pay any excessive fees, salaries, or charges in connection with the housing project;

(B) to establish an initial schedule of rents or charges for the dwellings in the housing project which will permit such dwellings to be made available for families of moderate income, or for elderly persons, and such initial schedule of rents or charges and all revisions thereof shall be subject to the prior approval of such agency: Provided, That such agency shall not approve any initial schedule of rents or charges unless it has determined (i) that such rents or charges will permit the dwellings to be made available for families of moderate income or for elderly persons, and (ii) that such schedule is consistent, insofar as applicable, with the requirements of paragraph (2) (E) of this subsection, and reflects any savings derived by the borrower in one or more of the ways specified in section 1101 (b) of this title;

(C) to give preference in the selection of ten-

1 ants for the housing project (as among eligible ap-
2 plicants) first, to families displaced by public clear-
3 ance or enforcement action; second, to families
4 living in substandard homes; and, third, to families
5 living in overcrowded homes, veterans to have pref-
6 erence in each category: Provided, That in respect
7 to dwelling units specifically designed and desig-
8 nated for elderly persons, such persons shall have 9 a preference for the tenancy of such housing, with-
10 out regard to the foregoing preferences;

11 (D) to maintain the housing project, including
12 all equipment therein, and all appurtenances there-
13 to, in good condition throughout the life of the 14 mortgage loan, and to establish and maintain ade-
15 quate reserves for repairs, maintenance, and replace-
16 ments necessary to so maintain such housing project;

17 (E) to pay dividends, if the borrower is a lim-
18 ited dividend corporation or other entity, at a rate
19 which is not in excess of 6 per centum per annum:
20 Provided, That if in any year the Corporation is 21 unable to pay dividends at the rate agreed to here-
22 under, dividends may be paid out of surplus earned
23 in any subsequent year at a rate in excess of that 24 agreed to but only to the extent necessary to give 25 stockholders a return on their investment (not including any allowance for interest) equal to that which they would have received if dividends had been paid consecutively at the approved rate; and (F) to comply with such other terms and conditions as the local housing agency determines to be necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this title; and

(3) in the case of a cooperative ownership housing corporation, prior to the receipt of any proceeds of any such mortgage loan, the subscribers of such cooperative borrower shall be equal to such percentage of the number of subscribers proposed to be served by the housing project as may be determined by the local housing agency.

(b) Any such mortgage loan shall involve a principal obligation in an amount (1) not exceeding 90 per centum of the development cost of the housing project as determined by the local housing agency, and (2) not exceeding 90 per centum of such amount such agency shall have determined to be the maximum within which the project must be constructed in order that it may be made available for families of moderate income at rentals or charges within their means. No such loan shall be made unless the mortgagor has agreed to certify the cost to the local housing

1 agency in the manner provided by section 227 of the Na-
2 tional Housing Act for Federal Housing Administration
3 mortgage insurance.

4 (c) (1) If any such mortgage loan made to any eligible
5 borrower involves a principal obligation which is less than 6 that authorized under subsection (b) of this section, and the 7 borrower proposes to raise additional funds through sources
8 other than the local housing agency to be secured through 9 insured or guaranteed mortgages, debentures, bonds, or other-
10 wise, the total mortgage loan and such other borrowing shall 11 not exceed in the aggregate the maximum principal obliga-
12 tion authorized under subsection (b), and the rights of such 13 agency under any such mortgage loan shall not be subordi-
14 nate to the rights of any other creditor supplying such addi-
15 tional funds.

16 (2) Any such mortgage loan may be made to an eligible
17 borrower involving a principal obligation which is less than 18 that authorized under subsection (b) of this section, to 19 represent part of the obligation secured by a single mortgage
20 with equal priorities, when the remainder of the funds obli-
21 gated under such single mortgage are secured from State or 22 local government funds, and the total mortgage loan and any 23 other borrowing under the provisions of paragraph (1) of 24 this subsection does not exceed in the aggregate the maxi-

1 mum principal obligation authorized under subsection (b)
2 of this section.

3 (d) Any such mortgage loan shall provide for complete
4 amortization within a period of fifty years by periodic pay-
5 ments upon such terms, including a program providing for 6 level payments of principal and interest, as the local housing
7 agency shall prescribe, and shall bear interest, on the amount
8 of the principal obligation of such mortgage loan outstanding
9 at any time, at a fixed rate, based on the cost to such agency
10 of capital investment and borrowings from the private mar-
11 ket, plus not more than one-half of 1 per centum to compen-
12 sate such agency for its estimated overhead and administra-
13 tive expenses in connection with such loan and for 14 proportionate payments to required reserves. In the event
15 of the refinancing of the loan (within such period as the local 16 housing agency shall prescribe), if the cost to such agency
17 of capital investment and borrowings from the private mar-
18 ket makes necessary an increase in the rate of interest which,
19 pursuant to this subsection, such agency is required to charge
20 on the mortgage loan, the amortization period may be 21 extended to a date not later than sixty years after the date
22 of the original mortgage: Provided, That no such extension
23 shall be made unless such agency determines that the increase
24 otherwise resulting in the rents or charges for the dwellings

1 in the housing project would adversely affect the stability of
2 such housing project. The mortgage loan may, in the dis-
3 cretion of such agency, include provision for the deferment
4 of payments of principal and interest thereunder: Provided
5 further, That such deferments shall not in the aggregate
6 result in an extension of the maturity of the mortgage for a
7 period of more than three years nor shall any such defer-
8 ments result in an extension of the maturity of the mortgage
9 for more than three years beyond the mortgage maturity
10 otherwise authorized herein.

11 (e) Subject to the provisions of this section, any such 12 mortgage loan shall be in such form, contain such provision
13 as to security, repayment, and redemption, and be subject
14 to such other terms and conditions as the local housing agency
15 shall determine: Provided, That in the case of any coopera-
16 tive mortgagor, the mortgage loan shall contain provisions
17 requiring that such borrower have, to the extent permitted
18 by State and local law, a priority for the purchase of the in-
19 terest of each of its members in the dwelling of such mem-
20 ber in the event of sale of such interest.

21 (f) The borrower under any such loan may, with the 22 consent of the local housing agency, pledge the contract or 23 commitment of such agency to make a mortgage loan here-
24 under as security for a loan of construction funds from other 25 sources.

1 (g) With respect to any such loan, the local housing
2 agency may charge to the borrower (in addition to any in-
3 terest charges) an amount not exceeding one-half of 1 per 4 centum of the principal amount of the mortgage loan for in-
5 spection and other services during the construction of any
6 housing project. Such agency may also charge to an appli-
7 cant for any such mortgage loan a reasonable fee for the cost
8 of processing applications, which shall be payable by the 9 applicant whether or not such application is approved. If 10 the borrower proposes to raise additional funds through 11 sources other than the local housing agency to be secured
12 through insured or guaranteed mortgages, debentures, bonds,
13 or otherwise, the inspection charge herein authorized shall 14 be computed on the total amount borrowed from such agency
15 and such other sources for the construction of such project.
16 Such service charges may be included as a part of the de-
17 velopment cost of the project and may be payable from the 18 proceeds of any mortgage loan or advances thereon.

19 (h) (1) Each recipient of any such mortgage loan shall 20 keep such records as the local housing agency shall prescribe,
21 including records which fully disclose the amount and dis-
22 position by such recipient of the proceeds of such mortgage
23 loan, the total cost of the housing project in connection with 24 which such loan is made, and the amount and nature of that

1 portion of the cost of the project or undertaking supplied by 2 other sources, and such other records as will facilitate an
3 effective audit.

4 (2) The Administrator and the Comptroller General
5 of the United States, or any of their duly authorized repre-
6 sentatives, shall have access for the purpose of audit and 7 examination to any books, documents, papers, and records
8 of the local housing agency and of eligible borrowers that 9 are pertinent to any such mortgage loans.

10 (i) After the expiration of twenty years from the date
11 of the original obligation under any such mortgage loan, a 12 borrower may relieve itself of further supervisions by the 13 local public housing agency upon repayment of the mort-
14 gage loan and of such portion of the value of any tax abate-
15 ment as may have been granted it by any State or local gov-
16 ernment and to which such government does not at such 17 time waive the rights of repayment.

18 DEFAULTS

19 SEC. 1105. (a) In the event any local housing agency
20 shall fail to make any payment of principal and/or interest due
21 on any obligation guaranteed under this title, and such de-22 fault continues for a period of thirty days, the holder of such 23 obligation shall be entitled to receive debentures (in prin-
24 cipal amount equal to the unpaid principal of the defaulted
25 obligation plus any interest due and unpaid thereon) upon

1 assignment, transfer, and delivery to the Administrator,
2 within a period and in accordance with rules and regula-
3 tions to be prescribed by the Administrator, of the obliga-
4 tion in default.

5 (b) Debentures issued under this section shall be
6 executed in the name of Guarantee Loan Fund (established
7 pursuant to subsection (d)) as obligor, shall be signed by 8 the Administrator by either his written or engraved signa-
9 ture, and shall be negotiable. Such debentures shall be 10 negotiable, and shall bear interest at a rate determined by 11 the Administrator, with the approval of the Secretary of 12 the Treasury, at the time the defaulted obligation was issued,
13 but not to exceed the rate of interest applicable to the de-
14 faulted obligation, or the going Federal rate, whichever is 15 the lower, payable semiannually on the 1st day of January
16 and on the 1st day of July of each year, and shall mature
17 three years after the 1st day of July following the maturity
18 date of the defaulted obligation in exchange for which such 19 debentures were issued. Such debentures shall be paid out
20 of the Guarantee Loan Fund which shall be primarily liable
21 therefor, and shall be fully and unconditionally guaranteed
22 as to principal and interest by the United States, and such 23 guaranty shall be expressed on the face of the debenture.
24 In the event there is a failure to pay upon demand when 25 due, the principal of, or interest on, any debenture so guar-

1 anteed, the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay to the 2 holder or holders the amount thereof which is hereby au-
3 thorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treas-
4 ury not otherwise appropriated, and thereupon, to the ex-
5 tent of the amount so paid, the Secretary of the Treasury
6 shall succeed to all the rights of the holder or holders of 7 such debentures.

8 (c) Debentures issued under this section shall be in 9 such form and denominations in multiples of $50, shall be 10 subject to such terms and conditions, and shall include such 11 provisions for redemption, if any, as may be prescribed by 12 the Administrator, with the approval of the Secretary of 13 the Treasury, and may be in coupon or registered form.
14 Any difference between the amount of debentures to which 15 the holder of the defaulted obligation is entitled under this 16 section and the aggregate principal amount of the debentures
17 issued, not to exceed $50, shall be adjusted by the payment
18 of cash by the Administrator. The Administrator may, with 19 the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in 20 the open market debentures issued under this section. De-
21 bentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued.

22 (d) There is hereby established a Guarantee Loan Fund
23 which shall be used by the Administrator to meet obligations
24 arising out of guarantees entered into under the provisions
25 of this title. Such fund shall consist of such sums as may

1 from time to time be appropriated to it. Any sums so
2 appropriated shall remain available until expended.

3 PROTECTION OF LABOR STANDARDS

4 SEC. 1106. All laborers and mechanics employed by 5 contractors of subcontractors on housing projects the financ-
6 ing of which is assisted under this title shall be paid wages
7 at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction
8 in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in 9 accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40
10 U.S.C. 276a—276a-5). No such project shall be approved
11 without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor
12 standards will be maintained upon the construction work.
13 The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor
14 standards specified in this provision, the authority and func-
15 tions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950
16 (15 F.R. 3176; 64 Stat. 1267; 5 U.S.C. 133z-15), and 17 section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934, as amended (48 Stat.
18 948, as amended; 40 U.S.C. 276c).

19 AMENDMENTS OF OTHER ACTS

20 SEC. 1107. (a) The sixth sentence of paragraph seven
21 of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (12
22 U.S.C. 24), is amended by striking out “, if the debentures 23 to be issued in payment of such insured obligations” and 24 inserting in lieu thereof the following: “or obligations guar-
25 anteed by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator

1 pursuant to section 1103 of the Moderate-Income Housing
2 Act of 1965, if the debentures to be issued in payment of 3 such insured or guaranteed obligations”.

4 (b) Section 5200 of the Revised Statutes, as amended
5 (12 U.S.C. 84), is amended by adding at the end thereof
6 the following:

7 “(14) Obligations of a local housing agency (as defined
8 in section 1108 (2) of the Moderate-Income Housing Act of 9 1965), which are guaranteed by the Housing and Home
10 Finance Administrator pursuant to section 1103 of such Act,
11 shall not be subject to any limitation based upon such capital
12 and surplus.”

13 DEFINITIONS

14 SEC. 1108. As used in this title, the term—

15 (1) “Administrator” means the Housing and Home
16 Finance Administrator.

17 (2) “Local housing agency” means any public corpora-
18 tion authorized to carry out, and created or designated by or 19 pursuant to State law for the purpose of carrying out, the 20 financing of the development of housing, including housing
21 for moderate-income families and for elderly persons.

22 (3) “Families of moderate income” means families, or 23 individuals, whose incomes preclude them from purchasing
24 or renting conventionally financed new housing with total
25 monthly housing expenditures of 20 per centum of their nor-

1 mal stable income as defined by the local public housing
2 agency.

3 (4) "Eligible borrower" or "borrower" means a pri-
4 vate nonprofit corporation or other entity, a limited dividend
5 corporation or other entity, or a nonprofit cooperative owner-
6 ship housing corporation.

7 (5) "Corporation" means either a corporation or a trust
8 and references to members of such corporations shall with 9 respect to trusts mean the beneficiaries thereof.

10 (6) "Housing project" means a project (including all 11 property, real and personal, contracts, rights, and choses in 12 action acquired, owned, or held by a borrower in connection 13 therewith) of a borrower designed and used primarily for the 14 purpose of providing dwellings; but nothing herein shall be 15 construed as prohibiting the inclusion in a housing project
16 of such stores, offices, or other commercial facilities, recrea-
17 tional or community facilities, or other nondwelling facilities
18 as are necessary appurtenances to such housing project.

19 (7) "Development cost" means (A) the amount of the 20 reasonable costs incurred by the borrower in, and necessary
21 for, carrying out all works and undertakings for the develop-
22 ment of a housing project and shall include the cost of all
23 necessary surveys, plans and specifications, architectural,
24 engineering, or other special services, land acquisition, site
25 preparation, construction and equipment, interest incurred

1 during the development of the housing project up to the time
2 of completion, initial working capital for the administration
3 of the housing project, necessary expenses (including any 4 initial operating deficit) in connection with the initial oc-
5 cupancy of the housing project, and the cost of such other
6 items as the local housing agency shall determine to be neces-
7 sary for the development of the housing project, less net
8 rents and other net income received from the housing project
9 prior to the time of its completion, as determined by such
10 agency, or (B) the cost, as approved by the local housing
11 agency, incurred by the borrower in, and necessary for the 12 acquisition of, a housing project developed with a loan
13 guaranteed under this title. For the purposes of this para-
14 graph, the local housing agency shall consider in determin-
15 ing the reasonable cost of land acquisition the effect of local 16 assistance for assembling and clearing the site and securing 17 title thereto as provided in section 1101 (b) of this title.

18 (8) "Mortgage" or "mortgage loan" means a first
19 mortgage on real estate, in fee simple, or on a leasehold (A)
20 under a lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is 21 renewable or (B) under a lease having a period of not less
22 than seventy-five years to run from the date the mortgage
23 was executed; and the term "first mortgage" means such 24 classes of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances
25 on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate, under the

1 laws of the State in which the real estate is located, together
2 with the credit instruments, if any, secured thereby.

3 (9) "Real estate" includes lands, lands and improve-
4 ments, lands under water, waterfront property, the water
5 of any lake, pond, or stream, and the air space over and 6 above any of the foregoing.

7 (10) "Veteran" means a person who has served in the 8 active military or naval service of the United States at any 9 time (A) on or after September 16, 1940, and prior to 10 July 26, 1947, (B) on or after April 6, 1917, and prior to 11 November 11, 1918, or (C) on or after June 27, 1950, and 12 prior to February 1, 1955, and who shall have been dis-
13 charged or released therefrom under conditions other than 14 dishonorable.

15 (11) "State" means the several States, the District of 16 Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the terri-
17 tories, dependencies, and possessions of the United States.

18 (12) "Elderly person" means a person sixty years of 19 age or over or a family the head of which or his spouse is 20 sixty years of age or over.

21 (13) "Going Federal rate" means the annual rate of 22 interest (or, if there shall be two or more such rates of in-23 terest, the highest thereof) specified in the most recently
24 issued bonds of the Federal Government having a maturity
25 of ten years or more.

AMENDMENT

Intended to be proposed by Mr. HART to S. 1354, a bill to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities, viz: On page 39, after line 17, insert a new section 304 as follows and renumber the following section in title III accordingly:

- 1 DEMOLITION OF UNSAFE STRUCTURES
- 2 SEC. 304. A new section 116 is added to the Housing
- 3 Act of 1949 to read as follows:
- 4 “DEMOLITION
- 5 “SEC. 116. (a) The Administrator is authorized to make
- 6 grants to cities, other municipalities, or counties to assist

1 them in bearing the cost of demolishing structures in the com-
2 munity which under State or local law have been declared
3 structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation and which 4 such cities, other municipalities, or counties have authority to 5 demolish. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds of the 6 cost of the demolition and may be made only to a community
7 which is carrying out a systematic program of demolishing
8 such structures.

9 “(b) In connection with making such grants, the Ad-
10 ministrator shall require that the full cost of the demolition
11 of a structure be recorded as a lien against the real property
12 on which it is located in accordance with State or local law,
13 and, when such lien is satisfied either through payment or 14 through sale of the real property to a private person, the 15 Federal share of the cost of demolishing such structure shall 16 be repaid to the Administrator to the extent that funds are 17 available from the sale.

18 “(c) Any funds repaid to the Administrator as a re-
19 sult of the provisions of subsection (b) shall become avail-
20 able for grant purposes under this title.”

AMENDMENTS

Intended to be proposed by Mr. NELSON (for himself and Mr. MONDALE) to S. 1702, a bill to maintain farm income, to stabilize prices and assure adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, to reduce surpluses, lower Government costs and promote foreign trade, to afford greater economic opportunity in rural areas, and for other purposes, viz:

- 1 On page 43, line 9, immediately preceding the words
- 2 "The Secretary" insert the following new sentence: "The
- 3 rate or rates of annual adjustment payments as determined
- 4 hereunder shall be increased by an amount determined by
- 5 the Secretary to be appropriate as a wildlife service payment
- 6 based upon the benefit of wildlife uses established on the land
- 7 by producers who permit access to such land by the public

1 during the contract period for hunting, trapping, fishing, and
2 hiking under applicable State and Federal regulations.”

3 Insert on page 45, after line 16, a new subsection (d)
4 as follows:

5 “(d) The Secretary may, without regard to the civil 6 service laws, appoint an Advisory Board on Wildlife to 7 advise and consult on matters relating to his functions under 8 this title as he deems appropriate. The Board shall consist 9 of twelve persons chosen from members of wildlife organiza-
10 tions, farm organizations, State game and fish agencies, and 11 representatives of the general public. Members of such 12 Advisory Board who are not regular full-time employees of 13 the United States shall, while attending meetings or confer-
14 ences of such Board or otherwise engaged on business of such 15 Board, be entitled to receive compensation at a rate fixed
16 by the Secretary, but not exceeding $100 per diem, including 17 travel time, and, while so serving away from their homes
18 or regular places of business, they may be allowed travel
19 expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as author-

Intended to be proposed by Mr. TOWER to S. 2213, a bill to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, to promote orderly urban development, to improve living environment in urban areas, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing, urban renewal, urban mass transportation, and community facilities, viz: On page 60, between lines 14 and 15, insert a new section as follows:

1 LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

2 SEC. 408. (a) The United States Housing Act of 1937
3 is amended by redesignating section 23 as section 24, and by 4 adding after section 22 a new section as follows:

5 “LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

6 “SEC. 23. (a) For the purpose of providing a supple-
7 mentary form of low-rent housing which will aid in assuring
8 a decent place to live for every citizen and promote efficiency

1 and economy in the program under this Act by taking full
2 advantage of vacancies or potential vacancies in the private
3 housing market, each public housing agency shall, to the
4 maximum extent consistent with the achievement of the
5 objectives of this Act, provide low-rent housing under this
6 Act in the form of low-rent housing in private accommoda-
7 tions in accordance with this section where such housing in
8 private accommodations can be provided at a cost equal to or
9 less than housing in projects assisted under other provisions
10 of this Act. As used in this section the term 'low-rent hous-
11 ing in private accommodations' means dwelling units in an
12 existing structure, leased from a private owner, which provide 13 decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and
14 related facilities effectively supplementing the accommoda-
15 tions and facilities in low-rent housing assisted under the
16 other provisions of this Act in a manner calculated to meet
17 the total housing needs of the community in which they are
18 located. As used in this section, the term 'owner' means
19 any person or entity having the legal right to lease or sub-
20 lease property containing one or more dwelling units as
21 described in this section.

22 " (b) Beginning as soon as practicable after the date of
23 the enactment of this section, each public housing agency
24 shall conduct a continuing survey and listing of the available
25 dwelling units within the community or communities under

1 its jurisdiction which provide decent, safe, and sanitary
2 dwelling accommodations and related facilities and are, or
3 may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private
4 accommodations under this section.

5 “(c) Each public housing agency, by notification to
6 the owners of housing listed under subsection (b), or by
7 publication or advertisement, or otherwise, shall from time
8 to time make known to the public in the community or com-
9 munities under its jurisdiction the anticipated need for dwell-
10 ing units in such community or communities to be used as
11 low-rent housing in private accommodations under this sec-
12 tion, inviting the owners of such dwelling units to make 13 available for purposes of this section one or more of such 14 units (not exceeding 10 per centum of the units in any single 15 structure except to the extent that the agency, because of 16 the limited number of units in the structure or for any other
17 reason, determines that such limit should not be applied).
18 The public housing agency shall conduct appropriate inspec-
19 tions of the units offered to be made available in any 20 residential structure by the owner thereof in response to
21 such invitation, and if—

22 “(1) it finds that such units are, or may be made,
23 suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accom-
24 modations within the meaning of subsection (a), and

25 “(2) the rentals to be charged for such units, as

1 negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner
2 of the structure in a manner consistent with subsection
3 (d) (2), are within the financial range of families of
4 low income,

5 such agency may approve such units for use as low-rent
6 housing in private accommodations in accordance with (and
7 subject to the applicable limitations contained in) this sec-
8 tion. Each public housing agency shall maintain and keep
9 current a list of units approved by it under this subsection,
10 including such information with respect to each such unit
11 as it may consider necessary or appropriate.

12 “(d) To the extent of contracts for annual contributions
13 entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency
14 under section 10 (e), such agency may enter into contracts
15 with the owners of structures containing dwelling units ap-
16 proved under subsection (c) for the use of such units in 17 accordance with this section. Each such contract with an 18 owner shall provide (with respect to any unit) that—

19 “(1) the selection of tenants for such unit shall be 20 the function of the owner, subject to the provisions of
21 the contract between the Authority and the agency;

22 “(2) the rental and other charges to be received by
23 the owner shall be negotiated and agreed to by the
24 agency and the owner, and the rental and other charges
25 to be paid by the tenant shall be determined in accord-

1 ance with the standards applicable to units in low-rent
2 housing projects assisted under the other provisions of
3 this Act;

4 “(3) the agency shall have the sole right to give
5 notice to vacate, with the owner having the right to
6 make representations to the agency for termination of 7 a tenancy;

8 “(4) maintenance and replacements (including
9 redcoration) shall be in accordance with the standard
10 practice for the building concerned, as established by
11 the owner and agreed to by the agency; and

12 “(5) the agency and the owner shall carry out such
13 other appropriate terms and conditions as may be
14 mutually agreed to by them.

15 Each contract between a public housing agency and an
16 owner entered into under this subsection shall be for a term
17 of not less than twelve months nor more than thirty-six
18 months, and shall be renewable by such agency and owner
19 at the expiration of such term.

20 “(c) The annual contribution under this Act for a proj-
21 ect of a public housing agency for low-rent housing in private
22 accommodations under this section in lieu of any other guar-
23 anteed contribution authorized by section 10 shall not exceed
24 the amount of the fixed annual contribution which would be

1 established under this Act for a newly constructed project
2 by such public housing agency designed to accommodate the
3 comparable number, sizes, and kinds of families. The
4 period over which payments will be made to a public hous-
5 ing agency for a project of low-rent housing in private
6 accommodations under this section, and the aggregate
7 amount of such payments, under a contract for annual
8 contributions, shall be determined on the basis of the number
9 of units in the community or communities under the juris-
10 diction of such agency which are in use (or can reasonably 11 be expected to be placed in use) as low-rent housing in
12 private accommodations under this section, taking into ac-
13 count the terms of the leases under which such units are (or 14 will be) so used. In addition, contracts for financial assist-
15 ance entered into by the Authority with a public housing
16 agency pursuant to this section shall provide for reimburse-
17 ment of reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by such
18 agency in conducting surveys, listings, and inspections de-
19 scribed in subsections (b) and (c).

20 “(f) On or before January 1, 1968, the Authority shall
21 submit to the Congress a full report of operations under this
22 section, together with its recommendations with respect
23 thereto.”

24 (b) The last sentence of section 2(1) of such Act is 25 amended by striking out “Income limits for occupancy and

1 rents” and inserting in lieu thereof “Except as otherwise pro-
2 vided in section 23, income limits for occupancy and rents”.

3 (c) The provisions of sections 10(h) and 15(7) of the
4 United States Housing Act of 1937, and the workable pro-
5 gram requirement in section 10(e) of such Act and section
6 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949, shall not apply to low-
7 rent housing in private accommodations provided under 8 section 23 of the United States Housing Act of 1937.
